Paramount Is Finally Free Of Court Rule

Officers of New Setup Now in Control

Paramount Pictures, Inc., the reorganized Paramount Publix Corp., begins its normal operations, free of Federal court supervision which prevailed during the 29 months of the company's bankruptcy, this morning. Formal transfer of the assets of the company from the trustees in bankruptcy to the board and officers of the new company has been accomplished, bringing about the new independent administration.

While the trustees have not been

More Picket Trouble; New Arrests Total 26

After a few days of comparative peace and quiet along the picketing front, 26 Local 306 sandwich men were arrested over the weekend in Brooklyn and New York. Resumption of arrests leads union officials to believe that Mayor LaGuardia is cracking down on them and that efforts to settle the picketing situation by arbitration will fail. Twenty-three of the arrests were made in Brooklyn.

Frank Tichenor, publisher of Outlook, has a meeting slated with representatives of the various unions tomorrow. In operators' headquarters there is little doubt that Tichenor will accomplish anything.

Reinhardt's Second May Be "12th Night"

Max Reinhardt will direct a second for Warners of the "spectacle" type, with the choice of vehicle either Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" or "The Miracle," which would be produced along the same general lines as the stage spectacle. "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Reinhardt's first, is now being edited and cut and will be road-shown prior to release in the fall.

Reinhardt, who sailed for Europe Saturday on the Ile de France, will return in two months, at which time his next will be definitely determined.

14 Long Island Theatres in Pool Set for Fall Signing

Contracts for the pooling of Century and Skouras theatres in Nassau and Suffolk counties in Long Island will not be signed until Sept. 1. Skouras has asked for the delay, although the two circuits are now working on a cooperative arrangement.

Each of the circuits will have seven houses in the pool. Final determination of the various towns to be turned over to George Skouras and A. H. Schwartz will be made shortly. The contract, when signed, will provide for a 10-year deal retroactive to Jan. 1, 1935.

Century's units involved are the Bliss, Sunnyside; Merrick, Jamaica; Franklin, Franklin Square; Fantasy, Rockville Center; Freeport and Grove, Freeport; Huntington, Huntington. Skouras' houses are the Sunnyside, Sunnyside; Valley Stream, Valley Stream; Lynbrook, Lynbrook; Rivoli and Hempstead, Hempstead; Jamaica, Jamaica; Cove, Glen Cove.

Last week Century increased its home office space 1,200 feet.

Indianans for Some Form of New Code Rule

Indianapolis, June 30.—Some substitute for the code is needed, it is agreed here among both independents and circuit men, but there is no agreement on the idea of a voluntary code. The chances for enforcement on that basis are not considered good.

Charles R. Metzger, attorney for Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, comes forward with the suggestion that all elements of the industry get together to seek a solution. In the meantime most individual exhibitors say they are living up to code wage

Giveaways in Philadelphia Running Riot

Philadelphia, June 30.—In spite of efforts of premium dealers to curb the practice and thus conserve the value of premium-giving, the Philadelphia territory is beginning to run riot with giveaways, many houses having as many as four premium nights a week.

In addition to premiums, it is reported that bank nights, bingo and screeno nights will soon be introduced to the section. It is possibly for this reason that the premium men are seeking to restrict the giveaways to two nights a week, fearing that the trade may forsake dishes for lotteries.

Aug. 15 Date For St. Louis Trial Looms

May Run Weeks, Maybe Into Months

St. Louis, June 30.—Industry observers keeping a close and steady watch on progress of the anti-trust actions against Warners, RKO, Paramount, their subsidiaries and some of their officers are of the opinion that the Federal Court will set Aug. 15 as the date for the trial.

While it is not customary to hold lengthy and drawn-out trials during summer months, it is expected Federal Judge George Moore, recently appointed by the President and approved by the Senate to hear the actions, will decide on the middle of August for the hearings to get under way.

RFC Studies Roxy's $750,000 Loan Plea

the RFC here is studying the request for a loan of $750,000 to reorganize the theatre.

Observers here see little hope of the bondholders getting the money. On the three counts to be taken into consideration by the RFC, the Roxy is understood to fail to come within the necessary requirements.

Count one is that the corporation must be in distress. The Roxy Corp., under the trusteeship of Howard S. Cullman, is reported to have more than $250,000 in the bank.

Count two is that if the money is granted additional employment must follow. In the event the Roxy is reorganized it is not planned to take on any extra help, it is learned.

Count three is that the RFC will only grant a loan provided the bondholders cannot get other financial interests to reorganize the bankrupt corporation. In this respect, it is said there are three to four parties willing to rehabilitate the financial structure of the Roxy, but cannot agree on terms with the bondholders' protective committee.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT may be the Federal Housing Administration funds; it may be because roofs are beginning to leak and must be repaired, or it may be better business and a return of optimism, but theatre improvement reports are pouring into MOTION PICTURE DAILY in impressive numbers from all parts of the country. Coupled with the fact that openings are outrunning seasonal closings in New England, Missouri, Kansas, points in the South and in Wisconsin, these indications seem to point to an upturn in business. Nobody is talking about prosperity—that is, not in tones loud enough to be heard—but there seems to be an increasing number of exhibitors who are convinced business isn't going to the dogs. . . .

Business in this business is better. How much better is naturally a matter of individual opinion and the approach surrounding any contemplation of the matter. It may be that this industry, like others, will have to reach a determination to permanently forget 1929 and the theatre killings which prevailed in those now hazy days. Perhaps the level of grosses which were standard then might better be forever more written out of the trade's consciousness for its own ultimate good. Perhaps it is the 1934 and 1935 level attained by the average attraction to which the industry is entitled and nothing more. The gold rush days were pleasant, agreeable, and easy to take, of course. We had them and we should be grateful. Let's not go into the fool's paradise sort of thing and wallow in the delusion that they must continue. . . .

The indifference of too many exhibitors to the possibilities at hand is capturing more and more interest from the distributor who has expensive negatives to clear. The inclination appears to be growing, without evidencing any wholesale or broadside strokes, for the distributor to take a more active part in the exploitation of his bigger attractions and to insist, maybe, that some of the handling, at least, follow precepts set down in New York. The attitude might be described as entirely selfish and with both optics glued to percentage splits, yet if it should reflect additional dollars at the till the premise behind it obviously becomes commendable.

As a current manifestation of the point under discussion, there is that which George J. Schaefer recently told the Paramount sales convention. For what it is worth and for what it implies, the text is worth reprinting. Here goes, then:

> "You have got to assume the responsibility of getting the most out of the product, not merely by selling it, but by proper booking and by insisting upon, and assisting in, proper exploitation. No longer can the matter of exploitation be left entirely in the hands of the exhibitor. We can't merely let our product go over the counter, like so many pounds of potatoes. We've got to run an unquestionable first in the whole industry if we are going to protect our own prestige as well as our production situation on the coast."

Universal's decision to cut dialogue to a minimum by way of preserving and augmenting the appeal of its product in foreign-language countries was one of Saturday's sparse, but few interesting developments. Aimed at overseas distribution, the plan is of significant value in the domestic field as well. Motion pictures are supposed to move, not to stand still and talk their customers out the door. Continued and strict observance to the first tenets of the business persists in proving a sound path to pursue. . . .

So Hollywood will move from Hollywood for various and sundry eastern points, to fight California taxes, will it? That, somehow or other, fails to jibe with additional construction activity on the coast. Those nine new studios for Warners, for instance.

How it goes in some cases: Business on the Popeye cartoons, which Max Fleischer makes for Paramount, increased 39½ per cent in the first thirty-nine weeks of this year. . . .

for an early trial on the grounds that an extended delay would virtually destroy the business of the complainants and add considerably to the losses of approximately 6,000 bondholders of the Ambassador, Grand Central and Missouri. Hardy, during recent hearings on motions filed by RKO Distributing Corp. and Ned E. Depinet, president, for sustaining a demurrer, stated that the court should be able to dispose of the motions by July 15.

Attorneys for distributors requested that the trial date be set early in October. Senator Reed and Sam B. Jeffries, local Warner counsel, indicated to the court that the defense would counter with a "vicious" attack on the business methods of Fanchon & Marco and Harry Koplar, who had been affiliated with F. & M. until recently.

Several prominent attorneys from New York are expected to participate in the trial. Louis Phillips of counsel for Paramount, has made a number of trips here on behalf of his company. RKO and Warners have sent special counsel from the home office to aid local counsel.

Meanwhile, F. & M. plans to reopen the Ambassador around Sept. 15. Universal and Fox product in all probability will be shown.

Harry C. Arthur, vice-president of F. & M., is expecting to make this town his headquarters after the summer. It is understood he will personally supervise operations of his circuit and make periodic trips to New York and the coast for conferences with Mike Marco and Jack Partington.

The trial, once it gets under way, is expected to take several weeks. In fact, it may take months.

Blumenthal for questioning today in connection with the Fox Metropolitan Playhouses' reorganization plan. I. Alfred Levy, counsel for the committee, said that efforts to subpoena the two would be continued.

Levy petitioned Federal Judge Julian W. Mack last week to defer giving final court approval to the Fox Met plan until the committee had completed its investigation of the reorganization and obtained the testimony of Schenck and Blumenthal. Judge Mack, however, approved the plan with the stipulation that in the event evidence of improprieties in the Fox Met reorganization was uncovered by the Sabath committee he would exercise his right to veto candidates proposed for the board of new Fox Met.

The trustee of Fox Met on Saturday reported a net loss after depreciation, amortization, interest, expenses and other deductions, of $410,855 for the period from Aug. 17, 1934, to Jan. 31, 1935.

and hour provisions and hoping something will happen.

"The industry needs a definite setup to settle its problems speedily," says Metzger. "A voluntary code will not meet the need. Men who want to maintain fair practices will be handicapped by those who will refuse to go in on such a code, or live up to their agreements if they do go in.

"This would seem to be an excellent time to gather all elements of the industry together with the idea of working out something fair as a long time method of self-regulation."

Charles Olson, only independent first run operator here, is sitting tight waiting for something to happen. In the meantime he is maintaining code hours and wages, he says. Kenneth Collins, manager of the Apollo, a Fourth Ave. Amusement Co. house, is doing the same.

On the other hand, Carl Niesse, local manager for Central City Amusement Co., says he's glad the code is ended. He is opposed to minimum salary regulations or any other form of code control, he says.

Shannon Katzenbaugh, general manager for Fourth Ave. Amusement Co. at Terre Haute, says "something should be done to prevent price slashing and the demoralization of the business in competitive areas."

Ross Garver, operator of the Orpheum, little Virginia and Swan at Terre Haute, leans to the idea of a voluntary code. The NRA regulations were "sane and sensible," he says, and he indicates he has a few suggestions for a new setup.

M-G-M continued to hold the lead in feature activity with 10 shooting, none scheduled to go before cameras within the next two weeks and 15 in final editing. Paramount retained second place with nine shooting, two preparing and three editing. Fox had four, five and seven; Columbia four, two and four; Warners four, one and 10; RKO four, five and five; Goldwyn two, zero and zero; Universal two, one and two; Roach zero, zero and one with the independent group checking up with two, one and one.

Short subject production held even. RKO registered one short in work, one in preparation and six in the cutting room. M-G-M zero, two and six; Roach zero, one and four; Universal zero, one and zero; Columbia zero, two and two, with the independent studios showing one, zero and one.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Anna Karenina"

(M-G-M-Selznick)

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—Tolstoy's classic is here resurrected by the magic of glamorous Garbo, filmed with meticulous taste by Producer David Selznick and guided by the facile hand of Clarence Brown, its director.

In its appeal to the eye with effects of lavish splendor, in its approach to the ear with Russian symphonic accompaniment, in casting and direction the production is well nigh perfection.

In its appeal to the heart and sympathies, however, and its ability to impress rock-ribbed adherents of family life in America, who may not appreciate the nuances of the love tragedy of this gracious patrician and the czar's captain, its impact may be questioned. On foreign soil the film should be sensational.

Countess Greta, married to Basil Rathbone and the mother of the boy, Freddie Bartholomew, is caught in the vortex of romance with bachelor Fredric March for "unimaginable despair and unimaginable bliss." Tightlaced Russian court society is her nemesis, as is March. Such is a short blue-print of the plot.

Not too unselfish is their love, although sophisticates will sense the plight of storm-tossed Greta swirled in life's tides, and women may weep with her. But the average American mother is apt to say it served her right and it is this mother who is the ticket buyer for the family.

Lovely to behold, slim and spirituelle, Garbo is still preeminent in her field. March is satisfactory as the selfish lover. Freddie Bartholomew is a remarkable youngster in priceless scenes. Reginald Owen, Rathbone, Maureen O'Sullivan, May Robson, Joan Marsh and others support splendidly.

Clarence Brown's direction is fine, although handicapped by none too new situations and the screen's compromise with them.

Clemence Dane and Salka Viertel did the screenplay. S. N. Behrman's dialogue adaptation rates roses.

Garbo's drawing power linked to March and Bartholomew in the production, the importance of which is self-evident, will unmistakably pull big opening crowds, but on the verdict of succeeding word-of-mouth will depend follow-up patronage.

Production Code Seal, No. 1015. Running time, 85 minutes. "A."

SHAPIRO

"Welcome Home"

(Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—This is a small town comedy ably done in what is fast becoming the best Fox tradition.

James Dunn, race track tout, leaves his shady companions, Raymond Walburn, William Frawley and Arline Judge, returning to his home town for a high school reunion. The local Chamber of Commerce is anxiously awaiting Charles Sellon, wealthy alumnus, to present him with a factory site. Dunn finds the chamber finances under the guidance of Frank Melton, who has invested the funds for the purchase of worthless Walburn securities.

Infatuated with Rosina Lawrence, local girl, Dunn sends for his old partners to get the money back. But they are broke on arrival and after complications, Walburn, with the shell game, beats Sellon out of more than enough to repay the committee while Dunn persuades Sellon to accept the town offer and open the factory. Rushing to claim Miss Lawrence and finding her engaged to Dave O'Brien, he takes Miss Judge, for whom audience sympathy has been built.

A large supporting cast in which Charles Ray does an excellent bit and the production values are good. The direction of James Tinling paces the action rapidly. The screen play by Marion Orth and Arthur Horman from the latter's original is workmanlike.

discharged by the court their only remaining activity, preserved to them through the Paramount reorganization plan, will be to retain the causes of action in the suits pending against former officers and directors of the company and its banking associates which seek the recovery of large amounts allegedly representing excessive bonuses paid by the old company and damages believed to have been sustained through operations in connection with the issuance of old Paramount stock.

The contesting of claims remaining against the company, which aggregate more than $8,500,.000, or the settlement of them, will be assumed by the new company. These claims include those of Sam Katz, Sidney R. Kent and Jesse L. Lasky, aggregating approximately $600,000, but are exclusive of an additional $10,000,000 of claims filed by E. M. Loew of Boston and A. B. Momand of Oklahoma, for triple damages on anti-trust charges. These latter claims are understood to be in the process of settlement.

Screeno May Be Out In Detroit Theatres

restraining police and investigators of the prosecutor's office from interfering with the playing of screeno in the two theatres.

Judge Webster dismissed the case, by his action perhaps sounding the death knell of screeno here as Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea has ordered the games stopped.

Bank night was not included in the case, but Schreiber also has been notified by police to stop his cash give-away nights. It is understood that the local bank night representative here plans a conference with the prosecutor. Should McCrea hold that to be illegal, too, the matter will be taken into court. Bank night men claim their game is not a lottery, inasmuch as it is not necessary to buy a ticket to the theatre to participate in its prizes.

Won't Enjoin "Gold Mine"

BOSTON, June 30.—Federal Court here has denied a second demand for an injunction against "Gold Mine," premium scheme handled by Jim Kennedy, who originally sold bank night over much of New England. This is the second unsuccessful litigation by bank night sponsors, who have been testing their legal strength against this particular competitor, which they claim infringes on their patents. What will be the next move, if any, against the horde of cash premium plans is as yet hazy. Bank night has been sending warnings to exhibitors utilizing these plans.

Looking 'Em Over

"Redheads on Parade"

(Fox)

LONG BEACH, Calif., June 30.—If a picture starring a platinum blonde could make the United States a nation of platinum blonde women, why shouldn't a picture of all redheads put red hair back on the map?

This somewhat reasonable question is answered in the affirmative by "Redheads on Parade," calculated to make the world red hair conscious. The picture is a bit slow moving as shown here, but nevertheless scores as better than average entertainment. It portrays the behind the scenes of the action in a film studio where the extravaganza is being filmed with Dixie Lee and John Boles co-starred.

Raymond Walburn, angel of the show and manufacturer of "Titianola" red hair dye being boomed by the picture, is in love with Miss Lee and so is Boles. Herman Bing and William Austin supply the comedy as manufacturers of platinum blonde dye who try to wreck the show because if it goes over their business is doomed. Alan Dinehart is the show's producer and Jack Haley a crack press-agent. Patsy O'Connor, four years old, makes his debut, but is no Shirley Temple, although he sings cutely and dances well.

The songs, "I Found a Dream," novelty number, and "I've Got Your Future All Planned" and the finale, "Redheads on Parade," are all good. Norman McLeod directed.

Mexico City Strike May Reach Into Fall

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, June 30.—The theatre employes' strike here, which has closed four large neighborhood houses, is believed likely to continue until September as a result of injunctions obtained yesterday by the strikers' union from the local district court restraining the application of a Federal conciliation and arbitration board decree holding the strike to be unjustified, and ordering the houses to open.

The strikers' union posted an $8,000 bond with the court to guarantee the complete carrying out of its obligations under the injunction. One house reopened, but patrons were intimidated by pickets and left. Owners of the affected theatres assert that business is insufficient to warrant granting the strikers' demands for salary increases.

Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's Cathedral this morning for Dr. Cornelius J. Tyson, who died at St. Vincent's Hospital, where he was president of its medical board, on Friday.

Dr. Tyson was physician for a number of film men and women, including Winfield Sheehan, J. J. McCarthy, Mrs. James R. and Mrs. E. C. Grainger.

Short Subjects

"Carnera-Louis Fight"

(Ronny Pictures)

Because of the interest now prevalent in Joe Louis, the latest sensation of the prize ring, exhibitors will probably profit by showing this film.

Entertainment values are sadly lacking when compared to other pictures of this sort. The photography suffers greatly in comparison and the sound is undoubtedly dubbed.

The action of the fight is caught, none too clearly, since the photographer was behind a post, but the knockdowns are there, and that is what the public will want to see.

"Informer," "Girl" Montreal's Leaders

MONTREAL, June 30. — "The Informer" and "Adventure Girl" on a dual bill at the Princess were the principal profit-makers of the week. They took $8,000, up by $2,000 with the help of the Baer-Braddock fight pictures.

The only other house to pass normal was the Imperial which garnered $3,500 on "Society Doctor" and "The Forbidden Territory."

Grosses were helped somewhat by almost continuous rain which put a crimp in outdoor sports.

Total first run business was $32,500. Average is $30,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending June 22:

Para. Trustees See Company's Future Bright

Issue Statement Lauding Zukor and Associates

A preduction of a successful future for the new Paramount company and a tribute to Adolph Zukor and other company officers on both coasts are contained in a statement issued yesterday for the former trustees of the company by Arthur A. Ballantine, of counsel for the trustees. The statement was made in connection with the official launching yesterday of reorganized Paramount.

Stating that at the beginning of Paramount's receivership in January, 1933, the outlook for the company was "dark," and that "disintegration and loss to investors and to the public seemed more likely than reconstruction and recovery," Ballantine

New Jersey Allied Will Meet Monthly

Starting July 16, Allied of New Jersey will hold regular meetings once a month instead of four, as at present. Sidney Samuelson, president, also plans to call all the sessions in New Jersey and do away with meetings at the Lincoln here.

Behind the once-a-month meeting is the idea of holding all-day sessions. About five hours will be given over to business of the month while the balance of the day will be devoted to social activities. The next conclave will be held in Asbury Park. Another meeting will be held in August, probably the 13th, before the annual convention gets under way Aug. 21 for three days at Atlantic City. The eastern regional meeting of Allied units will also be held Aug. 21 in conjunction with the New Jersey convention.

Paramount Talking Pool in Middletown

Paramount is negotiating a pooling deal in Middletown, N. Y., with M. Hathaway whereby the latter's State and Stratton would be jointly operated with the former's Paramount.

A deal was on some months ago, but didn't get far. However, this time the discussions are expected to materialize in a definite arrangement. If, and when, the deal goes through, George Walsh, Paramount district manager upstate, will supervise.

Clevelanders Seek New Dual Ban Pact

CLEVELAND, July 1.—The Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n. meets Tuesday to determine, if possible, a uniform policy in the Greater Cleveland area as to double features.

It is understood an effort will be made to secure signatures to a new agreement, supplanting the old agreement which expires July 8th, providing for one dual change a week with features not playing a downtown first run.

British Approve 20% More Films for May

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The number of films passed during May, 1935, by the British Board of Censors was 20 per cent over the number in May, 1934, accordiing to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner Henry E. Stebbins in London.

In films longer than 3,000 feet, this was an increase of 37.5 per cent over May, 1934, while under 3,000 feet the increase was 11.3 per cent.

CHICAGO'S M-G-M BATTLE SUBSIDING

Independents Are Buying New Product for Many Spots, It Is Said

CHICAGO, July 1.—Independent theatre opposition to M-G-M, predicated on that company's sales policy of percentage pictures and designated playing time, is beginning to crumble.

Working quietly, but apparently with results satisfactory, M-G-M has sold its product to a number of accounts which to date have held out as part of the local campaign to keep Leo out of as many neighborhood houses as possible until selling terms undergo a change.

The Lou Remheimer and Jack Rose circuits are reported among those who have gone M-G-M. Gumbiner's Commodore, as well as the Admiral, Drake, Portage Park and Revue, all operated by Kourshon and Solomon, are others. The understanding is other deals have been closed with individual houses, although who and what they are could not be learned today.

In the meantime, M-G-M is proceeding with plans to build a 1,600-seat theatre in Oak Park and E. A. Schiller continues to stay on in connection with other theatres previously announced.

Theatre Gains Are Heavy in Midwest Area

KANSAS CITY, July 1. — Theatre business is decidedly on the upgrade in Western Kansas and Missouri, asserts Walter Denney, manager of National Theatre Supply Co.

This applies to new construction, renovation and collections, he says. Prospects for the rest of the year are 100 per cent better than a year ago, he declares.

For years exhibitors have ridden along without making any improvements or replacements.

"We have fewer theatres today—and will have in spite of contemplated openings—than we did during silent days," he asserts. He says there is no overseating in this territory.

Denney's views are corroborated by Larry Larsen, theatre architect and builder. Building is on a broader scale

Trendle and Patterson contended that the columnist's material more than offset whatever good was derived from their theatres' advertising in the paper. The same view is shared by numerous circuit executives here and in other large cities, it was stated yesterday.

J. Lawrence Schanberger, manager of Keith's, said: "We have no intention of making any changes at Keith's where wages and working hours for employes are concerned. As far as a voluntary code is concerned, we are heartily in accord with it provided the independent exhibitor is properly protected."

Code regulations will be continued at theatres controlled by the Philip J. Scheck Enterprises, according to Robert Scheck, president, and Meyer Leventhal, managing director.

"As far as my personal experience with the code is concerned," said Scheck, "I see no reason why it should not be continued."

J. Harry Gruver, proprietor of the Glen, Glen Burnie, Md., a few miles from Baltimore, says: "We ought to continue on the code basis where wages, working conditions and child labor are concerned, but some of the other restrictions could be eliminated."

An organization meeting probably will be called in the next few weeks when a temporary chairman will be named.

declares that "from weakness the Paramount enterprise has been brought back to unquestioned strength."

"Rebuilding of the properties for the good of all has been accomplished by the wise and unremitting efforts, with the constant cooperation of Adolph Zukor, dean of the picture industry, and other able executives of the regulars in Hollywood and New York. The new structure is sound and seaworthy," Ballantine continues. "This day opens the way for new achievement by the regenerated Paramount, carrying legitimate benefits to security holders and satisfying large needs of the public. Alike for new figures in the ceaseless Paramount campaign—John E. Otterson, H. A. Fortington and Edwin L. Weisl and their associates—and for Zukor and his band of veterans who did not know how to be beaten, I predict the fullest measure of success."

Lawyers engaged in the reorganization work during the past year, representing protective committees and creditors, and Ballantine's firm, will file their applications for fees with Special Master John E. Joyce today. The applications will come from about 20 law firms and are expected to aggregate well over $2,000,000 despite Federal Judge Coxe's caution to the attorneys to keep the applications within reason. The fees will be paid out of Paramount funds provided for in the company's reorganization plan. A hearing on the applications will be held before Judge Coxe July 18.

Judge Coxe yesterday reversed a ruling by Special Master John E. Joyce under which Paramount was denied leave to settle a claim of $503,127 filed against the company in its bankruptcy proceedings by Commercial Investment Trust Co. Under Judge Coxe's order the company is authorized to proceed with the settlement of the claim by allowing it in the amount of $371,389, plus interest.

The settlement of a claim for $26,766 filed by the landlord of the Madison-Toledo, at Toledo, O., for $2,421, was authorized yesterday by Joyce.

Funds Being Sought For U. S. War Films

Washington, July 1.—Rehabilitation of films made by the U. S. Signal Corps during the world war will be undertaken immediately if the Quartermaster General is given an allocation of $37,000 from the Work Relief Fund asked of the Division of Applications and Information today.

Need for protection of these films was disclosed last year when inspection showed that they were rapidly deteriorating. Efforts to secure funds from Congress failed and it was planned to do the work this summer and fall with funds diverted from other purposes.

The work will consist of classifying the pictures now in the vaults of the Signal Corps, including some German and English film, the elimination of duplication and the printing of new copies of those which are designed for permanent retention.

The War Department also plans to construct theatres at a number of army posts and has asked the Division of Applications and Information for $30,000 for one at Chilkoot Barracks, Haines, Alaska; a similar sum for one at Fort Baker, San Rafael, Cal., and $60,000 for one at the Presidio, Monterey, Cal.

Seek Confirmation For $45,000 Award

An order asking the state court to confirm the arbitration award granted the Apollo and Hollywood against RKO recently was filed yesterday by the owners of the two theatres which are under lease to RKO. Counsel for the latter will enter a motion tomorrow to have the award vacated in its entirety. Both applications are scheduled for hearing next Monday in state court.

The arbitration award directed RKO to pay $45,000 damages to the Apollo and Hollywood owners and to make numerous changes in operating policies at both houses. RKO will contend that parts of the award are too indefinite and that other parts are impossible to fulfill.

Boycott Bumps Film Houses in Monterey

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, July 1.—Monterey, which has been fast developing into an industrial center near the Texas border, promises to be without pictures as a result of a boycott against all exhibitors started as a protest against the dismissal of 22 employes because of their alleged demands for a new collective labor contract.

The boycott has been ordered by the National Federation of Cinematographic Industry Workers and federation workers here are preventing discs from leaving for Monterey. This step virtually assures the closing of the houses, since it is impossible to import directly from the U. S. All pictures must be first viewed here by the Federal government.

The local strike of union men is expected to extend to eight more neighborhood houses this week, owing to a disagreement between the circuit running the theatres and the union.

Morris Dudelson, United Artists branch manager, and Eddie Murphy, RKO salesman, are the other members of the committee.

Kansas City

Kansas City, July 1.—Finton Jones, pinch-hitting for Chief Barker George Baker, who was attending the Excelsior Springs regional convention of Paramount, did a very nice job as "king" last week.

Chevrolet sound pictures were shown to a group which included George Topper, associated with the Fox office at Los Angeles, and L. J. Lenhart, operator of the Lee at Clinton, Mo., who were guests.

Jack Cameron, E. C. Leeves and W. E. Gregory, have been elected kings for several weeks running now, but have not been able to don the crown. They are elected again for July 7. Joe Maguire, Joe Manfre and Harold Lux were kings for today.

Benny Benjamin, in charge of the golf tournament, has postponed the meet until July 7.

Washington

Washington, July 1.—Visiting exhibitors held forth in a big way when United Artists' Sid Lehman and Universal's Joe Gins tossed the first official club function in about a month.

Besides many exhibitors from Baltimore and other cities, were, National Screen's Murray Starr, Chicago Exhibitor Robert Edlavitch, Fox Division Manager Edgar Moss, and WOL's exploitation chief, Hal Sheffers.

Entertainment furnished by the Lehman-Gins combine, kings for a day, was made available through the courtesy of the Earle's Harry E. Lohmeyer and Loew's Fox's Gene Ford. Comic Larry Rich mastered the ceremonies, presenting Joe Bell singing a la Nick Lucas, Comedienne Jane Shirley, Herb Cook and his Three Little Words, and Bert Granoff.

Today's luncheon had Harry Hunter and Joseph P. Morgan as kings for a day.

After July 15 the bi-weekly luncheons will be discontinued. The smokers on the alternate Monday nights, however, will continue through the summer.

Tickets for the first show boat cruise to "somewhere down the river" are selling rapidly. Cruise Skipper Carter T. Barron says that there will be music for dancing and refreshments, and adds with his genial Georgia twinkle that all the plans have not been released.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"In Old Kentucky"

(Fox)

Hollywood, July 1.—Will Rogers' latest is loaded with laughter as melodramatic romance and other showmanship elements head it for certain box-office championship. The Sam Hellman-Gladys Lehman screen play from Charles Dazey's stage attraction is nearly completely refashioned, sparkling and building from an exciting opening to a novelty surprise ending.

George Marshall's direction times thrills and big laughs for bang-up entertainment. Charles Sellon, shotgun grandpa; Etienne Giradot, goofy rainmaker, Bill Robinson's tap dancing, a romance between Dorothy Wilson and Russell Hardie and a whoop-'em-up horse race highlight the show, which Rogers, in his inimitable style magnified, dominates throughout.

The supporting cast, including Alan Dinehart, Esther Dale, Louise Henry and John Ince, gives creditable performances. Production, by Edward Butcher, and photography, by L. W. O'Connell, are topnotch.

One of Rogers' best, this picture should roll 'em in the aisles and do Kentucky Derby business.

Production Code Seal No. 1017. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Don't Bet on Blondes"

(Warners)

It may be bad policy to bet on blondes, but exhibitors can bet on this picture, which, with proper handling, should prove a winner.

Director Robert Florey concentrated on comedy and laughs and may be proud of the results. The film, as a whole, is colorful and exciting in action and dialogue, using the sport world as a background and with excellent portrayals on the part of Warren William, Claire Dodd, Vince Barnett, William Gargan and Guy Kibbee to help it along.

The yarn, an original by Isabel Dawn and Boyce DeGaw, has William as a big-time bookie who tires of sports and turns to insurance, such as Lloyds of London, for new thrills. He'll insure anything against anything else, and when he insures Miss Dodd, beautiful Broadway star, against marriage the fun starts. After many complications, however, things end well and it is William who winds up at the altar with her.

The supporting cast is excellent, particularly Kibbee as a julep-guzzling Kentucky colonel of the old school intent on proving the South didn't lose the "war between the states." Gargan and Barnett are their usual capable selfs. Others are Hobart Cavanagh, Errol Flynn and Clay Clement. The photography of William Reesc is excellent.

Exhibitors who exploit this film properly should cash in handsomely, and should have no trouble finding angles to play up.

It may be light and frothy, but it's entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 959. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"The Vanishing Riders"

(Spectrum)

The fact that some of the incidents in this western starring Bill Cody are a little asinine will probably not injure its chances with western fans. For the picture, a Ray Kirkwood production, has enough tingling action to atone for whatever faults it may possess. It provides its star with a two-fisted role which he plays in the most approved western fashion. The presence of his son, Bill, Jr., in the cast, lends added attraction.

The story concerns Cody'e efforts to foil a gang of brigands who get themselves hired as cowhands on Ethel Jackson's ranch with the intention of making off with her cattle. The plot gives Cody and the gang alternately the upper hand until just before the end, when the villains get their just desserts. The younger Cody plays a big part in bringing about the downfall of the outlaws.

A romance between the star and Miss Jackson is hinted at, although there are no actual scenes of love-making between the two.

There are many humorous moments that ought to be of considerable help in putting the film over.

Roger Williams, Donald Reed, Wally Wales and Bud Buster are some of the others in the cast. The direction is by Bob Hill.

No production code seal. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Princess Charming"

(G. B.)

Though of no great consequence, this musical farce is pleasant enough entertainment. The presence of Evelyn Laye in the cast adds immeasurably to the merits of the production. She makes the princess of the title indeed charming and sings several melodies beautifully.

Miss Laye is betrothed to the elderly king of a neighboring country for reasons of state. The two have never met. The match is not at all to the princess' taste. As Henry Wilcoxon, an officer of the king's navy, sent to escort Miss Laye to her husband-to-be, arrives in her country he finds a revolution has broken out. In order to obtain safe passage for the princess she is married to Wilcoxon. This makes her a citizen of his country. Although the fellow is not enthusiastic at first, he later falls very much in love with the princess, who seems to have loved him from the start.

When the time comes to annul the ceremony so that Miss Laye may become the king's bride, Wilcoxon refuses to give her up, landing in prison as a result. The rest is concerned with Miss Laye's efforts to get the king to change his mind about marrying her. This portion of the film is by far the most entertaining. Things end happily for Wilcoxon and the princess.

The film, which is quite funny at times, has fine sets, good photography and capable acting. Yvonne Arnaud, George Grossmith, Max Miller and Ivor Maclaren are other players. Maurice Elvey directed.

Production Code Seal No. 0255. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

President in Move to Start Code Adoption

By CLARENCE LINZ

Washington, July 2.—Moving to make effective provisions of the Recovery Act authorizing voluntary codes, President Roosevelt today instructed the Federal Trade Commission to enter into negotiations with industry on fair trade agreements, the NRA to assist in developing agreements for minimum wages, maximum hours and prohibition of child labor.

Fifty-two industries, including some of the largest in the country, have so far submitted inquiries regarding vountary codes, it was said.

No information was available, however, as to the reaction of these industries when informed that they would be required to comply with labor provisions while being permitted only to prohibit practices already

One of 14 Businesses NRA Will Check With This in View

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, July 2.—A comprehensive investigation of 14 of the nation's major industries, including motion pictures, on the basis of which recommendations could be made to Congress next winter for legislation providing Government control of at least interstate operations is under consideration by officials of the National Recovery Administration, it was learned today.

Fearing that premature disclosure of their plans might lead to radical changes in methods in the industries to be studied, which would defeat the purpose of bringing out the evil features of the present competitive situation, officials of the NRA are reluctant to discuss the proposal, which they assert, is still only in a tentative stage.

The industries which would be studied are not necessarily the largest in the country, but rather those in which it is believed there can be shown evils

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

ADDING further to the fury of what is anything but a quiet summer, disturbing news flashed over the Washington wire yesterday. Reflecting an Administration determination to keep the National Recovery Act an alive and going enterprise comes a decision, formulating but foregone, to probe this business along with thirteen others with a view to making permanent some form of government control. . . .

Openly avowed is the recovery administration's reluctance to pry itself loose from the hooks it sank into this industry under the regime of enforced codes. An official government body thereby concedes it liked the idea of pulling the strings that made this business jump and proposes to swing its influence toward a continuation of such a procedure. . . .

It is a cross which films have always borne that once outsiders succeed in sprinkling themselves with celluloid stardust they find practice pleasant and intriguing enough to want more of the same thing. There is also to consider in the latest move fulminating in Washington how much of politics and how much of public service lurk behind the new NRA scheme. . . .

What is evident at once, however, is that the proposed investigation, if it does nothing else, will help substantially and well in harassing an already troubled industry which merely asks that it be left alone so that, alone, it can endeavor to work out its own business salvation. It seems like a simple enough request. . . .

The prospect which a Federal probe suggests reminds of codifying days, health broken down by arduous work, neglect of normal duties and of immediately pressing business problems to what exact end except a further glorification of bureaucratic government is not remotely or otherwise apparent. . . .

Ennis Quits Para.; Will Be a Producer

Bert Ennis, writer and veteran press agent, has resigned from the writing staff of Paramount's eastern short subjects studio to enter production. Before joining Paramount he had been advertising manager for some of the large companies in New York and at one time was in charge of the Roxy Theatre publicity department.

During the past 18 months Ennis has been writing the gags and off-screen comment for Screen Souvenirs and various scripts for Paramount Varieties, including some novelties for fall release—"Laugh These Off" and "Movie Milestones." In "Milestones" the company will show some of the biggest scenes from outstanding silent successes such as "Covered Wagon," "Beau Geste," "Blood and Sand" and "The Miracle Man."

Essay Winners Chosen

Six high school students were announced winners yesterday of the essay contest conducted by the Hays office and M-G-M. "Sequoia" was the subject. The winners, who will receive a trip to the coast by way of New York and New Orleans, are: Sonja Harding, East Orange, N. J.; Sydney A. Cahusac, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Pearl A. Goerdeler, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Isabel Tuomey, LaCrosse, Wisconsin; Oline A. Dandurand, Kankakee, Ill., and Charles E. Woodhouse, Kent, O.

File Exceptions on Five of RKO Claims

Exceptions were formally filed yesterday to the allowance of five claims against RKO aggregating approximately $9,400,000 and a hearing of the exceptions was set for Aug. 2 before Federal Judge William Bondy.

The claims to which exceptions are taken are those of Rockefeller Center for $8,270,000; Karl Hoblitzelle Enterprises, $888,666; Broadway & 47th St. Corp. (Mayfair), $337,500; Criterion Advertising Co. and Fort Worth Properties. These claims, together with numerous others, were recommended for allowance two weeks ago by Special Master Thomas D. Thacher. The exceptions to Thacher's report were filed in Federal court here by Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard, counsel to Irving Trust Co., trustee of RKO.

Dawson in Equipment

Edmund T. Dawson, who resigned last year from Quigley Publications to engage in the theatre equipment business, is now in charge of the theatre division of the Cable Chair Corp., headed by the John L. Cable, steel furniture manufacturing interests.

Fox Completes Lineup

HOLLYWOOD, July 2.—With final shots completed yesterday on Shirley Temple's latest, "Curly Top," Fox winds up its entire 1934-35 program of 48 features.

Cleveland to Try New Pact Against Duals

CLEVELAND, July 2.—This city on the lake will try single features again.

At a meeting of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n today a new agreement carrying the signatures of 70 out of a possible 82 independent theatres voted for singles, but all agreed to allow one dual change weekly and determined that no feature playing a full seven days downtown first run can thereafter play on a double feature bill. The downtown clause covers the Palace, Stillman, State, Allen and Hippodrome.

The new pact became effective as of Monday and is to run to Aug. 31, 1936, thereby replacing the old agreement which expires July 8. The present clearance is to prevail under the new deal, all present agreeing not to book or show any duals pending final disposition of the agreement at a meeting to be held July 9.

It is further stipulated that the arrangement is to become binding only when signed by all members of the association and is designed to go through despite the current dual policy of non-association members. These are the Metropolitan, Alhambra, Circle, Family, Temple and Rex, five of which are in actual operation with the twin bill idea.

The association, at its next meeting, will discuss premiums, giveaways and bank nights and what to do about all three.

Shumaker Promoted; Now Is an Erpi V. P.

Edward E. Shumaker has been elected a vice-president and member of the board at Erpi with specific duties so far unassigned. He was onetime president of the Victor Talking Machine Co. and has been with the electric about a year.

He does not replace H. M. Wilcox, who has joined Paramount on what has been described as a loan and whose former duties at Erpi as vice-president in charge of operations with servicing under his wing have been divided within the Erpi ranks. Wilcox, to some extent, also maintained supervision over sales of which C. W. Bunn, as sales manager, has been in direct charge.

This is the second recent change in the organization. Resignation of R. E. Anderson, treasurer, to assume the financial vice-presidency of Paramount, elevated Fred B. Foster, Jr., to that post.

Pathe Cuts Deficit For First 13 Weeks

Pathe Exchange, Inc., and subsidiary companies reduced the accumulated deficit by $16,000 during the quarter ending March 30, leaving the total at $6,399,820.65.

Profit from all sources, including laboratory, non-operating income, interest, etc., was $16,120.51. In 1934 the profit for the same period was $31,725. The profit was carried to the deficit account. Excess provision for contingencies totalled $135,000.

China Seas

Irving Thalberg production for Metro release. Directed by Tay Garnett. Supervised by Al Lewin. Screen play by Jules Furthman and James K. McGuinness from the novel by Grosbie Garstin. Photographed by Ray June. Cast: Wallace Beery, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Lewis Stone, Rosalind Russell, C. Aubrey Smith, Dudley Digges, William Henry, Eddie Brophy, Lillian Bond, Ivan Lebedeff, Akim Tamiroff, Robert Benchley, Live de Maigret, Pat Flaherty, Charles Irwin. Previewed at the Fox, San Bernardino, June 23. Running time, 93 mins.

Here's a holiday in Dixie for theatre operators. Few pictures come along that will stand the limit in exploitation then live up to the bally China Seas' not only lends itself to exploitation, but is crammed with selling angles. It should pay the interest on many a theatre's mortgage.

Ably produced by Irving Thalberg and supervised by Al Lewin, have stinted nothing to make it top notch entertainment Picture is eyefilling from start to finish. Jules Furthman and James McGuinness have compiled a yarn of piracy on the China coast that is almost perfect picture material. Tay Garnett's robust direction of the story gives the fans all they want in the line of romance, thrills and s.a. To top this, the Beery-Gable-Harlow trio contribute performances that are standouts.

Gable is the skipper of a tramp in the China coast trade. He is mixed up with Jean Harlow, the Orient's number one trollop. Beery heads a gang of Chinese pirates. Gable sails for Singapore with the three on board plus Rosalind Russell, his old sweetheart in England. The two girls fail to hit if off when Miss Harlow decides she is getting the air for the English girl. Boat is carrying several million pounds in bullion which Gable is out to get.

Typhoon comes up, almost sinks the ship. With better weather, Beery enlists the aid of the jealous Harlow to steal the guns from the ship's arsenal. Pirates headed by Ivan Lebedeff board the ship, kill half the crew, torture Gable but find no money. Gable suspects Beery and the girl, questions them and she spills the beans. However, she had tried to warn Gable of the impending holdup only to be thrown out of his cabin. Before much can be done Beery committs suicide and Gable realizes he loves Miss Harlow after all. In the end he decided to make her an honest woman.

With a good story to start with Garnett has given the picture everything. He has not missed a single opportunity in giving the picture suspense, dramatic tension and smoothness Dialog is near perfect for this type of picture It's no easy job to make a flock of renegades tough through dialog In most cases, screen tough guys express themselves like pansies. In this case they're tough and there's no mistake.

Gable, Harlow and Beery turn in performances that should bring raves from their fans. Rosalind Russell makes her portrayal of the cultured English girl, a direct contrast to Miss Harlow, one of the picture's standouts. Robert Benchley, as a drunk, gets a load of laughs with swell dialog. William Henry, the juve, is pleasing as a young officer though his scenes during the typhoon could be cut considerably. C. Aubrey Smith is excellent as the owner of the steamship line. Dudley Digges, as the chief officer, handles his assignment neatly Lewis Stone, though his assignment is small, makes it count. Lillian Bond, Eddie Brophy and Akim Tamiroff, in small assignments are very good. Charles Irwin and Pat Flaherty as officers on the ship also keep up the standard of good performances.

to coerce and intimidate exhibitors into contracting for M-G-M product on a preferred playing time and percentage basis by actions and threats of actions violating the interstate commerce and anti-trust laws.

The complainant seeks an injunction to restrain work on the Oak Park house announced by Loew's and on any other theatres in competitive zones. The complaint also reviews the Sheridan Theatre case, alleging that a loan of $15,000 prompted John Jones to make his recent effort toward control of the house and that a subsequent attempt has been made to acquire control of the theatre through increased rental.

is described "excessive major circuit protection" in the local area. Exhibitors declare that because of the Loew and RKO buying power independent houses have to wait as much as six months for pictures after release on Broadway.

Most of the large independent circuits are being contacted on the plan by I.T.O.A. officers. Some are said to have agreed to the plan and others are being sounded out.

Weisman has been working on the setup for several weeks and says he is ready to present it to the I.T.O.A. members. If the plan is found feasible it also will be adopted by approximately 75 New Jersey exhibitors.

It is stated that all film buys by I.T.O.A. men have been called off until the Weisman plan is either accepted or rejected.

Fox Wins Five Cases By Default Rulings

Fox yesterday won decisions against five theatres on inquest by default at the New York Film Board arbitration proceedings when defendants failed to appear. The awards totalled about $1,000 on breach of contract and "N. G." check claims.

All defendants were notified of the hearing and since none of them appointed the two arbitrators permitted under the proceedings, the hearings went on with four arbitrators named by Fox. Moe Sanders, Fox office manager, cited his case in each instance.

Respondents were the Alben, New United, Paras-Court and Boro Hall, Brooklyn; and the Strand, Clifton. A motion will be made before the New York Supreme Court to affirm the awards.

For next Tuesday, four cases are set for voluntary arbitration. Fox has two complaints, one against the Photoplay, Manhattan, and the other against the Gem, Frenchtown, N. J. Paramount is the complainant in the New Echo, Brooklyn, matter, and respondent in the Orpheum, Manhattan, case. Louis Nizer will represent distributors at the hearings.

Industry Is Facing Gov't Investigation

in competition or in the conditions under which employes labor.

The inquiry would go back to the very inception of the businesses of the nation and would cover the corporate structure and financing of the several industries as well as their productive operations, methods of competition and the condition of labor.

On the basis of the information developed, which would show among other things the conditions in each of the industries prior to the adoption of their codes and the retrogression following the invalidation of the code-making provisions of the Recovery Act, it is proposed to frame recommendations for legislation which would restore to the Government a measure of the control it exercised prior to the Supreme Court decision in the Schechter "live poultry" case.

This legislation would be based on either the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution or the Government's taxing powers. It would, of course, apply directly only to interstate operations, but NRA officials interested in the project believe that, in many industries, interstate and intrastate activities are so inextricably mixed, at least in the case of the larger concerns, that a substantial proportion of such industries would be brought under control.

Tentative suggestions for regulation of this type already have been made in Congress in the shape of bills requiring the registration of all business concerns using the mails or other media of interstate communications or transportation and their adherence to such regulations as might be promulgated by control commission which would be created.

NRA officials are firmly convinced that control of industry can be secured only by legislation and place little or no confidence in the new provisions of the Recovery Act authorizing voluntary codes, it being pointed out that industries making such agreements are to be required to accept the collective bargaining provisions of the law providing maximum hours and minimum wages and outlaw child labor, while in return being permitted only to prohibit such unfair trade practices as are already outlawed by existing statutes.

Denies Any Interest In Middletown Pool

In a telegram to Motion Picture Daily, Hatco Theatres, Inc. of Middletown, yesterday denied it was contemplating a pool with the Paramount interests in the Upper New York city. The text:

"We emphatically deny the statement in today's Motion Picture Daily regarding possible pooling arrangement of our State and Stratton theatres with Paramount Middletown theatre. This unfounded report has evidently been released for its influence on film companies with whom we have been friendly for many years. Unsuccessful overtures made by Paramount local officials over a year ago provided for our operation of all theatres in Middletown. We are planning extensive alterations to our presently closed show and the theatre will open within two months. Your untrue statement is exceedingly damaging to the presently contemplated arrangements."

[Editor's Note—Report of the Middletown pool was not "released for its influence on film companies." As a matter of fact, the story was not "released" by any source but was published in good faith and as a result of reportorial enterprise conducted along the usually accepted and recognized lines.]

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Escapade"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, July 2.—Luise Rainer makes her debut in America in this romance of Vienna, gay and sophisticated at the beginning of the century.

Miss Rainer radiates simple beauty slightly Oriental and expresses her talent so artistically that not only is stardom assured but it is quite possible that she may become one of America's leading players if properly handled. She combines Claudette Colbert's quality with Elisabeth Bergner's ability. And that's saying plenty.

William Powell plays a philandering artist, target of the wiles of three women—Virginia Bruce, Mady Christians and Miss Rainer. Reginald Owen is the unsuspecting musician husband of Miss Christians. Frank Morgan is the scientist husband of Miss Bruce. Powell, having painted a nude of Miss Bruce, which he has not shown, however, keeps the model's name unblemished. But under Owen's dumb prodding he unwittingly inveigles Miss Rainer into the romantic web by blurting a fictitious name. Owen locates the concocted name in the person of Miss Rainer. Complications then crack for all, ending happily, however, for Powell and Miss Rainer.

The film, previously produced as "Maskerade" in Germany, gives a fine cast grand opportunities even though Powell plays second fiddle and Morgan is somewhat heavy.

Robert Z. Leonard's direction captures the Viennese mood and dramatic flavor. Herman Mankiewicz is credited with the screen play from the German script. Bernard Hyman produced for show values. Enrico Caruso's Victor records play in the opera sequence.

With Powell's name for a draw the show offers good entertainment, swell performers and a new shining personality in the person of Miss Rainer.

Looking 'Em Over

(Warners)

George Brent and Bette Davis combine here as reporters on rival newspapers to turn out a picture that goes above average. The film starts out with terrific impetus, to sag slightly in the middle and then turn a trifle monotonous in plot near the end.

Brent and Miss Davis turn in excellent performances, most capably supported by Roscoe Karns in an ace comedy role. The yarn, adapted from the Saturday Evening Post serial, "Women Are Bum Newspaper Men," has Brent and Miss Davis in love and working on rival sheets. Brent wants her to quit and marry him and she is equally firm in her conviction she is just as capable a reporter as he. They then match wits on a murder case with first one making a fool of the other and vice versa. In the end, however, Miss Davis proves her capabilities as a reporter and marries Brent at the same time.

Others in the supporting cast are Wini Shaw, J. Carrol Naish, J. Farrell MacDonald, Walter Walker, Gordon Westcott, Dorothy Dare and Addison Richards.

Director Michael Curtiz's work is commendable, but he seems to have been handicapped with a sluggish script. The camera work of Tony Gaudio is good.

Properly exploited, however, this picture should prove highly satisfactory.

Publicity Men Switched

Loew's has switched several of its theatre publicity men around. Henry Speigel, formerly at the Paradise, is now at the Valencia, and Perry Spencer, who has been handling a number of Bronx theatres in the circuit, has added the Paradise to his list. Freddie Jablons, who has been at the Valencia, has been assigned to the Gates and other Brooklyn units.

President Moves to Start Code Adoption contrary to law. A compromise whereby both trade commission and NRA would participate in the negotiation of agreements was reached at a White House conference this afternoon at which the differences between the two bodies, both authorized to enter into trade practice agreements, were ironed out by the President.

No machinery exists whereby industries can be required to make voluntary codes. Any agreements made must originate with the industries interested. The only enforcement available under the law is under the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Hartford Likes Code Rule

Hartford, July 2.—Managers here are in favor of continuing the code for the industry voluntarily. Nearly all are agreed that the code has been a help to employes in shortening working hours. Here are their viewpoints:

Jack Simons, Capitol (Loew-Poli): "I have received no word from New York office, but I assume we will continue as under the code. The regulations have been beneficial, especially in seven-day towns."

George Landers, E. M. Loew's: "I don't know how our Boston office stands, but I assume we will continue as under the code. Our pay schedules have always been above the code levels, and the shortened hours have done no harm to anyone."

Larry O'Neil, Cameo: "I think the code should be continued, but the old Film Board of Trade should be revived. The boards set up under the codes were never satisfactory for the small man."

Maurice Shulman, Rivoli: "The code didn't do a bit of good for independent exhibitors. The circuits have had their way in every dispute concerning clearance and zoning, and the independents have been restrained unfairly from resorting to competitive methods. Free dishes were banned, but when the circuit theatres took them up nothing was said about it."

James McCarthy, Strand (Warners): "The code about cut our hours in half, and did the boys a lot of good. I think it worked out all right."

Kelly Back as Exhibitor

E. Thornton Kelly, who formerly operated the Grant Lee, Palisades, N. J., and dropped out of the exhibition field about six months ago, is coming back with a vengeance. He has taken over the Liberty, Freehold, and is negotiating for six other houses in southern New Jersey, deals for which he expects to close soon.

Fox and Chase Bank Own 207 Corporations time it becomes known that the company's Australian holdings also are controlled now by National Theatres.

Publication of the report is required by the fact that the National Banking Act of 1933 requires national banks to publish details of their affiliates. The report is of March 30, 1935.

Chase National reveals that it controls a majority of the outstanding "new" voting stock of Fox Film Corp. and that it jointly owns with Fox Film the stock of National Theatres Corp.

The Fox Film subsidiaries, other than the theatre interests, are for foreign distribution and production and newsreels, and for its real estate in New York and California.

Many Foreign Subsidiaries

Foreign distribution is controlled through a holding company, United American Investment Corp., and also through Fox Film Export Corp. of New York. These operate through subsidiaries in England, France, Canada, and Argentina, Australia, Austria, Brazil, Chile, China (Shanghai), Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Greece, Holland, Hungary, India, Italy, Jugoslavia, Latvia, Mexico, Norway, Panama, Poland, Roumania, Spain, Sweden, Singapore (Straits Settlements), Japan.

There are three newsreel subsidiaries: Movietonews, Inc., British Movietonews, Inc., and Fox Movietone, Ltd., Australia; three realty subsidiaries, Fox Realty Corp. of California, Fox Film Realty Corp. of New York, Dundas Holding Corp., Ltd. (Canada), and Phillips Square Holding Corp., Ltd., New York; one copyright subsidiary, Movietone Music Corp.; one story purchasing subsidiary, Rural Pictures Corp., and one laboratory subsidiary, DeLuxe Laboratories, Inc., N. Y. Because of state laws there are two United States distributing subsidiaries—Fox Film Corp. of Texas and Fox Film Distributing Corp., New Orleans.

All of the Fox theatre operations have been grouped under National Theatres Corp. of Jersey City since Fox West Coast was taken out of bankruptcy and this collection of subsidiaries totals 158, of which 19 are inactive and one is in process of formation.

Controls Many Australian Firms

The Australian concerns now under National Theatres include eight holding companies, six theatre operating companies and three inactive concerns divided as follows: Holding companies—Cambridge Buildings Proprietary, Ltd.; Joint Estates Proprietary, Ltd.; Somerset Buildings Proprietary, Ltd.; Hoyts Theatres (N.S.W.), Ltd.; Newtown Investments Proprietary, Ltd.; Australian Cinemas, Ltd., an investment concern; six theatre operating units—Hoyts Theatres, Ltd., Sydney; Hoyts Pictures Proprietary, Ltd.; Electric Theatres Proprietary, Ltd.; Victory Pictures Proprietary, Ltd.; Associated Theatres Proprietary, Ltd., and Affiliated Theatres Proprietary, Ltd.; inactive—W. E. Ham Proprietary, Ltd. a seat manufacturing concern; Hoyts (Tasmania) Proprietary, Ltd., theatre operators; Hoyts Production Proprietary, Ltd.

One of the principal holding companies of National Theatres is National Holding Corp. of Jersey City, which controls stocks and obligations of underlying companies. Fox Mid-Continent Corp., another, controls the former Fox Rocky Mountain group. Fox West Coast Service Corp. is a holding company and operating unit in Los Angeles.

Other holding companies, exclusive of the Australian units named above, are: Fox Valley Theatre Corp., Coast Theatres, Inc., Downtown Theatres, Inc., Far West Theatres Corp., Fox Arrowhead Theatres Corp., Fox Calexico Theatre Corp., Fox California Theatres Corp., Fox Northern California Corp., Fox Columbia Corp., Fox West Coast Theatres Corp., Golden State Theatre Corp., which is also a service corporation; Santa Monica Theatre Co., West Coast Theatres, Inc., of Northern California. All of these operate out of Los Angeles.

The company in process of formation is the Orange County Theatres Corp. Those inactive, exclusive of the Australian units, are: California Theatre Co. (formerly an operating company), Fox Agency Corp., Fox Warfield Theatre Co., Mission Amusement Co. of Seattle, Pantages Theatre Co., Parafea Theatre Leasing Corp., Pararialto Theatre Leasing Corp., Pasadena Theatre Corp., San Francisco Embassy Corp., Sanpara Leasing Corp., Strand Amusement Corp. of Seattle, Capital Theatre Co., West Coast United Theatres and San Jose Theatre Corp. These also were operated out of Los Angeles with the exception of the Strand company of Seattle.

There are two realty companies directly subsidiary to National Theatres. These are Fox Philadelphia Building, Inc., of Jersey City, which operates the Philadelphia theatre and office building, and Foxwis Realty Corp. of Jersey City which owns real estate in Wisconsin.

Other Wisconsin operations are controlled through five companies: Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises Corp., Fox Alhambra Corp., Fox Palace Corp., Fox Wisconsin Corp. and Milwaukee Theatres, Inc.

Seventy-two individual theatre companies are operated out of Los Angeles, with 22 other companies which lease theatres and mercantile buildings, and six of which own mercantile buildings and theatres and sub-lease them.

New Decree Closes RCA Trust Action

in U. S. District Court here. The decree, relating to foreign contracts, was submitted by the Government and counsel for the defendants.

The decree, which closes the suits filed here five years ago by the Government against the RCA and other large radio and wire communications companies, settles the question of agreements the RCA and RCA Communications had with foreign countries, including China, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The RCA companies are enjoined by the decree from claiming their foreign communications agreements prevent the foreign countries involved from setting up circuits competing with other communications companies in the United States or from transmitting thereover messages specially routed by the sender via such circuits.

In 1932 a consent decree was entered in this suit, disposing of cross-licensing agreements between the RCA companies and other defendants in this country. That decree left foreign matters for future settlement. Two years later another decree entered here disposed of certain issues relating to foreign license and sales agreements.

"With the entry of today's decree all of the Government's objections have been satisfied," Department of Justice representatives stated.

Government representatives consenting to the decree were Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Assistant Attorney General Harold M. Stephens, Golden W. Bell, Robert L. Lipman, Mac Asbill, Hammond E. Chaffetz, special assistants to the Attorney General, and U. S. District Attorney Leonard E. Wales. William G. Mahaffey, Charles Neaves, Newton D. Baker, Manton Davis and Turlow Gordon, counsel for the RCA companies, consented in behalf of the defendants.

Some of those M-G-M roars haven't been Leo's. Leontine —that's the feminine for Leo around Times Square—has been chirping in a jungle soprano.

It all came out yesterday when it became known Nicholas M. Schenck had offered a lion and a lioness to the new Prospect Zoo which opens today. One is 18 months old and the other—the girl—three years. Both had been groomed as successor to the original Leo whose voice began to quaver several years ago.

Otterson Proffers New Post to Lynch

will not be designated until Otterson's return from Hollywood early next month, it was said. Lynch, as the former head of Southern Enterprises, had established one of the largest theatre circuits in the country at the time they were acquired by Paramount about eight years ago. With the bankruptcy of Paramount early in 1933, Lynch was drafted by the trustees to head their reorganization advisory committee. He supervised much of the reorganization of Publix Enterprises, Paramount's large theatre holding company subsidiary, in addition to the reorganizations of other Paramount theatre units which went into bankruptcy or receivership during 1933. The last, and one of the largest of these, is the Olympia circuit in New England. A reorganization plan for this company will be ready for filing with the Federal court in about two weeks.

The Paramount trustees have described Lynch's work as being "invaluable" to themselves and the estate. Efforts to reach Lynch yesterday for comment on his permanent post with Paramount were unsuccessful.

tine, counsel to the Paramount trustees during the receivership, asked for an allowance of $700,000. This was the largest single application. The three trustees, Charles D. Hilles, Eugene W. Leake and Charles E. Richardson, asked for an aggregate $333,000. The application asked $128,000 for Hilles, who has received $52,433 earlier; $118,000 for Leake, who has received $32,433 earlier, and $87,000 for Richardson, who has also received $32,433 earlier.

Cook, Nathan & Lehman, which served as counsel to both the stockholders' protective committee and to Paramount, as a debtor corporation, asked for a fee of $250,000. Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, counsel to the bondholders' protective committee, asked for $150,000. In addition, the bondholders' committee asked for the following remunerations for its members: Dr. Julius Klein, generally credited with having drafted much of the Paramount reorganization plan, $52,390; Frank A. Vanderlip, chairman of the committee and now a Paramount director, $50,000; and $7,500 for each of the following members of the committee: Frederick H. Cassatt, Morris L. Ernst, Duncan G. Harris and Lawrence W. Stern.

And Still They Come

Malcolm Sumner, attorney, asked $150,000; Stroock & Stroock, $100,000; Szold & Brandwen, $75,000; Samuel Zirn and associates, $75,000; Edgar J. Schoen, $75,000; Beekman, Bogue & Clark, $75,000; Paramount Broadway bondholders' committee, $56,914; Bibb, Dederick & Osborne, $25,000; Archibald Palmer, $15,000; Choate, Hall & Stewart, $35,881; Adolph Zukor, for services as an equity receiver of the company from Jan. 26, 1933, to April 18, 1933, $18,545; Price, Waterhouse & Co., $10,484; Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse, Chicago, $6,035; Winston, Strawn & Shaw, Chicago, $1,516; Pillsbury, Madison & Sutro, $3,525, and Hornidge & Dowd, $2,006. Numerous additional applications for smaller amounts also were made.

Among the applications which it is believed will be made for appreciable amounts and which had not been tabulated up to late yesterday are those of Nathan Burkan, Saul E. Rogers, Goldwater & Flynn and George Z. Medalie.

A hearing on the applications will be held July 18 before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, who in setting the date for the filing of the applications, cautioned the attorneys to keep them within reason. Predictions were made yesterday that the fees as finally allowed by the court would not exceed $1,000.000.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Columbia opened its sales convention here today. Harry Cohn, president, denied the company would merge with any other company. Jack Cohn, B. P. Schulberg, Ralph Kohn and Abe Montague also were among the speakers.

All New Codes To Be Handled By Trade Body

NRA to Be Fact-Finding Group Under New Plan

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, July 4.—All so-called basic plans for voluntary codes have been thrown into the discard with the White House announcement that agreements will be negotiated by the Federal Trade Commission with the NRA serving as a fact-finding body.

While the procedure to be followed has not yet been worked out, it is generally expected that the trade practice provisions of any agreements which may be made will be along the Resignations of Arthur and David Loew, sons of the founder of the company, were accepted Wednesday afternoon by the Loew board of directors at a regular monthly meeting. However, Arthur continues as vice-president of M-G-M in charge of foreign activities, and David carries on as buying and booking head for the circuit.

Their plan to resign, which became known a few days ago, has occasioned widespread speculation over the reasons which motivated the step. No explanation has been advanced by either of the brothers or by the Loew management beyond a statement made by David that the purpose was to relieve himself and his brother from the responsibilities which accompany the directorships. Culkin's Chest Is Lighter

Congressman Francis D. Culkin of New York finally got his heralded attack on the industry off his chest via the typewriter. Congress was too busy to listen, so he filed a copy for insertion in the Congressional Record. Washington correspondents had no dfficulty getting copies.

"Producers are not only the most anti-social influence in America by reason of the character of the product," he wrote, "but their

City Moves to Get Tax Upon Film Rentals

Universal Gets Notice; MPPDA to Fight It

Universal on Wednesday received notice from the city of an assessment of two per cent on its New York exchange's gross film rentals received during the four months ending March 31 in line with the city government's efforts to collect the municipal sales tax from local exchanges.

The assessment sent to Universal is the first to be received by any local film distributor, but city auditors are now working on the books of other local exchanges and similar notifications will be sent to them as quickly as they are completed.

The legal committee of the M. P. P. D. A. is continuing with its plans for contesting the city's right to collect a sales tax on film rentals, on the theory that films are leased and not sold. Conferences to this end are proceeding between representatives of the committee and Frank J. Taylor, city controller. If no agreement results from the conferences, it was said, the committee will test the legality of the collections in the courts.

Leake, before becoming a Paramount trustee, was the president of Film Securities Corp., the holding company organized in compliance with a Federal decree to take over the Fox stock interest in Loew's and liquidate it to avoid anti-trust law violations. He is a former chairman of the board of the American Express Co. At one stage of the Paramount reorganization he was prominently mentioned for the post of treasurer or financial vice president of the new company. He has been associated in the past with Chase National Bank.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

AN interesting plan is afoot at RKO—the circuit, not the film company. There, the powers that make decisions are manoeuvring with the idea of adopting week stands for their greater city first runs to displace the two-changes-a-week policy which now prevails as standard. The instances are not uncommon when attractions have held sway seven days hand-running in RKO houses; there was "G-Men" lately, for instance. But the thought goes beyond sporadic bookings in favor of general bookings on the ground that many pictures can stand the gaff if given the chance. . . .

Consideration accorded the idea suggests several angles which strike this department as being of moment. In the first place, the obvious but unexpressed conclusion is that the circuit will veer away from double features. in the second place, the hint is a pretty good-sized one that RKO executives are pinning much faith on the quality of the product for the new season. Without celluloid of merit, extension of runs is, of course, out of the question. With it, increased playing time becomes a logical course to pursue. From time to time, this column has sought to point out the inadequacy of a system which persisted in changing programs merely because the day of the week on which it was customary to do so had arrived. . . .

ONE of these years, soon perhaps, distributors who are also in the theatre business, will abandon their antiquated and slavish fetish of running inferior product first run in their own houses on the ground it helps the subsequents which, incidentally are doing all right up and down the land, and make more playing time available for that percentage of their output which holds up. When that happens, merit will come into the reward it rates and mediocrity kept in the generous alley which always should have been reserved for it anyway. . . .

Why there should be any hesitancy about conceding that a substantial portion of any major's output is second rate and maybe a notch beyond is something not easy to comprehend. Exhibitors know all pictures cannot click; they never have on any one program and, sad as it is to relate, probably never will. Forced draft applied to a weak sister may create some artificial excitement and, so, some artificial stimulus, but everyone knows the first thing that makes a picture successful is the picture itself. All else is supplementary and conplementary. It would do distributors and theatres, as well, far more good to barrage heavily on the films that have what it takes than to putter about with those that haven't got it and won't acquire it no matter how valiant the effort placed behind them. . . .

It is understood several changes in the present plan will be made. The new schedule will go into effect around Sept. 1. It is pointed out that the present schedule will be continued until the new selling season because of the clearance in current sales contracts.

filing the applications, the tabulation had passed $2,500,000.

The additional tabulations included an application by the stockholder's protective committee for $105,000 expenses and $70,000 for fees for Barney Balaban, Maurice Newton and Gerald Brooks, members of the committee. Nathan Burkan, counsel for the merchandise creditors' committee, asked $50,000, while fees of $10,500 were asked for three members of this committee.

The law firm of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, special counsel for Paramount and for Kuhn, Loeb & Co., asked $150,000, and Kuhn, Loeb, the principal in the drafting of the reorganization plan, asked $114,287. Saul E. Rogers, attorney, asked $10,000. Joseph P. Day and Peter Grimm, realty experts, asked $10,000, and Jacob Lesser, attorney, asked $37,500.

The creditor bank group committee applied for $30,000 for Percy H. Johnston, chairman of the committee and chairman of the board of Chemical Bank & Trust Co., and $20,000 for Max D. Howell, a member of the committee.

Hearings on the applications will be held July 18 before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

New Para. Lease Set

The new lease on the Paramount, executed in accordance with the terms of the reorganization plan for the Paramount Broadway Corp., was recorded Wednesday. It calls for the leasing of the house by Paramount Broadway to Hercules Theatre Corp., new Paramount subsidiary, for 20 years from last Feb. 15 at an annual rental of not less than $200,000, and a maximum of $260,000.

Sparks from the Rails

ABOARD THE UNITED ARTISTS CONVENTION SPECIAL, BUFFALO, July 4.—PAUL LAZARUS, western division manager, is on hand to greet many of his old acquaintances. PAUL knows 'em all.

CHARLIE STERN, assistant to Harry Gold, is the loudest talker in the outfit. When he opens up exhibitors in Boston, his old hunting ground, cup their ears.

JACK KAPLAN, Buffalo sales manager, has built up a swell reputation for not answering his mail—and are some of the boys peeved?

MOE STREIMER, New York sales manager, probably has trained more salesmen than any other man in the business.

Two bits to the fellow who can guess why all the boys call JOHNNY J. DERVIN, Boston sales manager, "Tomatoes." That nickname has stuck to him for years.

Next to GOLD, ARTHUR HORN, New Haven manager, gets high praise for his telephone activities. He burns 'em up.

SAM STERN, U. A. salesman out Boston way, is a brother to Home Office CHARLIE STERN. That, in itself, is enough of a reputation.

Buffalo JACK ZURICH, once associated with M-G-M, has been with U. A. for a number of years.

PHIL SHERMAN, selling in New Haven, is a pupil of MASTER of Toronto. He also worked for U. A. in Winnipeg.

ELISABETH MCCAFFREY, office manager in Philly, probably has the best Irish wit in that territory. Any exhibitor will verify that.

SAM RIFKIN of the New York exchange has been with U. A. for many years in various capacities. An old-timer.

GEORGE HAGER, salesman in Boston, is a grandfather, but when it comes to sales he's one of the leaders.

Canadian Composers Got Nothing—Mills

TORONTO, July 4.—Evidence regarding the fate of Canadian composers in the matter of royalty revenue under copyrights was offered at the resumed Toronto sittings of the inquiry by Judge James Parker into the activities of the Canadian Performing Rights Society, when important witnesses from England and the United States were heard.

E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, declared that as far as he knew, not one composer residing in Canada had received a cent from the Canadian Performing Rights Society, although Canadian theatres and other music-users paid the society over $100,000 for licenses last year. Money paid over to the American organization from the Canadian Society, starting in 1933, had never been distributed, but was being held in reserve. Asked how much money had been paid by the Canadian society he replied that the work had not yet been settled.

Mills replied in the affirmative when asked if it were true that a Canadian received nothing in royalty fee when he sold his composition to an American publisher.

C. F. James, general manager of the British Performing Rights Society, admitted that Gitz-Rice, Canadian composer of "Dear Old Pal," had received only $8 for the playing of the piece in the British Empire outside of Canada. Apart from the amount paid to Frederick Harris of Oakville, Ontario, the British society had paid only $90 to Canadian composers during the past year.

Arthur G. Slaght, Toronto lawyer, declared it was nonsense that the Canadian public was paying for the use of music when the British society possessed only 600 actual titles, "barring 37,000 titles said to be in the vaults of Boosey Limited, London, England."

Leslie Boosey of London, chairman of the British society, declared it would be impossible to list all compositions with the Canadian Government.

Oklahoma City Gets New $100,000 House

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 4.—Standard Theatres is to build a $100,000 suburban house of Chinese design with seats for 1,200, according to Pat McGee, general manager. Work is to start in September and should be completed in January.

The house will be larger than the circuit's downtown Empress and Liberty. It will be located on Northwest 23rd St., between Walker and Hudson Aves.

Another new Standard suburban house, the Plaza, is nearing completion on Northwest 16th St. near Indiana Ave.

Other industry construction plans here call for a new exchange building for Fox at Grand and Lee Aves. It will be a $25,000 fireproof structure to be erected by G. A. Paul, local attorney, and occupied under a 10-year lease. It will be ready in the fall. M-G-M is finishing a new exchange just across the street.

Open Air Spot for Tulsa

TULSA, OKLA., July 4.—This city's first open air theatre is being constructed at Fourth St. and Lewis Ave. for American Players for presentation of a series of plays.

Connecticut Leans Toward Revised Code

n individual, said: "Voluntary agreeients in the past have broken down; : is not that they are not highly deirable, but they do not work out."

As an example, Dr. Fishman realled the attempts two years ago of ie M. P. T. O. A. executive comiittee, of which he was a member,) work out certain fair practice greements with distributors at two r three meetings in Chicago and elsevhere. As a result of the negotiaions, Dr. Fishman said that Sidney ₹. Kent of Fox was to have secured ie consent of distributors to the rules greed upon in conference, but that o common ground was ever reached.

In the absence of any meeting of ie M. P. T. O. specifically acting n the matter of a voluntary code, Edvard G. Levy, secretary of the assoiation, felt it advisable to make no tatement.

Adolph G. Johnson of the Strand, Iamden, a member of the recent learance and zoning board, said: It would be the best thing for the ıdustry. There is no doubt about :—provided the setup were so mended that the small exhibitor vould have equal representation on ie sitting body. If this could be ffected, I would be 100 per cent or it."

"Wouldn't Mean Anything"

B. E. Hoffman of Warner theatres aid he "never believed the code had ny benefit for us here and if that was rue under government compulsion, he voluntary code wouldn't mean anyhing." Hoffman considered the inlustry an exception in this respect, ind thought voluntary codes would e valuable in other industries. He tated that the problems in this territory were not important and said: 'We are very happy that we can attend to business and not to code meetngs."

Joseph A. Davis of the Colonial, Southington, believed that a volunary code with inequities in board composition straightened out and other changes supported by the local M. P. T. O. adopted, would benefit a maority of members of the industry. If the industry is found ready for such ı plan, Davis suggests that exhibitors outline the form it should take and neet with a committee of distributors o work out a final document for ratiication by various units.

"I believe," he said, "the thing should have certain restrictive powers, out no 'crack-down' methods—loss of certain privileges for violations, rather than too strong penalties."

Harry Shaw, division manager, refused to make any statement for the Loew New England Theatres, and George Cruzen could not be reached to speak for M. & P. Theatres, operating the Paramount.

"If it can be made workable," Sam Bailey, representing the Whalley Theatre here, said, "I favor continuing the code on some sort of voluntary basis, retaining most of the provisions of the NRA code, but amending them in accordance with M. P. T. O. resolutions."

One of the most consistent objectors to NRA code procedure, Harry L. Lavietes of the Pequot, thought that an arrangement "could be tried, but only if the final jurisdiction were to be local." He maintained that in the last analysis the NRA code was voluntary.

Edwin S. Raffile, manager of the Globe, said: "I'd like to see the code continue, but some way will have to be found to give it plenty of strong teeth."

Speaking for the Park, Allingtown, Michael Cascioli was favorable to the adoption of a voluntary code as was also Michael Tomasino of the White Way.

Connecticut exhibitors have sent telegrams to Code Authority opposing a revival of the former Film Board of Trade.

Culkin's Chest Is Lighter

whole structure of control is built upon illegality, violation and evasion of existing law.

"Eight companies," he charged, "control 90 per cent of the photoplay production in America. These are banded together by hooks of steel, and they own and operate 20 per cent of the talking picture theatres."

Then he turned his heavy verbal artillery on Will H. Hays.

"Will H. Hays, instead of being a Moses leading the movies out of the cesspools, is in fact a lobbyist whose sole function is to keep the public off the producers," he wrote. "For years Hays has been the artful dodger that has kept public sentiment in leash."

The code didn't escape.

"The movie trust is definitely a violation of the anti-trust law," he went on. "Under the NRA, which is now history, the trust control of movie production reached its peak. The NRA code, as written, turned the independent producers and exhibitors over to the movie trust, body and soul. These were happy days for Will Hays and those whom he represented, but unhappy days for the independents and those concerned with the human documents of America. Rapacity and tyranny were on the throne, and the picture looked very black so far as the public interest was concerned.

"Today the distinguished, able and public-minded Attorney General of the United States, Hon. Homer S. Cummings, is conducting a prosecution in St. Louis which will, if successful, have a far-reaching effect upon this industry. It will take the shackles off the independent producers and will subject the anti-social types that are in command to the restraints of law."

Pennsylvania Sunday Show Bill Is Signed

November will be the first time that a vote on the subject will be possible.

Before the question can be placed on the ballot in any municipality, a petition by five per cent of the voters in the dominant party is required, or a request for such a referendum may be made by the local authorities. The act repeals that part of the Blue Law of 1794 which has been construed to apply to Sunday shows.

Resignations of Arthur, David Loew Are Accepted

actly what this implied is another point which likewise has not been amplified.

No successors were named, but it is likely new directors will be elected at the Aug. 7 session.

With the resignation of the Loew brothers, the board is reduced to 10, namely, Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, J. Robert Rubin, Leopold Friedman, Charles C. Moskowitz, I. Frey, T. Nelson Perkins, Judge John R. Hazel, David Warfield and William A. Phillips.

The regular $1.62½ dividend on the Loew preferred stock was declared, payable Aug. 15 to stockholders on record as of July 26.

All New Codes To Be Handled By Trade Body

lines of similar agreements made by the commission in pre-code days wherein, after a hearing and discussion of the practices which an industry would ban, the commission divided them into two groups, one consisting of practices definitely prohibited by law and the other those not clearly outlawed but held by the industry to be undesirable.

As a substitute for a voluntary code a "basic plan" has been devised in New York for a contract agreement between competitors, the provisions of which more or less parallel those of the voluntary codes, but with violations a matter of civil suit rather than prosecution.

While NRA officials cannot disapprove of this method, it is indicated they would prefer to have industries make codes under the Recovery Act.

revenue of $2,737,929 in the tax on admissions.

The statistics revealed that receipts had declined steadily since 1930, when the revenue was $38,479,500, to the latest total of $24,954,200. The percentage of decrease was greatest in Ontario, this being 31.1 per cent. The highest was found in Prince Edward Island, where the decrease had been 54.5 per cent. During the four years the index of admission prices showed a decline of 18.5 per cent.

Figured on a per capita basis, every man, woman and child spent $2.40 on film entertainment during the year. Provinces having a large urban population showed a much higher average per person.

accounting and leave to examine the books of the company. Derr's action was filed recently and has been set for hearing in state court here next Tuesday.

Pathe defendants in replying to Casey's charges asserted the belief that Derr inspired that action, citing demands alleged to have been made by Derr for an executive post in Pathe, which were refused by the present officers. Derr's action parallels that of Casey except for the additional request for leave to examine the company's books.

Rain, Heat, a Band Hit Lincoln Takes

LINCOLN, July 4.—Heat, wind, rain and Duke Ellington's one night competition at the Capitol Beach amusement park drilled their way into film grosses. "Stolen Harmony" and "Devil Is a Woman" were split at the Lincoln, although the first half looked plenty strong to hold. The result was $2,000 with two-thirds of the gross due to the first three days. The take was $200 below average. "Oil for the Lamps of China" went out in six days at the Stuart with $2,100, $1,000 under the seven-day average.

"Black Fury" and the Baer-Braddock fight were held three days over the regulation run on the forepart of the week and were replaced by "Werewolf of London" and "Strange Wives" which ran five days. Eight days netted $1,900. Much of the juggling of dates was to get in line for a July 4 opening.

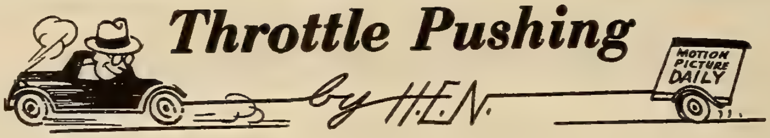
Throttle Pushing

by H.E.N.



DENVER—Tony A. P. Archer, former Educational district manager, together with Joe H. Decker, have opened a ritzy swimming pool at Golden which they have named "The Golden Plunge." Tony and Joe are also operating the Oriental, Granada and Egyptian here and doing very well.

G. B. Pictures are getting a real play under the able direction of Irving L. Jacobs, who is supervising both the Denver and Salt Lake branches. C. F. Rose and Alpha K. Shepherd are handling the Salt Lake end. Lee Rinker, booking, and Abel Davis, salesman, complete the staff at the Denver office.

L. J. Finske, general manager of the J. H. Cooper Enterprises, is busy these days formulating plans for remodeling and the overhauling of all their houses. Ralph Ayres, former manager of the Paramount, St. Paul, has been transferred to take charge of the Ute, Colorado Springs. Bert Turgeon is booking this circuit and E. F. Roberts is the auditor and general handyman.

Harry B. Ashton, district manager of Fox Rocky Mountain Theatres, has been holding down the boss, Rick Ricketson's chair, while he is in New York negotiating. Chet Miller has the northern division and Bill Steege has the Montana and Idaho setup. Things are humming throughout the circuit due to the "On to the Convention Contest" started June 16 and closing Sept. 7. Each theatre has been given a quota take for the above period and those managers exceeding this quota share in the profits for a 12-week period. Don Sheedy, Trinidad, Colo., won the last contest and it is rumored Gerald Whitney, manager of the Mayan here, is the favorite to take this one. Houses on this circuit are receiving a general overhaul and a great many marquees are being installed. I. Weiner, comptroller, still pays the bills.

Walter Ibold, owner of the Comet which is the first-run at Barnum, a suburb, was in the third flight of the Colorado closed amateur golfing contest at Park Hills, but lost out because he couldn't get his mind off of "Call of the Wild." Walter is the ace golfer of the local film colony.

Glenn Rice and his original Beverly Hills "Hill Billies" will play the Tabor the week of July 26. Glenn is also handling the Colorado Springs flood pictures.

Ed T. Zedra, who saw Michigan via the Butterfield route, is now operating the Washington Park theatre here. This house has been rebuilt, has a new marquee, and is enjoying a good business.

Exhibitors' Film Delivery Service, serving Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska, has been having its troubles the last few weeks. But through all the floods, it has continued to give service. A. E. Galagher is president of this organization and the manager is Mrs. H. J. Carlson. This organization is a member of the National Film Carriers Service.

Over at the Fox exchange, R. J. Morrison, branch manager, and his salesmen, Hugh Rennie and E. M. Loy, are busy figuring out their quota for the new 20th Century lineup, while Booker C. A. Larson is prodding the delinquents and clearing the slate for Zanuck's pictures. This office has also an able secrein Miss Le'Gendre.

Jack Langan, branch manager for Universal here, is sporting diamond cuff-links, stickpin and watch-chain. He is setting a new fashion for the Denver sports prior to the first-run of "Diamond Jim." Jim Homell and Art O'Connell, salesmen, are trying to borrow some diamonds from their exhibitor friends. Emmett Warner is doing the booking.

Lon T. Fidler, owner of Distinctive Screen Attractions, has been in Hollywood on a business deal with Nat Levine regarding Mascot features and serials which Republic have taken over. This popular exchange is working five prints on the Baer-Braddock pictures. W. W. McKendrick is handling the Salt Lake branch, while Jack Krum sells out of Denver.

P. H. Hoppen, owner of the Plaza and Palace and former Kearney, Neb., exhibitor, is doing a little "batching" while his wife, Mrs. Faye L. Hoppen, is doing London and the continent. Mrs. Hoppen took her niece, Shirley, abroad on the Normandie as a graduation present.

Dave Frazer has left his Mormon affiliations behind and is now managing the local branch of Sheffield's Republic. Dode Samuels is selling and Frank W. Sheffield is office manager and booker. This office threw a swell feed recently for the local exhibitors with Eddie Golden master-of-ceremonies.

Charles Yeager, owner of Affiiliated Enterprises, has moved his general office from 810 14th St. to the old Pathe Building which he has purchased at 2165 Broadway. Charlie is owner of the "Bank Night" copyright and is operating the Rex at Rapid City, S. D.—Dave Davis, manager—and the Roxy, Jim Howell, manager.

T. B. Noble is now general manager of the Westland Theatre, Inc., of which Louis L. Dent is president. This part of Dent Enterprises includes 11 theatres throughout Colorado and two in Lincoln, Neb. Noble tells us that the Colorado Springs flood story was grossly exaggerated, none of their houses having been damaged by the rains. Larry Starsmore is handling the Colorado Springs house; Howard Federer, Pueblo; George Monroe, Greeley; Charlie Decker, Grand Junction and Milton Oberman and Shorty Warren, Lincoln, Neb.

"Let 'Em" on Dual Is Best In Montreal

MONTREAL, July 4.—"Let 'Em Have It" and "Party Wire" on a dual bill were the only two to make an impression downtown last week despite the fact that St. John the Baptist Day was a holiday. The take at the Princess was $6,500, over average by $500.

"Reckless" took $9,000 at the Palace, but this was $2,000 under par. "Doubting Thomas" and "The Loves of a Dictator" also were weak at the Capitol.

Total first run business was $27,000. Average is $30,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending June 29:

(Cosmopolitan-Warners)

Hollywood, July 4.—Marion Davies' first production since departing from M-G-M is a fast farce. She is aided and abetted by the sterling troupers Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Frank McHugh, Lyle Talbot, Patsy Kelly, Allen Jenkins and others.

The film is hilarious fun handsomely mounted with novel central situations and plot that seldom assails one's think tank too strongly. Speedy entertainment produced for laughs, it hits on high all the way.

The story is a "Cinderella" yarn with modern twists. Miss Davies plays a dumb chambermaid in a swank hotel where O'Brien and McHugh, quick talking boys, enter a composite photograph of a non-existent girl in the "Miss Glory Contest" for the frail who combines the allures of Garbo, Harlow, Dietrich and Kay Francis. Their photo wins the contest, but, unable to produce Miss Glory, Miss Davies is catapulted into the spot for laughable romantic and business complications impinging on Powell, a goofy aviator; Talbot and a pack of news hounds; also Jenkins and Barton McLane, kidnappers. O'Brien and McHugh, in for easy dough of tieups, flyups and radio, shock absorb the situations, milking 'em to the hilt.

The production shifts from the air scenes to a radio studio, to the hotel and includes Powell's singing, plus romance and comedy.

Mervyn LeRoy directed in march tempo, snaring a maximum of laughs highlighting all the entertainment values.

The screen play by Delmer Daves and Robert Lord springs from Joseph Schranks' and Phillip Dunning's stage play. Settings, sound and photography rate high, as is usual with Miss Davies' vehicles.

Undoubtedly to be launched with a Warner-Hearst fanfare, it should get more than the ordinary Davies returns and give satisfaction to patrons seeking relaxation and laughs.

Production Code Seal No. 984. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Wilderness Mail"

(Ambassador)

This "action thriller" gets off to a good start and from the first reel or so promises to live up to its billing—well, almost—but in the end turns out to be rather weak-kneed and just another picture slightly lacking in entertainment values.

Director Forest Sheldon seemed to be trying hard, but outside of Fred Kohler and Kermit Maynard the material with which he had to work seemed shy in histrionic ability. The camera work of Arlton Reed is good.

The yarn has Maynard awaiting his brother, a sergeant in the mounted police, when the latter is murdered. Maynard then sets out to find the culprit with only the slightest of clues. He plods ahead for about two and a half reels of celluloid before he finds that Kohler is the villain. The windup has Kohler captured and Maynard married to his daughter, Doris Brook, with whom he started romancing along about the middle of the film.

As the minor half of double bills this picture might get by. Production Code Seal No. 830. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Escape Me" Garners Best Take in L.A.

Los Angeles, July 4.—"Escape Me Never," in its second week at the 900-seat 4-Star was the big noise of the week. It grossed $5,100, over the first week average by $1,850.

A revival of "The Virginian," plus a personal appearance of George Jessel drawing a strong $18,500 to the Paramount. This was over the line by $500. "Stranded" made a spotty showing. It was slightly above normal at $8,200 in the Hillstreet, but was away off on a take of $9,100 at Warners' Hollywood.

Even with a preview of "Anna Karenina," the Chinese failed to get anywhere with "Age of Indiscretion" and "Charlie Chan in Egypt." The $7,250 take for six days was $5,250 under par.

Competition Fades For Omaha Theatres

Omaha, July 4.—Competition, in many aspects, like the Arabs folding their tents and stealing away, is lifting for beleaguered exhibitors here. Night baseball went out with the transfer of the Western League club franchise to Council Bluffs, to be followed out soon by midget auto racers, whose season will end after enticing thousands to night races. Out-of-door night clubs, popular last year because of the intense heat, are not prospering as anticipated, partly because of the rainy weather.

Para. Lawyer Fees Jump to $3,222,226

This Is In Addition to $458,029 Paid

A final tabulation yesterday of the fees sought by attorneys and others for services in the Paramount bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings revealed that a total of $3,222,226.41 has been asked. This is in addition to $458,029.99 already paid by Paramount for services of this nature.

Among the late applications to be tabulated was that of Rosenberg, Goldmark & Colin for $18,728.25 for legal services. This firm was paid $13,500 by the debtor estate earlier. Another was a group of applications aggregating approximately $170,000 filed by the Paramount stockholders' protective committee for expenses and disbursements of the committee and

Omaha Holds Code Helped; Want Another

Method of Enforcement Needed, They Say

Omaha, July 5.—The code, it is generally admitted here, brought about better relations between exhibitors and between exhibitors and distributors than had ever existed in this territory before. There has been little change since it was quashed by the U. S. Supreme Court and exhibitors are holding their breath.

If any substitute is attempted, they agree, it should have powers of compulsory enforcement.

"We need a code, a court of appeals, an umpire," declares Charles E. Williams, president of the M. P. T. O. unit. "Conditions are now ideal, but we sit with bated breath waiting for someone to start a price war or giveaway scheme. All of the exhibitors here have been brought to a better understanding of their relation

Art Cinema Sale of U. A. Stock Approved

Wilmington, July 5.—An order formally approving sale by Art Cinema Corp. of its holdings in United Artists Corp. for $650,000 has been entered in Chancery Court here. The sale was approved a week ago, but the order was not entered immediately.

Arthur Rank, the milling millionaire, and Lady Yule, has acquired a 50 per cent share in the Iver Hall studio scheme originated by Charles Boot, of Henry Boot & Sons, Ltd., one of Britain's wealthiest building firms.

Occupying the 180-acre estate of the late Col. Grant Morden, M.P., the Iver Hall scheme calls for five full stages, of which B.N. will occupy one, leaving four available on a service basis. Provision for color and stereoscopic production is scheduled, with two recording systems available, probably W.E. and British Acoustic.

Total costs involved will reach £150,000, it is stated, including the

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, July 5.—Officials of both the NRA and Federal Trade Commission today denied reports published in New York this week that they had received proposals for the creation of a national trade association plan from Tyree Dillard, Jr., counsel for Campi.

Under the new setup authorized by President Roosevelt July 2, it was said at the NRA, any plans for trade agreements submitted to that agency would be forwarded to the commission, which will be in charge of the negotiation of voluntary codes. At the commission it was said no such document had been received.

As reported from New York, an organization was to be created to enforce fair trade practice provisions. Commission officials, while refusing neighborhood houses. Owners of the houses were partly victorious in the fight, since the men accepted a slight wage increase instead of their original demands. The exhibitors, however, agreed to consider new collective labor contracts and this is seen as a victory in full for the employes.

The strike involving several other neighborhood houses, however, continues, but the board hopes to clear the trouble and settle the wage question to the satisfaction of both parties.

In further effort to eliminate future disputes between theatre owners and their employes, the board is planning a series of conferences between exhibitors, producers and distributors in the near future.

Declare Monterey Boycott

Mexico City, July 5.—The National Federation of Cinematographic Industry Workers has carried out its threat to boycott exhibitors in Monterey, near the American border, as disciplinary action in the dismissal of 22 theatre attaches there. The union decided to put the boycott into effect when the exhibitors rejected a new collective labor contract offered by employes.

The present effect of the boycott is to prevent supplies, films, discs, etc., from reaching Monterey. Many houses in the city have been forced to close as a result. Federal authorities are attempting to settle the dispute.

o each other. Every man is grateful for what the code did, but we no onger need it. We are well enough organized to handle any controversy.

"But, if we are to have a code, even if voluntary, it should be stated concisely that any form of giveaway, bank night, etc., is undesirable, unethical and not permissible. Also, there should be a clause to restrict block booking so far as this is possible."

Sidney Epstein, attorney and spokesman for the Epstein suburban houses, says no code is needed.

On the other hand, Eugene Blazer, attorney for A. H. Blank's Tri-States houses, feels that the code was beneficial.

"Though I always doubted the validity of codes," he said, "they were, despite their shortcomings, the best thing the industry has ever had.

"A code should not only be a moral influence, but should also have physical persuasiveness behind it. Otherwise, a voluntary document will be just one of those 'gentlemen's agreements' that will be inviting for an exhibitor somewhere to violate."

British National has two films to make for G.B. release and the first, "Three Fevers," directed by Norman Walker, is nearly finished. Recently the company has been associated in trade rumor with the new activities of C. M. Woolf.

Charles Boot will be chairman of Pinewood Studios, Ltd., owning company of the new plant, and J. Arthur Rank is the only other director. The capital, £200,000, will all be privately subscribed, it is stated.

A leading American company, says the official statement, is already negotiating for space in the studio.

Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, was asked in the House of Commons by Capt. Arthur Evans whether, in view of the "unsatisfactory working" of the quota provisions of the Films Act, he would amend the act to obtain better British films. Capt. Evans also asked whether the board of Trade would receive deputations from the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. and from the public.

Runciman replied he would be glad to receive any deputation introduced by Capt. Evans, and pointed out that "the question of the quality of British films is one which the Advisory Committee has under consideration."

Columbia Asks for Stock Registration

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Application for registration of Columbia stock on the New York Stock Exchange was filed today by Harry Cohn, A. H. Giannini and Jack Cohn, voting trustees, and Columbia Pictures Corp. The trustees' application covers 170,470 shares of common stock, issued, and 40,596 shares, unissued, and the company seeks registration of 170,470 shares of common, issued and deposited with the trustees; 7,463 shares, issued but not deposited, and 33,133 shares, unissued.

The trustees' application shows there is a 10-year voting trust agreement terminating April 1, 1940. As of June 1 last, Harry Cohn was the registered owner of voting trust certificates for 47,601 shares of common, or 27.92 per cent, and 995 shares of common; Jack Cohn held certificates for 25,078 shares, or 14.7 per cent, and 55 shares of common, and Giannini held 314 shares of common.

Columbia's application, filed jointly with that of the trustees, shows it has a 50 per cent interest in one subsidiary and is sole owner of five others, among them Columbia Pictures Distributing Co., which has 15 wholly owned foreign subsidiaries.

The stock setup of the company called for 300,000 shares of common, of which 177,933 have been issued, the liability being $2,219,294; and 25,000 of $3 preferred, of which 18,261 have been issued, with a liability of $517,830.

In addition to the holdings of the trust members, the report showed that Joseph Brandt held one share of common and voting trust certificates for 474 shares; Nathan Burkan, as director, 25 shares of common, and S. J. Briskin, assistant secretary, two shares.

RKO Theatres Propose to Shy Clear of Premiums

RKO theatres throughout the country, about 100 in all, will shy clear of premiums and chance games, home office officials assert. The decision to keep away from artificial box-office stimulants came after a study of the practices in a number of key centers.

Circuit heads declare RKO will stick to the theatre business. Meanwhile, Loew's is mulling over a plan to adopt chance games in seven of its local subsequent run houses. The matter has been in the hands of lawyers, but because of the legal angles involved no action has been taken.

In Greater New York premiums are giving way to chance games among

Latin America Income Put at Four Million

American distributors doing business in 21 Latin American countries will gross approximately $4,000,000 for the 1935-36 season, Charles Morla, head of Republic's offices in these countries, states. In Cuba alone the companies will average $925,000, which is double last year's business, according to Morla. The Republic sales executive is here on a combined business and pleasure trip, conferring with Norton V. Ritchey on new offices in Panama and in the Argentine.

Of the $925,000 gross, M-G-M will chalk off $200,000 with Fox second at $150,000. Warners is third with $130,000 and Paramount fourth with $125,000. Universal will do around $100,000, U. A. and Columbia each

Bank Nights Stir Problem On Percentage

INDIANAPOLIS, July 7.—Bank nights have raised a problem on percentage pictures in this territory because an exhibitor sold so many tickets one night that 600 holders got inside the theatre and 2,000 were kept outside, although they were eligible for the bank night prizes. The tickets for the outsiders were good for later showings.

Felix F. Feist, M-G-M general sales manager, has written to the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana as follows:

"Our attention has been called to one instance where cash prizes unclaimed were lumped as one award after four nights. The result was that tickets were sold to 600 people who

Distributors To Resist New Buying Groups

Faced with Demands for Lowered Rentals

With the increase, actual and proposed, of film buying circuits in many sections, distributors are girding themselves to resist wholesale demands for lowered rentals and more favorable playing terms on several fronts, it was learned on Saturday.

With several companies now selling new season product and others about to start, sales forces have been faced already with demands for lower film tariffs from existing buying combines and from others which profess to represent new buying groups in formation, it was said. While old established buying organizations with which past dealings have been on a fair

Republic's Setup Is Explained by Golden

Edward A. Golden, general sales manager of Republic, on Saturday explained to the New York and Philadelphia delegates attending the last of the company's regionals at the Park Central here the new setup of the company and how it will work.

He stated that Republic is in an unusual position in that limited capital assures the franchise holders all the product promised will be delivered. Golden praised Herman Gluckman, in charge of the two exchanges, asserting that, although Gluckman is new in the company, his 20 years' experience in the territory assures promising results.

Budd Rogers, E. H. Goldstein, Edward Finney and Jack Bellman took the floor at the afternoon session. They discussed the benefits of the Republic tieup and advertising and publicity for the new season.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE slight delay which marks completion of the 20th Century merger by Fox is occasioned by nothing more than the scrutiny, expected and close, which lawyers for both sides are exercising. The papers, very legal and very important clear down the line to commas and semicolons, are voluminous and call for minute inspection; the legal coterie is, therefore, making certain nobody is disappointed in the way it carries out its role. The basis on which Fox absorbs 20th Century calls for payment in common stock computed on the latter company's assets. There naturally developed discussions on the worth of those assets and the need for arriving at a mutually satisfactory understanding of their value. The deal, however, snuggles on the finish line and will be concluded momentarily. Even in the picture business, this may mean as near at hand as today. . . .

For three years, Al Lichtman has been telling his United Artists gang he would some day give it a sales convention in Hollywood. Now that his formal election to the presidency is imminent, the promise is a fact. Which explains how it came about U. A. launches its powwows on the coast this morning. . . .

Heat or no heat, matters such as that which follows call for a reply from time to time. It was recently that Dr. Mark A. May, executive director of the Yale Institute of Human Relations and president of the Council of Film Patrons in New Haven, went loose with his language and charged the industry was "stupid not to see that actually fifty per cent of the market of theatre patrons was not yet exploited." As you probably will suspect, the undeveloped bracket, in May's opinion, is represented by the higher intellectual class. . . .

It's such an old wheeze. So old, in fact, that we are rapidly becoming annoyed with ourselves about troubling to go into an answer. The reply is simple enough and those in this industry know it, if too few out of it do not. If Dr. May or some one, anyone, in fact, will inform producers who is to carry the burden while the ignored fifty per cent determines to patronize films, the problem would be no problem. . . .

It is, of course, common knowledge within the trade that virtually all producers have made pictures which they knew would never end in the black. From time to time, and increasingly so in the past couple of years, these "prestige" pictures have reached the market to be passed up by the very type of audience for which Dr. May carries his torch. The head of the Institute of Human Relations no doubt approaches his own problem from a cultural and social point of view. Producers have a habit of keeping in mind the basic fact that theirs is a business with stockholders either to satisfy or to lose. . . .

And now having gone weighty enough for a holiday weekend, this department calls it a day and takes itself off in search of a breeze which has no place to go. . . .

clothes detail, it is stated that when the call was made to headquarters the informer said the pickets were blocking pedestrian traffic by marching in files of eight. The 40 detectives will be on the scene for two weeks.

Local 306 plans to file a complaint with Commissioner Valentine against one of the policemen on 42nd Street. The local claims that one of its pickets was manhandled by a policeman and that Frank Tichenor, who has been appointed by the mayor to settle the union dispute, was a witness to the incident. A departmental trial against the officer will be sought.

Meanwhile, mass picketing continues on 42nd St. with the three unions apparently getting nowhere in an effort to end the labor dispute.

The special detective detachment makes its headquarters at the Great Eastern Terminal, which is diagonally opposite Local 306 offices on 42nd St.

William Jaffe, Edward Golden, Felix A. Jenkins, Harold S. Bareford and John C. Flinn.

Keough, chairman of the legal group consisting of O'Reilly, Yamins and Tyree Dillard, Jr., will report to the body on his observations of 10 voluntary code recommendations by different industries.

Principally concerning the voluntary industry committee are ways and means of circumventing anti-trust laws. Two previous decisions have to be taken into consideration before any steps for setting up a voluntary body can be advanced. They are the famous Judge Thacher opinion in which he declared compulsory arbitration a violation of the anti-trust laws and the Binderup case in Omaha in which it was held clearance and zoning was a violation of Federal laws.

$80,000. Republic will gross around $30,000 and the other independent exchanges combined will do around $30,000. Most of the independent exchanges release Mexican, British, German, French and Spanish films with the last mentioned leading all others.

Last year 974 pictures were distributed in Buenos Aires. Of the number, 170 were German releases, 30 Italian, 10 Spanish, 60 French, 40 British, six Jewish and five Hungarian. The balance, 653, were American films.

Morla estimates 1,074 wired theatres in the Argentine. He says there are about 250 such houses in Chile, 79 in Uruguay, 500 in Brazil, 130 in Peru, 130 in Colombia, 180 in Venezuela, 40 in Ecuador, 29 in Bolivia, 16 in Paraguay, 110 in Panama and about 200 in five Central American countries.

In Cuba there are 170 theatres, 59 of which are in Havana. Erpi installations are in 100 of the 170, RCA has 50, Simplex, 10; Melafone, 10. Havana has two first run theatres, each seating from 1,600 to 1,800. The rest of the 59 theatres seat from 400 to 800.

Catholic Daughters Attack Film Morals

SEATTLE, July 7.—An attack against Hollywood for turning out allegedly indecent entertainment was launched at the convention of the Catholic Daughters of America here. The meeting voiced support of the Legion of Decency.

"We are going to have clean pictures, and that's all there is to it," declared Mrs. Mary F. Larkin, national editor of the organization, who warned that "this is a permanent movement and we intend following it up by doing everything possible to bring about the passage of measures now pending in Congress to prevent block booking."

Replacing of the present crop of stars by others "who can act instead of merely parading indecency" was urged by Mrs. Larkin.

now. The NRA code accomplished a lot of good. It was much better than what we have now, which is nothing."

Jules H. Michael, manager of the second run Regent and chairman of the Western New York zone, M. P. T. O., declared: "We're in favor of it. We've got to have arbitration and some kind of regulation. Nothing definite is in sight. I think most of the exhibitors are waiting to see what the government will sanction, and then will go ahead."

Phil Lavene, manager of the Embassy, downtown second run, said: "I'm in favor of it. We're sticking strictly to the code in our operations. In fact, we never gave any thought to any change."

Talk New Writer Code

HOLLYWOOD, July 7.—Meetings to revise and extend the Academy Writer-Producer Code are now being held between committees from the Writers' Branch and the Producers' Branch, and are expected to extend over a period of weeks. At the first such meeting it was decided by both sides that no statements of any kind will be issued until the committees are prepared to make a joint report.

Coast ITOA to Elect

Intermountain Has Percentage Contest

DENVER, July 7.—The Intermountain division of F. W. C. is starting another profit-sharing contest for managers. Under this new plan each manager competes only with the past records of the house, not the phenomenal business done by other houses, for a percentage of the profits. Rick Ricketson has discarded the old system of spotting definite prizes. On September 8 the contest will end with a big blowout for managers and wives, probably in Colorado Springs or Denver.

The following managers have been shifted: Carl Smith, manager of the Rialto, Sterling, Col., and Harold Jones, manager of the Fox, Sidney, Neb., have traded jobs; A. J. Hamilton, manager of the Strand at Rawlins, Wyo., has resigned and has been replaced by John Taylor, former assistant in North Platte, Neb., and Billings, Mont.

Hollywood, July 7.—Spencer Tracy triumphs in this novel mystery story although the picture may have limited appeal. Tracy, star murder newshawk, is called from his cups to report the shooting of a shady investment broker. Arriving late at the scene of the crime he manages, nevertheless, to get the exact details of the crime in print simultaneously with the other scribes.

The killing is pinned on Harvey Stephens, murdered man's partner, and Tracy's paper prints the news exactly as Lionel Atwill, police captain, makes the arrest. When Stephens is convicted it develops Tracy himself committed the crime and frames Stephens, the motive being suicide of his wife and the financial losses he sustained because of the crooked investment firm. The picture ends with Tracy confessing and being placed in jail and separated from Virginia Bruce, his romantic interest, which tends to leave the story for the audience's own conclusion.

Director Tim Whelan, who co-authored the script with John Higgins, develops the action nicely but reports facts and story with meagre show values and arouses little sympathy for Tracy until the confession. The large supporting cast including Robert Barrat, William Collier, Sr., and Louise Henry play with conviction. Production by Harry Rapf is good, but not lavish.

The picture must depend on Tracy's popularity and novelty of story to get over. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

"Silk Hat Kid"

(Fox)

Hollywood, July 7.—Action and a telling fist fight are the chief angles in this tale of the reformation of a tough guy by a baby's fingers.

Lew Ayres, imported as a bodyguard by Paul Kelly, meets his old settlement house teacher, Brother Joe, who takes away Ayres' gun and makes him a gym instructor. Kelly, operator of a night club, sponsors the settlement house until Ayres cuts him out with Mae Clarke, who teaches there.

Kelly's estranged wife dies leaving his son, whom he has never seen, in charge of Brother Joe. Miss Clarke takes the child, hoping Kelly will learn to love him before discovering who he is. Ralf Harolde, a gangster trying to muscle in on Kelly's cafe, is routed by Ayres. Kelly thinks Ayres is part of Harolde's mob.

A long fist fight refereed by Brother Joe follows with Ayres getting the girl and Kelly getting a black eye and a soft heart at the same time.

Warren Hymer, Vince Barnett and John Qualen are standouts in comedy parts. William Harrigan as Brother Joe, Billy Lee as the boy and William Benedict play supporting roles. Joseph Engel produced and H. Bruce Humberstone directed from the screen play by Edward Eliscu, Lou Breslow and Dore Schary from the story by Gerald Beaumont.

Production Code Seal, No. 1062. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Thunder in the Night"

(Fox)

Hollywood, July 7.—Suggesting political intrigue, this mystery drama is set in Budapest.

Karen Morley, on the night she is celebrating her husband's (Paul Cavanagh) elevation to cabinet presidency, receives a call from Cornelius Keefe, her former spouse, whom she has believed dead. Keefe, a vaudeville performer, also quarrels with his partner (Gloria Roy) and Arthur Carew, a mind reader.

When Keefe is found dead, Edmund Lowe, police captain, is called to solve the crime with the trail leading to all the principals and Bodill Rosing, a servant. Police Prefect Russell Hicks is anxious to pin the crime on Cavanagh for political reasons. Lowe concentrates on shielding Cavanagh, his friend, and tracking the real killer who proves to be Miss Roy.

George Archainbaud directed and handled the script intelligently, but the difficulty lies in the story handicaps. In the supporting cast Gene Lockhart, as Lowe's assistant, Una O'Connor as a chambermaid and Herman Bing as a taxi driver supply comedy relief.

The film is inoffensive, average fare for duals. John Stone produced. Production Code Seal, No. 1008. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

and reasonable basis are being dealt with this season exactly as before, distributors as a rule are taking a positive stand in refusing to make concessions to other groups of the mushroom variety, it is reported.

The distributors' policy in dealing with the new or little known buying groups is said to be dictated largely by a theory of self defense. One sales executive pointed out that the unknown buying groups are frequently operated for the benefit of a small number of organizers. If they are successful in obtaining concessions from distributors, each concession is used to attract and sell new members for the group. With each increase in membership, it was said, new demands for additional concessions are made, with the added strength of the group being used against the distributor as a "convincer." In this manner a widening circle of concession and demand is made with the distributor in the center, it was charged. At the same time, failure of the distributor to grant concessions to what may later prove to be an effective buying combine also leaves him open later to local boycotts.

Buying groups have been particularly strong in Chicago during recent years. New Jersey and Philadelphia exhibitors have plans for the formation of such groups under discussion. Minneapolis exhibitors have considered the move and, locally, it has been discussed by various groups from time to time without, however, any definite developments. New season sales plans and terms inevitably spur both the discussion and formation of new buying combines and frequently add members to those already in existence.

independents. Unaffiliated exhibitors find that on the days chinaware or other articles are given away business perks up, but on the previous and following day a decided slump at the boxoffice is noticed. The tendency is drifting to games where money and gifts are distributed to lucky number winners.

The distinction between general distribution of articles and chance games, as outlined by exhibitors, is that on giveaway night either all women or children are given gifts while with chance games a select few are awarded money and prizes. The game feature is held less expensive than premiums and entices patrons with a sport instinct.

Nat Holt, Cleveland, Columbus and Detroit division head for RKO with seven theatres under his supervision, stated that business at his units is good and there is no need to go in for artificial attractions. He also said that there is no general trend toward giveaways or bank nights in his towns, but there are a number of houses with such policies.

Bank Nights Stir Percentage Problem

got into the theatre and 2,000 who remained outside.

"What about those 2,000 tickets which were not used on the night when they were sold? There would be no money in the box-office if these 2,000 persons decided to use their tickets to see one of our exceptional productions and the theatre management lets them in, as seems to be the custom. Of course, in a case of this sort, the previously sold tickets, when presented, would be entered as passes and the attempt would be made to settle on that basis.

"Two angles are involved. If a percentage picture is playing on a bank night and tickets are sold which are not used that night, there is the necessity for having some sort of check on the box-office sale. And if a percentage picture plays subsequent to a bank night when the house was oversold, assurance naturally will be desired that the picture be compensated for any previously sold tickets which are presented at the door."

Giveaways Spreading In Texas Territory

& R., Griffith, among the circuits, now have one or more of these plans in operation in each town.

Other forms of money nights have been evolved by individuals. China gifts which have proven to be profitable in some spots are continued on that basis. Bank night has been a big draw in many places, while other houses have discontinued it. Apparently the experience of the Interstate in the downtown houses with screeno is not encouraging, although it has established at least a temporary vogue in the neighborhoods.

In San Antonio, Interstate is using these plans in the deluxe first runs—screeno two nights weekly. The Palace, second-run, uses bunk night, as do three neighborhoods associated with it in operations. The neighborhoods also use a country store, making three nights a week of gifts.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Dressed to Thrill"

(Fox)

Hollywood, July 7.—As an introductory vehicle for Tutta Rolf this picture leaves much to be desired. As a potential screen personality she definitely rises above the material provided. Essentially the story is a dramatic romance given a comedy tinge and embellished by specialized solo music.

During the last days of the World War a small town French dressmaker falls in love with a Canadian army officer. Following the Armistice he forgets but as she becomes a popular Russian musical star she remembers. Time passes, the lovers meet again and he fails to recognize in the person of the glamorous star the simple modiste of more exciting days. While still loving him and disregarding all his peculiarities, she decides to teach him a lesson. The production then carries through much irrelevant material that in the end makes the officer-banker understand that the object of his infatuation is the same person to whom he once pledged undying love.

The production, adapted from a continental stage play with the screen play by Samson Raphaelson and directed by Harry Lachman, being both complicated and difficult to grasp, is foreign to any domestic trend. While all concentration is placed upon Miss Rolf, the support, including Clive Brook as the befuddled lover, Robert Barrat as the rival in later sequences, Nydia Westman as comedy relief and George Hassell, Mme. Smirnova, Leonid Snegoff and G. P. Huntley contribute little that might prove of showmanship or entertainment value.

As a run-of-the-mill, average attraction this will have difficulty standing alone and needs strong support to make any program attractive.

Production Code Seal, No. 991. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

are to be made in New York, it was indicated.

It was explained that some of the witnesses whom it was desired to interrogate were not able to come to Washington last month, and while it is possible for the commission to subpoena witnesses, it was felt the proceedings would be expedited by moving to New York. It was said that these witnesses had not refused to testify, but had urged that it was not possible for them to travel to the capital at the time of the hearings.

Counsel for the commission also are desirous of securing additional information on the activities of the bankers' management and protective committees, some of which, it was intimated, may prove to be sensational as were the disclosures during the first hearings.

The commission is looking into the Fox Metropolitan reorganization, but has not yet decided whether to go into it.

No report on the Paramount investigation is to be expected before next year. It was explained the commission has a number of investigations to make which will carry it through the fall, and it will not be possible to digest the material until shortly before the end of the year. The commission's report to Congress also is not due until next season.

Try Pay As You Leave

Omaha, July 8.—"Honor system" previews are the latest wrinkles here. The box-office is dark, but the theatre doors are wide open when patrons go in at midnight. When they come out the exits are roped so they have to file past the box-office window.

The first program at the Orpheum consisted of "Ginger" and "Mr. Dynamite." Of 814 who attended 765 paid or were paid for as they filed out.

A cameraman had his lens focused on the outgoing patrons, but all he photographed was a couple of shots for advertising purposes. A group of college students decided to rush the line, but returned sheepishly a few moments later and paid.

Everet H. Cummings, district manager for A. H. Blank; Charles Schlaifer, advertising manager for Omaha, and Bill Miskell, Orpheum manager, originated the idea. Cummings intends to try it in other Blank houses at Hastings, Grand Island and Fairbury, Neb., and Sioux City and Des Moines, Ia.

Plan Center As Long Run In Radio City

Radio City is poising a plan which provides for a policy at the Center Theatre of extended run pictures beginning Sept. 1. Bookings will be spotted in from the product bought by the Music Hall which next season will draw upon Fox, RKO and Columbia as three of its principal sources.

It was reported last night that it was Sidney R. Kent who was the direct influence in the consideration now being accorded the plan. The Fox president, it is understood, refused to make a deal with the Radio City for the new season without some assurances that product contracted would play the theatre for which it was purchased and suggested a switch of the Center from its current stage policy to films as a practical method share basis, pursuant to the latter's program of harnessing the key Nebraska spots for exhibition of films and their control in this section, the petition says the other defendant film groups entered into conspiracy to furnish the organization with product. It is further claimed that the arrangement controlled 75 per cent of all the product and 90 per cent of the features, sending the bulk of the film to the five defendant houses and leaving the remainder for the four independents.

Previous to L.T.C.'s entrance on the exhibition scene here, it was the practice to keep several houses closed, since the three plaintiff houses were under the L.T.C.'s control then and by this arrangement not all the available pictures could play, and practically no second runs were used. After refusing to pay rent on the three houses in 1932, the allegation reads, the houses were taken back by the landlords and immediately the assets of the Delaware corporation were transferred to the Nebraska corporation with a view to removing credit claims of the latter, according to the petition.

When the organization was broken in April, 1934, and forced out of business, it had incurred $21,000 in debts, and valued the leases on the three houses at $100,000 for the Liberty; $200,000, Orpheum, and $130,000, Rialto. Seeking to recover the total amount of $451,000, tripled, as is provided in actions of this kind, $1,353,000 is the amount of suit. Former Attorney General Paul Good and City Attorney Loren Laughlin are appearing for the plaintiff.

Clevelanders Talk Clearance Changes

that if the present seven-day protection between these classifications were increased to 14 days, the general tendency would be to boost the 15-cent houses into the 20-cent classification.

Nothing has been done about it outside discussion. One difficulty is that such a change opens the way for first runs to ask for a greater differential between them and the first run subsequents.

Cleveland's present availability schedule is 35 days after first run, for Class A houses charging 25 cents; 56 days for Class B houses charging 20 cents; 63 days for Class C houses charging 15 cents and 100 days for Class D houses charging 10 cents.

of absorbing pictures which the Music Hall either did not want to play or for which it could not find dates.

The policy which the Music Hall has been pursuing generally calls for a cash payment to the distributor of $7,500 for each rejection, this to be applied against the deal secured by the distributor from another first run outlet, if any.

As the proposal now stands, the Center would become the home of extended run pictures, the Music Hall, in turn, maintaining a policy of week stands only. This angle, however, is susceptible of change.

If determined upon, the Center, therefore, will again swing back to its original policy. For almost a year "The Great Waltz," Max Gordon musical, believed financed originally by the Rockefellers, has been playing the house, thereby giving the Music Hall run of the 6th Ave. field insofar as films enter into it.

W. G. Van Schmus, now operating the Music Hall, is expected to run the Center as well. He could not be reached late yesterday for comment.

Coast Independents Skeptical on Codes

Chotiner, president of the I.T.O.A., said. Chotiner pointed out that appeals for adjustments under the NRA code lay in New York for a year without action. "They told us we wouldn't have to buy definite quotas of short subjects, but we found out we had to buy them anyway. We're just as well off without a voluntary code," said Chotiner.

The I.T.O.A. is now working on a zoning and clearance schedule of its own.

Although F.W.C. officials would not be quoted on the subject, it was learned that the organization was definitely favorable toward a voluntary code and felt that the adoption of regulatory measures were necessary.

There is considerable dissension between the unemployed members of Local 306, it is stated, which can only be adjusted at a general meeting of the organization. Several weeks ago the working card members were placed back on a five-day week and as a result of this move, it is expected the assessment fee will be increased in addition to the international's two per cent for the benefit of non-working members.

20th Century Sets First 8 With Fox

Lawrence Tibbett. It was made clear that the eight did not necessarily mean Darryl F. Zanuck will make only this total for 1935-36, the plan providing for others to be divulged "from time to time." Set to go, however, are these:

"Metropolitan" from an original by Bess Meredyth and George Marion, Jr., with Richard Boleslawski directing.

"The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," starring Ronald Colman. This is to be based on a Russian play with Nunnally Johnston handling the script and John Ford directing.

"Sing, Governor, Sing" by Howard Smith and Johnston. Roy Del Ruth will direct the cast which will include Ann Dvorak, Fred Allen, Phil Baker, Paul Whiteman and his band, Ramona, the Yacht Club Boys and Rubinoff.

"Message to Garcia," based on the story by Elbert Hubbard and the book by General Rowan.

"Earthbound," by Basil King.

"Snatched" by Kubec Glassman, author of "Public Enemy."

"Shark Island," based on the life of Dr. Samuel Mudd, who innocently aided John Wilkes Booth on the night the latter assassinated Abraham Lincoln.

"John Barleycorn" by Jack London.

Zanuck starts production as soon as he returns to Hollywood which probably will be the end of this week. "Metropolitan" will be the first to go before the cameras, the starting date now being set for July 25. "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" and "Sing, Governor, Sing" start the first week of August.

Another session last night brought formal signaturing of the Century deal closer. The expectancy is the transaction will be signed and delivered today. Whatever the day, S. R. Kent, Joseph M. Schenck, Zanuck and William Goetz will leave at once for the coast. They will travel by air.

Kent to Europe Later

LONDON, July 8.—The trade hears S. R. Kent will be over in September.

Leave Asked To Appeal in Fox Met Case

appeal after Judge Mack yesterday granted the petition of the Fox Met trustee for authority to disaffirm the circuit's leases on the Palace at Bergenfield, and the Dumont, Dumont, N. J., both of which are owned by Layton. Levin said that his client opposed the Fox Met reorganization plan because of its alleged inequities to the interests of theatre landlords. As the Circuit Court has adjourned for the term it is doubtful whether any action can be had on the Layton application before October.

In granting the Fox Met trustee permission to disaffirm the Layton leases Judge Mack, who leaves for a two and one-half months' European vacation tomorrow, stipulated that the Layton Company could file affidavits in opposition to his order with Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, who could then reverse Judge Mack's ruling if the objections warranted it. It was testified that Fox Met had lost $70,069 on the Palace since the inception of the company's receivership and a comparable amount on the Dumont.

Permission to disaffirm the lease on the Queen Anne, also in Jersey, was granted Fox Met without objections. A loss of $61,000 was reported for this house since the Fox Met receivership, slightly more than three years ago.

Authority was granted for placing the Biltmore, Carlton, Stratford and Duffield into a new subsidiary company which would be permitted to cancel the leases on the first three in the event the new operating arrangement failed to correct losses now being sustained through them. Of four, the Duffield is the only one operating profitably.

Disaffirming of the leases yesterday reduces Fox Met's theatre holdings to 81 houses, as compared with 145 at the inception of the receivership.

Fox Hearing on Today

A hearing on an application by the receiver of Fox Theatres Corp. to continue the receivership for another six months, which was scheduled for yesterday, was postponed until today by Federal Judge Martin T. Manton.

I. E. M. Meeting Today

BOSTON, July 8.—The next meeting of the Independent Exhibitors of Massachusetts, Inc., local Allied affiliate, will be held at the organization's general offices here Tuesday.

Realignment Being Made in U. A. Staff

TURE DAILY of June 24, will become general sales assistant to Al Lichtman, new head of the company, who will continue to function also as sales manager. Paul Lazarus will be Lichtman's inside assistant, Gold's work being concentrated more in the field. Jack Goldhar will function as western division manager with Lazarus' promotion, while Charles Stern, assistant eastern division manager, will succeed Gold.

Lichtman announced at the opening session that independent producers releasing through U. A. hereafter will not pass on individual contracts with exhibitors.

"This is the first time in our history," he said, "that our producers have agreed to eliminate the system of passing upon their individual contracts. They have placed their product in my hands as sole trustee."

It was added by Lichtman that United Artists "now is more important to the industry than ever before."

Arthur W. Kelly, in charge of foreign distribution, will address the convention on Tuesday on "World Distribution." Other speakers will be Maurice Silverstone, who will discuss the British market; Hal Horne, head of publicity and advertising; Harry D. Buckley, vice-president of United Artists Theatre Circuit, who will talk on "General Policy and Theatre Circuits"; Kay Kamen, whose topic will be "Exploitation of Disney Product." Stern and Haskel Masters, Canadian manager, complete the list of Tuesday's speakers.

In answer to reports he had not only signed with Paramount but would also produce two films for Mary Pickford for U. A. release, Walter Wanger let it be known today an announcement would be forthcoming at the end of the week. It is learned Miss Pickford will star in a minimum of two productions a year.

Hornblow Returns; Talked to Kipling

he conferred with Rudyard Kipling on the Sidney Howard script of "The Light That Failed," which Hornblow will make as the first of six under a one-year contract signed prior to his departure from the coast.

Hornblow stated Kipling was satisfied with the changes in the Howard script and that Gary Cooper will be starred. He plans to remain here 10 days before returning to Hollywood. While abroad he visited, in addition to England, Budapest, France and Spain.

Luigi Pirandello missed the boat, but his collaborator, Saul Colin, arrived on the liner to begin conferences with M-G-M on a contract with the company.

Lillian Messinger returned after a year in various foreign countries searching for talent and literature for Radio.

David Sussman of the Paramount News also was a passenger on the French liner. He said he had been on a nine-month inspection tour in France and England. He added that the News office at the Joinville studios in Paris had been enlarged.

Polly Moran, although not on the passenger list, was among the travelers. She said she did not plan to look a camera in the face for the next six months. Miss Moran intends to fly to the coast today.

Joseph Hazen, Warner attorney, Sheila Barrett, actress; Austin Parker, playwright; Hazzard Short, producer; and Jack Curtis, agent, were among the long list of Normandie arrivals.

Sees $120,000,000 For New Production

The Wall Street Journal. Figures compiled by the author, Linn Unkefer, show that fewer and better films will be turned out at an expenditure larger than last season, when the industry's production budget totaled "approximately $110,000,000."

Unkefer's compilation discloses 486 features and approximately 1,000 shorts slated for production this season, as compared with 541 features and 1,000 shorts turned out during 1934-35.

While production costs will be larger the new season than the old, they will be under those of the five seasons preceding 1934-35, it is revealed.

The article asserts that "the improved type of pictures announced for the coming year, together with the feature of Technicolor, is expected to do much toward restoring the threatened prestige of American films in the foreign market."

Looking 'Em Over

"Reckless Roads"

(Majestic)

Regis Toomey has his hands full playing Romeo to Judith Allen and keeping her brother out of trouble in this fair melodrama which is suited for dual bill programs. Lloyd Hughes is seen as a villain in a minor role. Ben Alexander, Louise Garter, Gilbert Emery and Matthew Betz are in the supporting cast.

Virtually destitute and on the verge of being dispossessed when Toomey comes to their aid, Miss Allen and her mother find Alexander a problem. Toomey decides to get the boy a job, but he gets into trouble the day before he is to start. Miss Allen lands a job with a former sweetheart of her mother's and subsequently gets her brother set also. When it is discovered a $1,000 bond is missing, Miss Allen is fired. She thinks her brother is responsible, but all the while it is Hughes.

Alexander bets $200 on Hughes' horse, the money having been lent to the boy's mother by Toomey. On the day of the race Alexander listens in on a telephone conversation between Hughes and a bookmaker. It has to do with a frameup on Hughes' horse, which is the favorite. Toomey and Alexander try to cancel the bet, but are too late. Something goes wrong on the track and Hughes' entrant wins, much to the glory of Alexander and his clan and much to the discomfort of Hughes and his cohorts.

Production Code Seal No. 943. Running time, 50 minutes. "G."

"Now or Never"

(Ajax)

Fans that go for a lot of action in pictures should like this. But the picture won't stand close examanation as to plausibility of story and quality of performances by most of the cast.

Dick Talmadge has a well-established name for this type film and exhibitors would do well to play up his feats and athletics, for in this one he runs up and down mountains, over practically all the roof-tops of Los Angeles and fights, in hand-to-hand combat, all the gangsters on the coast.

The story, which serves as an excuse rather than a frame around which to build the action, has Talmadge mistaken for a diamond "fence" whom he closely resembles. After introducing himself to the crook Talmadge proceeds to try and save a fortune in stones for his double and finds himself involved with a gang. The last half concerns itself with his battle and victory over the villains.

B. B. Ray directed and the photography by J. H. Kruse is fair. Others in the cast are Janet Chandler, Robert Walker, Eddie Davis and Otto Metzetti.

Production Code Seal, No. 840. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Peter Vinogradov"

(Amkino)

A picture of the life of the Soviet youth painted on a broad canvas, this Soyuzkino production proclaims its message with considerable exuberance. The film reveals the activities of young Russia in all their phases. Though the story is a fictitious one, it is so convincingly realistic that it does not seem to be a staged effort. Exalting the youth of the Soviet, the production teems with life.

Yet in spite of all this the picture is likely to prove a bit of a bore to American audiences. The producers have allowed their enthusiasm for their subject to blind them to the need for a coherent story structure. As a result, "Peter Vinogradov" is a rambling affair.

Through the film stalks B. N. Livanov, as a youthful technical genius, apparently intended to personify the machine worship typical of the Soviet philosophy. It is a robust character nicely played. Among the other actors are V. Tsishevsky, K. Gradopolov, G. Pashkova and N. Ardi.

A. V. Macheret is listed as the director. There are English subtitles aplenty. No production code seal. Running time, 86 minutes. "G."

Milliken Tells of Film War on Crime

Atlantic City, July 8.—A new public attitude that should do much to aid the anti-crime crusade which the nation is conducting and uphold the interest of law enforcement is reflected in the emphasis which producers are placing upon current crime problems, according to Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the M.P.P.D.A., in an address here today before the annual meeting of the International Ass'n of Chiefs of Police.

"The screen of the nation has made good," he said, "in its promise to cooperate to the utmost in focusing public attention upon the problems of crime detection and law enforcement. The apprehension of the criminal has come to have news value equal to the commission of the crime. And the public which admires true courage has come to sense the vast difference between this quality and the acts of desperation and false courage of the machine-gun gangster."

Higher Screen Aims Lauded

Hollywood, July 8.—That "successful adventure into new high standards by the entertainment motion picture during the past decade has resulted in many plus values on the screen" was the opinion expressed by Dr. Mark A. May, head of the Institute of Human Relations at Yale University, at a luncheon given for him here by Will H. Hays. His audience consisted of leading film executives.

"Among the plus values on the screen today," Dr. May said, "we might include information, because the studios go to great lengths to make pictures historically and biographically accurate. We certainly can include dramatization of many human problems that come to all of us, stimulating thought. We can further include a vast outreaching into new fields of literature and musical appreciation."

Facts, Odd and Otherwise, Jam the New M.P. Almanac

Odd facts pop out of the 1202 pages of the new issue of Motion Picture Almanac, out today.

For instance: Page 97 says Kircher's Magia Catoptrica (magic lantern) was invented in 1640. Apparently the foundation of motion pictures was laid while the Pilgrims were still building log cabins around Plymouth. In 1824, the same page says, Roget's thesis, "Persistence of Vision with Regard to Moving Objects," came out, and so on down to 1934, when, the Almanac states, a tendency toward smaller theatres was apparent.

Nearly 300 years on one page is covering a lot of territory, but that's what the Almanac does.

Local Theatre Control Stays As Para. Plan

Most of Partnerships to Be Renewed Soon

Reorganized Paramount will continue the policy of local operation of the company's theatres which was inaugurated in 1932, an official of the company said yesterday.

In line with this policy, indications are that all or most of the partnership and operating agreements which were extended from June 27, last, to Sept. 27 will be renewed on a long-term basis in the near future.

Localized theatre operation for the approximately 1,000 Paramount holdings in all sections of the country has proved its value to the present Paramount management during the three years it has been in force to such an extent that no thought is being given now to a return to centralized operation, the company official declared. The conviction of the Paramount management is that large scale operation can be centrally administered on a successful basis only

By RED KANN

AL LICHTMAN gets his administration off to a sane and sensible start with elimination of the well-known United Artists practice, years and years old, which made it possible for independent producers to approve contracts. That's what Lichtman was supposed to be taking care of and, of course, in great measure, has. Now he becomes the sole trustee and the ruler of their fate, a decision which at once denotes the confidence reposed in the recently chosen head of this distributing organization. The old system has given Al headache after headache and, from time to time, so many troubles it didn't matter much which one he dug into first. There is nothing to indicate just what is meant by "independent producers" and whether the change of front includes owner-members. Sam Goldwyn, above all others, has sorely taxed the U. A. home office on the contract score. If he has bowed to the new order along with the others, then the victory which is Lichtman's is a significant one indeed in his business scheme of things. . . .

In this space on June 17:

> Typewriter keys going careless on a quiet Saturday and emerging with this:
> > That Dave Selznick might become United Artists' new Zanuck, particularly if he can shuffle the arrangement to allow the birth of Selznick Pictures. For Dave and Myron are proud of that name. Moreover, Dave does not regard his 4 G's a week from Metro sufficient reward. Especially when he looks over on his old lot, Radio, and sees "Pan" Berman doing almost twice as well on a percentage-of-profit basis. Of course, any contemplation of things that may be at U. A. must take into consideration Sam Goldwyn. That's plenty to consider in any man's company. . . .

Dave Selznick talking about his deal with U. A.:

> Since the old Selznick Pictures trademark went out of existence, it has been my ambition to re-establish the name—with the memory of my father, his training of and his plans for me as the driving force.

The importance of keeping product flowing from first run to circuits to subsequent runs is emphasized substantially in Universal's deal with the Roxy for twenty-six of its first run dates next season. The normal routine of picture selling and picture playing will permit all dates after the Broadway dates to be met. While that is as it should be, often it works out otherwise. There is, for instance, the complaint of some distributors doing business with the Music Hall that failure to spot in contracted product leaves its mark on subsequent revenue because the distributors obviously cannot launch into general release until the Radio City booking is played off. No playdates mean no revenue; delayed playdates mean delayed revenue. Distributors cannot get along that way. . . .

Distributors face an embarrassing situation and buying combines, appearing rapidly in many territories, are the cause of it all. New York's attitude at large frowns on any combination of theatre interests for buying purposes when purchases are cleared through an organization formed specifically for that purpose. That's all right enough, if distributors want it that way. What seems not to be quite all right, however, is the variations to which such a policy submits itself in different sections of the country. . . .

If, for instance, Ray Moon, handling Co-Operative in Detroit, closes deals which he can and does, the same condition would seem logically applied to, let's say, Aaron Saperstein in Chicago. Yet Saperstein has been insisting for months now that he can't buy film for the theatres which pay his office a commission for that kind of a job. The point about all of this is that distributors thereby face the danger of a charge of discrimination when a firm, national policy, whichever direction it takes, would settle the issue for all time. . . .

as regards highly mechanized facilities, and the vast Paramount theatre network is not regarded as coming within this classification, it was said.

New partnership contracts and management agreements of a minimum duration of one year are expected to be worked out with the present Paramount theatre operators prior to Oct. 1, it was learned. Indications are that no changes in theatre operators will be made where operating results are on a satisfactory basis, as is now the case in virtually all situations.

Kelly Predicts Big U. A. Gains Abroad

Los Angeles, July 9.—United Artists had its most profitable foreign business in the 1934-35 season in its history, Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, declared today.

The impetus of this gain will be carried through the coming season, he said, and he predicted the 1935-36 totals would be 50 per cent higher than in 1934-35. Increased product assures this, he declared.

Kelly predicted Charlie Chaplin's forthcoming picture would play to more contracts all over the world than any other, for the reason that in addition to being great box-office Chaplin's films were adapted to both silent and sound theatres and had complete international appeal.

Others who addressed the convention today were Hal Horne, publicity and advertising chief; Harry D. Buckley, vice-president of United Artists Theatre Circuit; Kay Kamen, Walt Disney representative; Charles Stern, assistant eastern division manager; Haskel Masters, Canadian manager, and Maurice Silverstone, in charge of United Artists in England.

Wednesday's speakers will include Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Samuel Goldwyn, Charles Skouras, Eddie Cantor, Harry Goetz, Edward Small, David O. Selznick, Gunter Lessing and Edward Raftery, U. A. counsel. Alexander Korda will address the convention over the transatlantic telephone. An open forum will be held in the morning.

The business sessions will be brought to a close with a banquet in the evening at the Trocadero which will be broadcast nationally over the Columbia network. Cantor, Nick Parkyakakas and Benny Rubin will act as masters of ceremonies, while among the entertainers will be George Jessel, Harry Richman, Cliff Edwards and Alice Faye.

Goldwyn Signs Nugent

Hollywood, July 9.—Samuel Goldwyn has signed Elliot Nugent to direct "Splendor," Rachel Crothers' story, in which Miriam Hopkins will be starred with Joel McCrea in support.

Denies Paley Is Financing

Producers' Men Status in Doubt

Los Angeles, July 9.—Elimination of the long-standing system at United Artists under which representatives of producers approved sales contracts raises the question of the future status of such representatives in New York.

Emanuel Silverstone currently is American representative of London Films empowered to pass on contracts in this market.

James Mulvey, general representative for Samuel Goldwyn in the east, also has been approving his producer's deals.

1st Div. Meeting Today

Directors of First Division will meet today to discuss several important deals which are on tap.

Wallach Wins Case On Paramount Pact

Maxwell J. Wallach, operator of the Orpheum, on 2nd Ave., yesterday won a complaint against Paramount for fulfillment of contract at a voluntary arbitration hearing. Sitting on the board were Jack Bowen, M-G-M; Edward Schnitzer, Columbia; Louis Geller and Irving Brieman, independent exhibitors.

Although the complaint involved a Paramount contract, a 10-picture deal between Wallach and Fox was used as the basic argument by Louis Nizer, representing Paramount. The defendant dated "Love in Bloom" into Harry Brandt's St. Marx for three days, starting July 13.

Nizer introduced evidence by Bell Theatres, half owner in the Orpheum, to the effect that if the circuit split product with any of the major companies Paramount would have the right to do likewise at the Orpheum. Wallach contended that the Fox deal was for 10 pictures only and not a split of the output with Brandt.

Moe Sanders, office manager of Fox, said that when Wallach bought the films there was an oral understanding that the Orpheum would take nine others, but this was denied by Wallach. Harry Suchman represented the Orpheum.

During the heated deliberations, the independent exhibitors held their ground against the distributor men. Nizer received a phone call while the arbitrators were arguing that Brieman was a brother-in-law of Wallach. He immediately challenged Brieman. Inasmuch as a unanimous decision was necessary before a verdict could be handed down, to avoid prolonging the case, Suchman and Nizer got together and agreed that the Orpheum would continue to get the Paramount pictures in accordance with his contract and the Brandt dates would be canceled.

In addition to Wallach and Sanders, Charles Steiner, vice-president, and Elias Mayer, general manager of Bell, and Brandt testified.

The complaint of Paramount against the New Echo, Brooklyn, for breach of contract, was postponed.

Brandt Adds Three; Circuit Now at 38

Harry Brandt has added three theatres to his circuit, making a new total of 38. They are the Park, formerly the Cosmopolitan, which he plans to reopen about Aug. 15 with a dual policy; the Queensboro, Queensboro, L. I.; and the Pastime, on 2nd Ave., which he will close Sunday for alterations.

Incidentally, Brandt has been allowed approximately $15,000 by the FHA for remodeling the Pastime. This is the first local loan granted by the FHA.

that the approximate weekly world attendance at films is 200,000,000; that gross annual admissions in the United States run from $700,000,000 to $1-000,000,000; that world capital invested in pictures is $2,500,000,000; that total seating capacity in this country is 11,132,000; that 3,700 of the 14,500 sound theatres in the U. S. were dark when the book went to press.

The statistics go on and on. For those with a consuming curiosity about figures the volume is fascinating; for those who want to know about the screen's personalities there are 11,000 biographies, an increase of 1,000 or more over last year.

Production information is extended by inclusion of all of Motion Picture Herald's reviews on its box-office champions, with all the pictures made by all the principal companies also listed.

A couple of pages dropped in after the biographies gives a list of the All-Time Best Sellers among pictures, books and legitimate plays, road shows, radio programs and plays for amateurs.

An entire section has been devoted to bringing lists of corporations, their officers and financial statements, up to date. A swift survey of the year's movements in film stocks and bonds accompanies this.

The product lists cover both this country and Europe.

Producing organizations are listed as completely as distributing, followed by lists of laboratories, trailer distributors, film libraries, film delivery services and costume companies. Exchanges and bookers are included, with details on the territories covered.

The assorted information is varied —lists of theatres and circuits by states, details on the foreign film market, foreign organizations, theatre equipment companies, screen organizations, lists of stories and plays bought during 1934-35, trade and fan publications, contracts, and a summary of the year's news.

Details of Fox Met Financing Are Aired

bond issue marketed by Halsey, Stuart in 1929 had been issued on 115 theatre leaseholds which cost $8,749,000 to acquire. In addition, a prospectus mailed out by Halsey, Stuart at the time of the flotation stated that the bond issue was based on a commercial value of the properties amounting to $19,500,000 as of April 25, 1929.

The appraisal, Niver said, was made by Ford, Bacon & Davis, an engineering firm, but was subject to certain restrictions and conditions on the acquisition of theatre leases and fee properties not held by Fox Met at the time of the bond sale. These restrictions and conditions, Niver admitted, were not mentioned in the prospectus and it later developed, he said, that Fox Met acquired possession or lease of only 30 per cent of the theatres.

Representative A. J. Sabath, chairman of the Congressional committee, directed I. Albert Levy, special counsel to the committee, to investigate the use of the mails by Halsey, Stuart in the distribution of the prospectus.

Niver said that Halsey, Stuart had bought the Fox Met bonds at a 7½ per cent discount and, in addition, received $243,000 for expenses incurred during the first year the bonds were in default, but was uncertain as to what the expenses involved. He related that a bondholders' committee was formed on Oct. 29, 1931, two days before the bonds were defaulted, following the receipt of a letter from W. C. Michel, financial vice-president of Fox Film, in which it was stated that the formation of such a committee in advance of the default was necessary to avoid demands for a receivership by the bondholders. If a receivership occurred, approximately 80 per cent of the Fox Met theatre leaseholds would revert to the landlords, it was explained.

It was brought out that A. C. Blumenthal had received a commission of $62,500 from Halsey, Stuart for "contacting" Fox Theatres Corp. for the investment house in advance of the Fox Met bond sale.

The reorganization of Fox Met may be completed within one week with the signing of new theatre leases with landlords and the transfer of Fox Met assets from the trustee to the new company and its directors, Milton C. Weisman, proponent of the reorganization plan, said yesterday.

Krellberg-Plunkett Open Astor Aug. 1

Samuel Krellberg and Joseph Plunkett will reopen the Astor on Aug. 1 with a two-a-day attraction at $2 top, it was stated yesterday. Under the long term lease, it is understood that the operators will pay an annual rental of $52,000 in addition to a percentage. William F. B. Drew and John J. Dietz are the receivers.

The opening attraction is expected to be set by the end of the week, Krellberg said yesterday.

In addition to the Krellberg-Plunkett offer, the receivers had submitted to them deals by 60 other interested parties. Among the offers was one sponsored by Chicago interests to convert the theatre into an automatic drug store and screen pictures to bring in the customers. Other offers included a restaurant theatre on the style of the Casino, a dance hall and a sportland where various games could be played. Harry Brandt also had an offer in on practically the same terms as the Krellberg-Plunkett deal. He was willing to put up a $10,000 check to bind the deal, $5,000 of which would be used to equip and remodel the house and the balance for the first five weeks' rent.

Fox Theatres Urged to Buy Half Fox Met

urged as a good investment by Rogers. The court indicated that it agreed with this viewpoint and also with the advantages of a 77-B reorganization for Fox Theatres.

Milton C. Weisman, receiver of Fox Theatres, told the court that a decision on purchase of the Fox Met stock had to be made within 60 days after completion of the Fox Met reorganization. This could be accomplished, he said, within one week and immediately thereafter he would apply to the court and creditors of the company for directions in connection with the purchase or relinquishing of the Fox Met stock.

On Weisman's application the court extended the Fox Theatres' receivership for another six months.

The annual report of the receiver filed with the court yesterday disclosed $645,410 cash on hand as of June 30, or an increase of $246,423 since Dec. 31, last. Of the increase, $160,000 was received from a receiver appointed for the Boylston & Tremont Co., Boston subsidiary of Fox Theatres, which resulted in the release of a $375,000 fund on deposit there by the subsidiary. The balance of the fund not paid to Fox Theatres was used in the settlement of claims aggregating more than $2,900,000.

Oklahoma Sentiment For Voluntary Code

C. Lyles of the Gem also is for the idea, but questions whether big circuits will live up to it. He is for a direct ban on bank nights and gifts.

W. P. Moran, Southwestern Theatres, Inc., says salaries should be maintained but that hours should be lengthened for employes. He favors a 10-hour day. George Y. Henger, city manager for Standard Theatres, says: "I favor a voluntary code for the industry, but at the same time I think such a code should embrace only salaries and working hours. I don't think it should control the giving of premiums. Any such provisions could not be enforced, as the NRA code demonstrated."

Although he contemplated leaving this week, Diamond has put off the trip until "The Big Broadcast" unit working in the east completes its various "takes" here.

Talent Nights Are Sweeping K. C. Houses

Fox Circuit Ties in with Big Drug Store Firm

Kansas City, July 10.—Amateur ights in various forms are sweeping his territory in the wake of bank ights, screeno and other box-office timulants.

Fox, working with the Katz Drug Co., is the largest promoter of these, with the first run Fox Uptown doing Saturday "Midnight Jamborees" with the best of the talent from the suburban and territory houses. Presented with a picture preview at the Uptown y Stanley Chambers, they have done practically capacity business in spite f successive Saturday night rains,

Fox-20th Century Deal Seen Signed; Principals Start West

The Fox-20th Century deal is understood to have been formally signatured some time between 10 P. M. Tuesday and 5 P. M. yesterday afternoon at which time S. R. Kent, Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz left by air for Hollywood.

No statement from any of the interested groups was forthcoming and, therefore, official confirmation was lacking yesterday.

However, the principals have had bookings on 'planes out of Newark Airport daily for about 10 days and had agreed among themselves to leave for the Fox studio on the very day the contracts were closed. There has been nothing in the extended negotiations to indicate a change of schedule.

Latter day aspects of the deal have centered in the law offices of Hughes, Schurman and Dwight at 100 Broadway, where day and night sessions have been the rule. The principals went into what was the beginning of the final session at 10 o'clock Tuesday evening, having been at it until 6 A. M. Monday.

Legal phraseology and meticulous attention to technical detail delayed consummation and not any differences of opinion on vital points, which had been agreed upon before Schenck sailed for London.

With the return of Zanuck to Hollywood, actual production on "Metropolitan," first under the merger with Fox, will get under way.

Say Zukor's 1932 "Coup" Upset Move to Oust Him

Adolph Zukor, at the climax of a contest to retain his executive authority as head of Paramount, which had been challenged in 1932 by John D. Hertz, had threatened to resign from the company and apply for a receiver for Paramount unless Hertz was removed, the former chairman of Paramount's finance committee testified yesterday at the resumed hearing on the Paramount reorganization conducted by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Hertz said that the specific charge made against him was that he had exceeded his authority as chairman of the finance committee in ordering Zukor to hold no conferences with departmental heads in Paramount without first consulting Hertz and to refrain from telephonic communications with the Paramount studio. Hertz said he resigned when he was advised to do so by attorneys and Paramount bankers whom he had consulted.

His resignation disclosed the significance of Zukor's successful coup in the light of testimony given yesterday by Robert T. Swaine of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, former counsel for Paramount and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who revealed that the Paramount bankers desired at the time to elevate Hertz to the presidency of Paramount and to place Zukor in a "decorative" position.

The testimony completed a graphic picture of the executive conflict within Paramount at a time when its greatest financial difficulties were coming to a head and which, less than one month after the resignation of Hertz, forced the company into receivership. The story detailed what Hertz described as "a race against the depression" to save Paramount from bankruptcy. The "race" became an orgy of "cost cutting," and haste in this procedure seemed to the chairman of the finance committee to be so essential that, he admitted on the stand, he "wasn't always overly careful" of its effects on others. The result was, it appeared from the record, and was substantiated in Swaine's testimony, that morale within the company ran to low ebb.

"The atmosphere was charged with uncertainty," Swaine said. "Everyone was afraid for his job."

In quick succession Jesse L. Lasky, production head; Sidney R. Kent, distribution head, and Sam Katz, theatre head, withdrew from the company. Eventually came the direct challenge to Zukor's authority as head of the company, which was met with the former Paramount president's ultimatum. Even then, Swaine revealed, had it been possible to obtain a majority of the Paramount board to take a stand against Zukor, which it was not, Hertz would have been elected to the presidency of the company.

Says Kahn Favored Hertz

Swaine testified that the late Otto Kahn, head of Kuhn, Loeb, wanted Hertz to be given supreme authority to finish his job of cutting costs in an effort to "outrace the depression" but that they could count on the support of only four directors. These were Sir William Wiseman, Maurice Newton, Gilbert Kahn and Felix Kahn.

"It is difficult to believe," interposed Irwin Langbine, SEC counsel, "that Zukor was ready to wreck his company in order to keep up his personal authority."

"It wasn't that," Swaine corrected him. "Zukor saw his three best men leaving him. He recognized an atmosphere of complaint throughout his organization and felt himself being forced out. All that of itself was a wrecking of the company to him, which he felt he ought to prevent."

Reduced Leases, Hertz Avers

Hertz detailed his entry into Paramount in 1931 at the urging of Katz, whom he had known in Chicago and who came to Hertz at Miami and told him that Paramount was in difficulties because of bad management and lack of control over personnel. Hertz said he next conferred with Sir William, Kuhn, Loeb partner, who told him the bank wanted him in Paramount as its representative and that thereafter he was elected to the board and made chairman of the finance committee with power to veto all disbursements and exercise a general supervisory authority over all of the company's finances. He said that during his regime operating costs were reduced from $133,000,000 in 1931 to $110,000,000 in 1932.

Hertz said he found other theatre companies had been obtaining reductions on leases in appreciable amounts during the depression, but that no effort had been made within Paramount to obtain similar adjustments. Under his direction, Hertz said, $5,900,000 was taken off theatre leases. He said that $600,000 of annual insurance premiums were reduced "25 or 30 per cent," that telephone and telegraph bills were cut from $800,000 to $400,000 annually and that the cost of the legal department was reduced from $800,000 per year to "a reasonable amount."

The inquiry was brought up to the time of the reorganization when Hertz was asked by counsel for the SEC whether he did not regard himself as being disqualified to serve as a director of the new company while a defendant in two suits brought by the trustees in bankruptcy of Paramount to recover from former officers and directors for sums used for the repurchase of Paramount stock at guaranteed prices which was issued in the acquisition of theatre properties and to recover on allegedly excessive salaries and bonuses paid by Paramount.

Hertz replied that when he had been invited by the so-called Fortington creditor group to become a member of the new Paramount board he discussed the question of his elegibility with H. A. Fortington, head of the group and himself a director, and said that Fortington put the question to the trustees and their counsel and was advised by Arthur A. Ballantine, of counsel, that not only was he not disqualified but that he would be a valuable addition to the new company because of his past knowledge of its affairs.

Hertz's transactions in Paramount securities prior to the receivership were explored by counsel and he was asked whether he thought it proper for a director and financial officer to deal in his company's securities. His reply was non-commital.

It was also brought out that Hertz, personally, had been offered and had accepted a one-third participation in 5,000 shares of new Paramount first preferred through the Atlas Corp., and that Lehman Bros., the investment firm in which Hertz is a partner, owns 25 per cent of the $6,400,000 of new Paramount second preferred. Questioned concerning the propriety of this, Hertz replied that he saw "nothing wrong" in it.

Chambers said. Chambers staged his fifth "jamboree" June 15. This leaves one to go and a grand finale June 25.

Loew's Midland wound up M-G-M's three-week "search for talent" here recently with a Wednesday elimination show and a show by the winners Friday night. A large part of a good Friday night house, had in spite of rain, was due to the show, according to John McManus, Midland manager.

McManus arranged a style show in the lower lounge from 7:30 to 9:00. There were four girls and five changes. Jones Store plugged the style show heavily in the Friday afternoon paper.

The Mainstreet is tied in with an amateur "search for radio talent" program being conducted by A-I-D drug stores. Finals will be broadcast from the stage of the Mainstreet, and the winner will be awarded a week's paid engagement on the stage of the Mainstreet or some other RKO house in this area, and four radio performances on CBS. One more contest is due before the final. Announcements of the Mainstreet attraction are being carried in the windows of each of the 60 drug store members of A-I-D from week to week. Druggists report the thing a tremendous success with 6,000 ballots cast in drug stores last week.

Dubinskys Have Friday Contests

Dubinsky Brothers have been sponsoring an amateur Friday night at the Electric, St. Joseph, six months, and were the first exhibitors in the area to cash in on the popularity of the amateur program idea.

Commonwealth Amusement Corp., is using amateur night at the Uptown, Columbia, Mo., and at the Granada, Lawrence, Kan. In both cases the programs are tied in with local broadcasting stations.

"We had the original theatre-radio hookup in this territory at the Granada," commented C. A. Schultz. "Every Saturday night at 9:30 we have an hour's show, which is broadcast from a stage hookup over WREN. We currently have 40 to 50 applicants waiting to participate.

"At Columbia the Uptown uses the amateur idea on Monday nights with very good results."

Jay Means, president of the I. T. O., is operating an amateur show every Sunday afternoon at the Oak Park because he found the kids like something Sunday afternoons. A trailer, run continuously, invites talented children to leave their names at the boxoffice. A woman handles the show, and Means pays the amateurs a little for their acts. The idea has built up Sunday afternoon attendance of children, Means said.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Diamond Jim"

(Universal)

Hollywood, July 10.—On a sprawling canvas of the gay nineties covering the era of the nation's growing pains strides the almost legendary figure of one of America's most colorful personalities, Diamond Jim Brady. Bursting with the zest of living, this patron of the lovely ladies, disporter of diamonds, giant eater, racetrack fan, super-salesman and showman is here dramatically painted to recapture the heart and soul of a lavish spender who could buy anything but love.

Edward Arnold is Brady to the life, giving a performance again testifying to this sterling trouper's versatility. He imparts gusto and rainbow shading to the role. Binnie Barnes plays Lillian Russell, that glamourous lady of the period. Jean Arthur is the object of Brady's affections who later marries Cesar Romero. The cast, including George Sidney, Hugh O'Connell, William Demarest, Eric Blore and others, conveys the spirit of the era and fits the period's pattern.

The production spans the second phase of America's pioneering, railroading, and its effect on Jim's growth and the growth of the country.

Edward Sutherland directed with a feeling for detail and personal drama. Harry Clark and Doris Malloy did a difficult job of adaptation. The screen play is by Preston Sturges.

Eddie Grainger produced for a show that appeals to eye and heart.

Where Diamond Jim Brady's name is a box-office magnet exhibitors should do gratifying business. Smart exploitation may be needed where it is not so well known.

Production Code Seal No. 997. Running time, 97 minutes. "G."

"The Irish in Us"

(Warners)

Hollywood, July 10.—Here is one to raise the roof with audience mirth. Comedy and sentimentality mingle for a wild Irish hit.

Mary Gordon scores as the waddling, sweet, peppery mother of Pat O'Brien, James Cagney and Frank McHugh. Pat, a cop, falls in love with the police chief's daughter (Olivia de Haviland) and makes the mistake of boasting he is thinking of marrying her.

Cagney, hopefully trying to become a fight manager, falls for Olivia also. The brotherly battle is finished after Cagney takes a terrific beating as a substitute for his punch-drunk fighter in a match with the middleweight champion. Allan Jenkins draws howls as a dim-wit fighter who starts to slug every time he hears the bell.

McHugh, a fireman, causes three tidal waves of laughter. Cagney, in a smaller part than usual, turns in a sincere performance, as does O'Brien. Miss de Haviland looks like a coming bet. J. Farrell MacDonald, Thomas Jackson and Harvey Perry are excellent in support. The screen play of Earl Baldwin, from a story idea by Frank Orsatti, is sure box-office material emphasized for laughter and sentiment by Director Lloyd Bacon.

You can go the limit on this. It should keep 'em howling.

The seven theatres slated for screeno are: Ave. B, Victory, Burnside, Oriental, Boston Road, Burland and Premier. The Boulevard and Gates will play bank nights.

RKO does not intend to distribute giveaways or innovate chance games in any of its theatres.

Theatres Hit Hard in Flood Areas Upstate

fear the after-effects on business will be worse than the actual rain.

A long distance telephone call to Smith's Film Delivery Service at Syracuse yesterday disclosed that actual stoppage of film deliveries was confined to Monday night during the height of the storm, except in Marathon, Interlaken and Bath, where deliveries are still interrupted.

At 11 o'clock Tuesday morning Smith's resumed service by using detours. This makes earlier starts necessary, but trucks are getting through to Binghamton and its surrounding towns, and Elmira, Ithaca and the lake regions.

The flood went southward rapidly. The Perkomen Valley, Mt. Carmel, Mahonoy City, Collegeville, Pottsville and other Pennsylvania spots were hit. The Capitol at Pottsville was under eight feet of water for a time.

Train service on the Lehigh Valley, Lackawanna and other railroads was interrupted.

Elmira Area Recovering

Elmira, July 10.—The flood peak passed Monday night, with Hornell theatres closed Monday and Tuesday. Theatres in Bath and Addison were under water.

Ithaca, Corning, Elmira and other spots are open and doing better than normal business. Exhibitors are picking up film deliveries made by the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Sayre, 20 miles away. All other railroads were washed out.

The heaviest damage was done at Watkins Glen. Just how much damage was done to the theatres there is not known yet.

Crops have been damaged and money is scarce in the rural districts, so that the ultimate effects will be on week-end business.

Bath Completely Isolated

Bath, N. Y., July 10.—Bath was isolated from 3 A. M. Monday until Tuesday night. The power plant was submerged Monday morning and no shows were given from Sunday until Tuesday night when a temporary power hookup was allowed. One show was put on Tuesday.

There have been no film shipments in or out so far.

Water was six feet deep in the basement of the Babcock, managed by Harold C. Lee. Damage to the lobby was averted by Lee and his staff.

The power situation will probably be bad for a week and business may be affected throughout the locality.

Binghamton Houses Crippled

Binghamton, July 10.—Theatres here were crippled for a time and business has been hard hit. Many bridges are closed to automobiles and some have been washed out.

Rochester Hit Lightly

Rochester, July 10.—This section was out of the heaviest part of the storm area and theatres were kept in operation during the heavy rain Sunday.

Skouras Drops Four; Will Pool 7 Others

George Skouras tomorrow will drop four New Jersey houses from his Fox Metropolitan group. He also has a deal on with Warners to pool seven Jersey theatres, starting Sept. 1. Negotiations on the pooling arrangement are expected to be closed within the next few weeks.

The quartet to be dropped are the Pascack, Westwood; Queen Ann, Bogota; Palace, Bergenfield; Dumont, Dumont. Losses sustained during the last few months brought about the decision to cancel the leases.

Katz' Para. Claim Banned by Referee

The $281,734 claim of Sam Katz against Paramount, based on a personal service contract, was disallowed in a report made yesterday by Special Master John E. Joyce which, film attorneys believe, may affect all personal service contracts similar to the one held by Katz while at Paramount.

Joyce's report is based on Section 60 of the stock corporation laws, which provides that the board of directors of a corporation can appoint men to office and remove them at will, even though the appointee is a contract employe, without incurring company liability for the unexpired portion of the contract.

Denies Lehman Seeks Merger Of Para.-RKO

So Hertz Says—Divulges More Para. Inside

By SHERWIN A. KANE

John D. Hertz

A denial that Lehman Bros., investment banking firm, which has two members on the RKO board and one on the new Paramount board, has any thought of the probabilities of effecting a merger between the two film companies was made by John D. Hertz, Lehman partner and Paramount director, when the hearing conducted by the Securities and Exchange Commission for the purpose of examining the reorganization of Paramount, was resumed after an all-day Wednesday session.

John D. Hertz's story of his regime at Paramount appears in detail on pages 3 and 8.

In addition to Hertz's presence on the Paramount board, Lehman is represented by Paul M. Mazur and Arthur Lehman on the RKO board. The investment bank is also affiliated with the so-called Fortington creditor

Hertz Group Bid on CBS Para. Holdings

A syndicate formed by John Hertz in 1932 bid against Columbia Broadcasting System for a half interest in its own stock which was held by Paramount and netted the latter company $1,000,000 as a result, Hertz told examiners for the Securities and Exchange Commission at the resumed hearings here.

In 1929 Paramount had acquired the half interest in C.B.S. by issuing to the broadcasting company Paramount stock which was guaranteed for repurchase in 1932 for $4,100,000. When the agreement came due Paramount no longer wanted an interest in C.B.S., Hertz said, but felt that William Paley, C.B.S. head, would match any price bid for the stock in order to retain control of his broadcasting company. Hertz had a $2,000,000 participation in his syndicate; Otto Kahn, the late Kuhn, Loeb & Co. head, $2,000,000, and B. & K.. Chicago, $1,000,000. The syndicate bid $5,100,000 for the C.B.S. stock, which was matched by Paley, whereupon Paramount redeemed its own stock at the guaranteed price and deposited the $1,000,000 balance.

"Although we were prepared to make good on the bid," Hertz remarked, "we were pretty confident we wouldn't have to."

group, which has three directors on the new Paramount board in addition to Hertz.

Denial also was made by Hertz, former chairman of the Paramount finance committee, that the Lehman firm is RKO's banker, or even considered such, or that Lehmans, together with the Atlas Corp. and Hallgarten & Co., which own 75 per cent of the new $6,400,000 issue of Paramount second preferred stock, can be regarded as "Paramount's new bankers." Mazur and Lehman, Hertz said, are inactive as members of the RKO board, "because the company is in the hands of receivers, has been for several years, and is likely to be for several more years."

In reply to a question put to him by Samuel C. Clark, Jr., special attorney for SEC, Hertz said that he regarded RKO as "only a smaller competitor of Paramount's at the most."

Procedure in Offering Issue

Testimony given at the hearing by Hertz and Edwin L. Weisl, of counsel for the Fortington group, disclosed that a definite program was followed in offering Paramount's new $6,400,000 issue of second preferred in order to prevent the issue from being offered publicly. The issue was underwritten by the Atlas Corp. and offered by the underwriter to members of the Fortington group with "a gentleman's agreement" among the subscribers that it would not be re-offered to the public. This was done, according to Weisl, because Atlas did not want to be identified with a public stock offering. The agreement implied, he said, that those to whom the stock was offered would retain it as a perment investment and, while no specific period of retention was designated in the agreement, he said he felt that any sale of the stock for immediate profit would constitute a breach of the agreement. Holders, however, would not be restrained from selling in a drastically declining market.

The agreement in connection with the offering of the stock appears to have some significance in that a cardinal point in the platform of the Fortington group, reiterated by its representatives inside and outside of court, has been that the owners of the company should control its management. The agreement, if maintained by the holders of the stock, would appear to continue members of the Fortington group as "owners" of Paramount and permanent factors in its management.

Atlas retained 25 per cent of the offering and made 25 per cent available to Hallgarten & Co. and another 25 per cent to Lehman Bros. and its affiliate, Lehman Corp. Goldman-Sachs was offered five per cent; Frederick H. Cassatt & Co., of Philadelphia, five per cent; White, Weldon & Co., two and one-half per cent, and the balance in smaller amounts to other firms. Atlas received a commission of one per cent, or approximately $64,000, for its underwriting, the costs of which would approximate $10,000, Weisl said.

Asked by SEC counsel whether he did not regard it as "unusual" for an underwriting firm to retain such a large amount of the issue it had undertaken to market, Weisl replied in the negative.

"No New Bankers," Says Hertz

"But the usual practice for an underwriter is to dispose of the entire issue, isn't it?" counsel commented.

Hertz was asked who Paramount's new bankers were, and replied that the company "has no new bankers." In reply to another question, he stated that he did not believe that the 75 per cent ownership of the new second preferred made Lehmans, Atlas and Hallgarten the "new Paramount bankers."

"Speaking for Lehmans," he said, "I know that firm has no thought of it."

It was also disclosed that on about May 10 Atlas had purchased 5,000 shares of new Paramount first preferred, of $60 par, on a when, as and if issued basis, at prices ranging between $50 and $60 per share. This stock is now quoted as $79 per share. Hertz testified that he was asked by Weisl if he, Hertz, cared to participate in this issue and had replied that he "would take all he could get." Hertz was then granted a one-third participation in the 5,000 shares held by Atlas. He said that while he thought that "a very nice favor had been conferred on him by Atlas," he felt in no way obligated as a result.

"It was a friendly gesture," he said. "We had worked together for months and grown to like each other."

Hertz was queried repeatedly by counsel for SEC on the ethics and propriety of his past and present position in the Paramount picture in the light of his present affiliation with the Fortington group, whose platform of corporate behavior and good manners for Paramount officialdom has been used by the group during the past six months in taking the measurement of more than one aspirant for a place in the new Paramount, and found them wanting.

Holds Stock Buying Not Wrong

The dalliance of former Paramount officers and directors with the company's securities has raised the collective eyebrows of the Fortington group. Asked yesterday whether he saw any impropriety in his or Lehman Bros.' buying of new Paramount securities at a time when he, Hertz, was a designated director of the new company, Hertz replied in the negative. Again, asked whether he knew if it was not an objective of the Fortington group to eliminate investment bankers from new Paramount financing, Hertz replied that he "never understood so."

At another point, his attention was called to a letter introduced at the SEC-Paramount hearings in Washington recently, which was written by Fortington to Lansing P. Reed, of counsel for the Vanderlip debenture holders' committee and which cited a number of acts of mismanagement attributed to the former directors and officers of the company. One of these cited the Film Productions Corp. transaction, under which negatives were pledged as collateral to creditor banks. Hertz, as a director at the time of the transaction, voted for this proposal, it was brought out yesterday.

The Fortington letter referred to the suits brought by the trustees in bankruptcy against former Paramount officers and directors to recover for amounts expended on the repurchase of the company's stock and for bonuses and salaries of alleged unreasonable amounts. Hertz is a defendant in both actions. The Fortington letter declares that if even a slight recovery could be had on these suits it would not be necessary for the new company to obtain any other new cash.

Hertz said he saw nothing inconsistent in his position, which, as a defendant, inclines him to hope that the suits cannot be won and, as a director, obligates him to aid in increasing the assets of the company. The recovery of several millions of dollars for Paramount is involved in the actions. Hertz explained that the trustees, not the directors, retain the causes of action in these suits, and that, therefore, the new board will have nothing to do with them. He added that he would be willing to pay damages to the company if a fair trial proved himself to be liable.

On the subject of the Fortington contention that "owners" of the company should control, Hertz, whose present holdings in Paramount securities date only from January, 1935, was asked if he understood this to apply "only to new owners or to the old ones, as well." Admitting that his holdings were of recent origin, Hertz said: "At least, I do own them. I can name several Paramount directors who probably don't own any."

Believed Para. Affairs "Chaotic"

Queried on his reintroduction to Paramount affairs, Hertz related that he had shied away from the situation all of last year because he believed the company's condition to be "chaotic," and referred to the Ralph Kohn and Emanuel Cohen resignations to explain his viewpoint. At the latter part of the year, he said, Frank B. Altschul, head of Lazard Freres, informed him that a reorganization was impending and asked him to join a creditor group then forming. Altschul introduced Hertz to Fortington, and he joined the latter's group on learning it was "the largest" owner of Paramount securities and that his ideas coincided with Fortington on reorganization procedure. He was also influenced, Hertz said, by his desire to "justify" his 15 months of "hard work" in Para-

Cook Will Await Court's Orders Upon Para. Fees

Objections to any of the applications for fees for services in the Paramount bankruptcy and reorganization will be made by Alfred Cook, of counsel for Paramount, only in the event he is directed to do so by the company, Cook told the resumed hearings of the Securities and Exchange Commission here.

The applications aggregate $3,222,000 and will be heard by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe on July 18. Cook asked to be excused from venturing an opinion as to whether any of the fees sought were "excessive," declaring that it was a matter which had not been passed upon by the court. He said, however, that he "would have an answer" if his opinion was sought by the court on July 18.

Cook's firm has an application in for $250,000, which he called a "very modest and reasonable sum." His firm was employed both as counsel for Paramount and for the stockholders' protective committee.

Questioned by SEC counsel as to whether or not he owned or dealt in Paramount securities during the reorganization, Cook replied that he did not and as senior partner of the firm of Cook, Nathan & Lehman "would discharge any partner of his who had."

Louis M. Loeb, partner in Cook's firm, was interrogated on the formation and activities of the committee. He admitted that the de-listing of stock of bankrupt corporations resulted in increased deposits by stockholders with protective committees, due to the fact that the certificates of deposit may be traded when the stock cannot.

Retention of protective committees under 77-B was urged upon the SEC examiner by Cook, who said that without them there would be 100 lawyers representing small interests and taking up endless time in court instead of one counsel representing a large consolidated interest.

Hertz's Way

Asked by counsel for the SEC examining the reorganization of Paramount, how he had succeeded in reducing theatre leases, John D. Hertz, former chairman of the finance committee, had this method to narrate:

"We played it catch-as-catch-can, mostly. One way that usually brought results was to threaten to close the theatre unless the rent was reduced. Most theatre buildings are occupied by stores, too, and if the theatre closed the stores would have to close, too, and it would result in a complete loss of income for the landlord."

The Camel's Back

"I had been pushing him (Zukor) around. I'd cut his son's salary from $50,000 to $25,000 and vetoed one of his (the son's) lump expense accounts. I refused for a month to okay a $1,000 phone bill of Zukor's which was for night calls to the studio, made from Zukor's home, when I learned that he was in the habit of calling up the studio manager and chatting with him for hours whenever he felt lonesome. That led to one of our most serious quarrels. I issued instructions that no more phone calls were to be made to the studio from his hotel."—John D. Hertz testifying on the Paramount reorganization before the SEC.

There's a great show coming!

Not next fall—not next year—but right smack-dab in the middle of this summer!

This is a friendly but urgent warning not to overlook this quick cash opportunity just because we haven't been yelling about it months in advance.

We've been so busy telling you the great news of "G-Men," "Lamps of China," "Girl from 10th Avenue," "In Caliente," "Alibi Ike" and "Stranded" that we haven't been able to get a word in edgewise about "BROADWAY GONDOLIER."

Here's a show that we had cast lavishly, with DICK POWELL, JOAN BLONDELL, Adolphe Menjou, Louise Fazenda, William Gargan and a load of others . . .

On top of that we had parts written in for a lot of famous radio acts, including Ted Fio Rito and his band, the Four Mills Brothers, and the Canova Family . . .

Then we turned the direction over to Lloyd (Sure-Fire) Bacon, and commissioned hit-writing Warren and Dubin to contribute six of their hottest songs.

But we still weren't sure what we had until last week's sneak preview in Hollywood.

That told us in unmistakable audience terms that we've got one of those show surprises that make picture business the most exciting game in the world.

mount during 1931 and 1932, which he felt had not been "appreciated," and also "to make an opportunity" for himself and his company, Lehman Bros. In January he began his buying of Paramount securities, which continued through May.

Reviewing the narrative of the animosity which developed between Adolph Zukor and himself and eventually led to his resignation in January, 1933, Hertz elaborated on the policies he invoked to "outrace the depression" and save Paramount from bankruptcy. It was, to an industry mind, at least, a fascinating tale, with Hertz cast as the hero, and the depression and all who stood against him and his policies, in the role of villains who sought to throttle both himself and Paramount.

To give himself a foothold in Paramount at the outset, Hertz said, he sought through Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Paramount bankers, to acquire stock in the company. Sir William was said to have endeavored to obtain some from Zukor and other officers of the company for Hertz but was unable to do so, at least at what was considered a "reasonable" price. Hertz, nevertheless, was elected a director and made chairman of the company's finance committee in November, 1931. Sir William had told him, Hertz testified, that Kuhn, Loeb wanted him, Hertz, in Paramount as the bank's representative because "Zukor was becoming an old man and had lost control over Paramount personnel."

Had Control Over Spending

As chairman of the finance committee, Hertz said he was given the power to veto expenditures anywhere in the organization with the exception of the studio and that at about September, 1932, following the resignation of Sam Katz, he was also given the veto power over studio disbursements. It was this veto, exercised by Hertz in small as well as large matters, that brought about what he described as his "most serious fight" with Zukor and which resulted in Hertz being forced to resign from Paramount. It was a $1,000 telephone bill, incurred by Zukor in studio calls, which Hertz said he refused for a month to approve, and the ensuing animosity between the two climaxed a personal antagonism which had been growing for a year as Hertz's "race against depression" more and more infringed upon Zukor's domain.

The influence of Kuhn, Loeb in Paramount affairs at that time was made manifest by Hertz's testimony.

"I made no move," he said, "without consulting with Sir William. I conferred with him daily, sometimes several times a day. And with Otto Kahn, too."

A comparable significance apparently attaches also to the influence in Paramount which rested with Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, the Kuhn, Loeb and Paramount counsel, at the time. Hertz said that he had frequent conferences with Robert T. Swaine, whom he recognized as "general counsel of Paramount." Austin Keough, Hertz said, he regarded as "house counsel." Swaine, himself, while on the stand, told of the frequent occasions on which Paramount executives, in addition to Hertz and including Zukor and Katz, sought him out for advice, complaint and confession. The impression gained was that Swaine, during 1932, was an internal arbitrator at Paramount with an influence that bridged the animosity between two determined and aggressive executive camps. It was upon such a corporate setting that the depression and the accumulated bills for Paramount's boom years of expansion descended together, according to Hertz's account.

"When I entered Paramount," he related, "income was shrinking constantly. The problem was to cut costs faster than the shrinkage. It was a matter of outracing the depression. I cut the personnel in every department, reduced salaries $186,000 weekly, for a total of $9,300,000 during my regime. I found the telephone and telegraph bills running to $800,000 a year. I introduced a voucher system for long distance calls, and everyone who made a toll call had to fill out a voucher. I employed girls to check outgoing telegrams and eliminate unnecessary words. I reduced the annual bill in the end to about $400,000. I found that most of the toll calls were to Hollywood and that the wires to the studio were open for hours at a time. I took out phones by the hundreds in the home office and every place we had an office.

Overhauled Legal Department

"I found the head of the legal department," Hertz continued, "vacationing in Europe for three or four months at a time when the gravest problems were confronting the company. He was drawing a salary of $75,000 a year and had several assistants drawing $30,000 and $45,000. I called him home and asked for his resignation and his successor took the job at $35,000. Assistants were offered $12,000. I reduced the costs of the legal department from $800,000 annually to a reasonable amount."

Hertz detailed earlier how he had reduced Paramount's annual insurance premiums of $600,000 by "25 or 30 per cent" after advertising for bids, something, he said, that the company had never done before. He had also told of reducing theatre leases by $5,900,000, which he said the Paramount theatre department had made no attempt to do although other theatre companies had succeeded in obtaining lease adjustments during the depression. He said that he had reduced operating costs by $23,000,000 during 1932.

"That gave me only a little more than a year to work in," Hertz remarked, "and that isn't very much time."

Questioned on his reduction of personnel, Hertz said that Sir William had told him "Paramount was honeycombed with relatives" and asked him "to look that over."

"Did you find any relatives of Sir William's?" the SEC counsel asked.

"No," was the reply.

"Of anyone in Kuhn, Loeb?"

"One."

"Was he discharged?"

"I cut his salary in half and gave him four months' notice. He had been there 15 years and I couldn't find out what his job was."

"Did you find any relatives of Zukor's?"

"Yes. Most of them had their salaries cut and were given notice. I have always felt that relatives had no place in a corporate set-up, even efficient relatives. They're bad for an entire organization. Their presence discourages those who work with them. The only exception I made on relatives was that I agreed with Zukor I wouldn't insist on his son, Eugene, being discharged."

"Did you find any Lasky relatives?" counsel inquired.

"Yes."

"Katz relatives?"

"Plenty. They received the same treatment as the others."

"Any Hertz relatives in Paramount?" he was asked.

Hertz laughed and replied in the negative.

Counsel then explored Hertz's views on relatives in business by seeking to determine whether the fact that Hertz's son-in-law was a member of Lawrence Stern & Co., Chicago investment house, had any connection with the Paramount financing done by the firm while Hertz was chairman of the Paramount finance committee. Counsel also sought to determine whether Paramount's advertising account had been transferred to Lord & Thomas, which is headed by Albert D. Lasker, Hertz's closest friend, at the instance of the former chairman of the finance committee. A son of Hertz was employed by Lord & Thomas. The replies to both inquiries were in the nature of denials of influence having been exerted.

By implication more than by direct testimony, the impression became apparent to at least some of those in the hearing room that Hertz, in the exercise of his unusual powers in Paramount, reached out more and more into the realm of management, rather than confining himself to finance, and in so doing crossed swords with Zukor on numerous occasions. Even Hertz admitted this last at one point in his testimony concerning the animosity which grew up between them.

Tells of Call on Zukor

Hertz also admitted later that he had issued orders, which include Zukor, prohibiting management conferences without first consulting with the chairman of the finance committee. Despite the open animosity and perhaps moved by the holiday spirit, Hertz testified that just before leaving to spend the 1932 holidays at his Chicago residence, he called on Zukor at his home and "shook hands, showed him every indication of friendliness and co-operation and told him how much I had enjoyed the work during the year."

"He shook hands with me and cried copiously," Hertz said, "and told me he felt that Paramount would pull through."

"When I got back in New York about Jan. 1 or 2," Hertz resumed, "I found Sir William waiting in my office for me. He told me that Zukor had told him I had exceeded my authority as chairman of the finance committee and that either I would have to resign or Zukor would and would bring suit for a receiver for the company. I was shocked at being jockeyed into this position because I felt that I had done the best job of my life at Paramount."

Hertz recalled how he had consulted with Swaine and with Leo Spitz, Chicago attorney and former power at Paramount during the Hertz regime, both of whom advised him to resign. Next, he said, he went to the "15 bankers" who loaned Paramount $15,000,000, with one of the conditions of the loan being "that I would remain at Paramount," and asked their advice. They agreed that it would be best for him to resign.

"I felt that the situation was ridiculous," Hertz said. "I didn't know where I had exceeded my authority. All my policies were introduced at open meetings, approved by the board or in consultation with others. I knew someone wanted me out. I didn't learn why until much later through a friend whose integrity I trust implicitly. I was told that Otto Kahn had visited Zukor on Christmas Day had asked how I was getting along. Zukor replied, 'Alright, I guess.' Kahn then asked Zukor if he didn't believe I was too naive, too much of a country boy for the big city and its ways. Then Zukor said he thought I was. So I was told I'd exceeded my authority."

An entirely different version of the story was recounted on the stand by Swaine, who said that he had heard the story recounted by Hertz only three weeks ago and, because it seemed "so fantastic and contrary to what I knew of the situation intimately," had gone to Zukor and asked him about it. Zukor told Swaine that he had given a screening of "The Sign of the Cross" in his home on Christmas Day for Otto and Mrs. Kahn but denied the rest of the story.

Swaine then related how, at the crisis in the relations between Hertz and Zukor, he had gone from one to the other and found each "vitriolic" against the other. Next, Swaine said, he went to Kahn and learned that the late head of Kuhn, Loeb wanted Hertz to be made president of Paramount and endowed with supreme authority so that he could continue his job of overhauling the company. A "decorative" post would be found for Zukor, Swaine said he was informed. It developed after a careful analysis of the Paramount board, however, that not enough strength to displace Zukor could be marshaled by the Kuhn, Loeb forces. Swaine, warning of a "public row" should Zukor carry out his threat to resign and bring suit for a receivership, advised abandoning any move to displace Zukor and urged Hertz's resignation.

Zukor Pretty Sore, Says Swaine

"It is difficult to believe how wrought up Zukor was at the time," Swaine said. "He probably would have carried out his threat. Hertz, in good faith and sincerity, felt that he couldn't do his job unless he had supreme authority, but under the by-laws he didn't have it and it couldn't be given him. Kahn's approval to Zukor's continuance was given most reluctantly."

Swaine said that in his opinion Hertz had exceeded his authority in ordering Zukor not to hold departmental conferences without consulting Hertz and not to phone the studio.

The SEC hearings, which were begun in Washington two weeks ago and resumed here because of Hertz's inability to attend a Washington session, were concluded with testimony on organization and activities of the Paramount stockholders' protective committee, given by Alfred Cook and Louis Loeb, of counsel for the committee. The purpose of the hearings is to complete a study of the Paramount reorganization, the first large company to be reorganized under the new bankruptcy laws, in order to recommend to Congress the enactment of supplemental or corrective amendments to Section 77-B.

RKO Position Is Improved, Trustee Says

Fixed Indebtedness Is Cut—Claims Down

RKO has cash on hand of more than $4,659,000, has reduced its fixed indebtedness during the past two years by over $2,600,000 and has paid out approximately $3,000,000 in interest on indebtedness, it is disclosed in the first report filed by the trustee of the company with the U. S. district court here yesterday.

In addition, the report shows that of the total claims filed against the company by creditors, amounting to $55,104,000, eliminations or reductions totaling more than $21,000,000 have been made and large amounts of the balance of the claims are subject to further reductions by the court.

Consolidated RKO operations, it is shown, resulted in a net unaudited profit of $388,002 after all charges, for the 21 weeks ending last May 25. The cash profit for the same period is estimated at over $1,050,000. The company's annual report, issued recently, showed a net loss of $310,574 for 1934, after all charges, including interest on secured indebtedness and provision for Federal income taxes. The comparable improvement during the first 21 weeks of the current year over the similar period last year is estimated by the trustee at $140,000.

Irving Trust Co., trustee of RKO, notes in the report that RKO theatre operations showed a substantial improvement during 1934 over the preceding year in earning a cash profit of over $1,000,000. This represents a reduction in net loss against 1933 of $511,879. These operations are exclusive of the former Orpheum Circuit operations which, in themselves, are estimated to have shown an improvement of $150,000 last year over the year preceding.

The report notes that RKO Radio Pictures retained an "interest in the operation of the Center," Radio City house. While the RKO Service Corp. still renders services to the Music Hall for which it is compensated, RKO no longer has an interest in that house.

A net profit of $570,378, after all charges, including Federal taxes, was shown in 1934 by RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., the report states. In 1933, a net loss of $663,536 was reported by the company. RKO Pathe Pictures showed a net loss for 1934 of $270,477, as compared with a net loss of $627,149 during 1933. Pathe News, Inc., reported a net loss of $48,646 last year as compared with a net loss of $141,233 in 1933.

Film rentals amounted to $9,115,442 for the first 21 weeks of the current year, and theatre admissions during the same period totaled $8,344,044.

Thacher, who served as special master for the hearing of numerous large claims filed against RKO, also made application for a final allowance for these services, the amount to be fixed by the court. With this in mind we are producing a large percentage of the 1935-36 pictures with the world market in mind."

In his talk, Reisman said in part: "In recent weeks you men have exhibited a quality that we hold to be paramount in importance: that is loyalty to one's organization. We are fully aware that a new independent distributing company has been offering a few bob more a week to many of our staff. We appreciate your loyalty in remaining and assure you it will not be forgotten."

Los Angeles, July 12.—In spite of a heat wave box-offices improved slightly. "In Caliente" was strong at the Hillstreet on a take of $11,500, which is $3,500 over normal, but was weak at Warners' Hollywood, where the $12,200 gross was under par by $1,800.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Shanghai"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, July 12.—Walter Wanger, again stepping out of the beaten path, this time produces a silken romance spun from provocative skeins and encrusted with daring design.

Suggested by the Fortune Magazine fact story of the Shanghai boom, the screen play by Gene Towne, Graham Baker and Lynn Starling places an American society lass, Loretta Young, in China and conflicts her emotions with Eurasian, half-Russian, half-Chinese Charles Boyer, setting their love story against the churning background of China's hot spot where "there ain't no Ten Commandments in love or trade."

For the mind and heart, story and appeal will surely evoke sympathy and its thesis against prejudice before the final fadeout will stir talk. For the eye, the settings by Alexander Toluboff are beautiful, the photography by James Van Trees exquisite and the accompanying music noteworthy.

Boyer gives a fine, restrained and convincing portrayal, elevating his box-office esteem. Miss Young, in a mood of rapture, displays rare beauty and is the attraction's asset. Warner Oland, Alison Skipworth and particularly Fred Keating stand out in support.

Director James Flood achieves reality by combining sensitive and virile strokes in moving tempo.

All the entertainment values being of showmanship character, exhibitors, by concentrating on Boyer, Miss Young and romance plus the Shanghai title should do well above average business.

Production Code Seal No. 983. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

"The Girl Friend"

(Columbia)

Hollywood, July 12.—"The Girl Friend" is no pal to the box-office in its present shape despite Jack Haley's engaging screen personality. Even if drastically cut the story would be unconvincing, the characters unsympathetic, the song numbers without distinction and the gags reminiscent.

Roger Pryor has his play about Napoleon rejected by Thurston Hall, Broadway producer. The script of Jack Haley, hick playwright, is returned to Pryor by mistake. Broke, Pryor and his friends, Victor Killian and Ray Walker, impersonate Producer Hall and his staff in order to eat free on Haley's farm all summer. Ann Sothern and Margaret Seddon, Haley's sister and grandmother, respectively, mortgage the farm to build a theatre in the barn and try out the play with Haley as Napoleon. The film devotes excess footage to shots of the barn production, giving the definite impression the producer was right in rejecting the play in the first place.

The film ends with Pryor kidnapping the cast of a real show, substituting his play and getting a contract and the girl.

Eddie Buzzell directed from a story by Gene Towne and Graham Baker and a screen play by Gertrude Purcell and Benny Rubin. The musical sequences have been staged by Seymour Felix.

An unhappy result for which the talent should not be blamed.

No production code seal. Running time, 101 minutes. "G."

"Old Man Rhythm"

(Radio)

Hollywood, July 12.—This college musical novelty, which omits athletics, relies on the talents of three character actors, George Barbier, Erik Rhodes and Eric Blore, who ably carry the plot and comedy brunt, while the balance of the large cast serves mostly as musical background.

Barbier, a wealthy manufacturer, enrolls as a college freshman to protect his son, "Buddy" Rogers, from the coils of Vamp Grace Bradley and promote a romance with Barbara Kent. By pretending bankruptcy Barbier discourages Miss Bradley and sends Miss Kent into Rogers' arms for the finish.

Director Edward Ludwig makes most of the slight story to work in several excellent comedy routines giving Rhodes and Blore opportunities of which they make the most.

The musical numbers, by Lew Gensler, with lyrics by Johnny Mercer, are good but not outstanding. The dances and specialties, conceived by Hermes Pan and Sammy White, are entertaining, with "Sonny" Lamont and Betty Grable contributing fine individual hoofing. The production, by Zion Myers, while not as lavish as other Radio musicals, is acceptable.

No production code seal. Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

"Hooray" and Show $18,400 In Cleveland

Cleveland, July 12.—In spite of scorching heat this city had two hits, with "Hooray for Love," helped by Phil Baker, making the better showing. It took $18,400, above par by $3,400, at the RKO Palace.

"Becky Sharp," the other heavy draw of the week, was $2,300 on a take of $10,300 at Warners' Hippodrome.

Total first run business was $45,600. Average is $43,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending July 5:

A Correction

Through a typographical error in a recent story covering opinions of Indiana members of the industry, Motion Picture Daily credited Carl Niesse, manager of the Central City Amusement Co. in Indianapolis, as saying he was glad the code had ended and was opposed to minimum wages and similar code regulations. The statement should have read Niesse was in favor of minimum wages and similar code regulations.

Paramount to Hold Down on Eastern Films

Only Shorts and a Few Features Set Here

Paramount Pictures will probably confine its eastern production activities, exclusive of short subject and outside producer commitments, to an experimental basis only, an official of the company said Saturday.

Two to four features on the company's new season schedule may be made at Eastern Service Studio as a barometer for possible savings in production costs and the possibilities of increased production facilities. If the advantages are shown to warrant increased production in the east, that would probably follow, and if they were shown to be insufficient, production here might be abandoned entirely, it is believed.

Virtually all of Paramount's short subject production is scheduled for the Eastern Service Studio for the new season. Two features from Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur to be distributed by Paramount will also be made here.

Ontario Tax Returns Up; Attendance Off

Toronto, July 14.—How Premier Hepburn's amusement tax is affecting the exhibitors of Ontario is shown by returns for June, the first month the act has been in enforcement, when total returns amounted to $239,271, which compares with $80,778 for the similar month of 1934.

A decline of at least 30 per cent in attendance throughout the province is reported. Hepburn said the tax was exceeding expectations. Theatre men, however, declared business would be permanently wrecked unless modifications in the tax were made. Protests agains the levy are gaining strength.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

WITH the back of the depression broken and economic conditions at large definitely on the upswing, national circuits may be expected not only to stay as strong as they are, but to grow stronger. The terrible cost inflicted on them in the last four or five years is rapidly receding into memory. Easier money and less stringent times, plus faithful allegiance to the theory a major enterprise in this industry must itself exhibit in wholesale as well as produce and distribute, find the circuits definitely back to their pre-depression ideas. . . .

A check will demonstrate quickly that relatively few houses have been allowed to slip out of national circuit hands. Those that have are in other hands today either because they were lemons, because they were unsuited for circuit operation, because of bad judgment on the purchasing circuit's part or because they were palmed off among the desirable units by the seller. The story of the many which were held through write-downs in bond issues and reductions in rent is a long one, including Paramount's method under John D. Hertz, who told the SEC the other day how the darkened theatre threat worked so effectively. The point is the circuits managed to keep the houses they wanted and let all others slide. . . .

Indicative of how the lines are being strengthened is the situation in the Pacific Northwest. There, Fox West Coast, acting through its Evergreen State Theatres subsidiary, has effected a pool with John Hamrick. It covers Seattle and Portland, blankets both cities and excludes as important links only Jensen and Von Herberg's 1,800 seat Liberty in the former city and J. J. Parker's two first runs in Portland. These are the Broadway with 1,956 seats and the United Artists which has a capacity of 960. Parker was approached, but resisted the nibbles. . . .

If any speculation may exist over the hold which F. W. C., which, on its own, was a formidable factor in that area, now has, a breakdown of the allied interests will, no doubt, carry its own convictions:

Seattle

F. W. C. (Evergreen)
  Coliseum, seating 2,017.
  5th Ave., seating 2,410.
  Paramount, seating 3,000.
Hamrick
  Blue Mouse, seating 980.
  Music Hall, seating 2,850.
  Orpheum, seating 3,000.

Portland

F. W. C. (Evergreen)
  Hollywood, seating 1,491.
  Liberty, seating 1,825.
  Mayfair, seating 1,500.
  Paramount, seating 3,066.
Hamrick
  Blue Mouse, seating 700.
  Music Box, seating 900.
  Orpheum, seating 1,750.

From San Francisco comes the whispered word the Skourases are seeking to further strengthen their west coast dominance by a deal with the Nasser Brothers in San Francisco. . . .

Now it comes to light. The Fox-20th Century deal was signed at 5 A. M. Wednesday morning, thereby permitting weary bigwigs and lawyers to grab some sleep. Some curiosity is making the rounds because no formal statement was issued upon completion of the long-winded negotiations, made so primarily by lawyers. There may be none on the theory that the transaction was agreed upon weeks ago; that final details having to do with appraisal of 20th Century's assets and the like are purely private business negotiations and of nobody's concern except the principals. That may sound like overlooking Fox stockholders. They, however, get their chance later. . . .

First comes routine sanction of the big deal by the Fox directors. Then the stockholders must approve. With Chase controlling roughly 72 per cent of outstanding Fox stock, this last necessary step becomes as cut and dried as the official nod which the directors will make in the next couple of weeks. It was an arduous, temper-devastating routine which prevailed before the ink dried. Night after night and clear through all of them the sessions went, sometimes with a bit of poker injected while the lawyers had it out in adjoining quarters. One morning Darryl Zanuck walked out of a meeting, his nose carrying a scratch. "What happened to you?" Joe Schenck inquired. Bill Goetz interposed with, "Oh, he was hit by Clause 65."

Manny Cohen's hook-up with Bing Crosby presumably was designed to go beyond, although the former says he has no plans other than the one outside picture which Bing is permitted to make annually under his Paramount contract. The understanding is Cohen had a similar idea afoot with Mae West; a bit further from substantiation is the rumor Gary Cooper was the third. At any rate, you may have noticed the other day an apparently routine item from Hollywood which went on to say Paramount had picked up another West option. It was for that outside picture which Cohen was after. . . .

president, Charles H. Olive. He has conferred with Russell Hardy of the Department of Justice on the matter of bringing suit against four major distributors.

While M-G-M, Paramount, Vitagraph, and U.A. would be named as violators of the Clayton and Sherman Anti-Trust Acts, the major point of the case would be Clause K in the M-G-M contract, which prohibits double featuring and provides for certain penalties, such as loss of protection, further remoteness from national release date, etc.

stockholders a dividend of $13.50 per share.

The trustees in the petition asking for permission to make a new disbursement stated that the assets on hand amounted to $735,883.82, the greater part in cash on deposit here. After the $10 disbursement the remaining assets will amount to $235,883.82. The trustees added that there would be sufficient cash on hand to meet future creditors' claims and to defray the costs of dissolution.

The petition stated that in view of the fact that the preferred stock is entitled to $100 per share dividends before any disbursement is made on common stock, and further because there are not sufficient assets to make total payments to preferred stockholders no distribution can be made on 322,432 shares of common stock. To pay on preferred stock in full, including accrued dividends, the trustees would need a total of $6,424,462, it was pointed out.

Promotions at New High in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, July 14.—Schemes of exhibitors to increase patronage by overcoming competition—inter- or intra-industry—are so thick and varied an exhibitor recently quipped, "Why not sell the giveaways and give 'em the pictures?" Promotional efforts hereabouts have reached a new high.

The Newman, which introduced screeno June 4 for Tuesday nights, recently added bank night for Wednesday nights, the only first run spot in the territory to adopt either type of promotion so far.

Premiums have been used by suburbans some time, with the offer of gift stamps for merchandise prizes by Fox Midwest suburbans more recent. Advertisements which ran recently, revealed what is in no way an unusual offering by Kansas City houses. Out of 43, which covers all advertisers but first runs, 23 offered gifts of glassware, chinaware, kitchenware, grab bags, candy bars, stamps, etc. Half of the remainder showed for a dime. Of the final 10, one double featured with a "special attraction;" one double featured; two offered regular feature plus "Hollywood's newest sensation;" another had a foreign film, and one a "special attraction at 9:10 P. M."

Suburbans have used bank night for some time. This also holds for exhibitors in the area. Twenty new bank night contracts have been signed since the code went out, most of them in areas where the plan experienced the most code trouble—particularly Greater Kansas City. In fact, the metropolitan district here accounted for most of the new contracts, according to R. W. McEwan, distributor in Kansas and western Missouri.

Competitive plans have appeared and are making some headway. Jack Pot, which originated last winter in Minneapolis, has been sold to several accounts by Consolidated Film Distributors, according to W. P. Humston, secretary-treasurer. "Buck Nite," which this firm also distributes, is just being introduced into the territory. It combines prize drawing with the amateur idea, and started in Texas this spring. Consolidated started pushing both plans about the time the code went out.

Besides the Newman, George Harttmann, operator of the Armour, North Kansas City, who distributes screeno in western Missouri and Kansas, has, in the past six weeks, signed the Bijou, Baltis, Mary Lue, W. D. Fulton's Southtown, Colonial, LaSalle, Mokan, Tivoli and the Aladdin—all in Kansas City; the Rialto, St. Joseph, and some other out-of-town ones.

Franklin Prod. Quits

BOSTON, July 14.—Franklin Prod., Inc., former Majestic distributors here, has gone out of business and the product it has been handling during the past few months has been absorbed by the Wholesome Film Exchange. Gene Gross, office manager for Franklin, is as yet unconnected.

The American Film Exchange, controlled by Harry Asher, has handled the new Majestic features for the past few months.

Japan Slowly Turns to Use Of Sound Film

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Japan, the last stronghold of the silent film, is reluctantly switching over to sound and the output of its own sound films has increased while silent production has dropped sharply, the Japan Advertiser Annual Review of 1934-35 reveals in a survey of the industry in Nippon.

The average house in Japan grosses only about 36,000 yen ($10,800) a year, the survey reveals, and it was only natural that the silent film should prevail because of the expense of sound. In 1934, however, the country made 400 features pictures and 103 of these used sound tracks. There are 1,718 theatres in Japan, Korea, Formosa and the Kwantung Leased Territory and of this number 710 are wired, thus giving the sound films a comparatively large market since most of the wired houses are in large cities.

The article also reveals that the trend in Japan is away from American pictures and toward those of Europe. In 1933 American companies provided 91 per cent of the importations and in 1934 only 85 per cent. But the trend is stronger than these figures reveal. With three or four exceptions, the best grossers last year were European pictures. In a recent poll taken by the Movie Times of Japan (a publication in Japanese), the leading critics of the Empire voted "Le Paquebot Tenacity," "Congress Dances" and "Poil de Carotte" as the best pictures of the year. "It Happened One Night," the American prize winner, was way down at the bottom of a long list.

U. S. Gains in Netherlands

WASHINGTON, July 14.— Declining popularity of German features in the Netherlands has resulted in an increase of American films, according to a report from Consul W. M. Chase, in Amsterdam, to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

American releases during May, the consul states, were extraordinarily large, representing 68 per cent of all first runs. This is the highest ratio on record for American pictures shown in Amsterdam.

During the first five months of 1935, 117 films were given first runs in Amsterdam. Of this number, the report explains, 56 were American, eight in excess of the corresponding 1934 period, although the total increase in releases was only 13 films. Censorship figures also indicate that releases throughout the entire country have increased.

During the first five months of 1935, American films accounted for 48 per cent of the total release in Amsterdam; German films, 25 per cent; French films, 11 per cent; British films, five per cent; and Netherlands films, four per cent.

Turn Down Bay State Bill

BOSTON, July 14.—The House Ways and Means Committee has turned down the so-called billboard bill which would put a political appointee over all outdoor ads from marquees to 24-sheets.

Jossey Wins

Cleveland, July 14.—At the Variety Club golf tournament at the Hawthorne Country Club, Myer Fine, Sam Stecker and Jerome Friedlander, all active bank night opponents, suggested to J. S. Jossey, bank night franchise owner, that, inasmuch as bank night is getting to be an epidemic around here, they have a bank night at the golf tournament. The idea caught on and in a jiffy each man chipped in a buck to make up the pool.

Names were tossed into a hat for a drawing. None of the Variety boys wanted to draw, so they called in a club waiter to pull out a name.

Jossey's name came out.

Theatre Measles Ban Quickly Called Off

FARMINGTON, N. H., July 14.—It took competition to remove a ban preventing children from attending theatres. A measles epidemic was the original reason for the prohibition, but the youngsters eluded it by going to nearby municipalities.

"Inasmuch as these conditions were tolerated to the detriment of local business and other interests of the town," the Board of Health stated in retracting their order, "the restrictions imposed by the former notice are withdrawn and the responsibility for the spread of the disease is charged directly to the parents."

Comerford Builds House

SCRANTON, July 14. — Comerford Theatres, Inc., has purchased a plot of land, 97 by 120 feet, in Hawley, near here, on which to erect a $65,000 theatre to replace the Comerford-owned Dreamland, destroyed by fire a year ago. Work on the building is to be completed by Oct. 1.

Try Out Spook Parties

NEW HAVEN, July 14.—Loew's is planning one-night Spook Parties all over the circuit, beginning at midnight, July 12, at the Poli here. An Ed Wynn show will be the feature.

New Theatre Unit

DOVER, Del., July 14.—Fox Janesville Corp. has been chartered by Raymond J. Gorman, C. N. Caldwell, Jr., and Arthur W. Britton.

Trade Exhibit On Production At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, July 14.—The industry is doing its part to make the California Pacific International Exposition a success.

In the Hollywood Motion Picture Hall of Fame, a handsome pueblo-type building, located on the Palisades, all the glamour and much of the grief of studio activities are being shown by the Screen Actors' Guild and the Dominos.

So great was the attendance during the opening days last week that Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the guild, had to send in a rush order for additional tickets.

At the entrance are many of the famous costumes of screen history including Charles Chaplin's original baggy trousers, derby and cane; Rudolph Valentino's Sheik outfit and many others.

Another part of the building has been fitted out as a studio. Here many elaborate sets used in noted pictures are showing the public how films are actually made.

The first set brought here was the drawing room scene from Grace Moore's "Love Me Forever." Within the glare of the kleig lights as cameramen worked with their machines, Helen Mann, Florence Short, Amron Isle, Walter McGrail and Warren Burke "acted" a scene from a domestic film.

Everything is duplicated except that no film is used. Players appearing here are donating their services.

Among the sets to be seen are: the dungeon from Universal's "Bride of Frankenstein"; Berengaria's cabin from Paramount's "The Crusades," a set from Walter Wanger's "Shanghai"; another from Radio's "She" and others.

There is also a puppet show in another part of the building in which every puppet is a replica of a star. This is a musical revue and among the characters seen are Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, George Raft, Carole Lombard and even Sally Rand as a fan dancer.

For those interested in sound recording there is a special exhibit of recording by RCA. Mole-Richardson has a display of every kind of studio light, while a collection of cameras dating from the early days to 1935 is also to be seen.

Lucille Webster Gleason, president of the Dominos and treasurer of the Screen Actors' Guild, is chairman of a committee of players in charge of the exhibit.

Spokane Scales Raised

SPOKANE, WASH., July 14.—In line with a general tendency, practically all theatres here, with the exception of the Fox, Unique and Rex, have made five-cent increases in admission prices, according to Cecil Miller, president of the Spokane Theatre Owners' Ass'n.

Some other cities have made higher increases. The Fox will continue its old scale with a minimum of 25 cents. The Granada has raised its matinee prices one cent and the evening rate two cents, the amount of the state tax.

"Thomas" Is Kansas City Hit, $5,700

Kansas City, July 14.—"Doubting Thomas" at the Fox Uptown made the best comparative showing of a below-average week for local first runs and was held. The latest Will Rogers show grossed $5,700, $2,200 over par.

"Becky Sharp" at the Mainstreet did not live up to expectations. Getting poor reviews locally, the picture grossed $9,000, $1,000 over average.

With a good 4th of July business, the Tower managed to scrape $100 over an average of $7,000 with "Mary Jane's Pa," while "Car 99" at the Newman did pretty well with $5,500 against an average of $6,000 for six days.

The first Bergner appearance here in "Escape Me Never" was not good, Loew's Midland grossing $7,500 against a par of $11,500.

Montreal, July 14.—Business was in the doldrums last week because of the heat in spite of the observance of Dominion Day, July 1, and an influx of July 4 visitors from the United States.

Only two houses reached par. The Princess, with "Escape Me Never" and "Unwelcome Stranger," took $6,000, and the Imperial, with "Black Sheep" and "It's a Small World," reached $3,500.

Two other spots, the Capitol with "In Caliente" and "The Girl from 10th Ave." and the Palace, with "Break of Hearts" and "While the Patient Slept," were pretty weak.

Variety Club Chatter

Albany

Albany, July 14.—Most of the members of Tent No. 9 turned out for the first annual outing at Totem Lodge, Burden Lake.

It happened to be George Williams' 20th wedding anniversary and Chief Barker Ralph Pielow's sixth anniversary.

A testimonial dinner was given a few days ago to Lou Golding, new manager here for Si Fabian.

Eddie Hollander, who has been transferred to the Fox St. Louis exchange, was presented a gold wrist watch in appreciation of his work as financial secretary.

Cincinnati

Cincinnati, July 14.—New barkers inducted into the local tent are: J. Crawford Ebersole, Mayfair; Larry Holthaus, Ross-Federal Service; Joun Loofbourow, manager Cheviot; Austin Little, Theatre Arts Supply Co.; Irving J. Koppelman, Famous Music Co.; Lee L. Goldberg, manager First Division-Majestic exchange; Max Margolis, Republic pictures salesman, and William Settos, Springfield, O., as a non-resident member.

The local tent now boasts of approximately 125 members.

Ben H. Ott, Ben H. Ott, Jr., and Joy Darcy, all of New York, were visitors at headquarters here last week.

Kansas City

Kansas City, July 14.—Following luncheon tomorrow, when F. E. Ritter and E. C. Rhoden of Fox Midwest and Mike Roth will be kings for a day, Variety Club will discontinue formal luncheons and do away with kings until fall. This was determined July 8, when E. C. Leeves, J. A. Cameron and W. E. Gregory of Erpi were kings.

George Baker, chief barker, made the suggestion. Hereafter on Mondays the club will hold an informal buffet lunch.

Arthur Cole of Paramount suggested that some one at each exchange be made responsible for seeing that one representative at least got to Variety each Monday.

Ed Shanberg of Fox, member of the finance committee, spoke in defense of the club purse, now slightly deflated. He suggested members pay their fees, now due, but did not get a hand when he sat down.

The annual picnic was discussed. looked forward to by employes on Film Row each year, the picnic is always promised a part of the funds of the row's annual fall charity ball, Cole pointed out. A committee will be appointed immediately to handle the affair. A baseball game between distribution and exhibition was suggested.

Gus Diamond, office manager for Warners, heads the general committee in charge of the annual film picnic, scheduled for July 29 at Ivanhoe.

Other members of the general committee are Frank Hensler, vice-chairman, M-G-M; Arthur Cole of Paramount, L. J. McCarthy, district manager, Fox Midwest; George Baker, Newman manager, and Irwin Dubinsky of Dubinsky Brothers.

Paul Bayzman of Box-Office heads the program and publicity committee, with Kenneth Force of Quigley Publications, vice-chairman. Leo Finklestein and William Warner complete the committee roster.

Other committees are being named.

Omaha

Omaha, July 18.—The week-end formal opening of Variety Club surprised even the most optimistic. At the dinner dance in the Paxton hotel ballroom, Mayor Roy Towl, and other civic officials, including Alvin E. Johnson, president of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, greeted the club.

The attendance was slightly over 300. Only 100 had been expected.

Out-of-town exhibitors, some coming as far away as 200 miles, included Howard Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy of Broken Bow, Neb.; William Youngclaus and Mrs. Youngclaus of Grand Island; Eli Seff and Mrs. Seff and Sol Seff of Sioux City, Ia.; Mickey Gross of Sioux City; Herman Fields and Mrs. Fields of Clarinda, Ia.; Walter Johnson and Mrs. Johnson of Friend, Neb., G. Ralph Branton and Mrs. Branton of Des Moines.

E. R. Cummings, district manager for Tri-States, staged an elaborate floor show. Edward Shafton, an attorney, acted as toastmaster.

Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, July 14.—In accordance with a vote taken at the recent national convention of Variety Clubs regional national representatives have been named. They are:

Harry Goldstein, Cleveland, as representative for Pittsburgh, Columbus and Cincinnati; Jack Flynn, Detroit, representative for Detroit, Albany and Buffalo; R. C. Libeau, Kansas City, for St. Louis, Kansas City and Des Moines; J. E. Fontaine, Chicago, for Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Indianapolis; Carter Barron, Washington, for Washington and Philadelphia.

Washington

Washington, July 14.—A. Julian Brylawsi and Albert Hubschmann were the kings for a day at the semi-monthly smoker.

Chief attraction added to those available generally in the club rooms was the awarding of six articles of clothing to the six barkers most nearly guessing the number of vegetables in a glass jar. Nat Glasser was the best estimator, having been but 50 out of the way in a total of some 3,600.

To the list of associate members, W. A. Whitney, trade paper correspondent and member of the Washington Post reviewing staff was added last week.

Carter T. Barron, skipper of the Variety Club's first annual Show Boat Cruise, and Chief Barker Rudolph Berger have selected "Jolly" Coburn and his Rainbow Room Orchestra as the first of a series of entertainment features for the boat ride.

"Alibi Ike" Only Draw in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, July 14.—The week before the Fourth found customers here too busy with holiday plans to pay much heed to films. Grosses slumped to a summer bottom.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Divine Spark"

(G. B.)

LONDON, July 1.—This is another of those romantic musicals with a composer hero and a story which enables the reproduction of many of his masterpieces. Costume background is again a feature.

Adapted from a Continental original by the Alleanza Cinematografica Italiana, it is admirably presented; the photography is a feature throughout. The musical side also is strong, the composer hero being Bellini. His "Maddalena" forms an effective motif, while there are operatic episodes enabling the reproduction of big moments from "Norma" and other operas. Rossini, and Paganini are other famous musicians introduced.

The story has Bellini, a student falling in love with Maddalena, daughter of a rich lawyer of Naples, who consents to elope with him, but finally refuses because she believes she will spoil his career. He is befriended by the opera singer, Ginditta, and for her writes his series of famous operas. "Norma" is a failure, but Maddalena, traveling post-chaise through the snow, gives the prima donna the score of "Maddalena," which Bellini composed her her and this changes disaster into triumph. Maddalena dies before Bellini can reach her bedside.

There is an atmosphere of sincere sentiment in "The Divine Spark" which may compensate for the fact that the formula has been overworked. Marta Eggerth sings excellently and acts charmingly, Phillips Holmes, in the earlier scenes is also effective. There is good work from Donald Calthrop, Arthur Margetson, Edmond Breon, Benita Hume and others. It should be an attractive offering to those with a liking for opera. Running time, 82 minutes. "G." ALLAN.

"Champagne for Breakfast"

Just what the title implies is not quite clear, for it couldn't possibly fit the contents of the picture. Maybe it is meant as a suggestion to exhibitors what to do the morning after playing this feature.

The yarn is a bit too weak to stand on its own feet and, although Hardie Albright does strive hard, the cast doesn't help much and for the most part appears to be completely lost in its work—in the literal sense of the word. Melville Brown directed but his characters seems to do just as they please. This may be the fault of the script, however.

The story concerns efforts of Albright to save what little a suicide father has left Lila Lee and Joan Marsh, while at the same time he carries on a romance with Miss Marsh. All the skullduggery is wrapped around a lease the dead man left to some property in California and which is now wanted by a race track syndicate. In the end Albright thwarts the villain and all ends well.

Others in the cast are Sidney Toler, Bradley Page and Mary Carlisle.

As the minor half of a dual bill this should fit in small towns and neighborhoods where audiences aren't critical.

Production Code Seal, No. 944. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

"The Awakening of Jim Burke"

(Columbia)

A commonplace production based on the father-and-son theme, "The Awakening of Jim Burke" must take its chances on double feature programs. Much of the dialogue is cut-and-dried and more than a few of the incidents painfully stereotyped.

Although Jack Holt is starred, acting honors should go to Jimmy Butler, cast as the star's son. The boy gives a certain appeal to the film with his fresh youthfulness. Florence Rice and Kathleen Burke, in the leading feminine roles, are not very successful in rising above the routine story, directed by Lambert Hillyer.

The tale concerns the efforts of Holt, a hard-boiled boss of a construction job in the west, to transform the son left in his care by the death of his ex-wife into a duplicate of himself. The boy, a violinist with a sensitive nature, rebels at his father's attempt to rob him of his natural gift and make him like the sons of the other members of the construction gang. Toward the end the boy proves to his dad that he can "be a man" and thereby redeems himself in pater's eyes.

Incidentally, the boy is the means of breaking up an amorous attachment between Holt and Miss Burke, a vamp, and maneuvering him in the direction of Miss Rice. Robert Middlemass, Wyrley Birch and George McKay are other players.

Production Code Seal No. 776. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

And speaking of his onions nothing stronger has ever come out of Bermuda.

Censor Board Broke; Drop Ohio's Leaders

five-foot leaders certifying censorship, and indicating the numerical designation of approval as required by the state law. The board is thus placed in the position of being compelled to violate the law through lack of funds.

A decision just handed down by the State Supreme Court declaring unconstitutional Governor Davey's plan to redistribute the budget to provide funds for activities of various departments left without funds by his having slashed $8,800,000 from the total appropriations which he previously had approved for the remainder of the year, has precipitated a financial crisis.

The law specifies that the state shall furnish the five-foot film leaders, but through the action of Governor Davey, the $2,500 provided for this purpose has been withdrawn.

Consensus of opinion is that the only solution will be to call a special session of the legislature to enact new taxation programs, but Governor Davey has indicated that he will not reconvene the solons until September.

"Robin Hood" will be made in the spring with Robert Donat. Other properties owned by the company include "Gunga Din," "Beau Brummel" and "Mother Cary's Chickens."

Favors Money Quota on U.K. Distributors

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, July 5.—A new suggestion for the improvement of the Films Act is made by Sir Gordon Craig in a letter to the Daily Cinema. He suggests that the obligation to show a quota of British films should be removed from exhibitors and the quota on distributors should be expressed in money values intead of footage.

"If a foreign company has now to supply 100,000 feet of quota film," says Sir Gordon, "it should be obligatory in the future for that company to spend £100,000 upon British productions, but the number of films and the length thereof should be left to the company's own discretion."

Urged in favor of this plan by its author is that it legislates for the "freak" picture costing very little but making big profits—which would be ruled out by a £10,000 minimum cost clause—and that it would encourage American firms to spend their compulsory British minimum on films good enough for U. S. distribution. The elimination of the "quickie" would be automatic under such a plan, it is urged.

Sir Gordon states the belief that the new plan "would be acceptable, even welcome, in Government circles."

That the Board of Trade should take steps to expedite delivery of the report on Films Act revision, from the advisory committee under the Act, was suggested in the House of Commons in a question from Capt. Arthur Evans. The President of the Board of Trade, Walter Runciman, said he would "consider" the hint.

Trade belief is that the advisory committee will recommend amendment of the act by the addition of a "quality" condition, to be satisfied by proof that £10,000 has been spent on a picture. An alternative is that distributors should be given a cost quota for the year, under which the cost of their British films must average £10,000, but individual costs may vary so long as the statutory total is reached.

Toeplitz Prod., Ltd., will release its next two pictures through Associated British Film Distributors, Ltd., in U. K.

The G. B. release which operated with "The Dictator" is off for the U. S. as well as England, but no American release has yet been fixed by Toeplitz.

Alexander Korda has signed Siegfried Sassoon and Colonel W. F. Sterling as technical assistants and literary advisors on "Revolt in the Desert," for which the producer says he has the "sole official world film rights." Both men were friends of the late T. E. Lawrence and will work in collaboration with A. W. Lawrence.

Korda also has signed Patricia Hilliard, who made her debut in "The Private Life of Don Juan" for a featured part in "Things to Come," based on the H. G. Wells novel, "The Shape of Things to Come."

Kansas City's Club Golf Is Heavy Draw

Kansas City, July 14.—Approximately 30 film men participated in the first annual Variety Club golf tournament at Hillcrest. The heat was terrific, but under the direction of William Benjamin, the affair was a success, practically every one winning a prize of some kind.

William Warner won the blind bogey, with L. A. Johnson winning another in that class. Benjamin himself had low score. Lionel Richie won one of the first big six prizes. Joe Maguire tied with Les Durland and Ralph Morrow for one prize, and won the dice pitch with an 11 in face of Durland's nine.

A golf ball went to those making birdies. Four were made—by Benjamin, Johnson, Warner and F. E. Ritter, Fox Midwest.

R. R. Biechele, operator of the Osage, Kansas City, Kan., and secretary of the K. M. T. A., won a pair of golf hose his first time behind a set of golf clubs. With that and his first grandchild—born July 2 to his daughter, Mrs. M. V. Bolin—Biechele could be heard all over the fairways, bragging.

It's news when E. C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest head, doesn't win a prize. He didn't.

C. E. "Doc" Cook, Rivoli, Maryville, Mo., came all the way in for the tourney, as did some other out-of-town exhibitors.

Neth Runs for Office

Columbus, July 14.—J. Real Neth, circuit operator, is a candidate for membership on the Board of Education.

On thousands of desks throughout the motion picture industry here and abroad you will now find a copy of the new 1935-36 Motion Picture Almanac, already well thumbed, already in service, as it will continue to be daily during the coming show year. In its 1204 pages, a bigger book than ever before, it covers accurately and usably, every significant phase of industry activities of the show year that has just closed. For producer, distributor and exhibitor and for all those exterior forces that impinge upon the art, commerce and finance of the motion picture, the new Almanac, in its decisive presentation of industry affairs, is a source book of inestimable value.

MPTOA Lines Up 10-Point Code Program

Membership to Act Upon Voluntary Regulation

A 20 per cent "unconditional" rejection privilege in all contracts and genuinely competitive buying and bidding for pictures are urged by the M. P. T. O. A. in a list of 10 trade practices which the national exhibitor organization would include in any voluntary code drawn for the industry, it is disclosed in the monthly bulletin of the organization issued yesterday by Ed Kuykendall, president.

Kuykendall calls upon members to submit "advice and suggestions" in connection with the drafting of a regulatory code and adds that the board of directors of M. P. T. O. A. will

Code Interest Ebbs In Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY, July 15.—Code interest in this territory seems to be slight. Circuit men and independents are sitting tight waiting for something to happen in New York.

Chicago Astor Suit Settlement Reached

CHICAGO, July 15.—The Astor Theatre suits charging distributors conspired with each other and competing exhibitors to withhold service on account of a dime admission policy and the seeking of an injunction against the continued refusal to service contracts without the dime clause were dismissed here late Saturday in U. S. Justice Woodward's court when counsel announced a settlement out of court had been reached.

Under the terms of the settlement all major product is available to the Astor in the 26th week after first run for exhibition at a dime until 6:30 o'clock and 15 cents thereafter.

The settlement of the damage action involved a cash payment to the plaintiff of an undisclosed amount reported as $10,000 which was collected among the defendants. Rosenberg, Toomin and Stein were counsel for the Astor.

The settlement is viewed as a precedent.

Cleveland to Amend Pact on Dual Bills

CLEVELAND, July 15.—Unrestricted dualling for pictures which have not played downtown first runs will be one of the proposals to be discussed at a meeting of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n. tomorrow.

For some time there has been a plan underway to permit dualling one night a week and 75 out of 82 independents have agreed to this plan, but it is felt exceptions must be made to members in sections directly affected by dual bill competition.

Philadelphia Sunday Petitions Get Start

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—First petitions to put the Sunday show question on the ballots next November are being circulated here in hotels, clubs and among business men.

The petitions will need 17,000 signers in order to make it mandatory for election commissioners to submit the matter to voters. This also can be accomplished by resolution of the City Council and film men are to attempt to get the council to do this.

Interstate to Build Five Houston Houses

HOUSTON, July 15.—Interstate Theatres Circuit, Inc., has plans for a 1,700-seat downtown house and four modern 1,200-seat suburbans, work upon which is to be started immediately. They probably will be ready before Christmas.

Wedding Idea!

Educational's eastern production staff took a week off and two things happened. The business manager, William Weiss, got married, to the great surprise of the rest of the staff and before the congratulations were over somebody had suggested "The June Bride" as the title of the next Paul Terry-Toon.

Weiss telephoned Terry early in the week and invited him to "a wedding" in Harrison, N. Y. The bride was Rita Romaner, daughter of Hugo Romaner and Mrs. Romaner of Far Rockaway.

an application of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for authority to install a co-axial cable between Philadelphia and New York for use in television service. The construction of the cable is believed to be planned for use by the television station to be built by the Radio Corp. of America.

Appearing on behalf of the independents, Ralph Vatner, at the opening of hearings on the telephone company's application, declared that it should be denied on the ground that transmission of motion pictures direct to homes does not come within the scope of the company's business, which is that of communication.

Representatives of the broadcasters also opposed the application on the ground that the company had not disclosed how the cable would be used or what its charges would be.

Several months ago when announcement of the proposed laying of the cable was made it was stated that one of its important uses also would be the transmission of 200 simultaneous telephone conversations. It has been under laboratory experiment for a long time. It is said to be seven-eighths of an inch in diameter with a copper wire inside supported by a series of rubber disc insulators which prevent contact with the casing.

Warners Start Big Studio Structures

Hollywood, July 15.—The building program, announced several weeks ago by Warners, has been started. When finished Warners will have the largest single studio in the world. Nine new sound stages will be constructed, as well as a new office building, a new property building, and a battery of film vaults. A crafts building, to house all the shops, foundries and mills destroyed by fire earlier this year will also be built.

Construction will be in charge of Lewis Geib, head of the studio technical department, who plans to start a new stage each week for nine weeks. It is estimated that from 1,000 to 3,000 men will be employed during the eight months it will take to complete the work.

MPTOA Lines Up 10-Point Code Program

be called into session to further the move for such a code as soon as the views of members have been obtained.

Other cardinal planks in M. P. T. O. A.'s 10-point program of industry regulation, in addition to the overbuying and rejection privilege features, are the elimination of cut-rate competition through the banning of double features, giveaways, premiums, lotteries and low admission scales; the establishment of fair clearance and zoning schedules "openly negotiated" for each metropolitan center; elimination or revision of both the score charge and music tax; elimination of designated playdates and the forcing of shorts with features; adoption of a standard form of exhibition contract "with a uniform provision for the enforceable arbitration of all contract disputes, including substitutions, and the control of non-theatrical exhibitions "to prevent unfair competition with an established theatre."

Three of the 10 proposals strike at double featuring. These are the provisions relating to cut-rate competition between theatres, overbuying and, lastly, clearance and zoning, which would give an advantage in availability to theatres maintaining high admissions and standard programs. The overbuying provision would also set up local machinery to pass on the suitability of films for individual localities wherever the question might arise.

Members Asked for Opinions

M. P. T. O. A. members are asked to submit views on these proposals and to add others calculated to improve theatre business and trade relations; to suggest effective methods of enforcement of such a code and to designate persons or agencies to bring it into being.

While declaring that M. P. T. O. A. is "most anxious" to aid in the setting up of a regulatory trade practice code, Kuykendall now and again in his bulletin reveals a doubt that the entire industry could be induced to subscribe to one or that effective enforcement of one could be achieved.

"In considering the question of a voluntary code, either locally or nationally," he writes, "the question of uniform and effective enforcement becomes of paramount importance. It is useless to hope for a universal, voluntary compliance. Long and sad experience with industry affairs shows this to be clearly out of the question. The 10 per cent fringe of chiselers, irresponsible, unscrupulous exhibitors eager to grab any sort of competitive advantage, must be brought in line for any plan to succeed. Otherwise, the only effect of a voluntary code is to tie the hands of the reputable and responsible exhibitor in competitive matters, placing him at the mercy of his unscrupulous competitors."

Kuykendall also points out that distributor cooperation in the drafting of a voluntary code is not to be taken for granted. In this connection he hits at industry attorneys whom he holds responsible for past refusals on the part of distributors to "cooperate or negotiate with organized exhibitors in such matters as uniform clearance and zoning schedules, standard contracts, enforceable arbitration, control of unfair non-theatrical competition, overbuying and other matters, "for fear they might become involved in anti-trust litigation."

"As long as the lawyers dictate the business policies of the distributors in these matters, however, little help can be expected from them," he writes, and points out that unless trade abuses are curbed by effective self-regulation lawsuits will multiply, regardless, and state and Federal agencies will be encouraged to take over regulation of the industry.

Again, Kuykendall declares that it is "extremely doubtful" whether any one plan or proposal will solve the industry's problems, but thinks that progress may be made through negotiation and discussion carried on between organized exhibitors and organized distributors. For this reason, he says, large film buyers and affiliated circuits cannot be excluded from exhibitor organizations.

"Moreover," he writes, "a united front is absolutely necessary for an adequate defense of any and all theatres against unfair legislation, regulation and taxation. To exclude the larger theatres in these matters destroys the effectiveness of an organization, as has been repeatedly demonstrated."

Beatrice Test for Sabbath Films Off

BEATRICE, Neb., July 15.—Hope to beat the results of the recent election in which voters turned down Sunday shows arose and fell when Phil Hill, city manager for Fox Midwest, advertised Sunday shows last week, but on Sunday morning decided to postpone his plan.

It was understood Hill planned to defy the local ordinances and bring about a test suit and a possible injunction closing all Sunday business.

Officials warned Hill if he carried out his plan, he would be liable to $100 fines for each theatre and for each Sunday operated. He manages the Fox and Rivoli.

product for Independence, Montgomery opened the Mainstreet seven years ago as first run with what he considered assurance of pictures.

The Beldorf will be opened by William Wagner, manager of the Fox Plaza, Kansas City, sometime early this fall and will operate as a first run.

"Wagner is a stockholder in Commonwealth Theatre Enterprises," says Montgomery.

This will leave the Mainstreet short of first run pictures, and the second run situation is being taken care of by E. Van Hyning's Best. By fall, then, Independence, with 12,782 population, is slated for four houses with an aggregate capacity of 2,468 seats.

It is understood that Montgomery will also file complaint with the Hays organization.

Montgomery says he has contacted majors regarding pictures for the new year, and nothing definite has been done.

Members of the K.M.T.A. board do feel that they would like to know what sort of national arbitration there will be before considering local grievances, because K.M.T.A. is now affiliated with a national organization, M.P.T.O.A.; and a national grievance body would lend more weight to the settlement of local grievances, they feel. However, it is understood the board will go ahead and consider Montgomery's complaint whenever he files it.

The theatres are those operated by the Golden State and Theatre Realty Corp., the T. & D., Jr., Enterprises, Inc., San Francisco Theatres, Inc., and various other associated enterprises.

The suit when filed demanded an accounting of all money derived through such forms of business stimulation as "Treasury Night," "Cash Night," etc. With the withdrawal of the suit, contracts were signed on behalf of the former defendants by E. H. Emmick, president of the Golden State Theatre & Realty Corp., and Mike Naify, representing T. & D., Jr., Enterprises, Inc. Both groups include most of the subsequent run theatres in this region.

NEW HAVEN, July 15.—In accordance with the postal department ruling that no printed matter setting forth lotteries or games of chance shall be sent through the mails, the New Haven Register has refused to accept theatre advertising containing notice of bank night, cash night, country store drawings, or other similar devices.

At present this affects eight theatres in the city who were advertising cash giveaways.

specific complaints. In addition to the two which the exhibitors involved are attempting to settle between themselves, a third has either been settled or discredited and the fourth, according to reports, appears to have little or no merit.

Sidney Samuelson, Allied president, while admitting that answers to the Allied complaints had been received from the M. P. P. D. A., and had been discussed at the Indianapolis meeting, declined to comment on the nature of the replies and whether or not they were satisfactory to the complainants. M. P. P. D. A. officials, likewise, refused comment, stating that inasmuch as the subject was initiated by Allied any statement concerning its outcome should be obtained from the exhibitor organization.

However, the reports emanating from Indianapolis relate that the four specific complaints made to Hays involved overbuying by large theatres or inability to obtain product by smaller houses. The complaining exhibitors, according to the Indianapolis reports, are located in Savannah, Ga., McRae, Ga., Miami and Greenville, Tex.

Report Affiliated Operator Involved

The complaint which is reported to have been either settled or the complainant discredited involved an affiliated theatre operator against whom an overbuying complaint was brought. An offer was made, it is said, to relinquish Columbia product which the complaining exhibitor asserted he had been able to buy for a number of years but which was sold to the affiliated house at the beginning of the season. According to report, however, the complaining exhibitor did not want the Columbia product sufficiently to take over the affiliated theatre's contract when it was offered to him.

No action could be taken on the fourth complaint which is reported to have involved a situation in which a low admission house sought the same buying privileges as are enjoyed by a competing house charging a higher admission. The exhibitor complained of felt that he was entitled to first choice of product and refused a concession and distributors preferred to continue selling him, it is said, both because of the higher rentals obtained and because of a reputedly better credit record of the second exhibitor.

Short Subjects

"Excursions in Science"

(Al Bondy)

Including a group of scientific experiments whose strangeness and complete simplicity are spellbinding, this short is a fit subject for any program. Its appeal should be just as strong to adults as to children. The reel opens with simple experiments with horseshoe and bar magnets while off-screen dialogue explains how they work. Oil that mixes with water and oil that causes vibration in machinery rather than lubricating it are next shown. The reel winds up with shots of motors scientists have perfected to work on light rays only. Recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Sinbad the Sailor"

(Celebrity)

This ComiColor cartoon is excellent entertainment, particularly for children, but there are enough angles appealing to adults in it to put it over with all with a bang. It tells the story, with several modern twists, of Sinbad the Sailor to the accompaniment of music. The basic elements of the old nursery tale are kept intact but the real humor and laughs lie in the new twists the artists have given to things. Highly recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Double Crossed"

(Universal)

Another of the series featuring Sterling Holloway, this short should fit well in any house. The story is good and gives the characters ample chance to do their stuff, particularly Holloway. Doubles and impersonators of other Hollywood stars are used to aid comedy sequences. Fired from a hotel in Palm Springs, Holloway and Joey Ray thumb a ride from Barbara Pepper into Hollywood and pose as contact men for the stars. This gets them involved in a deal with her mother when they contract to fill her hotel with celebrities. Recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 907. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Going Places"

(Universal)

Numbers 10 and 11 of the series are equally as interesting as any of those preceding and should please. Lowell Thomas still does the commentating in his interesting style. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Curly Top"

(Fox)

Hollywood, July 15.—A great showmen's and audience picture, Shirley Temple's "Curly Top" is sure to be a box-office cleanup wherever and whenever played. The heart-warming story, smartly produced by Winfield Sheehan with a particular eye to furnishing exhibitors everything necessary to attract maximum patron attention, presents the amazing starlet in a manner certain to thrill exhibitors and delight the public.

Moving in an aura of charming human interest, the story has John Boles adopt Shirley and her older sister, Rochelle Hudson, from an orphan asylum. Brought to live in surroundings of refinement and wealth, a heaven-on-earth to the forlorn children, the little princess of artistry captivates the heart of Boles and his aunt, Esther Dale, as the former falls in love with Miss Hudson. The situation, portrayed with tender, romantic appeal never artificially forced, becomes complicated, as Miss Hudson is engaged to Maurice Murphy.

Disillusioned, Boles finds sympathetic solace in closer association with Shirley until the finale, when from the mouth of the child come words of wisdom bringing the lovers into each other's arms.

Fine as are story, entertainment and exploitation values, the production features are of equal worth. Shirley's singing and dancing are gems of showmanship which are bulwarked by the singing of Boles and Miss Hudson. Of five song numbers, "When I Grow Up," with music by Ray Henderson and lyrics by E. Heyman and sung by Shirley, is a sensational exploitation feature, as it pertains to the child's future career.

Every effort is devoted to making Shirley the focal point of interest. Yet Irving Cummings' direction of the Patterson McNutt-Arthur Beckhard screen play makes Boles and Miss Hudson outstanding as well. Also under the same deft handling unusual honors accrue to Jane Darwell, Rafaela Ottiano, Miss Dale, Arthur Treacher, Murphy and Etienne Girardot, the show's one menace.

The music is credited to Henderson with the lyrics divided among Heyman, Ted Koehler and Arthur Caesar.

Everything in the picture being what exhibitors and the public have demonstrated they want, "Curly Top" should be an incentive to showmen not to ignore any of the incorporated values in reaching for a brand-new set of box-office records.

Production Code Seal No. 1062. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Woman Wanted"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, July 15.—Clever dialogue and fast action make this average entertainment.

The film opens in a court with Maureen O'Sullivan due to get a death sentence for a murder committed by a gangster. While he is waiting for the jury to reach its verdict, Joel McCrea, an attorney in another court, starts a flirtation across the areaway. Louis Calhern, gang leader, wanting information from Maureen, stages a wreck of the police car that is carrying her back to jail. She escapes both cops and gangsters by hopping into McCrea's car, which is conveniently passing at the moment. Adrienne Ames, McCrea's fiancee, discovers Miss O'Sullivan in his apartment. The film ends with two big chases, plenty of gunfire, car smashes, coincidence and comedy.

Leonard Fields and David Silverstein did handsomely by the dialogue from a story by Wilson Collison. McCrea and Miss O'Sullivan are excellent in the leads, particularly in a funny drunk scene in a deserted hamburger joint.

Robert Grieg is very funny as a butler. The good support includes Lewis Stone, Edgar Kennedy, Noel Madison, Granville Bates, William B. Davison, Richard Powell, Erville Anderson and Gertrude Short under the direction of George B. Seitz.

No production code seal. Running time, 78 minutes. "G."

"The Return of Peter Grimm"

(RKO)

Hollywood, July 15.—Remarkable photographic effects give a weirdly convincing quality to the famous Belasco play of a ghost's return to earth.

Lionel Barrymore, as Peter Grimm, exacts a promise from his adopted daughter, Helen Mack, to marry Allen Vincent, his nephew, thinking that he is insuring her happiness and the safety of his beloved tulip

SMASH MUSICAL TOPS WITH SONG HITS, SWELL SWEETHEART TEAM AND GRAND ROMANCE THAT'S HEART-WARMING"

"It's all in that headline above"
—says Film Daily

But there's more in the swell lines over yonder . . .

"Pop appeal is labeled all over it!

You showmen can't overplay it!

And you're a sucker if you don't give it a ride in your publicity!

Warners have come through with the sweetest b. o. honey in the musical-song-romance division delivered this year!

Dick Powell does the best work of his career, and puts over one song in particular in a way to make all the dames—old and young—swoon and like it!

Done with a delightfully original, intriguing romance that has genuine sincerity and a heart-warming quality rare in these sophisticated Hollywood pictures of the light entertainment variety!

We cannot recall any musical that has such a delightful romance with such a smart balancing of struggle, disappointments, eager youth fighting for success, menace, and well-knit suspense building to a gasp climax!

In a word—it gets you!"—Film Daily

"Promoters" Are Jailed

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Four self-styled film promoters from Hollywood, here on a "casting" mission for the purpose of signing children for an alleged $100,000 all-children picture, were each sentenced to five days in jail here.

They gave the names of Paul B. Mahoney, general manager of the "All Star Productions," Jack Rochelle, Theodore O'Day and Leroy Arends. The four were arrested as the result of investigation carried out by the San Francisco Better Business Bureau and the local police department.

"Escapade" Cincy Hit

CINCINNATI, July 15.—Critics on the local dailies have gone into column-length raves over the personal attributes of Luise Rainer and her work in "Escapade" at the RKO Albee last week. The picture led the town with an estimated gross of $12,500, which is considered a higher bracket figure for mid-summer, especially with the thermometer hovering around the upper 90's. This rated a holdover. The film was moved to the Capitol, for the second stanza.

"Escapade" Is Pittsburgh's Hit, $11,000

PITTSBURGH, July 15.—The warmest July in years around here has hit grosses. Last week was poor except at the Penn, where "Escapade" gathered around $11,000.

At the Pitt, an attempt to get a run out of the Louis-Carnera fight pictures and a revival of "Alibi" met with failure, the bill expiring after five weak days, during which it took in only about $1,000. The combination of "People Will Talk" and Benny Goodman's band fizzled at the Stanley, with a take of less than $12,000, while the second of the Alvin's double feature bills, consisting of "Orchids to You" and "Alias Mary Dow," got only around $3,000. This house is having a struggle without a cooling plant.

The Warner, too, eased off after several excellent weeks, doing in the neighborhood of $4,000 with "The Arizonian" and "The Unfinished Symphony."

Total first run grosses were $30,000. Average on summer basis is $33,000.

"Escapade," "Sharp" Big In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 15.—Crowds coming from all over to attend the All-Star Baseball game on Monday kept business up to average in spite of continuous record heat. "Becky," playing second week downtown, divided honors with "Escapade" as box-office draws. "Becky" got $4,100 at the Allen, or $1,100 more than average with a new picture. "Escapade" grossed $6,000 the first three days at Loew's State and finished the run $1,500 over par with a $11,500 gross.

"Ginger," with Bob Hope and stage show, drew $11,000 against a $15,000 average at the RKO Palace, while "Four Hours to Kill" grossed $3,200, or $800 under par at the Stillman. "Monte Cristo" was fair with $2,000 playing a revival at the Circle.

Cut in New England Utility Rates Sought

BOSTON, July 15.—The Allied organization in Massachusetts is setting machinery in motion to reduce utility costs to theatremen. This latest move by the Independent Exhibitors of Massachusetts, Inc., has just been made public by a message from Business Manager Arthur K. Howard to exhibitor members in which action against electrical companies is hinted.

No definite inkling as to the strategy of the campaign is given in the note beyond: "There are many ways by means of which you may reduce your electric rates." Members believing that the present rates they pay are scaled too high are urged to consult the state headquarters of Allied.

Oil vs. Films

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—An ordinance introduced here before the board of supervisors provides that the present distance permitted between oil stations and theatres, as well as schools and hospitals, which is 200 ft., be reduced to 60. The proposed measure is opposed by theatrical interests on the ground vehicle traffic close to a theatre disrupts patronage, while the oil station operators favor the measure because crowds bring business.

ROXY THEATRES CORPORATION
133 WEST 50TH STREET
NEW YORK

OFFICE OF
HOWARD S CULLMAN
TRUSTEE

July 11, 1935

Mr. James R. Grainger
℅ Universal Pictures Corp.
1250 Sixth Avenue
New York, N. Y.

Dear James Grainger:

I want you to know what a great personal satisfaction I feel in our newly signed contract to exhibit Universal's 1935-36 feature product at the Roxy Theatre.

I have the greatest confidence that this contract is going to be highly advantageous to both corporations. We, at the Roxy Theatre, have hit our high marks during the past three years with such Universal pictures as "The Invisible Man," "Imitation of Life" and "Bride of Frankenstein," and we look forward to repeating these same splendid box office results. Any first run theatre needs, above all else, first choice of the film product of a major company. It is indeed gratifying to know that the Roxy, through our agreement with you, will have, for the first time in its history, such a definite source of quality pictures from an American producing company.

I am sure, too, that Universal will benefit greatly from the large scale first run representation at the world's largest theatre which this contract assures you.

We look ahead with keen anticipation to the pleasure of cooperating with you.

With all good wishes for the coming season,

Cordially yours,

Howard S. Cullman

Milwaukee Warrant Reduces Giveaways

MILWAUKEE, July 15.—Giveaways have temporarily cooled here as a result of the issuance of a warrant for the manager of the Garfield, neighborhood Saxe house, who was charged with conducting a lottery. The theatre had been playing screeno.

The case has been postponed until Aug. 23, and while a number of houses have dropped the games, including Fox's Palace, which had posted the town advertising a five-day screeno carnival starting July 12, there are still a few neighborhood spots holding to the policy. Additional prosecutions are expected.

Latest competition reported is that of Fox's Kosciuszko, operating only Saturdays and Sundays and offering 10-cent admission prices for adults and children two for a nickel, any time. The I. T. P. A. is still endeavoring to establish some sort of home rule with a committee headed by B. K. Fischer working on the project.

It is understood Charles M. Schwab was originally interested in the partial or complete financing of the Ward & Glynne houses, which were subsequently sold to the Loew circuit.

Glynne later concentrated his activities in Long Island exhibition and built houses in Bay Shore, Greenport and Patchogue, and at the time of his death he was operating a Prudential theatre for Joseph Seider at Southampton.

nursery. Barrymore guarantees to try returning after death at the insistence of Edward Ellis, the family doctor, who believes in spiritualism. A shade of Barrymore comes back to find his friends slandering his memory, his nephew betraying his trust, Miss Mack in love with James Bush but breaking her heart by keeping her promise to marry his nephew. The scenes where Barrymore hovers in the shadows vainly trying to make his loved ones hear his voice and right the wrongs he did in life are touching and dramatic. Miss Mack and George Breakstone stand out in vivid, restrained portrayals. Allen Vincent is credible as a subtle heavy. Ethel Griffies, Lucien Littlefield, Greta Meyer and Donald Meek lend good support.

The photography by Lucien Andriot is superb with the shade of Barrymore moving in a diffused shadow instead of a double exposure.

Kenneth MacGowan produced. George Nicholls directed from a screen play by Francis Edward Faragoh. The film needs a concentrated campaign on the spiritualism angle to sell it.

No production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Circumstantial Evidence"

(Chesterfield)

This unpretentious picture moves along at a merry clip once it passes the second reel and winds up as quite entertaining. It's another newspaper story and concerns the doings of reporters, in love and at work.

Director Charles Lamont, once he gets things going, keeps the cast well in hand and, except for Chick Chandler, they all turn in good performances.

The yarn has Chandler a reporter on the same paper as Shirley Grey and the two in love with each other. Chandler, after covering a murder trial at which the defendant is convicted on circumstantial evidence, sets out to frame a case whereby he will be convicted on the same grounds and then show up the country's jury system. The trick misses fire, however, when the intended victim is really murdered and Chandler is about to be executed when he escapes and the real murderer is uncovered.

Miss Grey is especially attractive in a role that fits her well. Dorothy Revier also turns in a good performance. Arthur Vinton and Clyde King round out the cast. The photography of M. A. Anderson is good.

Particularly in neighborhoods and on dual bills this picture should please. Production Code Seal No. 697. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Rainbow End"

(First Division)

With a story that is plausible, fast action, lots of riding and enough fighting to satisfy any action fan, this Hoot Gibson western should more than appeal to lovers of this type picture.

Director Norval Spencer keeps the action moving right along up to the climax and then finishes with a punch. Gibson is his old self again and is ably supported by a capable cast. None of the tricks usually found in pictures of this class is resorted to and all of the virile action appears quite natural.

The story has Gibson the son of a cattle baron, but he is unable to agree with his father on certain matters, so he strikes out on his own and winds up as foreman at a ranch run in opposition to one of his dad's. The usual cattle stealing then starts and Gibson sets out to unravel the mystery and save the mortgage on his employer's property. In a bangup finish things are cleared up and all ends well.

Others in the cast are Warner Richmond, Ada Ince, Charles Hill, Oscar Apfel and June Gale, who combines with Gibson for the romance in the film.

This picture should get a favorable reception generally. Production Code Seal No. 787. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

This injunction was granted and appealed and confirmed by the Civil Court of Appeals. A parallel court in San Antonio had previously handed down an opposite decision.

Theatres are keenly interested in the case, as both horse racing and dog racing have drawn heavily. In fact, it is generally understood that theatre interests are behind the Dallas County district attorney.

Senate May Probe Para. Fee Claims

McAdoo Says He Will Press the Issue

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Efforts of lawyers to collect $3,222,226 for services in connection with the Paramount reorganization may receive the attention of the Senate committee headed by Senator McAdoo of California which is investigating receivership and bankruptcy proceedings when the group enters into its survey of conditions in New York, it was learned today.

Senator McAdoo today denied published stories to the effect he would lay the Paramount case before his committee. While expressing indignation at the size of the fees which attorneys have charged in connection with the reorganization proceedings, he said it appeared to be a general practice about which little or nothing could be done.

The Paramount case, if it comes be-

Para. Reorganizing On Coast Near Now

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick will confirm the reorganization plan of Paramount Properties within the next few days, it was indicated at a hearing yesterday. It was revealed that 72½ percent of outstanding mortgage bondholders have formally approved the plan. This figure substantially surpasses the 66 2/3 percent necessary under Section 77-B of the bankruptcy act.

The reorganization plan calls for the payment of a full six percent at interest disbursement on Sept. 1, it was pointed out. All bond interest payments have been met to date.

Para. Gets Thacher To Battle Big Fees

Thomas D. Thacher, former Federal judge, has been retained by Paramount to oppose all applications for fees in connection with the bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings which are regarded as excessive. This includes practically every application on file with the court, it was said.

The fees asked by lawyers, trustees, "experts" and protective committees aggregate $3,222,226. A hearing on the applications is being held tomorrow before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

Circuits Seek Contract Ban on Duals, Cut Rates

Many of Majors' Pacts Already Using It; Kuykendall Idea

Large circuits in many sections of the country are planning to use a contract rider imposing a ban on double featuring and the use of cut-rate admission schemes during the new season, it was learned yesterday.

Many of these circuits that have already closed for new season product are using the rider already and others will have it included in contracts when negotiations now in progress have been completed.

The rider, which is not unknown to the industry, having been used periodically in the past, was recommended by Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, several weeks back as a regulatory substitute for certain trade practice provisions designed to curb cut-throat competition which were included in the defunct NRA code. As now being used, the rider binds a theatre which has subscribed to it voluntarily to maintain a fixed minimum admission and to refrain from lowering the scale agreed upon either by offering premiums or rebates of any kind

Hoyts May Join With Fox In Australian Production

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Australia (By Airmail via London), June 26.—Hoyts Theatres, Ltd., have under consideration a proposal to enter into active Australian production in association with Fox of America. It is reported the proposition is entirely divorced from General Theatres Corp., which means that Hoyts will go into active competition with Greater Union Theatres and Cinesound as a producing factor.

Word of the Hoyts proposition followed a week of uncertainty in production circles, which received a first class shock when it became known what was in the wind. Distributors had been wondering how they stood under the New South Wales quota law if there are insufficient locally-made films available to fulfil their obligations.

Their position was since made fairly plain by the Chief Secretary of N. S. W., Mr. Chaffey. The possibility of their having to produce their own Stockholders and creditors of the corporation are the plaintiffs.

BOSTON, July 16.—Nightly dog races a few miles outside Boston are draining the pockets of persons of limited means, according to theatremen. MPTOA Urges Local Efforts On Regulation

Local exhibitor units are urged by M. P. T. O. A. to begin negotiations with distributor representatives immediately for regulatory trade practice provisions to be placed in effect wherever they can be worked out, it was learned yesterday.

This recommendation is being given, it is understood, largely as a result of the organization's belief that a voluntary code for the industry will be difficult, if not impossible, to achieved, and that, even in the event one is eventually drawn, it would take months to prepare it and its enforcement would be a doubtful subject.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THEIR recent experience ringing freshly in their ears, Joe Schenck and Darryl Zanuck no doubt will be gratified to learn some of their associates in several directions are more than a trifle weary of lawyers in huge and small gobs and, therefore, are seriously considering leaning on their own judgment as it applies to a number of situations in the field which need straightening out. It is the legal fraternity, which is to say the extremely cautious fraternity, that has been largely responsible for the do-nothing attitude on such matters of importance as clearance, minimum admissions and double featuring. . . .

They have been worried about the anti-trust and other laws. Unexpressed has been lawyers' worry over lawyer jobs, it being apparent that when they have nothing to do there is little reason to keep them on the payroll. The attitude now gaining ground, however, is one of sidetracking bogies in favor of action whether or not legal advisors agree. The lawyers, now that the code has joined the procession of things that were, maintain a flood of suits will swamp the industry and, while two or three do not comprise a torrent, it is interesting to note that this many, at least, have been filed in various sections of the country since the NRA folded its clipped wings.

If, then, suits are to descend in a barrage anyway, why not give attention to those needs which require attention and do something aside from talk about the essential job of putting this industry on what bears resemblance to an even keel? Working through the M.P.T.O.A., the sounding board is being struck by urging exhibitors in their own zones to meet and to work out a program of voluntary regulatory practices. Regardless of how the idea develops in practice, this department commends the concept because it takes into the field, where it belongs, the task of ironing out difficulties peculiar to specific sections. Decisions arrived at locally and representative of the opinion of the majority should take adequate care of all interests. Even if distributors do not appear in negotiations, actually they will be through participation by their theatre subsidiaries, wholly or partially owned. . . .

Reported yesterday, but unconfirmed were cheers reaching into Broadway from agents' offices in the Bond Building when word got about Huey Long had decreed New Orleans must have a vaudeville theatre next fall and winter. New Orleanians have nothing at all to do with it; The Kingfish, like The Leader, had spoken.

"If we don't get vaudeville, then we will close you up and put up a vaudeville theatre of our own," Huey told Crescent City exhibitors who, in turn, suggested to the senator vaudeville would cost $5,000 weekly and make necessary a hike in admissions to seventy-five cents top.

Whereupon Long, always bending a willing ear to the will of his constituents, went on to say:

"There are too many movies here, but anyway we are going to have a vaudeville theatre if I have to put one up myself. I'm going to find out if Memphis, Houston and Atlanta have vaudeville and what it's like."

Lacking in substantiation was the report which reached New York last night that well up in the first vaudeville bill would be one of those comedy animal acts—the kind that takes two men to perform—and that Huey would be the rear end of the horse. . . .

Patsy Ruth Miller, a one-time star in minor key, has been signed by Sam Goldwyn to write, the publicity issued declaring her first job will be "Barbary Coast." Miss Miller's debut statement in her new profession:

> "I'm glad I'm not a performer any more and don't have to worry about that extra wrinkle. Wrinkles look pretty sad on the screen, but fortunately don't show in a script."

Opposition to New Cable Is Withdrawn

WASHINGTON, July 16.—After A. T. & T. representatives had explained to the Federal Communications Commission yesterday that its co-axial experimental cable between New York and Philadelphia would be confined to experiments for a year at least opposition was withdrawn by Postal and Western Union. This left the only remaining opponent, Ralph Vatner, who said he represented independent New York theatres.

Some of the predictions for the cable, if it proves a success, were astonishing. Among other things it was stated that all television broadcasting companies could lease it. A total of 2,400 simultaneous telegraph messages could be sent over it and 240 telephone messages.

or by showing two features for the admission specified in the rider.

In return for adhering to these restrictions, the subscribing theatre is given increased protection over its direct competitors which do not maintain a reasonable admission scale or which employ either double features or giveaways. If the distributor breaches his part of the agreement, the subscribing theatre is entitled to a 50 per cent rebate on film rental providing the exhibitor himself has not breached the agreement. The rebate is applicable to rentals on pictures played following the breach of the agreement.

If the exhibitor breaches the agreement his benefits under the rider are automatically cancelled. In the event a competing theatre also using the rider violates its provisions, that theatre may have an action at law brought against it by either the distributor or its theatre competitor.

The rider, of course, may not be available to exhibitors from all distribution companies whose product is normally used in the course of a year, but even though available from only several companies many leading exhibitors believe it will serve to curb cut-rate and cut-throat competition in many cities to a considerable extent. While it was not disclosed which large circuits are using or will use the rider during the new season, it was intimated that M-G-M, Warners, Fox, Paramount and United Artists view the use of the rider with favor.

post in First Division. Brandt had been considered for the chairmanship of the board, along with a place in new financing arrangements for the company. The decision also means that Harry Thomas, First Division president, will continue to function as head of the company.

Indications are that First Division's new season activities will be along the lines of its original policy, involving the distribution of pictures from independent producers. While First Division may produce several features itself, it is believed that its activities will be confined largely to the distribution of product financed by Pathe.

A SPECIAL REQUEST FROM WARNER BROS. TO THE NEW YORK CRITICS

Please do not let the tremendous enthusiasm of the trade previewers influence you to exhaust all your superlatives on "BROADWAY GONDOLIER" at the N.Y. Strand tonight. Save plenty for "THE IRISH IN US," with Cagney, O'Brien, McHugh and Jenkins. Here are two slight indications that you'll need them–

Variety Daily

"Grand, heart-stirring . . . fine, unashamed sentiment, gusty comedy, homely reality and slap-bang action, all geared for the greatest amount of entertainment for the greatest number of folk and a sure sock at the box-office! . . . Terrific suspense build-up. Cagney has never had a better role. Pat O'Brien gives one of his top performances . . . Mary Gordon will probably start an Irish mother screen cycle. Olivia de Havilland . . . unquestionably is going places. Lloyd Bacon has done a grand job of direction."

Motion Picture Daily

"Here is one to raise the roof with audience mirth. Comedy and sentimentality mingle for a wild Irish hit. Mary Gordon scores as the waddling, sweet, peppery mother . . . Allen Jenkins draws howls as a dim-wit fighter who starts to slug every time he hears the bell. McHugh causes three tidal waves of laughter. Olivia de Havilland looks like a coming bet. . . . Sure box-office material emphasized for laughter and sentiment by Director Lloyd Bacon. You can go the limit on this. It should keep 'em howling."

"Ginger" and Show $19,000 Phila. High

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The two stage show houses came through last week to help the films to a respectable figure. With "Ginger" as the feature, the Fox knocked off $19,000 in seven days, almost enough to warrant holding for a second week.

The Earle, with "College Scandal" on the screen and Nick Lucas on the stage, grabbed a near $13,500, its best figure in several weeks.

Looking 'Em Over

"Danger Trail"

(Beacon)

While this western has small respect for intelligence and is a little dull in spots, it has enough deep-dyed villainy in it to get by with the youngsters. "Big Boy" Williams uses his fists to advantage and plays the hero acceptably enough.

Williams meets his father, a western badman, after many years. Pater had sent the boy away so that he might grow up unlike himself. Williams is badly disillusioned when he learns that dad and his foster-brothers are a bunch of brigands with a price on their heads. He decides to reform them, but gives up the idea when his father is killed by law officers while on his way to give himself up.

Williams vows to get even with the sheriff but can't go through with it. Through his efforts his cutthroat foster-brothers are brought to justice. This clears him in the sheriff's eyes and clinches his romance with his daughter.

Bob Hill directed the film, produced by Max and Arthur Alexander.

Production Code Seal No. 975. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"The Merry Monarch"

(Syndicate)

Produced by a French-English organization called Comptoir Francais Cinematographique, "The Merry Monarch" brings Emil Jannings back to these shores in a vehicle that gives small scope to his talents. Casting him as the jovial ruler of a mythical state with a wife for every day in the year, the film is obviously intended as satire. Its antics provide a laugh or two and its photography and settings are beautiful, having been filmed on the Riviera. Little more can be said in favor of the film. Several ensemble numbers have been worked into the film, but they are rather routine.

Jannings, who in the end decides to become a one-wife king, Sidney Fox being the lucky choice, is badly handicapped by the poor recording of the film.

To give a stronger romantic appeal to the picture a love match involving the king's daughter and a dashing young official of his realm has been threaded through the fabric of the satire. Jose Noguerro and Josette Day play the two lovers. The picture is based on "The Adventures of King Pausole" by Pierre Louys.

Alexis Granowsky directed. No production code seal. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"L'Ordonnance"

(France-Film)

Pathe-Natan has made a fine production of the Guy de Maupassant tale. Told with simplicity, feeling and tenderness,, "L'Ordonnance" ("The Colonel's Orderly") reveals itself as a tragedy of decided worth. The story has been photographed with artistry and acted out by a first-rate cast headed by Marcelle Chantal, now in Hollywood.

Mlle. Chantal plays a woman who loves not wisely but too well. Married to an elderly colonel (Alexandre Rignault) she enters into a liaison with a youthful lieutenant in her husband's regiment. The affair is discovered by the colonel's orderly (Georges Rigaud), who forces her to submit to his advances under threat of telling her husband. Revulsion at her degredation drives her to suicide. She leaves behind a letter of confession. The final scene shows the orderly being shot by the colonel.

The central character is played by Mlle. Chantal most effectively. Also in the cast are Fernandel, Paulette Dubost and Claude Lehman, who has the role of the lover. Simon Schiffrin deserves credit for his direction.

The picture has English subtitles.

No production code seal. Running time, 77 minutes. "A."

"L'Eredita dello Zio . . . Buonanima"

(Metropolis)

A hilarious farce comedy, "L'Eredita dello Zio . . . Buonanima," which has been given the English title of "The Rich Uncle," does credit to the Italian film industry. The picture, produced by Capitani Film of Rome, is a first class effort. Its humor is fresh, its acting superb, its photography and recording splendid. Angelo Musco, Italy's first comedian, dominates the film, turning in a grand performance.

Musco, a Sicilian of noble blood reduced in circumstances, believes his troubles are over when an uncle dies leaving a large fortune. A cousin, with whom he is at odds, feels just as certain the estate will be left to her. Everyone is kept guessing until the will is opened. Then

"Caliente," "Hero" $5,300 in Lincoln

LINCOLN, July 16.—Regular schedules were pretty well bungled last week and pictures finished after from three to five days' play.

"Caliente," at the Stuart, was in for a week originally, but opened on July 4 and got such heavy week-end and holiday play it was milked out in five and was replaced by "Public Hero No. 1," which in its five days ran the total gross to $5,300, $2,200 above the seven-day average. "Mark of the Vampire" and "Flame Within" at the Lincoln on a split were over average with $2,300, which is $100 to the good.

Coast Writers' Fight Brought Into Open

tiations now under way between the Academy and producers for a harmonious working agreement are illegal under the provisions of the national labor relations act, commonly termed as the Wagner bill. Pointing out that the passage of the Wagner bill presents new problems to the industry with respect to relations between producers and employes and that the President in signing the measure emphasized his desire the act be utilized in the interest of industrial peace through the use of collective bargaining for the settling of disputes, the letter expressed hearty accord with the President's statement, asserting that under the provisions of this law the guild is the sole legal agency for collective bargaining for writers.

In advising producers that the guild has 770 members against the Academy's 38, the letter stated Section 9-A of the act provides that a majority constitutes the sole legal consideration for collective bargaining power, making not only a majority representation mandatory, but also raising the serious question as to the producers' good faith in bargaining with 38 writers as against 770.

The letter also charged producers were directly violating Section 8 (2) of the Wagner bill by lending financial support to the writers' group with which they have been negotiating.

The guild expressed the desire to appoint a committee for collective bargaining on behalf of writers under the provisions of the bill and invited producers to do the same.

Ernest Pascal signed the letter on behalf of the guild's executive board.

Cleveland Group Is For New Dual Plan

Cleveland, July 16—A plan to dual any time all pictures not having played downtown first run was approved today at a meeting of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n. President Ernest Schwartz reported approximately 50 theatres had signed, 82 signatures being necessary to make the plan unanimous and binding.

Schwartz appointed Henry Greenberger, John Kalafat, Paul Gusdanovic, Morris Berkowitz and Frank Gross as a committee to draft a code of fair practice for the Cleveland area proposing to eliminate premiums, bargains and all other practices held detrimental. The committee was instructed to present a code draft at the next meeting of the group.

Suburb Bans Nights

Cleveland, July 16.—Cleveland Heights, exclusive residential suburb of this city, today passed an ordinance prohibiting all schemes of chance under penalty of up to $500. Law Director G. E. Hartshorne said the ordinance was inspired by a proposed bank night in the suburb.

Ohio Injunction Lifted

Youngstown, Ohio, July 16.—Common Pleas Court here today dissolved the temporary injunction against bank night at the State, where the plan resumes July 18. Six local houses filed a complaint charging unfair competition.

Looking 'Em Over

"L'Eredita dello Zio . . . Buonanima"

Musco discovers that, while he has been named sole heir, nothing will be left after bequests to his cousin and her three sons are taken care of. Later, however, he comes into possession of several bank books which were left by his uncle in care of a friend. In the end he makes his peace with his cousin.

The attachments of his three daughters and his cousin's boys give a touch of romance to the picture. The production also contains some pleasant music.

Supporting Musco are Elsa de Giorgi, Lulu Marinelli, Zoe Incrocci, Rosina Anselmi, Enrico Marrone, Adolfo Geri and Sandro del Signore.

Those who know Italian are certain to enjoy this film, which has been directed by Amleto Palermi.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Men of Action"

(Maurice Conn)

Hollywood, July 16.—This, the first of a series to co-star Frankie Darro and Roy Mason, has been given a production which makes it entirely suitable for dual bills and smaller towns.

Concerned with dam building, the story is timely and fast moving. Edwin Maxwell, financier, is anxious to block completion of a dam so that he may buy the fruit orchards it is to serve at a low price. He hires Fred Kohler to sabotage the work. At the dam Darro's father is killed in an explosion started by Kohler. Arthur Hoyt, the contractor, and Mason, the foreman, then organize a police force to protect the workers, with Darro promoted from waterboy to one of the uniformed force.

Barbara Worth, as Hoyt's daughter and Mason's sweetheart, installs a radio patrol system. Exciting action follows with the force arriving just in time to prevent Kohler's men from blowing up the dam. The photography, mostly outdoor shots, is good and Director Alan James creates a fast tempo in the chase sequences, of which there are several.

The supporting cast, which includes Gloria Shea and Syd Saylor, serve adequately. The original story is credited to Peter B. Kyne, with screen adaptation by Forrest Sheldon, John W. Kraft and Barry Barringer. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"At Your Service"

(Universal)

Oswald the Rabbit is the owner and operator of an automobile service station in this cartoon. His little nephew comes over to help him out and then the trouble starts. Cars go through the roof, tires are blown out right and left and pandemonium reigns. A short subject fit for any program. Running time, 8 mins. Production Code Seal, No. 754. "G."

"Three Lazy Mice"

(Universal)

This cartoon, done in color, has the well known fable of the "three blind mice" as the basis for its story as well as very appropriate musical accompaniment. It traces the career of the three mice too lazy to work who try various tricks to get out of it finally hitting upon playing blind. Then they hook up with a cat and in the end are only too glad to work and remain safe in their home. Highly recommended and particularly appealing to children. Production Code Seal, No. 704. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"My Girl Sally"

(Universal)

Sterling Holloway is his typical self here, but the comedy seems to be below the standard he set in previous members of this series. The picture is good entertainment, however, and Holloway fans will appreciate it. Sterling is a country yokel intent upon marrying millionaire Robert Grave's daughter. Her mother, on the other hand, wants her to marry a prince, who turns out to be phoney. A very funny hospital sequence winds up the picture, with Holloway winning out. Recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 819. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

Hoyts May Join With Fox In Australian Production

quota films was then more or less offset by Cinesound's announcement that it could supply the 20 pictures necessary to fulfil the 1935-36 quota if needed. Then independents took exception to Cinesound's stand on the ground that Cinesound, the company which had opposed the quota, while they had helped its passage, was now endeavoring to crowd the independents out and smother up the opportunities offered them by the law for which they had battled.

Hoyts' idea of going into production with Fox is viewed as being backed by sound reasoning. Fox holds a big interest in Hoyts, so that Fox will automatically share in any profits from any combined production enterprises here. Fox will be able to use the Fox-Hoyts' product to meet quota requirements, and if, as is proposed, Fox brings players from America, they will not only make pictures for the Fox-Hoyts organization, but also make personal appearances in Hoyts' city houses.

Hoyts do not intend to build their own studios, but will rent whatever local studios and production equipment are available. They do plan to import directors and technicians as well as players, however, with a view to making pictures of a sufficient box-office merit to ultimately justify inclusion in the regular Fox releases in the United States and Great Britain.

Unless they are able to secure sufficient locally produced films to fulfil their requirements under the N. S. W. law, it now seems clear that foreign distributors operating in this territory will be forced into Australian production.

The act says that distributors must acquire a certain percentage of quota pictures each year, and the word "acquire" is defined as including the "production or obtaining of films." Defining this passage in the regulations, Mr. Chaffey, Chief Secretary in N. S. W., told the Australian trade journal Everyones that under the law distributors are not compelled to manufacture pictures; "but the word 'acquire' has the meaning in the N. S. W. act as it has in the English Act. The spirit of the law is to encourage production. In England the distributors have joined in and acknowledged that spirit without the necessity for compulsion."

Chaffey declared that the Government expects distributors here to do the same. "We have no desire to embarrass them," he said, "but it is our definite intention that these people should participate in the interests of Australia and we hope it will not be necessary for us to take those drastic steps which the act empowers us to do if we see evasions or a campaign of non-cooperation."

In consequence of the confusion that still partly remains as to just what is the position of producers, distributors and exhibitors under the quota law, production has been at a standstill for more than six months. This will mean a shortage of quota film when the act comes into actual operation in 1936. Whereas exhibitors can escape their obligations if sufficient product is unavailable, it is now apparent that, under such circumstances, distributors won't escape so happily.

Clayton Sheehan, foreign sales manager for Fox, had no comment to make yesterday on the above dispatch.

tracks attract the money which would otherwise go for products and entertainment from those who actually attend the race meetings, but bookies continue to pile up increasing profits. fore the committee at all, will be taken in its routine stride as part of a study of the attitude of the courts in New York in receivership proceedings generally, it was said. The company's reorganization is neither better nor worse than many others which have taken place under the bankruptcy reorganization act and, further, is being thoroughly probed by the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was pointed out.

Charging that lawyers were attempting to "milk" Paramount, Senator Nye of North Dakota declared that the case "calls for thorough investigation by Congress and legislation that will protect companies in difficulties from being milked by lawyers, who get theirs even if the rest go broke.

Attention of the McAdoo committee was focused on the Paramount case when the Securities and Exchange Commission at its hearings last month developed that members of "protective" committees had profited by trading in the company's securities at a time when they were supposed to be working for the protection of bondholders.

May Lead to Legislation

This disclosure, it was said, might lead to enactment of legislation next session outlawing such practices and also requiring that members of protective committees be actual holders of the stocks or bonds they were to protect, it having been shown that some of the Paramount committee members had never owned any of the company's securities.

While the Paramount case has served to center attention upon alleged abuses of the bankruptcy reorganization act, it is said that similar practices have been uncovered in a number of other bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings.

The discovery of these abuses, it was revealed, was the basis for the introduction of the resolution to broaden the investigation by the McAdoo committee, Senator McAdoo believing that the original resolution was not adequate for a study of all the ramifications of receivership proceedings which have been uncovered.

May Probe Paramount

Washington, July 16—A Senate investigation of the Paramount bankruptcy and reorganization was declared by Senator William G. McAdoo today to be a possibility.

McAdoo, who heads the Senate special committee for investigating receivership and bankruptcy proceedings, said that the Paramount case was brought to his attention through the filing of applications for more than $3,000,000 in fees by lawyers and others who participated in the Paramount proceedings.

Fox Unable To Produce Private Books

And there are other officers of the firm joined with Fox as defendants.

Under questioning by George Richards, counsel for the Fox Theatre Corp., Fox admitted at the outset of the examination that he could not produce his record books. Herbert Leitstein, an employe of the firm, kept them for him, he said. He added they disappeared when he retired from the firm. Questioning disclosed that Fox paid Leitstein $80,000 after his change of employment from the theatre offices to the role of Fox's personal bookkeeper.

Fox, in dark green sport coat, white trousers and shoes, and heavy black glasses, sat at one end of the counsel table close to Edwards, while Richards fired questions at him from the opposite end. Repeatedly he joked and laughed, and once he commented, "I was a better man in those days."

Fox testified he could not remember whether or not he had borrowed $1,057,000 from the corporation to buy 42,300 shares of stock at $25 a share. When he was shown a copy of his bank account dated Jan. 6, 1926, and indicating a deposit and withdrawal of $1,057,000, he said his recollection was not refreshed.

Tells of Hiring Friend

Later Fox testified he had hired a personal friend, Alexander S. Kempener, at a salary of $40,000 a year, from 1925 to 1930. He told Edwards, Kempener was paid from his personal account, and the theatre magnate maintained he did not discover the alleged error until the latter year. Then, he said, he was reimbursed to the extent of $135,000.

A similar situation, Fox said, existed concerning Jacob W. Loeb, manager of Actors' Personnel. Loeb, too, he asserted, was paid from his personal books, and at the end of the five-year period, Fox said, he collected $119,000 in reimbursements.

Fox denied he had used his executive authority to water the corporation's stock or divert it from sale to the general public, he denied the issues had been intended for sale to the public and maintained the brokers were authorized to sell at $25 a share, with a $3 profit on each share for themselves. He did admit, however, that he was to receive 25 per cent of what the brokers made on commission after their costs were deducted.

"I could have gotten $10,000,000 for the theatre property," he said, "but I decided to take $8,000,000."

Justice Meier Steinbrink signed the order directing the examination before trial on Jan. 16, this year, appointing Edwards official referee with the task of accumulating testimony relating to the complaint. The examination is upon 105 separate matters relating to the financial setup of the Fox Theatre Corp., the theatre magnate's personal negotiations in respect to salaries of employes, by-laws of the firm, real estate transactions and general conduct of the business.

As voluminous as the specifications for the pre-trial quiz is the complaint against Fox and the co-defendants, Jack G. Leo, Eva Fox, Carolyn Leaf Tauszig, John Zanft, Jacob L. Rubenstein and Bessie Livingstone, all of them connected with the company before its admission to receivership.

Prefacing the specific charges against Fox and his colleagues, the complaint reviews the setup of the corporation as follows: capital stock of 4,000,000 shares of common, of which 3,900,000 represented Class A, and 100,000 Class B, increased on Sept. 23, 1929, to 7,400,000 shares of Class A common and 100,000 shares of Class B.

The counts against Fox include the following:

That from Nov. 10, 1925, when the corporation was organized until April, 1930, Fox possessed the entire voting power of all of the voting stock of the corporation; that, during that same period, Fox caused the board of directors of the firm to consist of himself and various employes, among them several of his relatives; that he exercised complete domination over the board; that he conceived the plan of using the corporation for "his own enrichment, principally through the means of dealing in and with, and manipulating the stock of the corporation," and contemplated accordingly the distribution of large quantities of Class A stock.

Charges Misleading Statements

Also that Fox made numerous false and fraudulent statements to the corporation and its stockholders; that on Nov. 11, 1925, he entered into a secret agreement with Eisele & King, Taylor, Thorne & Co., brokers, whereby he was to receive 25 per cent of the commissions earned through the sale of 500,000 shares of Class A stocks at $25 a share; that he agreed the $40,000 salary of Loeb would be recharged against his personal account, yet contrived to cause the corporation to reimburse him to the extent of $120,000 for Loeb's compensation during three years.

Also that, during February and March, 1925, when the stock was selling on the New York Curb at over $25 a share, he failed to encourage buying and boost the stock, dealing instead "for private enrichment" with private pools; that, at the time of the panic, in the course of his stock market operations, he had accumulated in various accounts a large number of Class A shares; that such stock so accumulated consisted to a large extent of stock which the defendant had purchased through subscription from the corporation at $25 a share and which he had "washed" through various of his other accounts into the "transferred" accounts consisting of accounts standing in the names of Fox, Leo, Eva Fox (Fox's wife), and Bessie Livingstone (the wife of one of the employes of the plaintiff corporation); that Fox told the directors he was entitled to receive $1,600,000 as salary for services.

Lincoln Men See No Hope in a New Code

LINCOLN, July 16.—A voluntary code won't work, in the opinion of exhibitor leaders here. It can't be enforced, they say.

Calvin Bard, former head of Independent Theatres, Inc., is sarcastic about the suggestion.

"I have always been in favor of a code of fair practice," he said, "but I don't see how this can amount to anything. I went to Washington in good faith on the other one and came away with nothing. There'll never be a good code as long as chain management has a stranglehold on buying and selling. We should have a means of getting recourse under a board setup which we can now get only through costly court procedure."

Robert Livingston, Capitol manager, considers enforcement essential.

"I'd like to see a workable code that nobody can break," he declared. "I'm in this business to make money and I'm not against the other guy making money, too. But there are too many monkeys in this business who'd rather lose a grand than see some guy earn a meal ticket."

Leichter Finishes First

HOLLYWOOD, July 16.—Mitch Leichter, in charge of production for Beaumont Pictures, has finished the first of a series of eight westerns starring Conway Tearle. It is "Trail's End."

Others which are to follow for 1935-36 release will be: "Desert Guns," "Senior Jim," "Whistling Scull," "Judgment Rock," "Hell's Haciendas," "Three Fingers" and "Devil's Goal."

Roy Brown Recovers

HARLAN, Ia., July 16.—Roy Brown, widely known exhibitor in this section of Iowa, has returned from Rochester, Minn., where he had gone for treatment. It was his second trip. He is reported practically recovered.

MPTOA Urges Local Efforts On Regulation

While the national organization would participate in efforts to draft such a code, its leaders, nevertheless, believe that much more effective regulatory measures might be realized more readily through localized effort.

M. P. T. O. A., therefore, is recommending to its member units that they proceed at once to work out plans for solving the most pressing trade practice problems in their localities, either by negotiations with distributors or by organizational agreements. The units are urged to take up such problems singly, solving one before passing on to the next.

It is pointed out by spokesmen for M. P. T. O. A. that the solving of trade practice problems through exhibitor-distributor negotiation has been thwarted in the past by the advice given distributors by their attorneys that such negotiations may result in violations of the anti-trust laws. M. P. T. O. A., however, believes that numerous examples of cut-throat competition now in vogue in the industry need to be stamped out and can be without a violation of anti-trust laws, company attorneys notwithstanding.

Cooperation Seen Likely

That the organization may get some distributor cooperation in its program is indicated by a growing sentiment among company heads which holds that certain practices need to be corrected and should be, and if they are not lawsuits and state and Federal regulation of the industry may develop regardless. Sidney R. Kent, Fox president, is reported to have given expression to this viewpoint recently in declaring that legal advice was checkmating many proper advances which might be made by the industry.

"I have found," Kent is reported to have said, "that I am in court oftener after listening to the advice of a lawyer than I am when I see something that needs doing and proceed to do it myself."

It is also pointed out that several trade practice problems of major import might be solved by organized exhibitors in local situations without distributors being called in to participate in the negotiations at all. An example cited was the possibilitiy of clearance and zoning schedules being agreed upon by exhibitors through mutual concessions. If first runs agreed to reduce protection taken by them in return for the maintenance of higher admissions or the elimination of duals or premiums by subsequents, complete clearance and zoning schedules might be drawn for numerous localities without a distributor ever being called in. If a first run agreed to reduce its protection to three or four weeks, no distributor, it is felt, would force the house to take five or six weeks, yet such a concession is regarded as being the key to the successful setting up of clearance and zoning schedules in many spots by exhibitors themselves.

Court Paring Of Para. Fees Is Looked For

Criticism Is General; Hearing on Today

A court rebuke of lawyers, protective committees and others who have applied for fees aggregating $3,222,226 for services in the Paramount bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings is predicted for today when the hearings on the applications open before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

The prediction is based upon a warning given the attorneys by Judge Coxe last month in setting a date for the filing of the applications for allowances. At that time Judge Coxe advised the lawyers to make applications for reasonable amounts, warning them against a "public scandal"

M. P. Club Revival To Be Aim in Fall

Efforts will be made to revive the Motion Picture Club in the fall. There is no definite plan afoot, but individuals active in the club, such as Felix Feist and Louis Nizer, among others, are harboring the conviction that the club can be resuscitated on a substantial financial basis when the cool weather arrives. The Astor Hotel is being looked upon as a likely home.

Withdrawal Amicable, He Says, After Talking To Kent, Schenck

Hollywood, July 17. — Winfield Sheehan resigned as vice-president and general manager of production for Fox this afternoon. His withdrawal, he said, followed an amicable agreement between himself, Sidney Kent, president, and Joseph M. Schenck, recently named chairman of the board, as one of the steps in the merger of Fox and 20th Century. While no successor was announced, all indications are Darryl Zanuck will replace Sheehan.

Sheehan will complete "Way Down East," which has about three weeks to go as a result of delays following injuries to Janet Gaynor. He has no plans at present, he says, other than to take a vacation, following which he will give consideration to two or three offers which he described as important.

It has been reported here that he has been offered a producer's berth at M-G-M.

Sheehan's contract, it is understood, had about a year and a half to run and gave him the title of general

Allied Sees No Hope for Cooperation

Washington, July 17. — Independent exhibitors must not look to New York for any hope of cooperation in their search for means of solving the problems confronting them, says Allied in its latest bulletin.

"The time evidently is not ripe for cooperation at the top," asserts the bulletin. "All efforts since 1929 to arrive at agreements with the industry heads in New York have failed. The conviction has grown that certain interests in the producer ranks who flourish on strife have been instrumental in kicking over all attempts at a fair setup.

"It would seem, therefore, that the first steps in enlightened cooperation will have to be taken in the territories and not in New York. The principals stand convicted of bad faith; the

British Film Making Boom On—Norton

Production in England has increased tremendously in the past few months. So much so, said Capt. Richard Norton of British and Dominions Pictures, who is here for a three-day visit, that there is practically no studio space available at all in England today. More independent producers have come to the fore than ever before, Norton continued, and with every stage in the country now in use the number of English pictures presented to the American market will be greater this coming year than heretofore, since everyone seems to be making pictures with an eye on this market.

"Unfortunately," Norton continued, "these independent producers will probably run into difficulties over here because of a lack of distributors for their product. Their distribution in

Phila. Council Will Act on Open Sunday

PHILADELPHIA, July 17. — With petitions being widely circulated in theatres and by hotelmen's and restaurant associations and the Philadelphia Boosters, the Sunday show question will get another boost on Thursday from Councilman Clarence Crossan who has promised to introduce a bill into City Council forcing the question on the ballot in the November election.

Predictions are that such a bill will pass the council and thus automatically render it unnecessary to get signatures of five percent of last year's electorate on petitions. It is not believed, however, that the petitions will be withdrawn from circulation, as they furnish an excellent means to keep interest in the measure hot until November, as well as giving a good showing of strength on the proposition.

Equity for Sliding Scales for Players keeping worthy shows in financial difficulties from folding up.

Equity's proposal is that "after the first two weeks of a play's run all salaries should be on a sliding scale proportionate to the total receipts of the production." "At some point on that scale all players would receive their contractual salaries," the editorial adds. "As receipts rose above or fell below that point salaries would be increased or decreased in accordance with their variance from that point of normal balance."

Pointing out that in the past players "have unanimously declined to consider any sliding scales because they declared, quite correctly, that they slid only one way," the editorial asserts that "if they now had a chance to better their contractual salaries when connected with a hit they might well give serious consideration to the plan."

Under the plan, according to Actors' Equity, "the producer would be insured against crippling losses, and for that should be willing to have his books studied to determine debits and credits, including a standard method of bookkeeping."

Klorer Is Named as Censor in Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—John D. Klorer, editor of Senator Huey P. Long's American Progress, was yesterday appointed a member of the state board of censors in place of A. W. Newling, who declined the post offered him. The first meeting of the board is set for July 28.

Senator Long today said, "Producers must show first runs in Louisiana. The industry will not be permitted to dump second class pictures on us after they have been barred elsewhere."

agents in the field, if unmolested, may show the way."

The opinion is expressed by Allied that "there is apparently no sentiment for a voluntary code outside of the paid employes of the late lamented Code Authority who are seeking to attach themselves to the industry.

"This is not due to the abandonment of the long-cherished concepts of helpful industry cooperation," the organization believes. "It is due to resentment over the imposed code and lack of confidence in certain of the administrators thereof. Plans for perpetuating producer domination of industry tribunals and keeping certain members and attaches of Code Authority in the saddle will not meet with approval."

It is maintained by Allied that "ways and means must be found to litigate to a final determination the right of the independent theatre owner to continue in business." "Compared to this," it asserts, "all activities in behalf of the exhibitors pale into insignificance."

Touching on the Pettengill anti-block booking measure pending in Congress, the bulletin declares that "the feverish efforts to discredit the bill by misrepresentation show the panic into which the 'Big Eight' have been thrown by the wide popular support which the bill is receiving."

Amusements Put in New NRA Grouping

Peebles, former division administrator for public utilities, as director, and William P. Farnsworth, former deputy administrator of the amusements divison, as assistant director.

Officials of the NRA said the new division would be primarily a contact with industry and probably would cooperate with the Federal Trade Commission in the negotiation of trade practice agreements, since the commission would be without adequate personnel in the event a number of industries simultaneously sought agreements.

The creation of the division was part of the program for skeletonizing the NRA, which eventually will be cut down to about 1,000 employes. There is a possibility that if there is widespread interest in trade agreements it may be transferred bodily to the commission.

RKO Hearing Delayed

A state court hearing scheduled for yesterday on cross motions in connection with the recent arbitration award in favor of the Hollywood and Apollo against RKO was postponed until tomorrow. The landlord of the theatres, both under lease to RKO, is seeking to have the court confirm the arbitrators' awards. RKO will ask to have the awards set aside as unjustified.

THE PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Because its New York engagement has definitely established it as the biggest of BETTE DAVIS' four consecutive hits, Warner Bros.' swift-moving newspaper comedy, 'FRONT PAGE WOMAN', heads the list of the week's screen releases. The extraordinary work of star-reporter Bette, George Brent, Roscoe Karns, Winifred Shaw, Director Michael Curtiz, is aptly recommended by Manhattan critics as 'a tonic for the mid-July doldrums'. Released July 20th.

Fox Hearing Will Continue in Secret

MINEOLA, L. I., July 17.—The examination before trial of William Fox will continue Monday in Nassau Supreme Court here behind closed doors.

The "visitors not welcome" edict that will make the remaining two or three weeks of the pre-trial inquiry into Fox's conduct of Fox Theatre Corp. and his financial manipulations a closed proceeding was announced at the start of the third day of the questioning today by former Nassau District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, official referee presiding at the examination.

Reporters entered the courtroom today early, prepared for another day of hearing the theatre magnate give answers to the 107 questions called for in the examination before trial specifications. Edwards saw the news men and called a halt, explaining that there would be no outsiders at the hearing.

"By unanimous consent of counsel for all sides," he stated, "I have been requested to continue this examination behind closed doors. There was nothing for me to do but order the doors closed.

"I am not at liberty to say who moved for the executive hearings, because it was unanimous. The order of the court, of course, binds all counsel involved not to discuss the proceedings with the press after the session, not until a report is submitted to the Supreme Court."

How Ban Came About

The ex-prosecutor thereupon explained that it is not customary to hold an examination before trial in public, because the pre-trial quiz is merely for the purpose of providing attorneys with specific information pending a formal public trial on the main issues involved. Until yesterday, he indicated, proceedings were public because none of the parties made any objections to the presence of reporters.

What prompted the ban on reporters, it was understood, was the early invasion of the courtroom by a photographer, intent upon taking Fox's picture. Fox ducked the picture-taking, protested vigorously, and thereupon he and his counsel, Benjamin Reass, demanded that the press and photographers should not "harass" him.

The complaint upon which the examination before trial is based charges Fox in over 100 separate paragraphs with deliberately mismanaging the Fox theatre enterprises for his own "personal enrichment," alleging among other things that he put his personal friends and relatives on the company's payroll at huge salaries and endeavored to profit from sale of the company's stock by engineering a secret agreement with brokers whereby he was to secure 25 per cent of commissions on the Fox securities they sold.

Fox has entered denials to all of the charges, and when the case is tried in Nassau Supreme Court in the fall, he will have his counsel press a counter-claim against the plaintiffs, stockholders and creditors. The counter-claim asks for $250,000 for compensation allegedly due and $1,954,485.72, representing stock transactions against the plaintiffs, plus the value of 87,000 shares of Class A common stock of Fox Theatres Corp. with interest from Feb. 27, 1929.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"We're in the Money"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.—Loaded with hokum and crammed with slapstick reminiscent of the Keystone cop era, this picture should fill the bill as an adequate laugh getter and should set well with audiences who like their entertainment lighter and funnier.

Following the precedent as a flippant dame combination, Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell team as two "never say die" process servers. Hugh Herbert as an absent-minded attorney who employs the girls augments the laugh situations.

The story centers around four breach of promise suits filed by Anita Kerry, a golddigger. Miss Blondell and Miss Farrell pass out three subpoenas in short order but hit a snag on the last one when Blondell discovers her chauffeur lover is none other than wealthy Ross Alexander, who happens to be the victim of the fourth subpoena. From here on the slapstick flies wide and handsome, featuring wild automobile dashes, fast rides in runaway boats and people throwing each other into the ocean a la Keystone. A wrestling match between "Man Mountain" Dean and Chief Pontiac should bring down the house. The romance turns out as expected in the first reel but the audience won't care.

Director Raymond Enright keeps the story moving for chuckles. F. Hugh Herbert and Brown Holmes gave the screen play the works, adapting from George R. Bilson's original. Arthur Todd's photography is good.

Production Code Seal No. 1061. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"The Black Room"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.—A milder than average Boris Karloff chiller, this picture may have enough to satisfy most horror fans.

The story concerns twin brothers, overlords of a Bavarian estate, cursed from birth with the tradition that the younger will kill the elder in the castle black room. Karloff, portraying both roles, depicts the older twin as a sadistic fiend and the younger as kindly and amiable. When the villagers demand the life of the elder twin for wrongs done them, Karloff agrees to abdicate in favor of the younger. Instead, however, he murders his brother, assuming his identity which is defined by a paralyzed right arm.

When Thurston Hall discovers the ruse through seeing Karloff use the arm, the latter murders him, placing the blame on Robert Allen, the sweetheart of Marian Marsh, Hall's daughter. Then Karloff, about to marry Miss Marsh, is identified by his dead brother's dog, who knocks him into a pit in the black room, impaling him on a sword in the hand of the murdered twin as the lovers reunite.

Director Roy William Neill handles the mechanics of the plot nicely and the production of Robert North supplies some good 19th century backgrounds. The screen play, by Arthur Strawn and Henry Myers, from the former's original, introduces some clever dialogue.

Should satisfy but not for de luxe houses as suitable horror entertainment.

Production Code Seal No. 1009. Running time, 69 minutes. "A."

"Manhattan Moon"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.—As drama dealing with character doubles this one should prove a suitable feature for double bills.

Dorothy Page plays a French actress who loathes her public. She also plays a tough little New Yorker hired to meet and rebuff the fans. When Ricardo Cortez, a night club owner raised by his own bootstraps from poverty, sees the actress he falls hard and fast. Through the services of a shady socialite (Henry Mollison) he arranges a meeting with the actress by threatening to expose the society man's bad check activities. First Cortez meets the double, then the star. Complications become intricate when Regis Toomey, the double's boy friend, goes on a rampage.

Miss Page, known as a radio singer, is pretty and adequate in the dual role in spite of her average song numbers. Mollison, another newcomer, impresses with his excellent work. The support includes Hugh O'Connell, Luis Alberni and Henry Armetta. The story is by Robert Harris and the screen play by Harry Trivers and Ben Grasman Kohn. Stuart Walker directed and Stanley Bergerman produced.

Production Code Seal No. 1047. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Deery to Appeal in Salem Theatre Case

BOSTON, July 17.—John A. Deery, Salem and Haverhill exhibitor, said today he would appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that he must serve one year and a day for violation of the National Banking Act in aiding and abetting misappropriation of $131,000 loaned to the Salem Realty Co. which is about to take back four houses from Paramount.

Deery is president of the company. He recently served another sentence because of irregularities in connection with the company.

The court said: "It was evidently the understandig that the lease to Olympia Theatres, Inc., should be assigned to the bank, but, although the lease was found in the files of the bank, no written assignment of it was found."

Deery is out on $10,000 bail pending appeal.

Four in St. Louis Closed for Summer

ST. LOUIS, July 17.—The Grand Central has closed for the summer and the Shubert and Orpheum, Warner first runs, have reverted to a single feature basis.

Detroiters Held on Lottery Complaint

DETROIT, July 17.—Jacob Schreiber, owner of the Colonial, and George Buckley, employe, must stand trial on charges of operating a lottery in violation of state laws in connection with raffling off cash prizes, it was decided here today. Judge Thomas Cotter, in reviewing the complaint against the theatre, ruled there was cause for action and the matter one for a jury to decide. The defendants were held under $500 bonds.

Bank nights and screeno were not involved in the case.

N. E. Openings Gaining

BOSTON, July 17.—Theatre openings in New England continue to outnumber closings. M. P. Watts has put the Town Hall in Bradford, N. H., back on the active list. Hoar and Pollack have opened the Acme in Belgrade, Me., and the Star at Newmarket, N. H., has been darkened by H. Haywood. J. Rabinowitz closed the Gem in Arctic, R. I., recently and in Northeast Harbor, Me., the Pastime has been opened by Newell Kurson.

W. C. Fields Re-Signed

HOLLYWOOD, July 17.—Paramount has signed W. C. Fields to a new long term contract. The comedian is scheduled to start on a new picture in November, and will rest until then. He has not fully recovered from his illness.

Court Paring Of Para. Fees Is Looked For

in the event his advice was ignored and exorbitant fees were asked. He also informed them at the time that the fullest publicity would be given the applications in advance of today's hearing. The size of the fees sought and the official and newspaper attention drawn to them during the past week have attracted much attention.

That the court will also see fit to make drastic reductions in the applications prior to authorizing payment of any fees is also freely predicted, largely on the basis of the past record of the court in passing upon the interim allowances sought from time to time by lawyers and trustees during the two and one-half years of the Paramount bankruptcy proceedings. It is pointed out that while applications for almost $2,000,000 in fees have been presented to the court heretofore, payments aggregating only $458,029 were actually authorized by the court. If the final applications now before the court receive like or nearly so treatment, the $3,222,226 of such applications may be reduced to approximately $1,000,000 before being allowed by the court. Inasmuch as the Paramount reorganization plan set aside $2,500,000 for the expenses of administration and reorganization, out of which fund the present applications would be paid, a final allowance of approximately $1,000,000 could hardly be regarded exorbitant.

Lawyers Expect Reduction

That the attorneys represented by the applications before the court themselves expect some such proportionate reduction to be made, and that this expectancy accounts in large part for the size of the fees asked, is freely admitted in many of the legal circles involved. Aware from past experience that applications for bankruptcy fees are habitually reduced by one-half or two-thirds before being allowed by the court, and that many applications are denied in their entirety, most attorneys fix the amount of fees sought accordingly. That is, it is customary to ask for a fee two to three times what they regard as reasonable remuneration for their services in order that the sum finally allowed them by the court will approximate what they think they should actually get.

Paramount, nevertheless, has retained former Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher to oppose all applications regarded as excessive. Numerous other attorneys in the situation have also indicated that they, too, will oppose the allowance of fees sought by others independently of directions from Paramount.

Joyce Disapproves Two Para. Claims

Bros., New England theatre operators, for $127,500 for contingent liability on a mortgage on the Rivoli, Chicopee, Mass., and that of Lawrence Berenson, attorney, for $35,400 for legal services in connection with a Paramount stockholders' suit to restrain the company from repurchasing its own stock in accordance with agreements entered into between 1927 and 1930. Berenson contended that he had performed a beneficial service for the estate in this action. It was proposed to settle his claim for $20,000.

Joyce, in vetoing both settlements, held that the Goldsteins might be realizing a profit on the terms offered them and that the Berenson claim was of doubtful validity. The proposals to settle both claims were worked out with the claimants by the Paramount trustees and their counsel, Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine. So far as is known, these are the first of the scores of claims settlements worked out in the Paramount proceedings to be rejected in their entirety by the special master.

Judge Coxe yesterday approved claims settlements against Paramount aggregating more than $800,000. A claim of the Commercial Investment Trust Co. for $503,000 was allowed at the compromise amount of $382,000. A claim of the Salem Realty Corp. for $299,189 was allowed at an appreciable reduction, and an adjustment of a claim by George L. Rapp, Chicago theatre architect, was allowed at $4,000 after deducting from the original claim certain debts owed by Rapp to the Paramount Broadway Corp.

Looking 'Em Over

"McGlusky, the Sea Rover"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, July 10.—The Flagg and Quirt formula, applied to a story with shipboard and desert backgrounds. A. G. Hales authored the original story, one of a series exploiting McGlusky, an Irish tough of heroic mold, here played by Jack Doyle, the boxer. Henry Mollison is his captain, rival and sparring partner.

McGlusky stows away on the ship Sea Lion with a boy protege and a dog. He lays out the bos'n who kicks the dog and then gets the worst of a fight with the captain. Made bos'n, he becomes accomplice to the captain's scheme to run machine guns to Arabs in revolt, but quarrels with his superior officer about a harem beauty whom the other brings aboard and finally leaves the ship in an eastern port.

The rough-housing is pretty well done and fortunately it's more important than the story. Mollison acts excellently and Doyle well enough; the others are not so hot.

Pretty crude stuff, but the action may get it by in neighborhood houses. Running time, 60 minutes. "G." ALLAN

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—This town went into a heat wave last week with only two attractions showing strength. "Love Me Forever," which ran up to $21,000, over par by $3,000, at the Paramount was the stronger of the two.

"Becky Sharp" reached $12,000, over the line by $4,000, at the Hillstreet, but failed to pull Warners' Hollywood out of its slump. The take there was $12,250, under par by $1,750.

Sheehan Quits As Production Head for Fox

manager of production. Terms of the settlement were not divulged.

In a statement announcing Sheehan's resignation Kent said "an amicable settlement has been affected between the company and himself." The termination of Sheehan's contract had come about through his own wishes and was settled with regret, it was stated by Kent, who added an honest difference of opinion had brought about the resignation—a difference which, according to him, was in no way personal but had to do with the new setup of Fox-20th Century and the operation of its studios.

Kent asserted the company recognized Sheehan's position and his viewpoint. The statement declared that Kent would be ungrateful if he did not publicly acknowledge the fine relationship that existed between Sheehan and himself and that he and Fox were grateful for Sheehan's efforts during the years of the rehabilitation of the corporation which resulted in its present favorable condition.

Kent stated Sheehan's resignation did not forecast any shakeup in personnel, asserting he expected the present executive setup to remain unchanged.

"I and the corporation," Kent declared, "extend our best wishes to Mr. Sheehan in any endeavor he undertakes. This matter has been settled amicably and leaves a good feeling with all of us who have been involved in it."

Sheehan will not leave the studio until he finishes "Way Down East," of which he will be in complete charge, Kent stated.

The Fox president expressed appreciation also of the efforts of Sol Wurtzel and other Fox producers.

Fox Enlists His Services

Sheehan and Fox have been synonymous almost since the start of the company. William Fox had advanced only nine years from his nickelodeon days and was just beginning to acquire theatres when he decided he needed Sheehan, who then was something of a political figure as secretary to Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo and had made a name for himself as a reporter on the old Morning World.

He brought something new into the business—a shrewd sense of the news values of exploitation and their application to sales methods. He put Theda Bara on the front page and then buckled down to the more serious work of organizing the exchange system of Fox, first in this country and then throughout the rest of the world—reputedly the first of its kind. In January, 1914, he was general manager for Fox.

Fox at that time had a good selling organization, but lacked the right kind of pictures to keep it out front in a swiftly changing business, so Sheehan in 1915 started the West Coast producing organization and Fox Newsreel followed a couple of years later.

About 12 years ago he decided to take personal charge of production and before the advent of sound he had produced four of the outstanding films of the period—"What Price Glory," "Seventh Heaven," "Sunrise" and "Four Devils." Shortly after sound came in he became impatient with the limitations of soundproof stages and set out to make the first outdoor sound picture, "In Old Arizona." It put Warner Baxter back on the high road to popularity and injected new confidence into the company. "The Cock-Eyed World," which came shortly afterwards, was one of the biggest grossers of the boom period which preceded 1929 and is still regarded as a mark to shoot at.

His name has been connected since then with "Sunnyside Up," "Bad Girl," "State Fair," "Cavalcade," "The World Moves On," "Marie Galante," "Servants' Entrance," "One More Spring," "The Farmer Takes a Wife" and others.

Sheehan Possesses Daring

Daring has been one of his attributes. In the hectic days following the advent of sound he set out to build a whole new plant adapted to microphone use, and, by working contractors night and day, had most of it in operation within 90 days.

Prior to the advent of Kent as head of the corporation, Sheehan's word was absolute law in all production matters and his influence in other departments of the company, even under the Harley L. Clark regime, was important. He spent his days handling studio detail and most of his nights viewing "rushes" at his home.

In times of stress he had a way of pushing himself and his fellow-workers to a point of exhaustion that frazzled his own and the nerves of his associates, but in periods of relaxation his keen sense of humor and his charm came to the fore again and the net result was a group of men and women in the organization who were personally loyal to him above everything else.

Since Kent became company head, independent producers — Jesse L. Lasky, Robert T. Kane, Sol Wurtzel and John Stone—have shared the production reins to varying degrees.

After it became known that Fox and 20th Century would merge, with Schenck as board chairman and Zanuck as a producer with practically unlimited powers, most industry observers felt it would be only a short time before Sheehan would resign.

Analyze N. E. Time Change Sentiments

BOSTON, July 17.—Theatremen are interested in an ERA survey just completed here that shows only 52.68 per cent of the people in New England are in favor of daylight saving time, whereas 47.32 oppose it.

It was brought out by the survey that city areas favor daylight saving by 67 per cent to 33 per cent. Rural sections are 74 per cent against, however. While city men favor it in 74 per cent of the cases, only 55 per cent of housewives agree. Rural men oppose the action by 65 per cent, while their women are 87 per cent against it.

The time the extra hour of daylight gives for outdoor recreation is the reason 64 per cent of those voting for daylight saving gave for their action. Ten per cent believe that it saves electricity. Another 10 per cent contends that it gives opportunity to finish more work, while 16 per cent favor it for health reasons.

The one with a voice most closely approximating that of Dick Powell, who is starred in the film, will get first prize, consisting of a spot on a sustaining program—for pay, 'tis said. There will be two other prizes.

Thomas Meighan was reported progressing favorably last night at Doctors' Hospital, where he was operated upon last week for an obstruction of the bronchial tube.

British Film Making Boom On—Norton

England will be taken care of, however."

When asked about his own company's production, Norton revealed that he was planning eight pictures for next season's release in this country. United Artists, distributor of all his previous pictures here, will also handle his entire American group, he asserted.

"The real reason for my visit here at this time," Norton explained, "is to personally discuss our future pictures with Al Lichtman and Maurice Silverstone. I have three films in mind at present and I won't make any at all for release here until I have discussed them with Lichtman. We would have started production by now, but unfortunately we rented our studios and they won't be available until September."

Norton was more than pleased with the reception Elisabeth Bergner's "Escape Me Never" received in this country. "It was most successful in practically every town it played in this country," he said, "and the reports that reached us in England pleased us very much."

Norton plans no future pictures with Miss Bergner, however, for she is under exclusive contract to Joseph M. Schenck and the latter, along with the star and her director-husband, Paul Czinner, are at present drawing up their own company to turn out her pictures. All their production is to be done in England, according to present plans, and probably at the British and Dominion plant.

Norton plans to sail for home Saturday on the Ile de France, provided his conferences with Lichtman and Silverstone are concluded by then. Silverstone, accompanied by Mrs. Silverstone and his brother, Emanuel, who is the local representative of London Films, also plan to sail with Norton.

Edward G. Levy presided and Barney Calechman of the Howard presented a motion picture camera on behalf of those present. Speeches were by Dr. Fishman, Abe Fishman, Harry L. Lavietes, Michael Tomasino, and heckling was by Arthur Lockwood and Jack Byrne.

A farewell dinner at the Racebrook Club was also tendered to Samuel Calechman of the Howard Theatre Co., who sails with Dr. Fishman.

"Escapade" Is Kansas City's Top, $15,000

Kansas City, July 17.—"Escapade" at the Midland was the cool breeze in a week of high temperatures and only fair grosses at downtown first run theatres. This M-G-M offering grossed $3,000 over a normal for eight days of $12,000. A big July 4th helped.

"Let 'Em Have It," third shown here in the government dick cycle, did an average $8,000 in a seven-day run at the Mainstreet.

Total first run business was $39,800. Average is $38,300.

Canadian Managers Shift

Winnipeg, July 17. — The departure of Phil Sherman for New Haven, Conn., has brought about the appointment of Dave Griesdorf of Vancouver as manager of the United Artists' exchange at Winnipeg. Eddie Teal, on the Fox staff at Winnipeg for the past five years, has been appointed manager of the Fox office at Vancouver.

Canadian Universal has appointed William Popham supervisor of its Starland and College Theatres at Winnipeg, with Harry Hutchings being appointed house manager of the College in the promotions.

Scamahorn to Republic

Los Angeles, July 17.—Lee R. Scamahorn has joined Republic as salesman. Scamahorn was with Paramount for 17 years, and for two years was assistant to Col. Jason Joy at the Hays office.

M.J. McCarthy Joins G.B.

Los Angeles, July 17.—M. J. McCarthy, assistant booker at the Fox Exchange, has resigned to join G. B. as head booker. He replaces Harry Goodwin, who has been made a salesman.

Jack Mundstuk Promoted

Cleveland, July 17.—M-G-M has promoted Jack Mundstuk from booker to salesman. No definite territory has been assigned to him.

Moreno Gets "U" Role

Hollywood, July 17.—Antonio Moreno will return after an absence of five years in Universal's "Storm Over the Andes."

Variety Club

Kansas City

Kansas City, July 17.—A tribute is owed to F. E. Ritter, Fox Midwest; E. C. Rhoden, ditto, and Mike Roth, Columbia exploiteer, for the largest turnout at Variety since last winter. Especially does Ritter deserve the kudos for handling details. More than 75 were there, and there was plenty doing.

Harry Taylor, Columbia exchange manager, led the singing and later plugged Bingo nights for the club.

Gus Diamond, Warner office manager and general chairman of the annual Film Row-Variety Club picnic, called on chairmen for reports, and got—one, that of George Baker, program and publicity.

Wrestling and boxing will replace dancing on this year's program. Last year the dancing was done by outsiders, and film people could hardly get on the floor.

R. R. Biechele and Gus Kubitzki passed cigars in honor of grandchildren. For the K.M.T.A. secretary it was the first. For the Fox office manager, it was the third.

Ritter had Wurlitzer Music Co. talent for entertainment — Ernie Scrugg, m.c.; Ruth Royal and Lee Hyatt.

Among the guests were George A. Breon, Rockhill manager; Morrill Moore, Sears, Roebuck; Ralph J. Demotte, C. L. McVey of Herington, Kan.; Tom Steele, manager of the Fox Midland, Pittsburg, Kan., who was overshadowed by his six foot, two-inch son, Jack, and by Glen Hall, another husky youngster associated with Steele.

A heavy contingent from Fox Midwest offices included John Laughlin, Paul Baker, Ed Donnelly, Fred Klux, Charles Barnes, Thomas Brennan, Lew O. Honig. Fox Midwest auditor Charley Jones introduced them, without stopping for breath.

C. B. Fogel, M-G-M, Los Angeles, was there with "Truly" Wildman, M-G-M salesman, and Homer L. Blackwell brought E. S. Seiter, Swift & Co. credit manager.

Philadelphia

Philadelphia, July 17. — Several members of the local tent intend to join Tent No. 11 when the Washington group takes its show boat cruise down the Potomac River, July 20.

Summer program indicates a luncheon to be held later in July, a clambake-outing in Toms River, N. J., in August; first annual Variety Club golf tournament in September. Regular luncheons will probably be resumed fortnightly in September.

The pool tournament is coming along nicely. Barkers James Clark, Basil Ziegler, Herb Elliott are favorites.

Barkers Ike Levy and Doc Levy attended the broadcasters' convention at Colorado Springs recently.

Tent No. 13 is co-operating with the Showmen's Jubilee Week to be held in Atlantic City Labor Day week.

Boston, July 17.—Torrid weather and beach attractions hit grosses, but in spite of this "She" at Keith's Memorial took a par $12,000.

The only other normal draw was a dual, "The Arizonian" and "Mystery of Edwin Drood," at the RKO Boston, where the take was $11,000. "Ginger" and "Daring Young Man" were weak at both the Fenway and Paramount.

Court Probes Into Details Of Para. Fees

Thacher Asks Complete Denial for Some

Individual applications for fees in the Paramount reorganization proceedings were liberally questioned by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe at the hearing in U. S. District Court yesterday, and Thomas D. Thacher, counsel for Paramount at the hearing, told the court that he believed many of the applications for the more than [illegible],222,000 of fees "should be disallowed in toto and that many others were excessive in amount."

The court's most direct criticism was leveled at members of creditors' committees who, Judge Coxe said, "give very little time" to the work and attend infrequent meetings "to have a good time and discuss reports put before them by lawyers."

This criticism of protective com-

Elections Will End IATSE 306 Control

The election of officers from among the nominations made at a meeting of the membership which got under way at midnight last night at the Central Opera House will mark the official end of the I. A. T. S. E.'s control of Local 306, it was learned here yesterday. Officers will be chosen at a meeting to be held in a week or 10 days.

Local 306 lost its autonomy a year ago, when it was taken over by the international in an effort to terminate internal dissension, with Harland Holmden, third vice-president of the I. A. T. S. E., appointed to administer its affairs.

Holmden presided at the meeting, at which George E. Browne, I. A. T. S. E. head, was present.

Heads Fox Studio

Darryl F. Zanuck, who succeeds Winfield Sheehan as general manager of Fox production.

Hollywood, July 18.—Darryl F. Zanuck, who succeeds Winfield Sheehan as general manager of production for 20th Century-Fox, today began the job of transferring physical assets from the United Artists lot to Fox Movietone City.

Abandoning earlier plans to concentrate solely on his own contribution to the combined programs for 1935-36, he declared he will devote his entire time to the schedule as a whole and does not propose taking screen credit for the product turned out under his about-to-start regime. That regime, if it runs its full course, will span a seven-year period, for this is the life of Zanuck's contract.

Darryl F. Zanuck, newly appointed production head of Fox, is a five-foot,

See Early Ruling on St. Louis Demurrer

St. Louis, July 18.—With Federal Judge George Moore scheduled to depart on his vacation about Aug. 1, it is believed that he will announce his decision on the motion for a demurrer to the Government's indictment presented by counsel for RKO and Ned E. Depinet in the anti-trust case that grew out of the local struggle for control of the Ambassador, Grand Central and Missouri theatres before he goes out of town. At the same time he may rule on the defense's request for a bill of particulars in the same proceedings. Paramount and Warners and their subsidiaries and several company officials are also defendants.

Recently the clerk of the U. S. District Court sent out notices to all interested parties that the case had been passed to the September term.

20TH CENT.-FOX TO BE NEW NAME

Speed of Shift at Fox Startles Coast

Hollywood, July 18.—The speed with which the change in the production administration at Fox developed continued today to find Hollywood a startled and somewhat dazed town. Naturally gossipy, the film colony had much to talk about and even more over which to speculate.

Sheehan, as announced, will complete "Way Down East" and then depart on an extended European vacation. He said today he had no plans for future production, nor any intention of producing abroad. "When I finish making pictures in America, I finish making pictures," he stated. Sheehan denied rumors he intended raiding other studios for talent. He said he would divulge his future plans upon his return sometime in October

Schenck Confirms Report Fox Banner Is to Be Subordinated

Sources close to the Chase National Bank maintained yesterday that the basis of the merger between 20th Century and Fox is slated for revision downward. The deal, as it now stands, is understood to place a valuation on 20th Century's assets at approximately $9,000,000 for which that company reputedly is to receive common stock. This is roughly 25 per cent of the declared assets of Fox Film Corp.

Hollywood, July 18.—Joseph M. Schenck said today he could not talk on the financial aspects of the merger until passed upon by the Federal Securities Commission, which will release the figures in 12 days, asserting he wouldn't know about stock holdings until then.

Hollywood, July 18.—Twentieth Century-Fox will be the trade mark under which the combined product of both companies will be released. Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Fox, is the authority for the statement which would indicate that persistent reports of subordinating the Fox name are to be borne out by fact. He and Darryl F. Zanuck took full charge of production today.

He added the reason the company is now selling under two trade names is because the merger deal was not consummated at the time both organ-

Henry T. Jamieson, president, was subjected to considerable questioning regarding the basis of imposing license fees upon theatres and other music users of Canada.

Jamieson admitted that one of his greatest problems was the pressure which was brought to bear upon members of the Federal Parliament "to have acts passed against us." Letters written by Jamieson to Wilfred Mills of A. S. C. A. P. were produced in which the witness stated that the society must be prepared to lose many of the small music users "and to stop the use of our repertoire by them."

Asked by Arthur Slaght, lawyer for the Canadian Musical Protective Ass'n., what change in business or political conditions had occurred to justify the raising of the society's license fees, Jamieson replied: "I'm afraid I don't recall. I'm afraid there isn't much that I can add."

Whereupon Slaght offered his suggestion that Jamieson had "out-Millsed Mills" by introducing a minimum of 20 cents per seat in Canadian theatres, whereas the annual minimum in the United States was 10 cents.

A. I. Thomson, representing Famous Players Canadian Corp., declared that the fees charged by the society were entirely "theoretical since the society could not collect anything before amendments were made to the Copyright Act in Dec., 1931.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

WINFIELD SHEEHAN ends two decades and more of service at Fox with a record on which he might justifiably rest if he were so minded. The years that separate his entry into that company from the executive branch of the New York police department and his retirement on Wednesday have been fruitful years, fraught with many changes, replete with many crises and many issues. Through them all, Sheehan has ridden, occasionally sent into a partial eclipse such as that which temporarily beclouded him a few years back when the Chase bank discovered it could not run production, but usually high in the saddle, fashioning the bullets as well as firing them. . . .

To learn now that he gives up his twin posts as vice-president in charge of production and general manager of the Fox studio should occasion no surprise when the circumstances are considered. When Sidney Kent and Joe Schenck struck their bargain and thereby began the process which will graft 20th Century onto Fox, it was easily apparent that conflict loomed between Sheehan and Darryl F. Zanuck, who, all by himself, is virtually synonymous with 20th Century. It would be a trifle unnatural to expect that a man who has been accustomed to rule with a power nestling close to the dictatorial would willingly consent to a split of authority with a newcomer. When such a newcomer happens himself to be an individual of decision, power and demonstrated ability, the outcome at once becomes simple to deduce. . . .

The man who was responsible for "7th Heaven," "Sunnyside Up," "State Fair," "Curly Top" and "The Farmer Takes a Wife," among others, by his deeds in Hollywood has stamped himself as a producer who counts. There cannot be much of an argument about it, if there can be any argument at all. Where Sheehan lights is currently unknown. Metro has been mentioned; United Artists, likewise. Regardless of where it may be, the affiliation will be interesting as well as significant, for Sheehan has made and again will make pictures that leave their impress on the box-office. . . .

Hummel Says Europe Likes Action Films

American action films have replaced musicals in the European public's favor, said Joseph R. Hummel, foreign general sales manager of Warners, who recently returned from a four months' tour of Europe during which he covered every country except England. Conditions seem to be improving all over the continent, Hummel continued.

While abroad Hummel made several changes. New offices were opened in Vienna and Athens with Ernst Reich in charge in Austria and V. Michalides in Greece. G. Westergaard was also placed in charge of the Danish office to take the place of C. Conradsen who was transferred to Sweden to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Knut Swenson.

to help facilitate collection of the state's one per cent sales tax, which becomes effective Aug. 27, is contrary to the Federal constitutional prohibition against the coinage of money. He had let a contract for 10,000,000 one-mill tokens and 5,000,000 five-mill tokens, but canceled it when officials at Washington informed him his plan could not be carried out.

The new act makes it mandatory for the merchant to pass along the tax to his customer. So Smith must find some new scheme that will meet the approval of the big shots at Washington. Street car companies and other private concerns have been using such devices for a score or more of years.

Fox Admits Judgment

William Fox confessed to judgment of $297,500 in Federal court here yesterday in an action brought by lessors of the Fox, Los Angeles, to recover for breach of lease on the house. The court denied the lessors approximately $250,000 in "future rent" involved in the claim, restricting the judgment to the part of the lease actually used.

Court Probes Into Details Of Para. Fees

mittees' membership was launched during a plea by Nathan Burkan, counsel for the merchandise creditors' committee, for the applications of members of that committee for fees. Burkan's plea also elicited caustic comment from Judge Coxe concerning Erpi's position in this committee in the face of an application from R. E. Anderson, former Erpi treasurer and now financial vice-president of Paramount. Anderson asks $7,500 as chairman of the merchandise creditors' committee.

Erpi, it was brought out, had a claim against Paramount of $1,800,000, which was ultimately settled for something more than $1,100,000. Total claims held by this committee were given by Burkan as $2,400,000. From this, Judge Coxe drew the conclusion that the committee was engaged primarily in representation of Erpi's interest.

"It seems too obvious for discussion," the court remarked, "that Anderson was working for his own company. Why should Erpi be paid by this estate for pulling its own chestnuts out of the fire?"

Burkan, whose firm is asking $50,000 for itself for legal fees, replied that all Paramount merchandise creditors were invited to join the committee and to be represented by it.

Make Long Plea for Claims

The applications of the receivers and trustees, Adolph Zukor, Charles D. Hilles, Eugene W. Leake and Charles E. Richardson, for a total of $351,545, and of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, their counsel, for $700,000, were pleaded by Arthur A. Ballantine and Grenville Clark, partners in the law firm, in addresses to the court lasting one hour and 35 minutes. The work of the petitioners over the two-and-one-half-year period was detailed, and the law firm's application, the largest single fee sought, was defended on the grounds that it represented remuneration of $13.17 per hour for more than 79 partners and associates of the firm who put in a total of 72,113 work hours on Paramount.

Clark said that in arriving at the amount of the fee his firm was guided by the importance of the case, the biggest his firm had ever had; the kind of legal problems involved and the quality of work performed. The firm has received $250,000 in interim allowances heretofore.

Alfred E. Cook, speaking for Cook, Nathan & Lehman, which as counsel for the stockholders' protective committee and for Paramount as a debtor corporation, championed his firm's application for a fee of $250,000 and additional fees and disbursements for members of the stockholders' committee aggregating approximately $240,000.

Theodore Kiendl of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, counsel for the Vanderlip bondholders' committee, urged payment of a fee of $150,000 to his firm and an additional $222,000 in fees and disbursements to committee members.

Kiendl was questioned on dealings in Paramount securities by Frank A. Vanderlip, committee chairman, and admitted that the former National City Bank president had engaged in transactions last year totaling more than $200,000, and that an "appreciable profit" must have been realized on the trading.

"Yet he is asking for $50,000 for his services on that committee," the court remarked.

Judge Coxe also questioned a $52,000 fee for Dr. Julius Klein, member of the committee, asking for details on his work and expenditures. The court also questioned an application by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. for $114,287 for services and expenses, and one by Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, Kuhn, Loeb counsel, for $150,812. These applications were pleaded by Robert T. Swaine, who detailed the guiding part taken by Kuhn, Loeb and Cravath in both the receivership and reorganization. Judge Coxe questioned their right to apply directly for remuneration, opining that unless they were "reorganization managers," which Swaine denied, their applications should be sponsored and pronounced "indispensable" by the Vanderlip and bank group committees.

Bogue Pleads for $150,000

Morton Bogue pleaded applications for $75,000 fees and disbursements for members of the bank group committee and an additional $75,000 fee for his firm, Beekman, Bogue & Clark, as counsel to the committee. Robert Szold, of Szold & Brandwen, championed that firm's application for a $75,000 fee and fees and disbursements of $7,945 for the committee.

Malcolm Sumner, an attorney representing $15,000 of bonds, who put in an application for $150,431 and fees for accountants and experts totaling $23,500, appeared to have a difficult time explaining to the court what his activities had accomplished. Twice the court interrupted him to ask what services had been performed, the second time remarking that "up to now, you haven't said one thing to justify paying you a dollar." Sumner eventually recounted activities in connection with the Saenger reorganization and in opposing Kuhn, Loeb activities in the reorganization.

Judge Coxe directed all applicants to file complete breakdowns of petitions for expenses with the court. The hearing will be resumed next Thursday when the balance of the petitions will be pleaded by the applicants and, that over, objections to the allowance of the fees will be heard.

Counsel for the Securities and Exchange Commission was present at the hearing in the nature of an observer.

Zanuck Starts Task Of Moving to Fox

seven-inch, 160-pound, brown-haired, blue-eyed bundle of nerves in his early thirties who forged to the front with the speed of Man o' War about five years ago because he had an idea.

It was simple—front page news was front screen drama, because it was life at the moment, not as it had been, or as somebody thought it ought to be. He applied the theory to Warner production so persistently that he began a number of production cycles instead of trailing into their backwash.

His front page films got him onto the front page and he has been there quite regularly since he expressed himself with some vehemence at Warners on the subject of restoring actors' pay at the end of the bank holidays following President Roosevelt's inauguration.

Zanuck and Joseph M. Schenck organized 20th Century Pictures and right at the start Zanuck said: "We'll either make a lot of money, or we'll lose a lot; we're going in for big pictures—stories with an idea behind them, not just stories." They made a lot.

Sidney R. Kent and Chase National Bank have been among those who have studied the returns from a list that reads like this: "The Bowery," "Blood Money," "Advice to the Lovelorn," "Moulin Rouge," "Gallant Lady," "Looking for Trouble," "The House of Rothschild," "The Affairs of Cellini," "The Last Gentleman," "Clive of India," "Folies Bergere," "Les Miserables," and "Cardinal Richelieu."

Zanuck has a ready answer for anything concerning production. In conversation he is in and out of his chair, around his desk, foot up on a window sill, lighting and re-lighting big cigars. When he has anything to say, he says it. His voice may be pitched a little high, but his meaning will be unmistakably clear.

Zanuck is of Swiss ancestry. He was born in Wahoo, Neb. Some say he was a theatre usher there. He was a laborer at San Pedro for a time. He took up short story writing and eventually got into the Warner story department, but he bounced out of that into a job as associate producer in charge of production in 1928.

20th Century-Fox to Be New Company Title

izations announced their lineups for 1935-36. After current product is delivered, however, the plan, he added, is to market as 20th Century-Fox.

Zanuck declares that his entire 20th Century staff will join Fox with a strong likelihood that changes will ensue. Both he and Schenck stated an immediate plan was to augment producer, writing and player rosters.

Sol M. Wurtzel, who has been in charge of the Western Ave. studio for Fox, will remain in that post, the chairman of the board asserted. There is also a possibility now that Jesse L. Lasky, who has completed his contract with finish of "Gay Deception" and "Here's to Romance," may remain with the company although admittedly no overtures looking toward a new contract have been made as yet.

It was announced Jack Gain would continue as studio manager, George Bagnall as treasurer, Julian Johnson as story editor and Gabe Yorke as studio publicity director.

Schenck returns to New York shortly, reputedly in connection with the financial aspects of the merger, but will make his headquarters in Hollywood with production duties similar to those which engaged him at 20th Century.

Zanuck's plan to transfer his entire staff to Fox will carry to Westwood Harry Brand, publicity director. There is a possibility his new post will not only concern 20th Century-Fox publicity, but duties actually identified with production as well.

Speed of Shift at Fox Startles Coast

Fox production in Hollywood on Wednesday, held only 1,125 less shares of Class A Fox Film stock than S. R. Kent, it was revealed when the company filed its registration statements with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington on May 7.

Sheehan was listed as the holder of 10,244 2/6 shares of "A" and 166 4/6 shares of "B." Kent was down for personally 1 1/6 shares of "A" and his personal holding company, the Berkshire Finance Corp., for 11,369 shares.

At yesterday's closing market, Sheehan's "A" stock was worth $171,587.

SECRET

To write about any one feature of THE MARCH OF TIME as the secret of its development is absurd. Its greatest strength comes from directing all its features at one target, the public's fast-growing passion of curiosity. This has won for THE MARCH OF TIME a unique audience in a very few months—an audience that feels spiritedly about each new edition.

This audience does not always agree with what happens in the events presented. It welcomes, though, the authentic, unbiased manner in which THE MARCH OF TIME ferrets behind the news. It writes letters to the producers, to the theatre managers. The dramatic photo-reporting becomes a topic of its every-day conversation. In the theatre the subject gains tense attention, the audience breaking into applause or expression of disapproval as the hidden beginnings and startling developments of today's history appear.

Such was the case with the story of Germany's rearming, on the screen two days before the newspapers headlined the story. With the first transpacific passenger flight pre-enacted and shown three months before the actual flight. With the inside story of the Navy's war games. Even more keen was the reaction to such "scoop" pictures as those of Europe's mystery munitioneer Sir Basil Zaharoff and Louisiana's "Kingfish" Long.

This, we believe, is the most robust, honest kind of Audience Reaction and (if public interest and press comment are an indication) one of the strongest Box Office potentials any exhibitor can work with.

What issue No. 5, released by RKO on August 2nd, will contain, what news will be the biggest before the month is out, cannot be foretold. But this much is sure: it will be an uncommonly fast, courageous presentation of newsworthy events that will make audiences talk and think and feel.

Film Penetration One of Investment Only

Atlas is headed by Floyd B. Odlum, a Paramount board member, and is affiliated with the so-called Fortington creditor group in Paramount, which in turn is represented by three additional Paramount board members and includes Lehman Bros., investment bank, which has two representatives

A day or two ago one porter was spraying when another entered smoking. Both porters landed some distance from the scene. The damage was $75. The theatre cost $2,000,000.

Production at New High; 46 in Work

Hollywood, July 21.—Production registered a new high for the season last week with all companies showing a spurt to meet release dates. The weekly checkup showed 46 features and five shorts before the cameras, a gain over the preceding week which showed 44 features and three shorts in active work.

M-G-M held the top spot with 11 features on the sound stages, none preparing or slated for production within the next two weeks and 13 in the cutting room. The approval was given by Justice Eve in Chancery Division after a week's consideration of evidence presented at a hearing on July 9.

An international premiere in the four big English-speaking cities of the world is in work at Warners as part of the sweeping plans under way for "A Midsummer Night's Dream." London, Sydney, Toronto and New York are the spots, with the Hollywood Theatre locally already set for a run beginning Oct. 9. The plan also embraces an international radio hookup.

Summer activity at Warners is being focussed largely on the Reinhardt-produced spectacle. S. Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity, who was recently named a vice-president of Vitagraph, is thigh-deep in Shakespeare and ideas, several of which will prove sensational if they jell.

Bergerman Secures Financing for Six

Stanley Bergerman, former Universal producer, has completed financing arrangements for six features which he will produce for new season release, he said on Saturday. Four of the productions will be made in Hollywood and two may be made here.

Bergerman is working out arrangements with directors and writers who have worked with him in the past, he said, to assist in the productions on a profit-sharing basis. Titles and casts are not ready for announcement yet, he said, nor has a distribution deal been concluded. He leaves tonight for the coast to complete production arrangements.

The tax is to be in effect for two years, with the first year's receipts earmarked for unemployment relief. It has been estimated that the tax will produce $3,000,000 yearly.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

MAINTAINING the Hollywood standard for conservatism, Kenneth MacGowan has a lot of words to say about color and television in Commentator, a house organ sponsored by the Small-Landau Publishing Co., an offshoot of the agency of that name which numbers the producer among its clients. Reminding at the outset that it was MacGowan who made "Becky Sharp," there follows a smattering of quotes, centering, for this occasion, around color:

> "Color, today, seems the logical salvation. . . . I believe that after 'Becky Sharp' no picture can ever again stand out as an important vehicle unless it is made entirely in color. . . . By this I do not mean to imply that color films will entirely supplant black-and-white pictures. There will always be a certain number of these, just as there will always be a certain number of black-and-white illustrations by comparison with color illustrations. There is definitely a place for both. . . . There are two reasons . . . First, black-and-white will always retain a certain beauty of its own . . . The second reason . . . is that a certain number of cheap program pictures will of necessity be made without color. Ultimately, however, these will be far in the minority."

Color may be the industry's salvation, but there is no evidence as yet to bear out such a sweeping statement. MacGowan is quite right when he says black-and-white photography will retain a certain beauty of its own and quite wrong in asserting no picture can be important after "Becky Sharp" unless it is entirely in color. That's how this corner feels about it on a sultry Saturday and proposes being obdurate enough to brook no interference. . . .

The estate of the harassed Hollywood star continues deplorable. Take Chaplin, for instance. In 1934, the assessed valuation of his property was $3,051,220; this year the Los Angeles County tax assessor found the maximum he could do for the comedian's holdings was $2,692,490. Miss Pickford's land wealth dropped from $1,950,770 to $1,465,740; Will Rogers from $322,920 to $226,440; Harold Lloyd from $864,545 to $443,640; Dick Barthelmess from $409,340 to $374,880; Connie Bennett from $190,025 to $146,015.

The awful facts threatened to sour a balmy summer weekend. . . .

A mild dip into the past brings to light an interesting historical note, influenced into the open by the resignation of Winnie Sheehan last week. He is the last of the quondam "Big Five" associated with Bill Fox and the company he founded, a period, incidentally, during which Fox, the man, reached his pinnacle. One by one and for various reasons, the group has vanished from the corporation's roster. The men: Jack Leo, Jimmy Grainger, John Zanft, Saul Rogers. Sheehan rounds out the quintuplets. . . .

William Randolph Hearst, a working newspaper man and a good one even though some of his editorial ideas annoy this menial, has determined financial news is of increasingly less import these days. He has, therefore, ordered an average of fourteen columns of ticker stuff be stricken from his string of newspapers daily and an identical quota of film news added. Enterprising press agents should be interested. . . .

Now that Cohen—Manny—and Crosby—Bing—are partners in production, Ali Gaga, that funny man, thinks they should take a nickname like "G-Men" and call themselves "C-Men." . . .

Roach to Close a Month

HOLLYWOOD, July 21.—Hal Roach will have seven of the 24 shorts on the 1935-36 list completed by the end of this month. He plans to close the studio during August with the exception of writers and executives, who will prepare a schedule to start Sept. 1. "The Honesty Racket," a feature length comedy, is expected to start about that time. So is "Our Gang Follies of 1935," a two-reeler, as well as a four-reel Laurel and Hardy comedy.

Distributors Shy Clear of Contract Move

eral use. Only in local situations in which exhibitors themselves had agreed in advance by majority action to restrict the trade practices which the rider seeks to control would distributors be willing to include it in contracts, they said. A single exception was made and that was for the so-called "closed" towns, where exhibition is dominated by one theatre organization. Such situations, however, are too few and relatively unimportant to have a bearing on nationwide trade practices.

While it was admitted that a few such situations have been granted the rider on applying for it for the new season, sales executives said they were convinced that any general use of the rider would be illegal. Answering M.P.T.O.A.'s recent criticism of distribution companies which shy at participation in trade practice "reforms" because of legal advice, these sales executives said that their wariness of the rider was founded more on past experience than on the advice of attorneys.

As one sales manager put it: "We know from having placed our hand on it that the stove is hot."

The nearest approach to the rider that has been upheld in court is a provision made in a Paramount contract with Karl Hoblitzelle of Texas, under which the distributor agreed with Hoblitzelle not to sell subsequent theatres which do not maintain a 25-cent minimum admission. This provision was taken to court last year and upheld. It does not, however, effect any important curb on double featuring or giveaways.

Numbers of distributors have in past years and are again this season including minimum admission and anti-dual clauses in their contracts. Company policy, however, does not permit rigid enforcement of the clauses except in uncommon circumstances.

TO THE TRADE:

When, two months ago, the Fox Film Corporation announced its product for the coming season the enthusiastic response from the exhibitors of the world was most gratifying. Now we are announcing the first group of Twentieth Century Pictures. But more than that, we are acquiring, in the organization headed by Mr. Joseph M. Schenck and Mr. Darryl F. Zanuck, man power and production resources which we feel certain will increase the confidence which exhibitors already have shown in these two great producing forces.

I. E. P. A. and Harry Fried, chairman of the board, has been arousing considerable discussion in the territory, no definite move has yet been made. A meeting has been scheduled for July 29 at which time the proposed combine will take form.

Though originated within the I. E. P. A., the movement is not restricted to its members. Other indies in the territory are being invited to join.

Only present hitch in the idea seems to be that buying is already well advanced in the territory and the combine will have to work fast to figure in this season's deals.

This action obviates the necessity of securing signatures for a petition to the County Commissioners. The petitions, however, are still being circulated in the theatre lobbies mainly as a publicity stunt.

Atlas Plans No Onslaught, Official Says

on the board of RKO. These circumstances, together with an interest displayed recently by Atlas in acquiring an RKO investment, gave rise to reports that Atlas might become a power in a reorganized RKO and influence a merger of that company and Paramount.

It was pointed out in connection with these reports that in such an eventuality Atlas, with its other film security holdings, would occupy a dominant position in industry finance.

The official Atlas statement denying any and all such objectives on the part of the company follows closely upon a denial by John D. Hertz, partner in Lehman Bros., who is also a Paramount director and member of that company's Fortington creditor group, that the Lehman organization entertained any similar ideas. Hertz's denial was made before the Securities and Exchange Commission hearing on the Paramount reorganization held here recently.

The Atlas official stated that his company had disposed of its Warner holdings, had reduced its Fox holdings and was no longer interested for the present in making an investment in RKO. This last corroborates a Motion Picture Daily story of June 25 which set forth that Atlas had discontinued its study of RKO's position which was being made as a preliminary to a possible investment move.

Says Won't Enter Films

"Atlas is an investment organization and will remain so," the company official declared. "We have no desire to go into the film business, as such. Our attention was called to the investment possibilities of RKO exactly as it is called to those of hundreds of other companies regularly. We made a study of RKO in the usual manner, exactly as we do in any situation to which our attention has been called. Many such companies, we find, do not even merit a study. We decided from our RKO survey that we would do nothing at this time. The situation six months or a year from now may be different, however."

The Atlas official also referred to Special Master Thomas D. Thacher's recent report recommending the allowance of the Rockefeller Center claim against RKO at $8,750,000 as "introducing a new factor for consideration in RKO affairs." He said he doubted that the report could be very much in error as Thacher, a former Federal judge here, "should be pretty sure of his ground."

It was stated that Atlas had gone into Paramount solely for investment purposes, buying that company's bonds at around $30. Paramount bonds are now selling for approximately $97.

"Paramount turned out to be a good investment for me," the official commented.

RKO Policy Shift of Week Stands Starts in the Fall

The RKO circuit will launch its first attempted move to inaugurate week stands in its major New York houses with "Top Hat," the new Rogers-Astaire musical which, incidentally, is the first release on Radio Pictures' 1935-36 program.

While a ranking circuit executive stated last night he hoped "we can get 40 pictures," expectancies end at roughly 20, a substantial number of the anticipated group to come from the 20th Century's contribution to Fox's program of 65 for the new season.

As the first sizeable step in a sustained effort to increase playing time for meritorious pictures, RKO bases its about-to-be-tried plan on the theory that films have not been played for their full value, but, in many instances, have been pulled more in deference to the currently established practice of two changes per week than

Strange

While substantial sections of the British press excoriated and poked wholesale fun at the Production Code Administration and the American industry for insisting "Nell Gwyn" had to be submitted to code machinery treatment before according it a seal, censors in Ontario, which is in Canada, a British dominion, looked at the B. & D. film and rejected it completely. The reason:

"While admitting the historical accuracy of this picture, the evidence is clearly demonstrated that King Charles II was already supporting one mistress at the time he commenced to support Nell Gwyn, which renders this picture unsuitable for Ontario."

Amity Marks Circuit Buys For New Year

Loew, RKO Acquire Need Without Tussles

Tussles over product supply for the two leading metropolitan circuits, Loew's and RKO, are being averted for next season, it is indicated by the progress of film buying done by each up to now.

Both circuits require a minimum of approximately 156 pictures for their metropolitan houses. Loew's has already closed with distributors for this number and has an additional 30 pictures in prospect, representing one-half of the Warner lineup, which has not yet been disposed of for the metropolitan area. RKO, although having actually closed for only 115 pictures to date, has 80 additional features still available to it. This would provide RKO with a maximum of 195 features as against 186 in prospect for HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Darryl Zanuck has taken up his new duties as Winfield Sheehan's successor at 20th Century-Fox with vigor. One of his first moves was to sign up George Jessel as a writer, Victor McLaglen to a starring contract and Tay Garnett to a one-year agreement as a director.

Jessel will immediately start on the script of McLaglen's first under his new agreement, "Professional Soldier," based on Damon Runyon's "Gentlemen, the King."

Donkey for Horwitz

Houston, July 22.—A baby donkey, decorated with red ribbons, was the surprise gift of a group of employes to Will Horwitz, Houston independent operator, at a birthday party given at his farm at Dickinson, 20 miles from Houston.

The gift was a tie back to the 1928 Democratic convention when Horwitz brought to Houston 48 donkeys to represent the 48 states, and led them through the streets each day of the convention, with his theatres plugged by placards.

Reid Rates Stories, Action Above Stars

Story values and action properly combined are rated higher as a box-office tonic than star names by Cliff Reid, RKO associate producer, who is here for a week's stay.

Reid said that the story and action formula had been followed in "The Lost Patrol" and "The Informer" and has been applied to "The Three Musketeers," now in work at the Radio studios. All three pictures, he said, were cast according to the suitability of individual players for individual parts, without regard to name values. "The Life of Annie Oakley," the new Barbara Stanwyck picture, and "The Plough and the Stars," both of which are on Reid's production schedule of 12 pictures for the new season, will carry out the same idea with the value of a fast-moving story being stressed over other considerations.

Reid is here to conclude negotiations with Dudley Nichols, writer, for a new original story for RKO production.

Army Applications In

Washington, July 22.—Receipt of applications from the War Department for funds for the construction of three additional army post theatres was announced tonight by the Division of Applications and Information of the Works Program.

Interstate is feeling the effects of an oil boom in some parts of Texas and has a number of new houses on the way.

Reports of reopenings are mounting steadily in the midwest and on the coast. In New England, of course, these are especially numerous, due to the many small houses in towns frequented by summer visitors. They counterbalance closings in this territory.

Honor Harry Michalson

Pittsburgh, July 22.—More than 50 film executives gathered at the Hotel Schenley for a testimonial dinner to Harry Michalson, who has just been promoted to sales manager for RKO shorts. Prior to his advancement, Michalson was RKO's district sales chief in the territory encompassing Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit.

Art Levy was chairman and John Maloney of M-G-M presented the guest a silver cocktail set. On from New York with Michalson for the dinner was Fred McConnell, sales head for the "March of Time" newsreel.

The General Council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. has remitted to the branches throughout the country for discussion and recommendation the question of the attitude to be taken up to Films Act revision.

The matter came up on a report from the General Purposes Committee and during the discussion Thomas Ormiston, who is a member of Parliament, expressed the view that there was unlikely to be an amending act unless an agreed policy was arrived at between producers, distributors and exhibitors.

As producers are agitating for an increase in the stringency of the quota provisions, while exhibitors want the approaching 20 per cent obligation reduced to 10 per cent, importers are likely to find a measure of comfort in Ormiston's statement.

Statements of accounts of Nelson Films, Ltd., in compulsory liquidation, show that this company, formed to produce "Don Quixote," with Chaliapin and George Robey, lost close on $500,000 on the project. Actual figures are Liabilities £102,795 (expected to rank, £82,695) and assets 5:10d cash.

"Don Quixote" was released by United Artists in U. K.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, resisted amendments to the Finance Bill, during the House of Commons debate on the measure, which would have had the effect of extending the "living performers" concession to sporting events.

He intimated, however, that he might be disposed to consider a small reduction of duty in the case of film houses which employ a full time orchestra.

K. C. Surprised by PWA Theatre Grant

Kansas City, July 22.—A grant of $155,000 from the PWA office at St. Louis has been received by Kansas City, and—amazing!—city officials did not know for what it was intended. A follow-up letter explained it was to aid in completing the new municipal auditorium theatre and function room. The amount represents 30 per cent of the cost of the project.

No plans or policies for the theatre have been worked out, nor will they be until the auditorium has been completed, according to George Goldman, who will manage the entire setup.

Protest Canada 5% Tax on Film Rental

tawa to urge upon the Canadian Government a reconsideration of the special tax of five per cent which has been imposed upon payments for film rentals to home offices in the United States by Canadian exchanges.

The situation arose without warning when the government included films in an order-in-council providing for the surtax on funds going to the United States for copyrighted publications, originating in that country, which were being sold in the Dominion. The tax had been imposed as a special tariff protection at the request of book and other publishers in Canada, but the Federal authorities at Ottawa included films in the regulation as being copyrighted publications. Incidentally, the original order called for a tax of 12½ per cent. on film rental payments to the United States, but this was later reduced to five per cent.

The regulation has given added preference to British films because the surtax does not apply to films, books and other publications brought from Great Britain for sale or rental in Canada.

Philadelphia Going In for Many Repeats

With "Murder in the Fleet" and "Glass Key" both flopping after three and four days, respectively, at the Arcadia, that second run house brought back "Naughty Marietta" for another downtown showing.

The Europa, foreign language house, has been varying its ready fare with revivals during the summer and has made out well with "It Happened One Night," "One Night of Love," "The Thin Man" and "Count of Monte Cristo."

Meanwhile, in the neighborhoods, the following repeats are listed: "House of Rothschild," "Bright Eyes," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Little Caesar," "I Am a Fugitive," "David Harum," "Too Much Harmony," "42nd Street" and "Great Expectations."

N. E. Not Expecting Jolt to Dual Bills

BOSTON, July 22.—Any suggestion that contract riders may be used to limit dual bills is received with shrugs in this territory. Duals started here and seem to be a permanent fixture.

A recent story in MOTION PICTURE DAILY to the effect that circuits want the riders stirs little interest hereabouts. All agree that doubles are a firmly rooted exhibition habit in this section.

Agua Caliente Closed

AGUA CALIENTE, July 22.—Gambling casinos and betting rings at local tracks were ordered closed here today by President Cardenas.

Joseph M. Schenck, Baron Long and H. V. Aldrete, heads of the luxurious pleasure plant, were reported today en route to Mexico City to request a reopening of the resort, claiming that hundreds of Mexican citizens will be thrown out of work by the official order.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"China Seas"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—This should bring a tidal wave of tickets to the box-office with Clark Gable and Jean Harlow back in their beloved roles of tough guy and tougher gal against a background of riotous, Oriental skullduggery.

Gable plays a British naval officer who resigned for the love of a nice girl, Rosalind Russell. Six years as a captain of a steamer in the China seas have made him feared by sailors and followed by Miss Harlow, who plays China Doll with a flamboyant determination to get her man. Gable, carrying a shipment of gold bullion, discovers Malay pirates aboard disguised as women passengers. He does not suspect Wallace Beery, ostensibly a big game hunter, is in league with the pirates. Breath-taking tornado sequences include Gable's fight to leash a monster engine which breaks loose and careens through screaming crowds in the steerage. This, followed by the capture of the ship by swarms of pirates, is hard to top for tension during the torture of Gable. Gable, Miss Harlow and Berry are just the way people like them.

Speedy direction by Tay Garnett, a brilliant screen play by Jules Furthman and James Kevin McGuinness from the book by Crosbie Garstin give full opportunity to the brilliant cast, including Lewis Stone, Dudley Digges, C. Audrey Smith, Lillian Bond, Edward Brophy and Ivan Lebedeff. Albert Lewin produced for Irving Thalberg and M-G-M.

The photography by Ray June does much for the picture's mood. Bill this one for its excitement and speed as well as cast.

Production Code Seal No. 899. Running time, 89 minutes. "A."

"Steamboat 'Round the Bend"

(Wurtzel-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Will Rogers' playing for dramatic rather than comedy values makes this picture important. Rogers gives a vivid characterization as a river man with a problem.

John McGuire, Rogers' nephew, has slain a man in a brawl over his fiancee, Anne Shirley. Convicted of murder and denied an appeal, McGuire can be saved only by the testimony of Berton Churchill, an Evangelist, who was a witness to the fight. With a steamboat and a war museum with which to raise funds, Rogers plies the Mississippi seeking Churchill. Finally, forced into a steamboat race to reach the state capital in time to get gubernatorial intervention, Rogers defeats his river rival, Irvin Cobb, wins the race and saves McGuire from the gallows.

Although the ultimate ending is never doubtful, Director John Ford builds exciting suspense throughout, making several individual scenes sparkle with dramatic tenseness. Miss Shirley, giving a grey performance at the opening, shades her character later, easily capturing second acting honors.

Cobb's role, though small, is well handled, as are the parts of Stepin Fetchit, Francis Ford and Eugene Pallette. The Dudley Nichols-Lamar Trotti screen play extracts the utmost from Ben Berman's novel.

Sol Wurtzel's production supplies beautiful mounting and George Schneiderman's photography is a pictorial delight.

Rogers fans should go for Will as a dramatic actor as enthusiastically as they do for him as a comedian.

Production Code Seal No. 1058. Running time, 97 minutes. "G."

"Bonnie Scotland"

(Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Here is a creditable vehicle for the Stan Laurel-Oliver Hardy laugh team, giving the duo ample opportunity to display their routine acts. The picture is loaded throughout with excellent gag situations and also contains dramatic element in the plot to fill the bill in breaking the comedy monotony. Although a sure-fire laugh-getter and certain to please Laurel-Hardy fans, the film's main fault lies in its length, which renders impossible the ability to keep the vehicle at a comedy peak.

Laurel and Hardy, reaching Scotland to claim Laurel's portion of a Scottish estate, find the listing only bagpipes and a snuff box. The team then follows an advertisment offering a free suit of clothes and getting into army headquarters by mistake are forced into service. Meanwhile the background romance is carried by June Lang, who is also an heiress to the Laurel estate, and William Janney. The comedy duo is then assigned to India, where a series of farcical situations satirize the "Lives

Three French Film Groups Are Joined

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The creation of a new association—the Comite du Film—is reported to the U. S. Department of Commerce by Assistant Trade Commissioner Earle C. Taylor from Paris.

This association is a union of three individual groups—the new Syndicat des Produceurs de Films, Bureau de L'Union Syndicate des Distributeurs de Films and Union des Chambres Syndicales Francaises des Theatres Cinematographiques.

It is believed that the new association may have a beneficial effect on the present foreign film situation, particularly as the former U. S. D. includes representatives of all large American film companies distributing in France.

Say France Fourth In Exhibition Field

WASHINGTON, July 22.—With 4,586 theatres having gross receipts in 1934 of 832,158,000 francs, France lays claim to fourth place among the nations of the world in exhibition, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner Earle C. Taylor in Paris.

The 1934 gross is approximately $55,250,000.

Of the 4.586 theatres in continental France and its colonial possessions, approximately two-thirds, or 3,032, are wired.

Melford Forms New Producing Company

Frank Melford, who was formerly associated with Sol Lesser, has formed his own company to produce six pictures for independent release.

Four of the stories have been picked and work on the first will start this week with the arrival of Melford in Hollywood.

The stories already set are: "Modern Buccaneer" by J. H. Forster, "Thunderbolt Express" by Henry Karns, "Dynamite Bill" by Jules Simon and "Green Gold" by H. T. Powers.

Testimony Finished On Cleveland Appeal

CLEVELAND, July 22.—Hearing of testimony on an appeal from Common Pleas Judge Frederick Walther's decision denying an injunction to stop bank night at the Haltnorth has been finished before Referee Saul Danaceau. As soon as certain facts are agreed upon between the opposing attorneys, the testimony will be turned over to the Court of Appeals.

In the meantime, seven Cleveland theatres are continuing to bank night without interference.

Gable, Harlow And Garnett The Tops

"CHINA SEAS"
(MGM)

Associate Producer............Albert Lewin
Direction ....Tay Garnett
Novel ....Crosbie Garstin
Screen Play: Jules Furthman, James Kevin McGuinness.
Photography ....Ray June

Cast: Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Rosalind Russell, Dudley Digges, C. Aubrey Smith, Robert Benchley, William Henry, Live deMaigret, Lilian Bond, Edward Brophy, Soo Young, Carol Ann Beery, Akim Tamiroff, Ivan Lebedeff.

"China Seas" is one of the best straight movies produced in many a day. It has everything that any audience could want and is chock full of the stuff that shoved the picture business to the top of all amusement enterprises.

Any picture that offers the combined talents of Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Beery is destined for great box-office success, but place these three in a story that has all the thrills, chills and entertaining values of "China Seas," and you have an important picture and one that will bring out the old fans and create a lot of new ones.

Jules Furthman and James K. McGuinness have taken what was an idea by Crosbie Garstin and shaped it into a story with at least a half dozen plots, all taking place on a boat sailing the China seas, mastered by Clark Gable. On this boat are passengers from all walks of life, with entirely different destinations, plus a cargo of gold that is the bait for Wallace Beery and his conniving pirates. During the voyage you are treated to a typhoon, a great drunk by Robert Benchley, and Harlow's greatest characterization as a lady of easy virtue in love with Gable.

The yarn is packed with suspense and moves at lightning speed, with the main characters backed by as fine a cast as has ever been thrown together for any one picture, all under the masterful direction of Tay Garnett. There is never a dull moment in the picture, nor is there a moment for the audience to relax, for if it's not sitting on the edge of its seat thrilled by the plot's intrigue, it is laughing at the antics of Benchley and others or enraptured by the romance indulged in by Harlow in her winning battle for Gable.

Clark Gable plays the captain of the ship with ease and assurance that will win him many new admirers (as though he needed any new fans). The captain is a natural for Gable, a kindly fellow who hides his warm heart with gruffness. It is a grand piece of casting.

Jean Harlow takes another step forward as a dramatic actress. It is unquestionably the finest portrayal she has ever given, one that offers a wide emotional range.

Wallace Beery is swell as the undercover leader of the pirates. His work is minus any of his usual mannerisms and he plays a straight menace. Lewis Stone, too, has a greater opportunity than has fallen to his lot for some time. Rosalind Russell is again impressive. She is going far. Robert Benchley does the best drunk the screen has ever seen.

Among the others of the perfect cast, there are particularly outstanding moments by William Henry, an up and coming juvenile, Dudley Digges, C. Aubrey Smith, Akim Tamiroff, Lilian Bond, Ivan Lebedeff and Edward Brophy.

Production is ace high in every department, and the photography of Ray June tops even his usual high standard. Several of his shots, the lighting on the bridge for instance, should be framed. The storm sequence is a technical wonder. Herbert Stothart's musical score also deserves your attention.

"China Seas" is sure to ring a merry tune on every cash register. It has everything.

Dialogue Adaptation	S. N. Behrman
Photography	William Daniels

Cast: Greta Garbo, Fredric March, Freddie Bartholomew, Maureen O'Sullivan, May Robson, Basil Rathbone, Reginald Owen, Phoebe Foster, Reginald Denny, Gyles Isham, Joan Marsh, Ethel Griffies, Harry Beresford, Sarah Padden, Cora Sue Collins, Mary Forbes, Guy D'Emery, Buster Phelps, Sidney Bracy, Harry Allen, Ella Ethridge.

A glorious, vital Garbo . . . A Garbo who is not only allure personified but with a new grace and charm, a vivacity that will send her fan following soaring to new heights. It's a classic love story told magnificently pictorially, that is thrilling in its production qualities, that is a triumph for Clarence Brown and that has a glorious music score by Herbert Stothart.

Perhaps this is still further argument for re-makes. At any rate, it is proof that practice makes perfect, and this well known story lives once more on the screen and is faithful to the tragedy of unhallowed love. Anna dies once more in her tragic flight to love from a cold, cruel husband. A love for which she gives up her child and a love which must eventually desert her.

Garbo's pedestal is not only restored, but is made to look unbreakable in this picture. Her moods are varied and sincere. There is a minimum of close-ups devoted solely to her beauty. She is a woman to love and to be loved. Frederic March, as the lover, is necessarily over-shadowed by both the character and portrayal of Garbo, but his work is good and there's plenty of reason to believe that a woman would leave home for him.

Freddie Bartholomew snatches scenes away from people before they know it. He is a remarkable actor and literally stops the picture twice with his genius. Basil Rathbone is magnificently irritating as the convention-bound, petty government official who is the husband of Anna. Reginald Owen, Maureen O'Sullivan, Phoebe Foster, Reginald Denny and Gyles Isham, score in their parts, and the others in the large cast give generously to make that cast good.

Clarence Brown, definitely, should always direct Garbo. He seems to be the one who can bring out all the facets in the brilliantly fashioned Garbo, and he has an especial talent for making the familiar bright and new.

A very special bow must go to Adrian for his costuming. It's an awkward era to which he brings grace, and Garbo has never looked lovelier. And another very special bow to Daniels for his photography. Particularly for the train scenes. And still another bow to Herbert Stothart for the music.

No offense to the writers for putting them last . . . the others so seldom get a break. Their work is good . . . it's sincere . . . and beards do not grow on their words. Not to forget the Chester Hale Mazurka and the Wallman ballets.

From a production standpoint, even MGM has rarely if ever achieved such a triumph. Cedric Gibbons and his competent staff of art directors have simply outdone themselves with the sets and their dressings—never gaudy, but always luxurious. It is one of the finest jobs we have seen for many a day.

"Karenina" is destined to be a terrific money maker. It will renew that big box-office interest in Garbo, will send early patrons out talking and bringing to the theater others who have, for too long, been sitting at home.

Showmen should and must get behind this attraction, build it for one of their greatest openings. The rest will take care of itself.

China Seas

Here's a holiday in Dixie for theatre operators. Few pictures come along that will stand the limit in exploitation then live up to the bally. 'China Seas' not only lends itself to exploitation, but is crammed with selling angles. It should pay the interest on many a theatre's mortgage.

Ably produced by Irving Thalberg and supervised by Al Lewin, have stinted nothing to make it top notch entertainment. Picture is eyefilling from start to finish. Jules Furthman and James McGuinness have compiled a yarn of piracy on the China coast that is almost perfect picture material. Tay Garnett's robust direction of the story gives the fans all they want in the line of romance, thrills and s.a. To top this, the Beery-Gable-Harlow trio contribute performances that are standouts.

Gable is the skipper of a tramp in the China coast trade. He is mixed up with Jean Harlow, the Orient's number one trollop. Beery heads a gang of Chinese pirates. Gable sails for Singapore with the three on board plus Rosalind Russell, his old sweetheart in England. The two girls fail to hit if off when Miss Harlow decides she is getting the air for the English girl. Boat is carrying several million pounds in bullion which Gable is out to get.

Typhoon comes up, almost sinks the ship. With better weather, Beery enlists the aid of the jealous Harlow to steal the guns from the ship's arsenal. Pirates headed by Ivan Lebedeff board the ship, kill half the crew, torture Gable but find no money. Gable suspects Beery and the girl, questions them and she spills the beans. However, she had tried to warn Gable of the impending holdup only to be thrown out of his cabin. Before much can be done Beery committs suicide and Gable realizes he loves Miss Harlow after all. In the end he decided to make her an honest woman.

With a good story to start with Garnett has given the picture everything. He has not missed a single opportunity in giving the picture suspense, dramatic tension and smoothness. Dialog is near perfect for this type of picture. It's no easy job to make a flock of renegades tough through dialog. In most cases, screen tough guys express themselves like pansies. In this case they're tough and there's no mistake.

Gable, Harlow and Beery turn in performances that should bring raves from their fans. Rosalind Russell makes her portrayal of the cultured English girl, a direct contrast to Miss Harlow, one of the picture's standouts. Robert Benchley, as a drunk, gets a load of laughs with swell dialog. William Henry, the juve, is pleasing as a young officer though his scenes during the typhoon could be cut considerably. C. Aubrey Smith is excellent as the owner of the steamship line. Dudley Digges, as the chief officer, handles his assignment neatly. Lewis Stone, though his assignment is small, makes it count. Lillian Bond, Eddie Brophy and Akim Tamiroff, in small assignments are very good Charles Irwin and Pat Flaherty as officers on the ship also keep up the standard of good performances.

CHAPTER I

THE Weare is a meandering and gracious river curving in wide reaches through the lowlands to the sea; and it rises, as any New Hampshire man will tell you, in Carvel, down back of Cap'n Somes's barn The Captain, after his last voyage—he was in the China trade—turned his back on the ocean and came a hundred miles inland to make himself a home, and the big brick-ended house he built, with the famous barn behind, stands about a mile south of Carvel village, in the angle where White River flow together to form the Weare

The Captain brought his bride to Carvel, and his daughter was born there After he died, his daughter wedded Will Brannan, and Will came to live with his wife and her mother When Emily and Kay Brannan were babies, Grandmother Somes died, and the name died with her; but the house was still "Cap'n Somes's place" to Carvel and the countryside around

Emily and Kay grew older, and Emily went to Wellesley, and on a certain fine morning in mid-June, Kay Brannan walked uptown to get the mail Will had a box in the Post Office, and usually brought the mail when he came home to lunch but today he was indisposed and would stay abed George Hastings would have sent the mail with their grocery order if he had been asked to do so; but his truck would not deliver till late in the forenoon, and this was Monday, so that there was apt to be a letter from Emily Kay was always eager for Emily's letters, so she came to town

She walked; for she was used to walking, and this day was warm, with a soft wind full of pleasant whisperings Leaves were unfolding, like butterflies trying their wings The new grass was springing from the sod, confidently expecting to grow tall and lush, as ignorant of lawnmowers as a college senior of the discipline of the world. There was some late shad bush in bloom along the river, and flowers in garden beds along the way.

Where such a girl as Kay is concerned, dimensions are of no importance; but for the sake of the record, Kay was small, only a fraction over five feet She was bareheaded today, and against her mother's prudent advice she wore neither sweater nor coat She walked as though she enjoyed doing so, with shoulders straight and snug, and head high, and her heels clipped briskly She seemed not to hurry, so easily she moved; yet for a person whose utmost comfortable stride was only a little more than two feet, she covered ground at a surprising speed

Her eyes were alert, and she missed nothing along the way Small matters may assume a large importance in Carvel, remote from the passing world, isolate and self-contained There is a railroad through Newfield, some eight miles to the north, at the foot of the Lake, and another at Dexter, seven miles to the south, but Carvel itself lies midway between the two lines, untouched by them Even the main motor routes to the mountains pass to one side or the other; so that the town sees little of the transient stream of summer folk There are a few cottages on Coos Pond, three or four miles toward Newfield; but these are for the most part owned by Carvel people, who use them as summer homes or as resorts for week-end vacations, or for winter outings when the snow lies deep on the ice across the pond

The town itself is rather have made old Luke Frame a wealthy man, are lower down, and nearer the foot, and at the very heart of the town, the Central New Hampshire Power Company has a plant and office building, filled day and night with the hum of turbine-driven dynamos

The Post Office is diagonally opposite the entrance to the Power Company's offices, on the village square A few stores and a filling station cluster near, and so far as the business section of Carvel is concerned, that is all But along Main Street there are pleasant homes, on well-spaced lawns, the houses fresh with clean white paint, thrifty and self-contained

As Kay came to town today, folk went out of their way to meet her face to face for the pleasure of her bright "Good morning" In front of Chuck Webster's filling station, she overtook Lillian Radford, a few years older than herself, and slipped her arm through that of the other girl The gesture was affectionate

"Soon be vacation now, Lillian'" she said smilingly Lillian taught in the Carvel school

"I'll be glad of it," the older girl wearily agreed "The children don't do any real work after the weather gets warm There's really no sense in keeping them in." They entered the Post Office and approached the wicket togther, and Sue Clemons—Ed Clemons was Postmaster—handed Kay two letters and a paper

"Nothing for you Lillian," she said.

Kay, looking at her mail, cried. "Here's one from Emily!" as happily as though this were not expected

"Oh, I've been meaning to tell you'" Lillian exclaimed "Miss Farmer is resigning after this year I'm sure Emily can get her place You know, she teaches the fourth grade Miss Farmer hasn't told anyone but me, so if Emily applies right away she'll have the best chance."

"I'll tell her," Kay promised "I'll write to her tonight '

"I had to wait a year after I graduated before there was an opening,' Lillian explained almost jealously "Emily's lucky to find something right away '

"She certainly is," Kay agreed "And thank you for telling me She'll be so grateful to you "

Something exploded outside the Post Office, and a motorcycle stopped at the door and Elmer Radford alighted and came in, clanging in climbing spurs, an array of pliers and wrenches hanging from the heavy belt strapped around his overalls, a leather loop hooked to the belt He saw his sister and Kay, and his ears burned red

"H'lo, Lil," he said "H'lo, Kay' Got the mail, did you, Lil? Thought you'd be at school by now '

"Your spurs are digging the floor" Lillian chidingly

"Got

"Check," he assured her "But we've got to get everything in shape for the new boss He's due the end of this week"

The imminent arrival of a new superintendent at the Power Plant was the big news of the day in Carvel "Oh, who is he?" Kay asked. Her father, as one of the older men in the organization, had held some vain ambitions, when the office became vacant a month before She knew his grievous disappointment when word came that the place would be filled from outside

"Ned Pastor from Manchester," Elmer told her "He graduated from George said he had, he volunteered to deliver the things, but Kay shook her head "I can carry them, well as not," she decided "I'm going right home, and it will save your truck a trip"

"Hear anything from Emily?" George asked slowly, intent upon the business in hand A friendly amusement showed for a moment in Kay's eyes

George nodded and he said diffidently

"I kind of figured I might be in Boston about that time, might go out and see her, if she weren't too busy Wrote and told her so" He added doubtfully 'But she didn't say anything"

"She'd be glad to see you, I know," Kay assured him You're her oldest friend, George Emily's very fond of you"

George grinned with pleasure, and he presented the parcel "That all?" he asked, and Kay nodded and took it and turned away

"I heard tell young Pastor is coming to run the Power Plant' George

'Kay, Kay, what do you think it's all settled, I'm going to Holyoke in the fall, I got word today, and I'm going, I'm going, I'm so excited I can hardly stand, Kay, I don't see how you've stood it, to wait so long If I had to wait two years I'd die I think you're marvelous but I "

'No need for you to wait There's only one of you,' Kay reminded her, smiling Nancy never used periods She talked until she was interrupted, took a quick breath while anyone else was speaking and burst into words again at the first lull

'I should think you'd just hate Emily'" the girl cried, as Kay paused "Having to wait for her to get through "

'I don't,' Kay assured her 'I feel as if I'd helped, some, by waiting We're awfully proud of Emily you know She's done so wonderfully And of course Father couldn't afford to have us both in Wellesley at once Really I haven't minded at all"

"But, darling'" Nancy protested "To just sit and twiddle your thumbs, when you're all ready and everything, I just couldn't bear it I don't know how I'm going to wait even till fall, just think Kay we'll be in college together, at the same time I mean, even if we are in different colleges, I'll certainly be glad to get out of this town'"

Kay smiled in faint amusement "Will you? I like Carvel' she declared

'So do I, of course, Nancy virtuously insisted "In a way, but you can get tired of a place, don't you think, I'm never coming back here, I promise you, even if I have to just slave, or wash dishes or anything, never, never "

"Not even for vacations?" Kay asked, her eyes twinkling

"Oh, of course, vacations, Nancy assented, "and new clothes, and going to parties, and being important, but I mean to really live, you know what I mean, don't be absurd, Kay I'll bet you never come back either, I don't believe Emily will stay here after she's graduated you wait and see "

"Of course, she will,' Kay insisted Lillian Radford told me this morning that Miss Farmer is resigning after this year I expect Emily will try to get her job"

"She," Kemp's Band $21,000 In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, July 22—Only the Stanley emerged unscathed during the terrific heat of last week, and this house skyrocketed to $21,000, or $8,000 above average, with "She" on the screen and Hal Kemp's band on the stage. Kemp has always been a big favorite here.

There wasn't anything else around, however, to bring a smile to the managerial faces. At the Alvin, a bill consisting of "It's a Small World" and "It Happened In New York" took a nosedive and was yanked after four days to a weak $2,000. "The Glass Key" was weak at $7,000.

Things were slightly better at the Warner, where "Loves of a Dictator" and "The Nit Wits" managed to keep the house out of too much red at $4,000, which, while nothing to brag about, isn't bad at this season.

Total first run grosses were $34,000. Average is $30,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending July 18:

"IT'S A SMALL WORLD" (Fox)
"IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK" (Univ.)

"THE NIT-WITS" (Radio)
WARNER—(2,000), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $4,000. (Average, $4,500)

Heat, Competition Hit Buffalo Takes

BUFFALO, July 22.—Heat and a combination of outdoor attractions knocked the props from under box-office support here last week. The only house to come within shooting distance of normal was the Lafayette with a dual, "Party Wire" and "Shot in the Dark," which grossed $4,100, under par by $900.

The Cheektowaga dog track, ceremonies in connection with the opening of the Grand Island bridges and a Buddy Baer-Al Delaney fight, in addition to the ball games, made the going tough.

Total first run business was $21,200. Average is $37,300.

Estimated takings for the week ending July 19:

"SHE" (Radio)
BUFFALO—(3,500), 30c-55c, 7 days. Gross: $8,900. (Average, $13,500)

RKO to Start Week Stands In the Fall

to the drawing power of the product itself.

In the season which is about to expire, only three pictures played the city circuit on week stands. Two, "Roberta" and "Gay Divorcee," happened to be Radio pictures and one, "G-Men," from Warners.

There is nothing of the fixed equation in connection with the anticipated 20 for 1935-36. RKO officials, knowing the uncertainties which enter into production, obviously have no way of figuring out how many pictures will hold up. Their conclusion that they may go as high as 20 may hit considerably below that total.

Plan Was Hinted July 5

That RKO was contemplating a wholesale change in booking policy for the new season was first touched upon by Red Kann in his Insiders' Outlook column in MOTION PICTURE DAILY July 5 when he said, in part:

> "An interesting plan is afoot at RKO—the circuit, not the film company. There, the powers that make decisions are manoeuvring with the idea of adopting week stands for their greater city first runs to displace the two-changes-a-week policy which now prevails as standard. The instances are not uncommon when attractions have held sway seven days hand-running in RKO houses; there was 'G-Men' lately, for instance. But the thought goes beyond sporadic bookings in favor of general bookings on the ground that many pictures can stand the gaff if given the chance.

Several Angles Held Important

> "Consideration accorded the idea suggests several angles which strike this department as being of moment. In the first place, the obvious but unexpressed conclusion is that the circuit will veer away from double features. In the second place, the hint is a pretty good-sized one that RKO executives are pinning much faith on the quality of the product for the new season. Without celluloid of merit, extension of runs is, of course, out of the question. With it, increased playing time becomes a logical course to pursue. From time to time, this column has sought to point out the inadequacy of a system which persisted in changing programs merely because the day of the week on which it was customary to do so had arrived.
> "One of these years, soon perhaps, distributors who are also in the theatre business, will abandon their antiquated and slavish fetish of running inferior product first run in their own houses on the ground it helps the subsequents which, incidentally are doing all right up and down the land, and make more playing time available for that percentage of their output which holds up. When that happens, merit will come into the reward it rates and mediocrity kept in the generous alley which always should have been reserved for it anyway.
> "Why there should be any hesitancy about conceding that a substantial portion of any major's output is second rate and maybe a notch beyond is something not easy to comprehend. Exhibitors know all pictures cannot click; they never have on any one program and, sad as it is to relate, probably never will. Forced draft applied to a weak sister may create some artificial excitement and, so, some artificial stimulus, but everyone knows the first thing that makes a picture successful is the picture itself. All else is supplementary and complementary. It would do distributors and theatres, as well, far more good to barrage heavily on the films that have what it takes than to putter about with those that haven't got it and won't acquire it no matter how valiant the effort placed behind them."

of a Bengal Lancer," with Jimmy Finlayson as a tough sergeant contributing laughs galore. The romance is also transferred to India with Anne Grey's attempt to marry Miss Lang off to a British officer with success, creating romantic entanglements.

The comedy is the usual stuff from here on, winding up in a blaze of laughs. Daphne Pollard and Finlayson give fine supporting portrayals. James Horne directed with a keen sense of comedy timing from an excellent screen play by Frank Butler and Jeff Moffitt. Art Lloyd and Welter Lundin's photography is good.

Production Code Seal No. 1055. Running time, 89 minutes. "G."

"The Old Homestead"

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Although described on the main title as being based on a modern version of the play, this picture bears no resemblance to the famous melodrama. It is, nevertheless, an amusing musical well played by a capable cast.

The story concerns a troup of hill-billy entertainers who are taken to New York for a radio engagement. Mary Carlisle, niece of Willard Robertson, who manages the boys, is in love with Lawrence Gray, star soloist. When the boys score an overnight success Gray succumbs to the wiles of Dorothy Lee, and, to retaliate, Miss Carlisle encourages the attentions of Eddie Nugent, radio star.

Robertson, meanwhile, though supposed to act as company chaperone, falls for Lillian Miles, a gold digger who proves finally to have a heart of gold.

As these romances are straightened out, some catchy musical numbers are introduced, and some clever comedy touches are supplied by Fuzzy Knight. Director William Nigh has not taken the plot too seriously and has concentrated on getting the numbers across. Individual performances, particularly those of Miss Lee, Miss Carlisle and Miss Miles are good. Knight, and a quartette billed as "Sons of the Pioneers," make their numbers effective.

Screen play and dialogue are by W. Scott Darling, while the musical numbers are credited to a dozen different writers. The picture has enough production values to satisfy most of the smaller houses.

Production Code Seal No. 762. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

Coast ITOA Picks Date

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—The local Independent Theatre Owners' Ass'n. has decided on July 29 as the date for a general membership meeting at which time officers for a new board of directors will be elected.

Ohio Censor Leaders Not Interrupted Yet

CLEVELAND, July 22.—Reports from Columbus to the effect that the Ohio censor board may soon be without sufficient funds to buy the censorship leaders attached to all films are not taken seriously here.

The leaders are still coming through and exchange managers point out that the $3 per reel censorship fee is expected to give the board an income of $100,000.

Allied Regionals Set

BOSTON, July 22.—A series of regional meetings will be held throughout New England by members of Allied, beginning Aug. 4 at White River Jct., Vt. The five-day trip has been moved ahead from July 20. Nathan Yamins is scheduled to go along on the trip through Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Maine, accompanied by other national and local officials.

Amity Marks Circuit Buys For New Year

Loew's, illustrating the absence of product worries for the two leading New York circuits such as have confronted them in other seasons.

Loew's new season product lineup here includes the following deals already closed: M-G-M, 52; United Artists, 14; Paramount, 32; Columbia, 40, and 18 from Universal under a deal closed yesterday. In addition, there probably will be 30, or half of the Warner lineup available. RKO has closed for 50 from Radio and 65 from 20th Century-Fox. In addition, there are expected to be available to it one-half of the Warner lineup, one-half of Universal and one-half of Paramount, or an additional 80 features. There will also be available what is regarded as a rapidly improving independent output and a few suitable foreign-made features.

RKO was faced with a serious product problem for its metropolitan houses at the height of the buying season last year, which was only relieved when Loew's relinquished to it Columbia, Universal and Fox product. Loew's have about 70 houses in the metropolitan area and RKO about 40.

Fox Illness Halts Hearing for a Week

MINEOLA, L. I., July 22.—William Fox was temporarily relieved today of the burden of answering questions in an examination before trial of a stockholders' suit for an accounting pending against him when former District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, presiding as official referee of the examination, learned from the defendant in Nassau Supreme Court here that illness made it impossible further to submit to the quiz at present.

Upon recommendation of Benjamin Reass, Fox's counsel, Edwards agreed to an adjournment of the examination until next Monday, meanwhile indicating he would appoint a physician to inquire into the theatre magnate's condition.

The examination began July 15 with George Richards, counsel, conducting the examination.

Honolulu's Biggest Theatre Man in N. Y.

Esmond Parker, president and general manager of the Consolidated Amusement Co., Ltd., of Honolulu; Allab Davis, vice-president of the Hawaii Trust Co., which is financially interested in Consolidated, and Fred Williams, domestic representative of the circuit, with headquarters in San Francisco, are in New York for several weeks. Consolidated, which is the dominant theatre factor in the islands, also operates the Pacific Theatre and Supply Co., an exchange which serves outside theatres.

At the Waldorf the group is being taken in hand socially by sales managers who have visited Honolulu. Last night was Felix Feist's night. Gradwell Sears and Neil F. Agnew come later.

Swift Spread Of Giveaways Hits Industry

Some States Putting Up Legal Opposition

Giveaways and various forms of prize games have swept the country so swiftly since code restrictions were ended that few places are left, especially in subsequent run and neighborhood houses, where they are not the rule rather than the exception.

To get a broad view of the current situation Motion Picture Daily has had its correspondents make a study of the situation.

Dispatches on pages 14 and 15 show the extent of the spread in some of the more important localities. Other reports and comments will follow in later issues.

In Chicago alone it is estimated that more than $50,000 a week is being given away in prizes. In Texas, Kansas City and some other places larger circuits are fighting the box-office stunts in downtown houses, but are meeting competition in smaller places.

In Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin local authorities have threatened prosecutions and this has had a deterrent effect. New England is going for all kinds of stunts in a big way.

Kalmus Sails After Closing Color Deal

The plant will be open to all producers.

It was announced by Korda that

Star on the Horizon

WITHIN the industry, the acknowledgment is general now that the quality of the product has improved. Outside the industry newspaper and editorial comment reflects in a measure far more generous than has prevailed before the job Hollywood at large is doing these days. There has been a visible appreciation in large segments of the nation's press of the problems inherent in the changeover and a well-defined willingness to credit the industry with honesty of intent and recognition of accomplishment.

Partially because of the caustic criticism which prevailed in an earlier day which is by no means a far off day as time slips by and partially because of a decision, too late arrived at, to move along the screen to an earlier maturity, major producers today are regularly delving into the realms of classics, near and far, and into regions heretofore only lightly and sporadically touched upon for fruitful and more intelligent entertainment.

THE results, as far as they have gone, have been definite enough and successful enough within and without to completely justify the latter day trend in the making of pictures. Yet as far as they have gone, there is looming now on the fall horizon and the months immediately thereafter an event, major—very major—in importance. It is the production by Max Reinhardt for Warners of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Faithful to the play as The Bard wrote it, rich in beauty and imagination, shot through with brilliance in ballet and the Mendelssohn music, as well as with acting, photography, lighting and technical perfection, this production, now and weeks before it plays its first roadshow engagement, must of necessity be recorded as a highlight of the new season.

No one, of course, can foretell what will issue forth from Hollywood next season. No one, obviously, can know to what new heights the enterprise and the ingenuity of Hollywood's producers will send this business in 1935-36. Yet whatever may emerge and no matter what the source, including that which is responsible for this notable endeavor, it is difficult to conjure any attraction which can surpass for worthwhile and courageous enterprise that which the Warners have essayed and accomplished in the famous Shakespeare fantasy.

BECAUSE of the spread of the canvas on which its charm has been portrayed and registered, because of its superb craftsmanship and loveliness and because this business needs "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and others of its girth, the attraction, while of Warners actually goes beyond and becomes something of the industry and for it. There should be, and it is now urged, a coalition of effort to give this production a fanfare and a play from all hands in reward for its having been made.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," formidable as an undertaking and eminently well qualified to stand on its own, suggests widespread industry cooperation, for nothing but substantial good can come from its showings up and down the land.

In it is another answer, complete and convincing, of the capabilities and of the intentions of the industry to fashion its wares in good taste and in keeping with the highest possible standards in the motion picture or any other art form.

Code Affairs End July 31; Refunds Due

Cash Totals $15,999.50, With $7,874 in Checks

Code Authority affairs will be wound up and its offices in the RKO Bldg. closed on July 31, John C. Flinn, executive secretary, reported yesterday. A final item of business will be the refunding to industry members of $15,999.50 in cash and the return of undeposited checks amounting to $7,874.16. These funds represent Campi's balance after the payment of all bills.

Liquidation of Campi's affairs here, in Hollywood and in 33 exchange centers has been completed by the organization's finance committee and its financial operations have been audited up to July 13 by Price, Waterhouse & Co. The audit showed that a total of $341,880.37 was contributed to the support of Code Authority after the beginning of its operations, Dec. 7, 1933, made up of $183,089.37 from the producer-distributor group and $158,791 from the exhibitor group. In the division of surplus cash, therefore, producer-distributor contributors in good standing as of last May 27 will receive refunds aggregating $8,-

No Early Report on Voluntary Code Seen

No meeting of the Code Authority committee named to report on a voluntary industry code under the new NRA is expected for some time yet, a spokesman for the committee reported yesterday.

Austin Keough, designated to make a report to the committee, is deferring his study until new NRA procedure has been crystallized and the action of other industries in connection with voluntary codes has been observed, it was said. J. Robert Rubin, chairman of the committee, is vacationing abroad.

Variety Executive Post Set for Flinn

John C. Flinn, executive secretary of Code Authority, will assume an executive editorial post on the weekly theatrical publication, Variety, on Aug. 1, it was stated yesterday.

Flinn, who has had wide experience in executive positions in the industry over a period of years, served as executive secretary of Code Authority from the inception of that body in 1933.

Berenson's $35,000 Claim to Be Fought

Objections to Lawrence Berenson's $35,000 claim against Paramount will be filed and the expunging of the claim asked as a result of a memorandum from Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday upholding the report of Special Master John E. Joyce who held that Berenson probably had no legal grounds for a claim.

Joyce's ruling was made in connection with a petition from the Paramount trustees for leave to settle the $35,000 claim for $20,000. Berenson, an attorney, filed the claim for services rendered a Paramount stockholder who brought an action to restrain Paramount from concluding stock repurchase agreements.

RKO to Appeal from Arbitration Ruling

An appeal from the state court order, which was made public yesterday, confirming the arbitration award to Clinton-Apollo Theatres, Inc., against RKO, will be taken during the next 30 days, attorneys for RKO said yesterday. The award grants Clinton-Apollo total damages of $40,000 and directs specific performance of RKO's leases on the Apollo and Hollywood, particularly as to booking policies, in the future.

RKO, in a cross motion to vacate the award, objected to the latter part of it, contending that the arbitrators did not have the power to direct specific performance of the leases inasmuch as RKO could not control releasing arrangements on the product involved. The award was confirmed and RKO's cross motion to vacate denied by Justice Lauer in state supreme court.

Code Seals Will Be Changed on Aug. 1

To effect cost and running time reductions, production code seals after Aug. 1 will appear on all approved features and shorts only as part of an introductory frame, instead of in a separate frame preceding the title, as has been done in the case of features heretofore, it was stated yesterday at the M.P.P.D.A. No change will result in the case of short subjects, which have not carried the seal of approval in a separate frame.

In addition to the economies to be realized, it was said, the change will also result in uniform display of the code seals on all approved pictures.

Mass. Asks $600,000 Of Chase Securities

Boston, July 23.—Suits seeking $600,000 have been brought against the Chase Securities Corp., now known as Amerex Holding Corp., an affiliate of Chase National Bank, by the Massachusetts bank commissioner.

A statement issued today by the commissioner's office said the corporation had sold stock to a group of closed banks "before they were taken into the posession of the commissioner," adding that "it is sought to declare the various sales void on the grounds that the same were fraudulently issued by the parent company and that the securities sold were not qualified for sale under the so-called blue sky law of the commonwealth." The commissioner demands the return of the purchase price with interest.

The banks cited are the Inman Trust Co., Medford Trust Co., Belmont Trust Co., Lawrence Trust Co., Revere Trust Co., Charlestown Trust Co., Plymouth County Trust Co. and Western Massachusetts Bank and Trust Co.

The action concerns the industry in that the closed banks were affiliated with Chase, which plays a large part in film activities.

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—Augusta Paper has been awarded a judgment of $11,754 in her $31,090 suit against the Lincoln Theatre Corp. of Nebraska. The suit grew out of a contract made between the defendant and Nick Paper, the plaintiff's husband, on July 3, 1930, in which the latter was to have the management of the Capital and Rialto at a salary of $75 a week and was to be indemnified against loss. Mrs. Paper brought suit on the assignment of the claim to her by her husband.

Columbus, July 23.—The annual golf tournament and dinner dance will be held at the Wyandotte Country Club, Aug. 5. Billy James heads the committee in charge.

Des Moines, July 23.—August 12-13 has been set for the local Variety Club golf tournament which will be held over the Hyperion Club course, according to L. M. McKechneay, Tri-States treasurer, in charge of the meet.

The entry list should run well over 100, McKechneay stated, which will be made up of local and state golf enthusiasts. Prizes will be awarded for each flight of eight in the scoring rounds. Entry fees have been set at $5 for men and $1 for women which also includes an evening of entertainment Aug. 13 at Riverview Park.

Washington

Washington July 23.—Tent No. 11 barkers became mariners and held the first annual Variety Club show boat cruise, chartering the Wilson Line's City of Washington for a three-hour ride down the Potomac.

More than 1,100 barkers, friends and guests made the trip, which was second in size only to the annual banquet last fall.

Although rain fell in the early evening Skipper Carter T. Barron made necessary arrangements with the weatherman, and calm waters prevailed for the trip and before the boat docked stars were twinkling and the moon was shining through the rifts of a mackerel sky.

Dancing formed the main diversion of the evening—or rather, morning—with the phenomenal number of four orchestras furnishing the music. Engaged especially for the cruise were Jolly Coburn's Rainbow Room Orchestra (by courtesy of Loew's Fox) and Ina Ray Hutton and her Melodears (by courtesy of the Earle). Supplementing these two, which, in themselves, would have proved sufficient attraction for the cruise, there were the orchestras from the Earle and Loew's Fox.

Besides the entertainment carried by the star acts Erner & Fischer and Mae ("Betty Boop") Questel, from Loew's Fox, and Sammy Cantor and Terry Howard from the Earle added to the entertainment. Paul Gerrits and Jack Pepper, while called upon, did not do anything more than acknowledge their ovations.

From New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond, Lynchburg, Petersburg and many other cities came representatives and guests.

She Slept

Philadelphia, July 23.—Fred Glass, manager of the Fox, posted a $5 bet no woman would dare sleep alone in the theatre over night after seeing "The Bride of Frankenstein."

Mrs. Bonnie Hayes, local housewife, accepted Glass' defy, curled up and fell asleep. Collecting her wager, next morning she told a reporter she had not slept so soundly in years. So the McCook Daily Gazette played the yarn front page.

Progress Predicted For Hungarian Film

Washington, July 23.—Progress made in the Hungarian industry in 1934 appears likely to continue during the current year, according to a report from the American consulate-general in Budapest, made public by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

During the first five months of 1935, the report shows, the Hunnia Film Studio produced five sound features at a total cost of 890,000 pengo ($156,000). The largest undertaking was a production entitled "Little Mother" with German dialog. This picture proved to be the biggest domestic success of the season.

The new Hungarian code now under consideration, the report states, will prohibit cumulative acquisition of theatre licenses. Films will be placed under the jurisdiction of the newly organized Ministry of Industries, the artistic supervision remaining with the Ministry of Public Education and censorship and political and moral issues with the Minister of Interior. License holders financially unable to operate theatres will be required to surrender their licenses.

Compulsory synchronization in Hungarian of a contingent of foreign films may be put into effect, the report states. In order to protect exhibitors in the provinces currently exhibiting Hungarian films, the Minister of Interior has instructed local authorities to refrain from using amusement permits for other forms of amusement on days when such films are shown.

Says Amateurs Will Force Color Films

Boston, July 23.—Colored films will be forced upon the screens of theatres by amateur photographers, predicts Prof. Arthur C. Hardy of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and of the S. M. P. E. in the current issue of the Technology Review.

Amateur cinematographers are making colored movies of good quality at the present time, the article continues. They will demand the beauty of colored films from producers, since few technical difficulties stand in the way at present.

The several attempts at colored pictures just before the advent of sound were not successful, according to the vice-president of the Optical Society of America, since the color was of poor quality. The quality with the new processes is such that the public will demand color just as it insisted on sound, he says.

Ohio Again Censors Newsreel Showings

Columbus, July 23.—After having been exempt from censorship for more than two years, newsreels in Ohio again come under scrutiny, according to the law which became effective last week. This is due to an omission in wording in the bill increasing censorship fees from $1 to $3 per reel.

The law heretofore in effect specified censorship of all film except newsreels. However, in drafting the bill to increase the fees, the words "except newsreels" were omitted. Whether this was intentional or otherwise is not known.

Cleveland Has Few Giveaways And Seeks Ban

CLEVELAND, July 23. — Cleveland was entirely free from premiums, bank nights, screeno and so-called exhibition evils during the 1934-35 season, not only because of the code, but also because of a binding agreement entered into by all of the independent exhibitors operating in the Greater Cleveland area. This agreement provided for single features and for the elimination of all projects for building theatre business other than presentation of picture programs.

This agreement expired July 8. Local exhibitors are now in the process for creating a local code of fair practice for the 1935-36 season. This code will aim to keep out of Cleveland all schemes foreign to picture exhibition. A committee appointed by Ernest Schwartz, president Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors Ass'n, will report soon.

Bank Nights at 65 Houses

Bank night is the only plan that has definitely invaded the territory. Approximately 65 houses are committed to play bank night, according to J. S. Jossey, bank night franchise owner. Seven Cleveland houses are now playing it.

An attempt has been made to stop bank night in Cleveland, claiming it to be "unfair competition." Common Pleas Judge Frederick Walther denied a request for a temporary injunction to stop the plan at the Haltnorth. The petition was filed by Meyer Fischer, Fountain.

An appeal has been made from Judge Walther's decision. Testimony on this appeal is now being heard by Saul Danaceau, appointed referee by the Court of Appeals. The Court of Appeals, now adjourned, will reconvene to pass on this testimony when submitted.

Pay-Off, similar to bank night, but differing in its modus operandi, is just breaking into the picture. To date no local theatre has signed up for it. No Cleveland theatre is playing screeno or any of the other games common in other territories.

In Youngstown, the Common Pleas Court on July 16 dissolved a temporary injunction to stop bank night at the State.

An ordinance aimed at any form of lottery and apparently designed to restrict spread of these to theatres was passed by the City Council on July 15.

Cincy Raises Ban

Cincinnati, July 23.—Bank nights and similar box-office come-ons have been conspicuous by their absence here, nor have they been resorted to in the vicinity. However, the Strand, downtown independent first and second run, took the initiative and planned to introduce screeno recently. The affair was heavily advertised in the local dailies and with window cards. The Jackson, subsequent run suburban, also advertised a series of screeno nights about the same time.

On the day screeno was to open at the Strand city officials decided it was gambling, and threatened the management with arrest if it went through. It didn't. Neither did the Jackson.

There is a war on gambling here in the form of slot machines, lotteries and similar games of chance.

Chicago Giveaways Total To Over $50,000 Weekly

CHICAGO, July 23.—Fifty thousand dollars per week in Chicago proper and double that sum in the so-called Chicago territory embracing northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin and western Indiana is being distributed to patrons by theatres through a dozen varieties of what might be generally classed as raffles.

Outlying theatres, which were first to adopt these devices, have been unable to accommodate the mobs who stormed for admission. The craze has captured the city so effectively that more than half of the theatres are staging special gift nights at least twice a week. The Ridge at present holds the record for frequency by staging screeno four nights a week and bank night on the fifth.

Up to a few weeks ago the theatre advertising columns blazed with the various names of the schemes adopted, but this advertising is no longer accepted. It is reported that the Postoffice Department looked with disfavor on what they considered advertising a raffle and the newspapers voluntarily agreed to barring it.

As yet, Chicago's Loop has not been invaded. Outside the Loop, however, it is more difficult to find a theatre which is not giving away cash.

Still leading in popularity is the copyrighted game of screeno. It is now on 165 screens in Chicago and a total of 250 in the territory. Warners have just signed contracts to place it in the Avalon and Capitol.

It is no longer a small theatre's "life saver." The large houses have taken it up just as enthusiastically. At the present time the Marlboro tops the individual nightly awards in what it terms its giant screeno. Theatres such as the Tivoli, Tower and South Town, B. & K. houses, have screeno three times a week.

Bank night, another copyrighted proposition, has at least 50 theatres in Chicago and probably more. Exact figures were not available. Other theatres, which avoid royalties or rentals, have adopted similar tactics. The Ambassador has its derby night. The Adelphi puts on its checko.

Other names blazoned in the newspapers before the frown from Uncle Sam included such names as sweepstakes, prosperity night, cash night, pay night and dozens of others. The only "natural" overlooked in this territory at least is "Share the Wealth Night."

While cash is most popular, many of the schemes are operated with merchandise or part cash, part merchandise. Down state, cooperation of local merchants has been obtained by many theatres whereby the merchandise is obtained without cost or at comparatively small cost.

A fairly tight lid on bookies, enforced for several weeks, is a possible reason for the popularity, but on film row it is the unanimous opinion that the craze has not only not reached its height, but will continue indefinitely. It is also declared that to date there is not a theatre which has not made additional money on the innovation, although all of its competitors are doing the same thing.

New Haven Stunts Varied

NEW HAVEN, July 23.—Of the 20 subsequent runs here only the Bijou, a downtown house, and a few theatres dark most of the week, pursue no giveaway policy. Premiums, mainly in the form of china, ovenware, etc., seem to be the most popular come-on in this territory, with 17 houses distributing about 15,000 pieces weekly. In spite of the warm weather, however, bank night, cash night, and other cash giveaway plans have risen in popularity. In the state, 47 theatres are now using this type of giveaway.

Country store, pay night, tango and screeno have come and gone in this territory, but tango and screeno seem to have definitely failed to draw hereabouts, and other schemes—amature nights, vaudeville, etc.—have been withdrawn, at least for the summer.

Bargain nights, most of which constitute a reduction to a uniform 10-cent admission, are run on the average of twice a week in most theatres, in addition to premium nights, which average two per theatre, but in some spots run as high as four.

Michigan Puts Up Ban

DETROIT, July 23.—While bank nights, screeno and other such games have hit all over the country, Detroit and Michigan have been practically free from them.

While the majority of subsequent runs in Detroit and many out-state are giving away premiums, few have used screeno and other games like it.

Screeno made its appearance here some weeks ago in several of the Schreiber and Krim theatres, but promptly bowed out when other houses complained to the prosecutor, who ruled the game a lottery and gave the theatres using it five days to cease.

Sweepstakes, gold mine and other games have not appeared here.

Bank night has not been used in Detroit either. While there is a representative for the game here, he is waiting his time, until the kick on screeno and cash nights used by Jacob Schreiber blows over. Schreiber soon goes to trial on a charge of violating the state lottery laws by giving away cash prizes.

The bank night representative feels that his game is not a lottery and that by waiting until the smoke of the present flareup blows away, he will be able to convince the prosecutor's office of that fact and will thus have a free sweep in putting it into many houses here.

Not Liked in Northwest

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23.—Bank night is the special curse of Twin City theatres and has attacked to some extent the business throughout the northwest.

The thing got under way in the neighborhood houses of Minneapolis when the Boulevard and the Edina located on the southern outskirts of the city began putting on mob scenes one night a week as a result of the cash bait that sometimes ran as high as $200 or $300.

Several other neighborhood houses took it up until now it appears to be losing its drawing power in most places. The downtown houses held out valiantly against the practice under the leadership of Minnesota Amusements, the former Publix circuit.

While the NRA was in operation there were some sporadic efforts to keep the cash prize offerings out of certain of the country situations, but there have been few battles in the Twin Cities, the circuit ignoring the practice for the most part and managing by good bills in its own neighborhood houses to hold its own fairly well against the competition.

Clamps on Lid

Milwaukee, July 23. — At least for the time being, the lid has been clamped on bank nights, screeno, cash night, sweepstakes, jack pot, etc., in this spot. What started out to be a wide open summer for come-ons cooled considerably when the police secured a court decision on the legality of screeno, which resulted in the fining of Milton Harmon, manager of Saxe's Garfield $10 and costs for operating a lottery.

Prior to the screeno test case, grocery nights were getting a play in some of the smaller neighborhood houses.

Just how long the present unruffled situation will remain regarding giveaways is difficult to say, inasmuch as reports have it that one or more of the owners of copyrighted schemes may fight the decision in the local courts.

Kansas City's Varied Stunts Are Spreading

KANSAS CITY, July 23.—Various forms of giveaways continue to increase in the Kansas City area.

G. W. Harttmann, operator of the Armour, North Kansas City, and distributor of screeno in Western Missouri and Kansas, reports 37 theatres using this form of giveaway. Of that number, 15 are in Greater Kansas City. Both circuits and independents are using screeno.

Most of the contracts are with theatres which are using other forms of giveaways, according to Harttmann.

It is Harttmann's belief that the situation is not saturated and won't be for at least a year.

Two houses in this area have been using giveaways for several years—J. F. Rigney's Westport here and Joe Lenski's Cozy, Pittsburg, Kan.

Max M. Barewin, who represents the Price Theatre Premiums Corp, in Western Missouri and Kansas, believes giveaways will increase for at least a year, and probably longer.

A partial list of promotions includes: bank night, cash night, screeno, jack pot, buck night, china, grab bag, and chair night. Someone thought this up who was tired of the run-of-the-mill giveaways.

Ice cream cones, chocolate bars, free parking (an old one), hardware, and other merchandise and services of value have been used as come-ons by theatres here.

Midwest Offers Gift Stamps

Gift stamps are Fox Midwest's contribution to the melee.

"Exhibitors won't stop using giveaways until they lose their appeal to patrons," said E. Rolsky, operator of the St. John and National, "and until pictures are produced that will make up that appeal at the box-office."

More theatres are using giveaways than at any time in the history of the territory, observes R. R. Jersey, representing the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing Co.

In Kansas City, probably 90 per cent of theatres are giving away something, he said, but outside not more than five per cent are using such promotions. Use of giveaways will increase during the next two years, believes Jersey, and he points out that "this has been the history of other territories."

Bank night continues to be the leading contender for first place. The scheme is being used by approximately 137 theaters in Western Missouri and Kansas, with between 25 and 30 in Greater Kansas City, according to R. W. McEwan, distributor in this division.

That independent exhibitors are using giveaways and will continue to do so as a means of meeting the competition of circuits which can buy protection, is indicated by J. W. Cotter of the Bijou. In his opinion, giveaways will be used by independents in this way as long as the protection situation exists.

Of course, circuits themselves are using giveaways, practically as intensively as independents.

That giveaways will continue until they cease attracting patronage, is the opinion of E. E. Webber of the Mary Lue, one of the few exhibitors left in Greater Kansas City who isn't giving something away.

Columbus Limits

Columbus, July 23.—First run exhibitors say that they have never considered any sort of artificial business stimulant, as they have never seen the necessity of it. A survey among the subsequent runs, however, shows that many exhibitors have felt the need of something of this kind, but it has never been put into practice because of the gambling angle, upon which city and county officials definitely frown.

An alternative to bolster business is double featuring, which is the rule rather than the exception here. Twenty-seven out of 32 subsequents are showing twin programs at least one day each week. The majority of these charge 10 and 15 cents, except on Sundays, when the scale is tilted slightly upward.

Bridgeport Off Bank Night

BRIDGEPORT, July 23.—Downtown houses here have avoided bank nights, but the neighborhoods have taken a try at it. First house to start dropped idea after a few weeks. At present three neighborhood houses are still using it with fair results.

China and glassware nights continue to be strong drawing cards with neighborhoods, with household and circus auction nights a close second.

Appeals May Delay Pathe's New Setup

preme Court Justice Lauer's order denying their application was declared yesterday by Martin King, counsel for Casey and Derr.

Pathe's reorganization plan was ratified by a special meeting of stockholders in March and was ready to be placed in effect when the Casey and Derr actions were filed. In denying their applications for an injunction, Justice Lauer pointed out that Derr, former Pathe president, voted his 100 shares of Pathe's eight per cent cumulative preferred stock in favor of the plan and that Casey's stock was voted neither for nor against the plan. Justice Lauer also points out that at the stockholders' meeting 6,975 shares of the preferred stock were voted in favor of the plan and none against, that 117,327 shares of Class A were in favor of it and 485 against, and that 204,553 shares of common favored the plan and 8,425 opposed it.

Justice Lauer also makes note that while the plaintiffs, Derr and Casey, are holders of the eight per cent cumulative preferred stock, the reorganization plan which they seek to halt is, in the court's opinion, "more favorable" to the preferred stockholders than to the common stockholders.

"Nevertheless," Justice Lauer states, "I do not feel justified at this time in interfering with the progress of the reorganization."

The court's opinion also criticizes the plan for not being "as frank and full as in my opinion it should have been in advising stockholders in respect to the holding of stock of the Du Pont Film Mfg. Corp. and the facts connected therewith."

Copies of the plan sent to stockholders list the 49 per cent Du Pont stock interest held by Pathe at its 1931 valuation of $4,000,000. The Pathe proposal to dispose of 1,400 shares of its Du Pont holdings for $1,680,000, however, reveals a current valuation of $1,200 per share, or approximately $5,880,000 for Pathe's 49 per cent interest.

In denying the application to prohibit this stock sale the court ruled that "there is nothing in the papers (plaintiffs') from which the court could conclude that the price at which the sale is proposed to be made is not a fair and adequate one. Interference with the proposed sale would not be justified" and no basis for criticism of the Pathe officers and directors is disclosed.

The court also pointed out that if the Pathe directors "acted fraudulently" or "in disregard of their duties as directors the plaintiff, if damaged, may have his redress in an action at law to recover his damages."

King said that an appeal, possibly for reargument of the case, would be based on the portions of the ruling which criticized the reorganization plan.

Casey also has pending in state court an action charging Pathe officers and directors with malfeasance and mismanagement, no trial of which may be had for a year or more. Derr has pending an application to the same court for a writ of mandamus to permit an inspection of Pathe's books. Pathe officers charge that the Derr-Casey proceedings are "nuisance" actions initiated because Derr was refused a post in the new Pathe company.

The current Pathe proposal to dispose of 1,400 shares of Du Pont stock for approximately $1,680,000 is for the purpose of providing cash for the retirement of Pathe debentures.

Code Affairs End July 31; Refunds Due

567.96, and exhibitor members in good standing on the same date will receive $7,431.54. The undeposited checks will be returned to their senders.

Contributions to Code Authority received during the period from Jan. 1, 1935, to June 29, last, amounted to $101,709.37, and the proceeds from the sale of furniture and fixtures in Code Authority quarters throughout the country since the termination of NRA amounted to $3,632.65. A much larger amount might have been on hand in the surplus fund at this time had not NRA delayed its approval of Campi's budget and schedule of assessments for the first half of 1935 until May 9. This delay set back Campi's mailing of invoices and, on May 27, the Supreme Court decision terminating NRA activities was handed down. As a result, only 509 exhibitor members had paid a total of $4,284 for first half dues by May 27, and, thus, are the only exhibitor members eligible for the refund.

Dues from 8,486 Exhibitors

For the two periods of 1934, 8,486 exhibitor members paid dues to Code Authority. Subsequent to last May 27, the Campi report notes, hundreds of checks for a total of $6,762 were received from exhibitor members but were not deposited. All of these will be returned to the senders.

A total of $32,625 was paid by seven producer-distributor members for 1935 assessments. Expenses for the first half of 1935 exceeded receipts by $13,367.05, which was deducted from the credit balance of last Dec. 31.

Home office and branch office records are being stored. They comprise a total of 2,431 complaints heard by the 62 local boards and 536 appeals heard by Campi. In addition, there are records of 1,065 complaints heard by the standing committee for extras in Hollywood, of which 981 were adjusted, and 262 complaints heard by the studio labor committee in Hollywood, of which 258 were adjusted.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Jalna"

(Radio)

Hollywood, July 23.—Designed for the sophisticated trade, "Jalna" appeals chiefly through the excellence of its cast in spite of no draw names.

Jalna, the family farm of an enormuosly prosperous Canadian family has a stifling effect upon a callow, selfish young poet (David Manners), who leaves his brothers to do the work while he goes to New York to see life. He brings back Kay Johnson as his bride. She falls in love with an older brother (Ian Hunter). Manners pursues another brother's wife (Molly Lamont). His third love affair supplies delightful comedy. Peggy Wood is an emotional sister who has blanched and trembled for 20 years at the name of Nigel Bruce, who had the bad judgment to have a baby left on his doorstep during their engagement.

Jessie Ralph all but steals the film as the 100-year-old matriarch of the tribe. The others are all excellent, including C. Aubrey Smith, Theodore Newton, Halliwell Hobbes, George Offerman, Jr., Clifford Severn and Forrester Harvey.

Kenneth Macgowan produced and John Cromwell directed from the screen play of Anthony Veiller from the Mazo de la Roche novel. Edward Cronjager's photography is fine.

The illicit love angle is not sympathetic and should be played down. Production Code Seal No. 1088. Running time, 75 minutes. "A."

Short Subjects

"The Greatest Crime"

(Loyal Order of Moose)

How crime can be checked by taking the young in hand and teaching them a trade and the ways of good citizenship is interestingly shown in this one-reeler, produced by the Atlas Film Corp. of Chicago for the Loyal Order of Moose. The picture emphasizes the work being done at Mooseheart, Ill., a town made up of children of deceased members of the order, by showing what might have happened to some of the youngsters had they been thrown upon their own resources. It is a striking experiment in keeping youth along the straight and narrow that this film details. No production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

FitzPatrick to Do One Color Feature

Two features, one in Technicolor and one in black and white, are being contemplated by James FitzPatrick, head of FitzPatrick Pictures, Inc., who has just returned from a six weeks' tour of Africa during which he visited Bechuanaland, Rhodesia and the Transvaal.

The black and white picture will be based on the life of James Livingston. FitzPatrick shot the background material for the film while in Africa. Negotiations are now under way for the services of Clive Brook and Madeleine Carroll to play the leads in the film, which may be made in conjunction with G. B. Nothing definite has been settled as yet, however.

The Technicolor feature will have as its background material shot by Mrs. FitzPatrick in Japan. She has recently returned from a visit there during which she obtained such striking material that both her organization and M-G-M, distributors of the FitzPatrick color pictures, recommended the shots be incorporated in a feature length picture.

Besides the two features planned, FitzPatrick will make 10 Travel-Talks in Technicolor for M-G-M release next year.

Defend Picket in Toronto

Toronto, July 23.—The Toronto District Labor Council has decided to take up the defense of James Norris, union painter, who was arrested because he was picketing the Model, which is undergoing repairs. Norris was bearing a placard which announced that the theatre was not employing men affiliated with International trade unions. It was the first time on record, according to local labor leaders, that a man had been arrested for mere picketing, previous prosecutions in Toronto being for disorderly conduct, violence or resistance.

Loew's Closes for Rest of Para. List

Loew's metropolitan circuit closed yesterday with Paramount for the remaining half of that company's product, thus giving Loew's theatres here first run on the entire Paramount lineup of 65 features for the new season. Loew's had previously closed with Paramount for half of the company's new product and yesterday's deal for the remaining half followed closely on the collapse of negotiations

Warners' Budget Is Boosted $2,500,000

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—The Warner production budget for the new season will be approximately $2,500,000 larger than that for 1934-'35, it was revealed today by Harry M. Warner, head of the company, who asserted: "We are definitely expanding our production activities.

"It is our intention to produce the very best screen entertainment that it has ever been our privilege to sponsor," he added. "Quality will be the primary consideration, with cost entirely secondary. No director will be bound down to a specified budget on any production if it is deemed necessary to exceed the scheduled figure in order to obtain the maximum results in entertainment value."

Continental to Make 8 Mystery Westerns

Herman A. Wohl of Continental Pictures Corp., who is now in town from Hollywood, stated yesterday his company will make a series of eight mystery westerns for 1935-36 starring Yancey Lane. The first, "The Hawk," by James Oliver Curwood, is finished.

Wohl, who has several deals under way for distribution, declares he has a new idea in that he proposes concentrating more on story development without sacrificing speed and action.

Dickie Jones, a seven-year-old fancy trick rider, and Zandra, a dog, appear in the opening picture and probably will appear with Lane in the remainder of the series.

Republic's First Is Out

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—The first picture to be released under the new Republic banner is a western starring John Wayne, "Westward Ho." It has been booked at the Pantages for the week of July 31, and will be the first western to play first run on Hollywood Boulevard since "Cimarron."

"Westward Ho" was produced by Paul Malvern, directed by R. N. Bradbury with original story, screen play and dialogue by Robert Emmett and Lindsley Parsons.

Atkins, Thomas Set For First Division at a meeting of the board of the company to be held within a week, it was learned yesterday.

Financing and policy arrangements for First Division are expected to be decided at the same time. Indications are that Pathe will sponsor the bulk of First Division's new financing and that the company will resume its original policy of adhering to distribution activities to the exclusion of production. One of its important distribution deals may be with British International Pictures. Negotiations for a reciprocal distribution arrangement between the two companies are reported to be nearing completion.

which asks $100,000 interim allowance, and Donovan, Liesure, Newton & Lumbard, counsel to the trustee, which asks an interim allowance of $125,000. Several additional applications have also been filed including one for an unspecified amount by Thomas D. Thacher, who served as special master for the hearing of numerous large claims of creditors against RKO. Thacher asks that a final allowance for these services be set by the court.

between Paramount and RKO for that portion of the Paramount output.

The Paramount deal gives Loew's metropolitan houses a total of 189 features for the new season, consisting of 52 from M-G-M, 65 from Paramount, 14 from United Artists, 40 from Columbia and 18 from Universal. RKO has closed for 50 from Radio and 65 from 20th Century-Fox, or a total of 115. Both Loew's and RKO require a minimum of 156 features per year for their metropolitan houses. The only major product still available is the Warner lineup of 60 features and the remaining 18 of Universal's. Loew's and RKO have split the Warner product in the past. If the same procedure is followed this year and RKO acquires the remaining half of Universal it would have a total of 163 features for the new season, or, if it acquires all of the Warner lineup, it would have 193 features. The possibility of RKO acquiring all instead of half of the Warner lineup is suggested by Loew's taking all of the Paramount product, which heretofore has been split between the two circuits.

Para. Fee Case to Be Resumed Today

largest amounts were heard in support of their applications last Thursday. Today the remainder will be heard, following which Thomas D. Thacher, special counsel for Paramount, will have his opportunity to argue against the allowance by the court of any or all of the claims as applied for. Thacher told the court last week that he believed many of the claims should be disallowed "in toto" and that many others are "excessive in amount."

If the arguments for and against the claims are concluded today, the applications will be taken under consideration by Judge Coxe, who is expected to make his rulings known in about two weeks. Special Master John E. Joyce, who has acted as referee in Paramount legal proceedings for the past year, is sitting with Judge Coxe during the hearings on the fees and will be an influence in their final allowance, disallowance or reduction.

charged to exist in the sound film field.

The company is prohibited from using the cable in such a way as to tend to create a monopoly in television or for the purpose of obtaining patent rights to the exclusion of others. The cable is to be used for experimental purposes and the company is required to permit its use for such purpose by other parties interested in television development, reporting monthly on its operations. Where the company and others desiring to use the cable cannot come to terms, they will be set by the commission.

Before any commercial use may be made of the cable approval must be obtained from the commission following a public hearing.

THE PICTURE OF THE WEEK

The versatile talents of stars Dick Powell, Joan Blondell, Adolphe Menjou, Louise Fazenda, the great supporting cast, the much-played Warren-Dubin songs, and the sure-fire direction of Lloyd Bacon have made New York's critical cohorts cheer 'BROADWAY GONDOLIER' as 'the best Warner musical since "42nd Street"'. And that automatically makes Warner Bros.' new fun-fiesta the outstanding picture of this and many another week. Released July 27th.

WORLD-WIDE ORGANIZATION GIVES EXHIBITORS PRE-SOLD PROPERTIES WHICH HAVE BEEN READ BY MILLIONS

20th Gets 1-10 Pfd. and 1-2 Fox Common

mitted to the stockholders, voting power will be extended from the present Class B stock to all shares of the company. Under the new setup there will be 1,329,042½ shares of $1.50 dividend cumulative preferred stock and 1,226,529½ shares of common. Preferred shareholders will get the power to elect a majority of the board of directors in the event of certain defaults.

When Fox was reorganized about a year and a half ago Class A shares were split on a basis of six old shares for one of new, reducing the total from 4,900,000 to 404,276⅔ shares. At that time a new issue of Class A common was authorized and the total was made 2,800,000 shares. Class B stock was cut from 100,000 shares to 16,650.

Under the new plan one-half share of the new preferred and one-quarter share of the new common will be issued for each share of the present Class A common and one share of the new preferred and one-half share of the new common will be issued for each share of the Class B.

Sidney R. Kent is to receive options on 60,000 shares of the new common.

The new preferred is to be convertible into common at the rate of 1¼ shares of common for each share of preferred, with provision for the protection of the conversion rights.

Fox Issues Statement

A statement issued by Fox said:

"Dividend requirements on the new preferred stock to be issued to existing stockholders of Fox Film Corp. and to 20th Century Pictures, Inc., will be approximately $2,000,000 per year. According to the certified net income and surplus statement of 20th Century Pictures, Inc., its net income for the period from June 1, 1934, to May 4, 1935, was $1,409,277.71, and, on the basis of Fox Film Corp.'s figures, the consolidated earnings of that corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries (including proportion of profits and losses of controlled subsidiaries not consolidated) for the first quarter of 1935 amounted to $616,800, and for the second quarter are estimated to have amounted approximately to $700,000."

This would appear to make the current rate of earnings about $3,000,000 a year for Fox and $1,500,000 for 20th Century.

Charter changes, the issuance of stock to 20th Century Pictures, Inc., for its property, the options to Kent and other features of the plan also are to be submitted to stockholders at the special meeting on Aug. 15.

Changes Are Impending

The New York Stock Exchange, to which 20th Century-Fox yesterday applied for a listing of stock under its proposed recapitalization, issued the following statement:

"There will be substantial changes in the final printing of the financial statements contained in the application of 20th Century-Fox Film, approved today, particularly in relation to the parent company's statement of Fox Film Corp."

20th Century's Last Year Net Put at $1,409,277.71

668.08. Operating expenses of exchanges, head office and administration are given as $2,708,892.83.

Merely referred to as "Darryl F. Zanuck employment contract" is an item of $1,000.

The liabilities include a note payable to the Bank of America, N. A., of $904,885 for six pictures pledged as collateral. Notes payable to stockholders maturing during May, June and July, 1935, are listed as $500,000. In the expense column appears an item of $4,069,372.42 for amortization of production costs. 20th Century lost $27,501.78 on its stage production of "The Red Cat" and $37,839.35 on the stage production of "De Luxe."

Negative costs on "The Call of the Wild," which was Zanuck's last picture for United Artists and which appears on the latter company's 1935-36 program, are given as $765,632.15. Rights to plays and scenarios are tabulated at $275,582.51. 20th Century also holds as a demand note receivable from United Artists Studio, Inc., $164,934.89. Its former one-half interest in that studio is listed at $50, which is described as "an at cost item."

Samuel Goldwyn last week purchased 20th Century's interest in that plant.

Four Subsequents in Coast Price Conflict

Los Angeles, July 24.—A price war involving four subsequent runs broke out downtown today. The cutting started following the Million Dollar's distribution of passes admitting patrons for a 10-cent service charge. The Roxy, Palace and President immediately dropped from 25 to 15 cents, charging the Million Dollar's practice was practically a reduction in admission.

Exhibitors fear a similar war as two years ago, when price-slashing spread throughout the downtown area, involving subsequent runs. The Million Dollar started that price war.

Outdoor Ad Bill Favored

Boston, July 24.—A bill to centralize state jurisdiction over outdoor advertising under a state director was approved today by a vote of eight to seven by the legislative committee on mercantile affairs. Objections of theatre men to the bill have been largely removed through alterations in the measure sponsored by Joseph Brennan of the M.P.T.O.A.

Seeking to Reargue Again in Pathe Case

E. B. Derr and Pat Casey will ask for leave to reargue their applications for injunctions to restrain officers and directors of Pathe from putting the company's reorganization plan into effect and from disposing of 1,400 shares of Pathe's 49 per cent stock interest in Du Pont Film Mfg. Corp., Martin E. King, attorney for the two, said yesterday.

If the application for reargument is unsuccessful, it was said, an appeal from the ruling denying the applications for injunctions, which was handed down Monday in state supreme court here, will be taken to the appellate division.

The appeals will be based on Derr's contention that Pathe's 49 per cent interest in Du Pont is worth $9,800,000 instead of the $6,000,000 valuation recently placed on it by the company, as contrasted with the 1931 valuation of $4,000,000 which is listed in the Pathe plan of reorganization. Consequently, Derr contends, Pathe common stock has a greater value than is represented in the treatment provided for it in the reorganization plan, which offers an exchange of one share of new common for 20 shares of old

On the same theory of a $9,800,000 valuation on Pathe's Du Pont holdings, Derr will appeal the ruling denying an injunction to restrain Pathe from disposing of 1,400 shares of the Du Pont stock at $1,200 per share. Derr's contention is that the stock is worth $2,000 per share.

Pathe, although not disclosing to whom it proposes to sell the Du Pont stock, asserts in affidavits filed with the court that $1,500,000 of the proceeds would be used for payment on a $2,000,000 loan from Bankers Trust Co. This would leave a balance from the sale of 1,400 shares at $1,200 per share of approximately $180,000. According to reports, this balance would be employed for First Division financing.

The Derr-Casey appeals are regarded as likely to delay consummation of Pathe's reorganization plan, although officials of the company said yesterday that they were prepared to proceed at once toward putting the plan into effect and expected to complete the procedure within a week or two.

New Theatre Census Move Awaits Order

year, and the actual personal canvass would start Jan. 2. To some extent, it would provide a comparison with the census of 1933, but it will be more complete so far as coverage is concerned and may include items which were not considered in the first study.

Profiting by its experience in taking the 1933 census, when only a month was available for preparation and the work was done by persons from the Federal relief rolls without adequate supervision, the Census Bureau will endeavor to avoid these difficulties in its 1935 census. During the next five months, officials will draw up the schedules, in which the cooperation and advice of the industry will be sought, and will make plans for the canvass, which this time will be under the personal supervision of experienced bureau men.

The 1933 census represented the first attempt of the government to survey the amusement field. The proposed census will disclose the progress which has been made by the amusement industries during the past two years and may prove the initial step toward making periodic surveys of the field, which gives employment to several million persons, a regular feature of the census program.

The 1935 survey, like that of two years ago, will provide information as to the number of theatres, box-office receipts, employes and wage totals.

At Newald, the Gerl, a 250-seat house, has been opened, while the Omro Business Men's Ass'n. has opened a 300-seat house in the high school annex in Omro. Construction of a new house is also planned for Ripon this summer by A. W. Stewart.

Experiment on Film Shows in Pullmans

the RKO Corp., it was learned yesterday. A car equipped for the showing of pictures will make a test run within the next few weeks on a two-hour trip out of New York.

The Pullman Co. is understood to have a number of the film theatres on rails near completion. The cars are made to seat 60 persons and are air-conditioned.

Under present plans a small admission would be charged, with shorts, newsreels and stock reports shown on short trips and features on longer runs.

Capt. Jefferson Davis Cohn, European railroad power, is said to be behind the idea.

been active for some time and general advertising and publicity.

Monroe Greenthal, currently exploitation manager for United Artists, is expected to succeed him, although the company had no statement to make on that score yesterday.

Horne's resignation occasioned keen regret on the part of Al Lichtman, U. A. president, who said:

"I consider Hal one of the finest advertising executives in the industry, possessing a marvelous show sense and knowledge of our business."

He joined United Artists after serving as general manager of Far West Theatres before which he was in production with Mayflower, Ziegfeld and Raoul Walsh. Well known for his sense of humor, Horne won the 1934 Spectator prize for his campaign on "Palooka."

His successor is New York born, 31 years old and a graduate of Columbia University. Greenthal was at one time identified with Vanity Fair and Vogue as well as with the Lawrence Fertig and Central Advertising Agencies. He entered the industry in 1928 as editor of Gold Mine, a Universal house organ and later became associate editor of Universal Newsreel. It was in 1931 that he joined United Artists as exploitation manager, a post he has held since.

Plans Five or Six

Mary Pickford reached New York from the coast yesterday and declared she would produce five or six pictures for U.A. next season. Her franchise with the company allows for production of as many as 12, she added, but stated she will limit the total to five or six. The exact number depends upon the deal she has pending for a co-producer.

Walter Wanger has been mentioned for the post. This, however, was prior to his new deal with Paramount for another year.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Bright Lights"

(Warners)

Hollywood, July 24.—Joe E. Brown, having a field day singing, dancing, tumbling and stooging, makes this a certain money picture where he is liked. Although the story through which the comedian romps is familiar, his antics and the work of the supporting cast, including Patricia Ellis, Ann Dvorak, William Gargan, Joseph Cawthorn and the Maxellos, acrobatic troupe, furnish interest throughout.

Brown and his wife (Miss Dvorak) are a featured team with a burleque show. Brought to New York for a Broadway revue, the team is split by Gargan, a press agent, who makes Miss Ellis Brown's new partner. When Brown wows Broadway Miss Dvorak returns to burlesque and Joe starts hitting the high spots with Miss Ellis. On the verge of proposing to Miss Ellis, Brown finds she is engaged to Gargan. Realizing his error, he returns to his wife for the finish.

Credit is due the authors, Kalmar and Ruby, and the adapters, Ben Markson and Benny Rubin, for keeping the story clean, portraying burlesque and show people as sober, hardworking folk. Busby Berkeley's direction rings true throughout.

Several musical numbers are cleverly spotted and, minus the usual Berkeley massiveness, aid the excellent production.

Should satisfy everywhere as wholesome amusement.

No production code seal. Running time, 84 minutes. "G."

"The Cheers of the Crowd"

(Monogram)

Hollywood, July 24.—A typical situation comedy with only occasional suggestion of a light love interest, plus melodramatic romance, establishes this as a dual bill attraction. Laugh assurance is the dominating sales angle.

Publicity man Russell Hopton gags an ex-carnival man (Harry Holman) into finding and returning a money bag as a means of stimulating interest in a flopping show. As continual effort is devoted to make the public believe the stunt is on the up and up, Holman becomes the focal point of interest.

A conflict arises between Hopton and Irene Ware, his reporter sweetheart, who has been duped into giving the sham wide publicity. Meantime the heavy (Bradley Page) threatens the exposure of all as a means of getting enough money to elope with an usherette (Roberta Gale). In an anti-climax the appearance of his wife (Betty Blythe) foils Page as Holman makes good his name of honest John and all is straightened out between Hopton and Miss Ware.

The screen play, by George Wagner, is capably directed by Vin Moore. In it special attention has been given to providing exhibitors with automatic showmanship material with which to ballyhoo the picture.

Coast ITO to Stick To Code Zoning Plan

Los Angeles, July 24.—The I. T. O. will adhere to the clearance schedule adopted under the code, according to a letter sent all exchanges. The move comes somewhat as a surprise in view of the organization's intention to adopt a schedule of its own.

Doubt regarding its final acceptance of the code schedule, however, was expressed by Robert Poole, secretary, who admitted only 17 members voted on the letter. He said the matter will be brought up again at a membership meeting July 29, when the letter will be affirmed, modified or rescinded.

Local exchanges express willingness to abide by the code schedule.

Larry Kent, Skouras Aide

Los Angeles, July 24.—Larry Kent, brother of Sidney R., has been appointed Charles Skouras' assistant at Fox West Coast, succeeding Reeves Espy, who resigned some time ago to join Samuel Goldwyn.

Some Finding Giveaways No Aid to Intake

Gains General Despite Local Experiences

Additional dispatches from the field on the giveaways situation appear on page 10 today.

Further study of the giveaway situation as reported by MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S correspondents in various sections of the country shows that in many places they are spreading rapidly. In others experience has shown grosses are not increased in the long run, and local opposition has stopped them in some localities.

In most of Texas the various stunts —bank night, screeno, pay nights, bingo, etc.—are on the increase. In San Antonio, on the other hand, Interstate has decided to eliminate them gradually.

Conditions are spotty in the south. Virginia and the District of Columbia are practically free of stunts. In Akron, bank nights are the subject of litigation and in Salt Lake, the scheme has just made its appearance. Seattle and the Pacific Northwest are reported singularly free of giveaways so far.

Boston Bank Night Hearing Adjourned

BOSTON, July 25.—The infringement suit filed here in the U. S. District Court by Claude Ezell and Emmett Thurman, bank night heads, against James Kennedy, owner of gold mine, has been adjourned until next Monday by Federal Judge Brewster. The case, which opened here Monday, is being heard in the office of Special Master Arthur Stevenson, who will rule whether or not bank nights and gold mines are lotteries.

Kennedy formerly sold bank night over much of New England, but branched out on his own with gold mine. Ezell and Thurman offered to buy him out, he claims, and when he refused they filed the infringement suit.

20th Century-Fox Show Big Two-Year Gain

Details Given in Stock Exchange Application

Figures submitted to the New York Stock Exchange in securing approval for listing of new securities of 20th Century-Fox show a striking record by the former company since its organization, May 2, 1933, and also steady gains by Fox since its reorganization in July, 1933, although Fox has paid no dividends since June, 1931.

20th Century produced 18 pictures and began its heavy profits from the first, "The Bowery," which cost $725,436.27, and showed a profit of $304,286.18. "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," which followed, cost $871,588.04 and showed a profit of $2,102.09. The income from May 2, 1933, the date of incorporation, to May 31, 1934, was $306,388.27. Expenses were $280,210.44, and $26,177.83 was transferred to surplus.

During the months from June 1, 1934, to May 4, 1935, net income jumped to $1,409,277.71 and surplus increased to $1,440,553.82, and total

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—The National Ass'n. of American Employes, a new labor organization, has been formed here and has started soliciting studio memberships.

Although it has been reported the forming of the new group was for the purpose of taking advantage of collective bargaining under the Wagner Bill, current reports indicate the organization is preparing to fight I. Three Little Words

Faulty telegraphic transmission to the tune of three words resulted in crediting to S. R. Kent a statement he never uttered.

From Hollywood, Motion Picture Daily reported Kent declaring prior to his departure for the east by air that the 20th Century-Fox deal was "very distant," with present negotiations merely conversational.

The statement should have been credited to Jesse L. Lasky's office and had reference to reports that Lasky may continue with 20th Century-Fox under a new deal following his present contract which expires in October.

Para. Counsel Approves Few Of Fees Asked

Tax Jumps in Sight on Any Film Profits

Narrowing of Scales on Corporations Likely

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Imposition on the more prosperous film corporations of an excess profits tax and a narrowing of the sliding scale proposed by President Roosevelt, who would replace the present flat rate of 13¾ per cent with graduated levies ranging from 10¾ per cent to 16¾ per cent, to possibly as short a range as 13¼ to 14¼ per cent was seen probable in Washington today as a result of an agreement of Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee said to have been reached by Chairman Doughton.

Consideration is being given the imposition of the excess profits tax on all corporation returns over eight or 10 per cent, but there is a possibility that the tax may be applied to income over six or seven per cent. The rates, Chairman Doughton said, would be "moderate."

Hopes expressed by the committee chairman earlier this week that a tentative bill would be written by Monday are now doubtful of realization, but the Senate Finance Committee, nevertheless, will begin its

From it, however, was deducted $508,991.28 for possible losses on deposit on a purchase contract, loss on sale of capital assets, and net losses on securities and advances to subsidiaries.

Para. Counsel Approves Few Of Fees Asked

voiced by Thacher to the largest single application submitted, that of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, who, as counsel to the Paramount trustees, asked $700,000. Thacher, with reference to "my good friend, Arthur Ballantine," a partner in the petitioning law firm, said that that claim would be left, insofar as Paramount was concerned, to the discretion of the court. Virtually the only criticism voiced in connection with this application by Thacher was the opinion that "the work ought to have been more economically done, and could have been."

In all, Thacher urged the court to disallow in their entirety applications aggregating approximately $700,000, on the grounds that the petitioners either represented intervening creditors and should, therefore, be paid by them rather than by Paramount; that the services rendered were duplications of those performed by persons appointed by the court and, therefore, valueless to Paramount, or that the services were rendered in connection with the receivership or bankruptcy, rather than the reorganization, and, therefore, were not justified under the new reorganization statutes.

$1,400,000 Held "Excessive"

Applications amounting to approximately $1,400,000 were described as "excessive" by Thacher and the court was urged to reduce them to a reasonable amount. In this category were the large claims filed by the bondholders, stockholders and other protective committees and their atttorneys.

Left to the discretion of the court with no particular recommendation were the applications of the three trustees, their counsel and Adolph Zukor, which aggregate approximately $1,100,000.

If Thacher's urgings were to be followed to the letter by the court, the fees which would be granted would approximate $1,500,000. Judge Coxe called for additional briefs and stipulations from Thacher, Ballantine and others, to be submitted early next week. The applications then will be studied by the court and a decision rendered later.

Following is a list of the applications before the court and the treatment of them recommended by Thacher:

Charles D. Hilles, as receiver and trustee, $128,000; Eugene W. Leake, trustee, $118,000; Charles E. Richardson, trustee, $87,000; Adolph Zukor, as receiver, $18,545, and Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, as counsel to the trustees, $700,000 and expenses and disbursements of $7,679. All five applications were left to the discretion of the court, except in the case of the trustees, and Zukor compensation on the basis of $72,000 per year, representing a slight decrease in the amounts asked, was recommended.

Choate, Hall & Stewart, Boston attorneys, $35,000 fee and $881 expenses; Chase National Bank, as truste under the indenture of Paramount bonds, $1,975 fee; Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, attorneys for Chase as trustee, $1,000 fee; N. Y. Trust Co., as agent in the reorganization, $3,297 fee and $415 expenses; Cobb, Hoke, Benson, Krause & Faegre, Minneapolis attorneys, $4,500 fee and $59 expenses; Pillsbury, Madison and Sutro, San Francisco attorneys, $3,525 fee and $9.83 expenses; Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse, Chicago attorneys, $5,750 fee and $285 expenses; Strauss & Hedges, special counsel, $501 fee; Kiddle, Margeson & Hornidge, special attorneys, $700 fee and $14 expenses; Harry Meyer, Butte, Mont., attorney, $150 fee and $31 expenses; Hornidge & Dowd, special attorneys, $1,980 fee and $26 expenses; Winston, Strawn & Shaw, Chicago attorneys, $1,500 fee and $16 expenses; Johnston, Tory & Johnston, Toronto attorneys, $750 fee, and Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, $10,484. All 14 applications were approved unconditionally, both as to the right of the applicants to fees and as to the amounts asked.

Palmer Fee for $15,000

Bibb, Dederick & Osbourne, attorneys for an intervening bondholder, $25,000 fee; Saul E. Rogers, attorney for intervening bond and stockholders, $10,000 fee; Jacob J. Andrew Crafts, certified public accountants, employed by Sumner and Garvin, $11,000 fee; Myron Robinson, consulting expert, employed by Sumner and Garvin, $12,500 fee; Samuel Zirn, attorney for intervening bondholders, $75,000 fee and $1,207 expenses; A. J. Schanfarber, A. M. Frumberg, Edgar J. Schoen and Samuel Zirn, attorneys, $75,000 fee and $7,868 expenses; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., reorganization activities, $100,000 fee and $14,287 expenses; Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, attorneys for Kuhn, Loeb, $150,000 fee and $812 expenses; Rosenberg, Goldmark & Colin. special attorneys for Paramount, $3,500 fee and $228 expenses; Joseph P. Day and Peter Grimm, realty advisors, $10,000 fee. All of the foregoing applications, aggregating approximately $700,000, were recommended for denial in their entirety.

Vanderlip bondholders' committee, $80,000 fees and $143,253 expenses; Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, attorneys for the Vanderlip committee, $150,000 fee. The opinion was given by Thacher in connection with these applications that a total remuneration of $150,000 for both the committee and its attorneys would be "adequate." He asked that the expenses be "carefully scrutinized."

Bank group committee, $50,000 fees and $25,728 expenses; Beekman, Bogue & Clark, attorneys for the committee, $75,000 fee. Thacher recommended total disallowance of the committee's fees and the allowance only of "reasonable expenses and fees for legal services."

Merchandise creditors' committee, $13,500 fee and $1,197 expenses; Nathan Burkan, attorney for the committee, $50,000 fee. Members of this committee withdrew their applications for fees in their entirety but asked reimbursement for expenses. Thacher concurred in this and recommended a reduction of Burkan's fee.

Cook, Nathan & Lehman, as attorneys for the stockholders' protective committee and for Paramount, $250,000 fee and $3,759 expenses; stockholders' protective committee, $75,000 fees and $170,000 expenses. Thacher regarded the law firm's application as "excessive" and recommended that members of the stockholders' committee be denied fees and numerous committee expenses be either reduced or disallowed. Final stipulations on these, however, are being filed next week.

Munger debenture committee, $6,000 fees and $1,945 expenses; Szold & Brandwen, attorneys for the committee, $75,000 fee and $78 expenses. These claims were described as "excessive" and urged for reduction.

Paramount Broadway bondholders' committee, $40,000 fees and $16,914 expenses; Stroock & Stroock, attorneys for the committee, $100,000 fee; Independent Paramount Broadway bondholders' committee, $2,500 fee and $297 expenses; Weiss, Pels & Grant, attorneys for the independent committee, $10,000 fee and $84 expenses; Chemical Bank & Trust Co., trustee under the indenture for Paramount Broadway bonds, $21,424 fee and $307 expenses; Cotton, Franklin, Wright & Gordon, attorneys for Chemical Bank as trustee, $8,000 fee and $48 expenses. All of these claims were described as "excessive" by Thacher, who said that some of them were duplications of services and should be disallowed entirely. He recommended an allowance of about $200,000 for the entire Paramount Broadway petitioning group.

Rebuffs Sabath Body

The Sabath Congressional committee investigating real estate reorganizations, in the person of Meyer Kraushaar, its attorney, was rebuffed yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe when Kraushaar sought to intervene in the hearings on application for $3,222,000 of fees for services in the Paramount reorganization.

"I have made up my mind that this court cannot permit you to be heard," Judge Coxe told the committee representative. "This is a litigation between private parties and I see no need for the entrance of another branch of the government, legislative or otherwise, into the proceedings. This court is bound by the oath of office which I have taken to protect whatever interest here the general public has."

Kraushaar folded his papers and left the courtroom.

Native Philippine Film Showing Gain

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Talking pictures made in the Philippine Islands and in the Tagalog language are generally more popular than American productions, according to a study made by the principal Philippine producer, declares a report from Trade Commissioner J. Bartlett Richards, in Manila, to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Although some American films are very popular, the average U. S. or European film, according to the report, takes in only about 25 per cent as much at the box-office as the average locally made picture.

In spite of this average, revenue from a Philippine picture is limited, as there is no market outside the islands, with the exception of a slight export market in Hawaii, the report continues.

To improve the situation and to enlarge its scope of production, Filippine Films, Inc., the principal producer, which has recently enlarged its capital and is planning to increase production capacity, has exported some films to Singapore, the report states, with Malay language dubbed in and Malay titles superimposed. These will be shown experimentally in the Straits Settlements, Federated Malay States, and the Dutch East Indies. If successful, a new market, with a population six times that of the Philippines, will be opened.

Filippine Films is just completing its first two films in color and they will probably be exhibited next month, the report states.

hearing on the measure on that day. About 15 requests for opportunity to be heard have so far been received, Senator Harrison, chairman of the committee, said. The hearings, he added, will be confined to the subjects covered by the House bill and the addition of further taxes will be opposed, although several plans for raising revenue will be offered by Senators from the floor when the bill comes up for consideration in the Senate.

Bondy Promises to Allow "Something"

Federal Judge William Bondy at a hearing on their applications yesterday that the court "would allow them something," but were cautioned not "to spend it all in one place."

The fees sought are those of Irving Trust Co., as trustee of RKO, $100,000; Donovan, Newton, Liesure and Lumbard counsel to the trustees, $126,645; Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, special counsel to the trustee, $19,320; Randolph E. Paul, tax expert, $35,464; Price, Waterhouse & Co., auditors, $3,275, and an application for an unnamed amount submitted by Thomas D. Thacher, who served as special master at hearings on large creditor claims against RKO. At the moment Thacher's application for a fee was being presented to Judge Bondy, Thacher was busy opposing the allowance of fees for services in the Paramount reorganization at a hearing in another branch of the Federal court.

The RKO applications were without opposition except for an attorney representing one James Young, whose status as an RKO creditor was disputed by counsel for the trustee. Opposition in this case was confined to the size of the fees sought by the trustee and its counsel. Judge Bondy took the applications under advisement after first indicating that appreciable reductions would be made.

Variety Club

Buffalo

Buffalo, July 25.—Bennie Darrow, M-G-M exploiteer, took top prize at the July golf tournament of Variety Club. It was played at the Niagara University course. Jack Kaplan, second assistant chief barker, acted as starter, in place of Sydney Samson, who couldn't attend.

Dewey Schlieder, a guest, took second honors. Prizes were won by Ralph Maw, Alex Weissman, John Osborne, Emory Dickman, George Rosing, William Bradley, Barney Ross, Matt Sullivan, and Murray Whiteman.

About 40 played the course, hardly quarter the number that turned out for the previous field day, when Nate Sauber, took top honors, replacing Chief Barker E. K. O'Shea as club champion.

The Levy Trophy, one of the three major golf cups, was withheld from the Niagara Falls competition. It will be contested for at the August field day, scheduled for the Willowdale Country Club.

Since mid-June, Variety Club activities have been confined to outdoor programs, Chief Barker O'Shea and his board of directors are arranging for a series of events in the fall.

Cleveland

Cleveland, July 25.—Variety Club is planning a stag smoker for July 29. Abe Lichtman and J. W. Cleveland will be kings for a day.

Kansas City

Kansas City, July 25.—The first day under the new Variety Club regime of no kings—only food and brotherhood—went off very successfully July 22. The day was a broiler and the crowd was not large, but the house committee was satisfied.

Benny Benjamin and Harry Taylor shot pool.

Two camps of poker players played for low stakes in separate rooms and kept turning the fan, which stood in the doorway, between.

To keep the money in the Paramount family, Arthur Cole, Jim Slates and Joe Manfre of the exchange, and George Baker of the Newman, played together.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hot Tip"

(Radio)

Hollywood, July 25.—Combining the fun-provoking qualities of a hectic domestic comedy drama with the suspense-packed thrills of several exciting horse races, this measures up as satisfactory general audience entertainment. The production is based on a good showmanship idea, suggesting many topical exploitation stunts.

James Gleason is an expert doper of horses and his mental bets always win. The story is different when money rides. He is in "dutch" with his wife, Zasu Pitts, for his gambling tendencies, and he temporarily wrecks his daughter, Margaret Callahan's, wedding plans by betting the prospective groom, Russell Gleason's savings on a touted "hot tip" that fails as his own original selection wins. To recoup, he mortgages and sells the family restaurant to make a deal with J. M. Kerrigan for a partnership on the horse, Honey Girl, and is met with all the familiar difficulties. In a handicap the horse comes through a winner, making Gleason a genius and a hero and assuring happiness to everyone.

Shown in a sneak preview form, the picture needs only intelligent cutting to make it a worthwhile feature.

Newcoming Margaret Callahan looks promising. The supporting bits are all satisfactory with Rollo Lloyd and Arthur Stone pepping up the comedy.

The original story, colorful in all respects, is by William Slavens McNutt, with the screen play by Hugh Cummings and Olive Cooper. Gleason co-directed with Ray McCarey.

No production code seal. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Get That Man"

(Syndicate)

Blundering along through the mazes of a story that does not number intelligence among its virtues, this Mayfair production is decidedly mediocre entertainment. Produced in slip-shod fashion under the direction of Spencer Gordon Bennett, the film unwinds a routine tale in a routine manner.

Wallace Ford and Lillian Miles provide the picture with the only names that mean anything to the fans. Even they seem stymied by the material into which they have been plunked. Supporting them are Leon Ames and E. Alwyn Warren, among others.

At the insistence of a shady lawyer Ford tries to pass himself off as the heir to a large fortune slain in a struggle with his wife's lover. Although the whole business is not to his taste, Ford goes through with it until the truth is found out by the fugitive wife of the real heir and her boy friend. Ford confesses to Miss Miles, the dead heir's sister, to whom he has taken a liking. The girl forgives him. To clinch the happy ending the slain heir's wife and her Romeo are allowed to be killed in an auto crash.

Coincidence plays a large part in the film, which takes the easiest way out in manipulating its characters into or out of situations.

The production contains a few mildly exciting moments and little else. No production code seal. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

M-G-M Rushing Shorts

Hollywood, July 25.—With four shooting, six editing, and seven preparing, a new peak has been set by the M-G-M short department. Subjects included in the 17 productions are nine Pete Smiths, two Chic Sales, one Robert Benchley, the last of the "Crime Does Not Pay" series, and several novelties.

"Wild" Big in Seattle

Seattle, July 25.—In spite of record-breaking heat that has killed most of the first run business here, the premiere of "Call of the Wild" at Hamrick's Orpheum stacked up a real gross for the opening week-end. For the first three days the take was approximately $5,000. A normal take runs $6,000 for seven days.

Reopen L. A. Tivoli

Los Angeles, July 25.—Ben Berinstein has reopened the Tivoli in the heart of the colored section after complete decoration. Floyd Wyatt continues in charge.

Short Subjects

"Speedy Justice"

(Universal)

In this Mentone production are Bobby Lane, Lew Hearn, Eddie Foy, Jr., Arthur Boran and the Danny Dare Dancers. They all combine to provide fair entertainment. Where this type short is liked this one should get over. The story has the entire cast arrested for speeding and when Foy explains to the court that they are a theatrical troupe the judge has a show put on in the courtroom. This gives everyone a chance to display his talent. Production Code Seal, No. 0523. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Jungle Waters"

(Paramount)

Allan Ross, well-known hunter in the Florida Everglades, is shown here by Grantland Rice in this latest Sportlight as he makes a tour of the swampy waters. Ross dives for turtles, snakes and winds up the reel by capturing a 12-foot alligator alive with his hands. All this is done to the tune of explanatory dialogue by Ted Husing and Ross. Highly recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Dixieland"

(Vitaphone)

Covering practically every historical point of interest in the Old South, this member of the "See America First" series should prove interesting. The homes of figures in American history such as Andrew Jackson, James Polk and others are shown along with monuments in commemoration of the Civil War and its battles. The reel then switches to modern times when many winter resorts are shown. Recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"I'm a Father"

Andy Clyde hands out laughs right and left in this comedy. The story is built around Clyde's belief that his wife is going to make him a father when it is his neighbor's wife who is really the future mother. The final scenes, shot in a hospital waiting room, are packed with laughs. Should have audiences howling. Highly recommended. Running time, 14 mins. "G."

"Dick Himber"

(Paramount)

Dick Himber and his orchestra are featured. The band goes through the conventional maneuvers found in shorts of this type, but the music is recorded clearly and effectively. "Sugar" Cain, young radio singer, and Sinclair and Day, dancers, are also featured. Fair entertainment. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Ziegfeld" Starts Aug. 12

Hollywood, July 25.—M-G-M has placed "The Great Ziegfeld" on the schedule for Aug. 12. Seymour Felix, recently signed to a term contract by the studio, will direct the dances. William Powell will play the title role.

None in Washington

Washington, July 25.—This city has no giveaway problem. For some reason or other none of the smaller houses have gone in for them, and the larger operations are definitely opposed.

Business runs along at a fairly even pace here due to the predominance of government employes.

Estimate 75% Of All Texas Using Stunts

DALLAS, July 25.—Trade observers are estimating that about 75 per cent of houses in Texas are using some form of giveaways, mainly money nights, embracing the first one actively to enter this market, bank night, followed by screeno, award night, buck night and adaptations of one or more of these schemes applied individually by house owners to their own use.

All classes of towns and houses from the metropolitan de luxe first runs, San Antonio Majestic and the Dallas Melba, to the neighborhoods and remote hamlets have fallen for the rage.

As a contra, there are striking refusals to adopt any such schemes. This is particularly true in Houston where Interstate, Horwitz and various neighborhood operators are reported to have an agreement to lay off, with the result that in Texas' largest city exploitation rests on showmanship and pictures alone. Also, there is a stubborn fringe of individuals who stick to straight pictures—Scott's Varsity, Jorgenson's East Grand, Dallas neighborhoods; Adelman's Fort Worth and Houston neighborhoods; A. W. Lilly's situations in Commerce and Sulphur Springs, and a few others in this category.

All Circuits Booked Heavily

All circuits in Texas are booked heavily, most of them using one or more services concurrently, to such an extent that as high as three days a week are given over to money nights. Sometimes all houses are under one ownership, and in other cases there is competitive cooperation. As an illustration, in Denison Interstate has two houses, B. Legg one house. Bank night is used in all three houses simultaneously.

Experience with these devices has been spotty. In small places having few seats and low admissions the success is doubtful. Larger towns where there are 600 or more seats and a charge of 25c or more exhibitors claim an exhilarating yield. In the cities, along the Rialtos, in first runs, no one is claiming any success—they apparently do not draw the required extra business to offset the additional load. In the neighborhoods, on the other hand, in some cases response has been positively spectacular.

Opinion as to the long run value of the use of any form of giveaway hinges largely on the type of operations carried on by the commentator.

In closed towns, whatever effect it may have, the exhibitor carries his own load. In competitive spots, these stunts were used first by small houses, booking delayed runs, and under a hard struggle for business. These exhibitors justify giveaways due to their plight. Because they began to draw, larger houses with prior run and higher admissions began to fight fire with fire.

R. J. O'Donnell of Interstate says his houses will revert to straight operation whenever competition will allow. He holds that extraneous trade stimulants are not beneficial in the long run.

Jefferson Amusement, East Texas, claims giveaways are used only in competitive spots, although this is not entirely correct, and officials say they prefer pictures only. R. & R. Theatres, Inc., adjusts such uses by the local situation.

Col. H. A. Cole argues and advises Allied members that any added attraction is entertainment for the patron and that the theatres are the purveyors of entertainment, taken from wherever it may be found.

Probably the best lesson in Texas is in the Oak Cliff, suburb of Dallas. For more than 10 years every exhibitor in the area—now seven houses—has used constantly some extraneous sales pressure, so that now the public looks for these extras and the attendance is meagre when they are not offered. Trade judgment swings largely to the opinion that a straight operation in Oak Cliff would be both difficult and hazardous.

Few Stunts in Northwest

SEATTLE, July 25.—Seattle and the Pacific northwest so far have been singularly free from the inroads of bank night, screeno and other stunts.

There have been bank nights in a few houses in Olympia, Bellingham and Everett, operated by Evergreen. However, neither the first runs or suburban theatres in this city, Spokane, Tacoma or other major spots have featured the rackets.

San Antonio Dissatisfied

SAN ANTONIO, July 25.—Bank and screeno nights are run by all theatres in the city, but they will have shot their bolt soon, for theatre managers are now taking steps to get from under this nuisance. There is scarcely a night in which one of the theatres is not having bank or screeno night. Patrons wait for them. Houses, of course, are filled, but are empty other nights. As a result, theatres plan to gradually abolish these nuisances.

Bank nights have been featured by the Palace and a couple of neighborhood houses for two years. Interstate, which has a monopoly in San Antonio, recently tried to meet the competition by introducing screeno in the Majestic, Aztec, Texas, Empire and State. After a month's trial, Interstate found that grosses has not been increased, hence the plan is to do away with giveaways gradually.

Akron Nights in Court

AKRON, July 25. — Bank night, which has been drawing crowds to two East Akron theatres during recent months, has been tumbled into the courts here.

John Romweber, operator of the Miles-Royal, had asked in Summit County courts that two competing theatres be restrained from promoting bank night and further asked $5,000 damages from operators of the competing theatres. Romweber charges that the stunt is a violation of state laws and city ordinances against lotteries.

"It is no lottery; it is a gift, and we have the city law director's decision that it is legal," responded William L. Hart and Niel J. Krichbaum, proprietors of the Norka and Rialto, respectively.

New in Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY, July 25.—Bank nights has just gotten a foothold here, with L. R. Bach covering the intermountain territory. The Tower is the only house using it at present. China night is also put on at this house.

Houston Houses Prospering; Not Interested in Giveaways

Houston, July 25.—Screeno has not made its appearance in Houston, and in the opinion of most exhibitors, will not.

"We don't need it," one exhibitor explained cryptically. "In the east they do not seem to say 'Houston' in show circles as often as 'Dallas.' Nevertheless, Houston's show business is above average, and has been for a year and all during the hottest July in 20 years, and we do not need the business builders like screeno."

Another exhibitor explained that he might get extra revenue on one night, but he'd just be taking it away from another night, so "Why bother?"

Bank night is used at the Monroe Hopkins Tent Theatre, a stock company that has been here two and a half years. Not a picture theatre in Houston has adopted screeno, gold mine or bank night.

Bank night is popular in some of the smaller towns of South Texas. A Goose Creek house has given $20 for a year in a bank night gag, and at Bay City the come-on is $25. Outside of San Antonio, where Interstate has seven houses, screeno has made little headway in South Texas.

"Amateur night" bids fair to become the popular gag in this town. The Horwitz Circuit sponsors a preliminary amateur contest at the 15-cent house each week, the winners of three weeks being given a professional engagement at the 25-cent house the fourth week. The Major Bowes' amateur show at the Metropolitan has added interest to this stunt, but one exhibitor dubbed it a "summer nightmare."

Virginia Opposed

Richmond, July 25.—Bank night and other forms of giveaways are practically non-existent in Virginia. One Roanoke exhibitor tried bank night and gave it up.

Elmer H. Brient, secretary of the M.P.T.O. unit, says many showmen regard the plan as demoralizing to business.

Philadelphia Foresees Big Giveaway Gain

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—With this city on the verge of a wholesale invasion from almost all of the new giveaway and prize devices, two results are to be noted. In the first place, closings are far less than last summer with most exhibitors willing to take a chance on premiums to pull them out of the warm weather slump. The second result is a diminution in premiums in favor of the new stunts.

By August 1, bank night will have been instituted in a dozen spots in the territory. Basil Ziegler, former secretary of the local code boards, is the territorial representative and is pushing the idea.

Screeno, which was tried out here a year ago and then dropped, is being revived and will have its share of attention. Lucky-bingo, sweepstakes and pay nights are also on their way in. Another stunt is the grocery tieup by several neighborhood theatres with local merchants in which baskets of provisions are on the giveaway list.

These giveaways are restricted to independent exhibitors. So far Warners has stayed clear of premiums, lotteries and double features.

Denver Ads Are Limited

DENVER, July 25.—Ads and stories about the giveaways in Denver theatres are appearing in newspapers here. In the two dailies, The Denver Post and The Rocky Mountain News, small ads proclaiming that "Tuesday Night Is Ford Night" and that "Thursday Night Is Plymouth Night" appear daily, in the street and mail editions. In the News stories and larger ads with details about the drawing are run by the Harry Huffman theatres which give away Fords. In the mailing edition these ads and stories are killed.

For city coverage a good many theatres use large ad spaces in the Monitor, a weekly free distribution paper with over 60,000 circulation. This paper also pulls giveaway ads out of the mail edition.

Bank Night in Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 25.—Bank night has been declared legitimate, so far as theatres in this municipality are concerned, after an order had been sent out by local authorities for the police to crack down. A hurried trip to Springfield by George Ryan, attorney in this territory for the premium plan, resulted in a reversal of the decision.

20th Century-Fox Show Big Two-Year Gain

current assets on that date were given as $3,489,535.54.

During the first 13 weeks of 1933, before the reorganization, Fox had a net of $557,122.49. In the following 39 weeks ending Dec. 30, 1933, the net jumped to $1,410,793.13. In the 52 weeks ending Dec. 29, 1934, the net slipped slightly to $1,273,069.10, but it leaped to a new high level for the 18 weeks ending May 4, 1934, when the total was $1,162,165.53.

Surplus rose steadily from zero on April 1, 1933, to $1,674,353.94 on Dec. 30, 1933; to $3,006,812.13 at the end of 1934, and $4,169.230.47 on May 4, 1935.

The total assets on May 4, 1935, are given as $43,563,838.50.

It is figured that the consolidation of the two companies will raise the assets to $54,072,856.64.

Under the Fox charter 1,500,000 shares of preferred and 3,100,000 shares of common are authorized, but listing has been applied for and received for 1,388,799 shares of preferred and 3,077,407 of common. Of this, 20th Century will receive 132,513 shares of preferred and 613,264¾ shares of common, while 1,226,529½ shares of preferred and 613,264¾ shares of common will be used to convert the present stock outstanding. The remainder will be reserved for conversion of preferred stock, possible conversion of five-year six per cent gold debentures due April 1, 1936, warrants expiring in March, 1936, possible conversion of preferred into common, and options to officers at not less than $10 per share.

SEC Statement Not Needed

Counsel has advised the company that no registration statement is required for the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The new preferred stock is valued at $35 per share in case of dissolution or liquidation of the company, plus accrued dividends, and the company is authorized to purchase it for retirement at not exceeding this price.

The total number of shares reserved for options of officers is 100,000 at not less than $10 per share. S. R. Kent's option is for 60,000 of these shares.

The company is required under the terms of the consolidation agreement to set aside five per cent per year of its consolidated net earnings, after payment of preferred dividends, for retirement of preferred stock. No common can be purchased by the company until all the preferred has been retired.

Holders of the present Class A common will receive one-half share of preferred and one-quarter share of common for each of their shares. Holders of the present Class B voting stock will receive one share of preferred and one-half share of common for each of the present shares. All the new stock will have voting privileges, but if the company fails to pay a dividend on the preferred shares after Jan. 1, 1937, the preferred holders, voting as a class, can elect a majority of the board of directors by plurality vote.

The valuation placed upon the two classes of shares for the purposes of the merger is $31.25 for the preferred and $25 for the common.

The Stock Exchange has turned down parent company statements asked of Fox Film Corp. in connection with the application for listing of stock of 20th Century-Fox approved Wednesday on the ground profits of wholly-owned subsidiaries and a proportion of profits of controlled subsidiaries were included. It is expected revised financial reports will be issued in the final printing of the application for listing.

The action of the Stock Exchange is in step with a proposal that all applicants for listing provide more complete financial reports.

Fish Like Film

Mary Pickford yesterday regaled newspapermen with her experiences fishing for marlin swordfish, and her first one in particular.

"I went out at five in the morning on my first trip," Miss Pickford said, "and didn't get a strike until nearly noon. It was then I learned that big fish, like film executives, don't awaken until after 10 o'clock."

Selznick expects to leave for New York in about a week to look over the story market.

No Giveaways, But Says Grosses Gain

suburban run not now giving away something.

"And business is better than it was the same time a year ago," she comments. "In fact, improvement set in with the widespread promotion of the giveaways. There has been no extra promotion, and we have one less change per week than we did a year ago. At that time we had four, we now have three. We didn't even buy the product of two major companies, a thing not true of our house last year.

"If exhibitors used the money they are spending on china, and other forms of giveaways, to put in a cooling system, more comfortable seats, or better sound equipment, I think the business of all of them would be better than it is now."

Georgia Stunts General

Atlanta, July 25. — Scores of theatres in this territory are using some phase of come-on as an inducement to patronage, calling them variously bank night, cash night, screeno, grocery night, and other alluring titles.

At one time five theatres in one block in Jacksonville used some phase of a come-on, each on a different night.

At least a half dozen theatres in suburban Atlanta are using premium nights, for the most part the original bank night. There is also a swimming resort here using a bank night feature.

One exhibitor in south Georgia is being sued for cash by a patron who was not present, it being claimed that he was at his home when he was notified by some one that he had won. He claimed his reward a half hour late.

Nebraska Use Is General

Lincoln, Neb., July 25.—Since the advent of bank night in Norfolk, Neb., more than a year ago the plan has been put into use throughout the state and with varied degrees of success, but most exhibitors, using the idea have increased their box-office receipts substantially.

Affiliated Distributors Corp. of Des Moines has the features of this plan copyrighted and any theatres pay a royalty for the use of it. There are approximately 30 houses in the state making use of bank night.

County Attorney Towle of Lancaster County has filed a suit against Ray Headrich, theatre owner, who has been operating under this plan. The suit will test the legality of the plan under Nebraska's state lottery laws.

"Angels" and "Murder" One Detroit Draw

Detroit, July 25.—In a week of tumbling grosses the only house to reach par was the State, which took $5,000 with a revival of "Hell's Angels" and a second run of "Murder in the Fleet."

"Ginger," with a vaudeville program, didn't get to first base at the Fox, and a dual, "Public Hero No. 1" and a second run of "Headline Woman," failed to lighten the gloom around the Fisher. "Men Without Names" was a little better than fair at the Michigan.

Total downtown business was $51,000. Average is $60,000.

Terre Haute Houses Reopen; City Calm

Terre Haute, Ind., July 26.—Local theatres which were dark during the "labor holiday" have all reopened. The theatres, along with all other business, closed when a city and county-wide strike was called to sympathize with strikers at the Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt sent troops into the city. Like most other business places the theatres deemed it wise to play safe and kept their doors locked during the demonstrations.

Premium Agents Happy in N. E. As New Stunts Gain

Boston, July 26.—Premium agents are blissful in New England. One concern that started less than a year ago now owns its own building in the film district, its warehouses, and a fleet of trucks. Exhibitors are in many cases resentful over the way the industry has fallen in line with cereal manufacturers, soap concerns and toothpaste wholesalers in bolstering product with giveaways, but they are nevertheless using them. National organizations remain mum, their eyes open. That is the premium situation here.

"Using premiums is the only way a theatreman today can compete with booze, beano, bow-wows and bangtails," Frank Lydon, former code of-

Little Prospect for Birmingham Doubles

Birmingham, July 26. — Double features have no chance of getting a foothold here, it is agreed.

Frank Merritt, head of Merritt Theatres, and Richard Kennedy, district manager for Wilby, have agreed on this and they control the downtown situation.

Duals were tried three years ago. Business was stimulated for a short time, but after about two months exhibitors found they were not worth while.

Cameraman Lost as "Bounty" Ship Sinks

Distributors Finish Fight On Sales Tax

City Expected to Answer In About 10 Days

Distributor representatives here have completed presentation of their arguments against the application of the city sales tax to film rentals and are awaiting a decision from Comptroller Frank J. Taylor on the city's attitude on the tax, it was learned yesterday.

Estimates place the amount of the tax at between $400,000 and $500,000 annually on the basis of local distribution revenue of eight major companies.

The principal grounds cited by the industry for its belief that the city sales tax is not applicable to exchange revenue are that films are leased and not sold and, moreover, are governed by Federal copyrights under which they are leased. For this reason, it is held, no municipality has a legal right to levy on the rentals.

The city is expected to answer the local industry's arguments within the next week or 10 days.

Clergyman Objects To Film Criticism

Rev. Gerard B. Donnelly, writing in the current number of the Catholic weekly, America, takes issue with the Catholic Daughters of America for the resolution adopted at their Seattle convention early this month in which they attacked the industry. Father Donnelly not only criticizes the organization, but praises the producers for the manner in which they have cleaned up pictures.

In speaking of the producers the priest said, in part: "They have adopted a code written and approved by church authorities. They have employed a conscientious and strict interpreter of that code. Hence it is embarrassing to find the Catholic Daughters do not seem even ordinarily appreciative."

ficial here, who operates the Hamilton, told Motion Picture Daily. "I'm using them for the first time in 23 years, in the form of dishes and bank night."

"This premium racket is okay," commented Leo Britton, who holds the franchise in this territory for jackpot, one of the systems being sued by bank night. Britton also heads the Amity Film Exchange. "I've got 48 accounts signed up at present. They're paying from $10 to $25 weekly."

"Pictures are still what count," declared Thomas Woodbury, city manager in Beverly for the Ramsdell Brothers. He intimated that he is using premiums only to meet competition. "We give out a lot of dishes when there is a poor film on, and only a few when there's a good program."

"Premiums never work out," was the opinion of Joseph Cohen, Regional Chain Theatres executive. "They take business away from other nights. Furthermore, we found from trying them seven or eight years ago that they start big, but taper off."

"We're going to do away with vaudeville and put premiums in, instead," stated Ben Welansky, who operates four grind houses on Washington St. in the Hub. "Tango, which I'm using two nights a week at the Globe, is increasing business 300 per cent."

Holds N. E. Tango Franchise

One reason for Welansky's enthusiasm for tango may hinge upon the fact that he recently acquired the New England franchise for tango. This box-office stimulant is placed in 85 spots at present, according to Welansky.

"It's a case of either using premiums or selling my theatre to the racetrack for a dog kennel," said Richard Rubin, Allied official. "I'm against them, but I haven't any choice. I'm using dishes, and I'm going to put in bank night."

Both Joseph Brennan, executive secretary of the M. P. T. O. A. unit in Massachusetts, and Arthur K. Howard, business manager for Allied, declined to comment officially on the use of premiums. The same stand was taken by Martha W. Ferris, secretary of the Film Board of Trade. Regarding these organizations, however, it may be noted that Allied here has a hand in distributing a premium.

"Twenty accounts is all I'm handling at present," remarked William McLaughlin, independent exhibitor and dish distributor. His position is somewhat unique here, inasmuch as he affirms that his premium business has been better than it is at present. He adds, however: "Competition is the only reason I'm not selling more stuff."

The Metro Premium Co., headed by Irving Zussman, is riding the crest of the premium wave. Thriving on more than 100 accounts, by its own statement, this concern is supplying part of the M. & P. Publix circuit. Zussman got into the premium splash less than 12 months ago. He has acquired and is remodeling the building on the second floor of which he once hired space. He has two warehouses and his own trucks.

"Gold mine has over 30 accounts here at present," computed one of the distributors of this scheme. "These pay from a minimum of $10 weekly to a present maximum of $35."

Bank night has twice been refused injunctions against gold mine, which is handled by James Kennedy, who originally sold bank night over much of New England. Hearings before a suit may kill the cash-giveaway golden goose, as Federal Judge Brewster made the point in denying an injunction that if the suit should finally be heard, authorities should ascertain whether or not such schemes are lotteries.

N.O. Suburbans Try Sharing the Wealth

90 per cent of the suburbans are using it.

All kinds of giveaways, all the way from baskets of food to dinner sets, have been used in the past. Bathing revues have been common, and the other night a hat contest was introduced.

United still sticks to dishes. Downtown houses have refrained from giveaways. Harry McLeod tried ice cream for children, but decided it didn't help business much.

Settle Bank Night Suit

Kansas City, July 26.—Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., through R. W. McEwan, Kansas and Missouri distributor of bank night, has withdrawn an infringement suit from Federal district court against Tom Edwards, operator of the Ozark, Eldon, Mo. The suit has pending under Judge Merrill E. Otis. A Settlement out of court was agreed to under which Edwards will use bank night on contract.

Max Davidson of the Mayflower at Florence, Kan., who has been operating cash night, has signed a contract for bank night.

St. Louis Opening Awaits Union Deal

St. Louis, July 26.—Failure to get together with the musicians' and stagehands' unions on a working agreement to cover stage shows at one or two of its local first runs has caused Fanchon & Marco to call off all stage show bookings and this city will continue without such attractions in its picture houses.

According to the F. & M. management, President Sam Meyers of the musicians' union refused to consider any contract other than a full-season agreement, while the stagehands are said to have asked for an increased number of workers.

F. & M. has been forced to cancel bookings for Olsen and Johnson and the Texas Mustangs of Southern Methodist University. It had planned to reopen the Ambassador with stage shows and pictures. The house has been dark for several weeks.

Boston Goes Deeper into Torrid Slump

Boston, July 26.—Heat, baseball, dog and horse races kicked a heavy dent in box-offices for the week. The only showing regarded as even fair was made by the dual, "Front Page Woman" and "Going Highbrow," playing day and date at the Fenway and Paramount. The take at the former was $4,000, under normal by $500, and at the latter it was $6,000, under average by $1,000.

All other houses were in such a bad way that some of them did not reach 50 per cent of normal.

Total first run business was $49,300. Average is $68,500.

Schenck May Get Minority Of Met Stock

interest in the new Fox Met out of its own 50 per cent interest in the new company. Fox Theatres, proponent of the Fox Met reorganization plan, is given an option under the plan to acquire 50 per cent of the new stock by payment of $150,000 and the withdrawal of its claim against Fox Met. Its alternative is to sell the 50 per cent interest to U. A. Theatre Corp. for $275,000. Retention of the stock, thus, would give Fox Theatres the controlling interest.

The sentiment of Fox Theatres' creditors appears to be veering in favor of retention of the new Fox Met stock as an investment, and this procedure already has been endorsed by Federal Judge Martin T. Manton, who has jurisdiction over the Fox Theatres' receivership. The latter company is bound by the Fox Met reorganization plan to make its decision on the purchase or relinquishing of the stock within 60 days after consummation of the Fox Met reorganization.

Seek Windup by Aug. 15

Efforts are now being made to conclude the reorganization by Aug. 15, with that date tentatively set for the transfer of assets from the trustee to the new company. This would give Fox Theatres until Oct. 15 to make its decision. Milton C. Weisman, receiver for Fox Theatres, has stated he would call a meeting of creditors of the company immediately after the Fox Met reorganization to vote on a course of action in connection with the stock, and would place the results of the vote before Judge Manton for final directions.

Six directors of Fox Met have already been designated, Schenck having three representatives, including himself, and Fox Theatres, three. Fox Met bondholders will also be given three places on the new board. As Federal Judge Julian W. Mack has retained the right to veto the as yet unnamed bondholder representatives, the bondholders' committee is expected to elect only temporary board members at the time of the consummation of the plan next month. These three would remain in a temporary capacity until confirmed by Judge Mack, who is not due back from a current European vacation until Oct. 2. Indications are that no election of officers may be held prior to that date.

Wants GTE Trustees To Pass on Merger

Wilmington, Del., July 26.—Acting as receiver for General Theatres Equipment, U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware today petitioned Chancellor Josiah C. Wolcott in Chancery Court here for permission to direct voting trustees of G. T. E. to approve consolidation of Fox with 20th Century. The consolidation plan will go before stockholders of Fox in New York Aug. 15. Hearing on the petition was set for Aug. 12.

Chancellor Wolcott ordered that in the meantime details of the plan of consolidation be open to creditors, stockholders and holders of voting trust certificates for inspection at the offices of Hughes, Schuman & Dwight in New York.

Senator Hastings, receiver of G. T. E. since his appointment by the court on Feb. 29, 1932, is owner of voting trust certificates representing eight percent of Class A and 86 percent of Class B common stock of Fox under voting trust agreement. Voting trustees are Harley L. Clarke, Frank O. Watts and Albert H. Wiggin. Hastings' petition says they wish to be directed to vote for the consolidation and that the receiver believes the merger to be to the best interests of G. T. E.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Here Comes the Band"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, July 26.—Shown in lengthy, all-inclusive form, the evident purpose of this preview undoubtedly was to let the audience decide what should remain in the picture. As it stands it is a lively concoction of variety amusement which dips into almost every entertainment phase.

Motivating a story at times entirely ignored is a sort of futuristic music tinged with a conception of what might have become of some of the boys who were in the Big Parade. With that atmosphere surrounding Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton and Addison Richards, it rings in a light comedy-drama romance involving Virginia Bruce and Harry Stockwell. Accenting that angle and playing to give exhibitors and audiences something new and different, there's a semi-farcical presentation of an amateur radio hour, a typical picturization of Ted Lewis and his band doing some of their best known old favorites and several new numbers.

Taking a twist that involves a bit of song-pirating skullduggery, the whole is climaxed by a courtroom sequence in which the singing of Negro, Indian and hill-billy folk songs, the original characters for which were uniquely rounded up by Stockwell, proves that he is the author of a stolen typically native American song.

Showmanship availability is the keynote of the original screen play by Paul Sloane, Ralph Spence and Victor Mansfield. Production values also provide much more with which to work.

Of the song numbers, on which many collaborated on the music and lyrics, "Too Tender Is the Night" and "Headin' Home," played by Lewis and his band, favorably introduce Stockwell as a singing star. Intelligent editing should deliver attractive merchandise for patrons and showmen. Sloane directed.

No production code seal. Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

"Every Night at Eight"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, July 26.—Clever dialogue, smart musical numbers and good direction make this picture satisfactory from every angle. Although the story is light, action is not lacking and the interpolation of specialties sustains interest.

Frances Langford, Alice Faye and Patsy Kelly, all amateurs, enter a radio contest and are beaten by George Raft and his band. The acts then team up under Raft's management and after a struggle rise to a top spot as radio entertainers. At the height of their success the girls rebel against Raft's business tyranny and walk out. Tuning in on their program away from the studio they relent and rush back in time to finish. The love interest is furnished by the romance between Raft and Miss Langford, with the former not realizing the depth of his emotion until the girls walk out.

In putting this story by Stanley Garvey on the screen director Raoul Walsh has pointed up few dramatic sequences and worked in music effectively. Specialties by the Three Radio Rogues and Florence Gill during an amateur broadcast are outstanding, as are the performances of Walter Catlett, Herman Bing and John Dilson in support.

The songs by Dorothy Fields and Jimmy McHugh are catchy and the screen play by Graham Baker and Gene Towne gives Miss Kelly some funny lines.

The production rates top billing on most programs. Production Code Seal No. 1091. Running time, 76 minutes. "G."

Theatre Sale Held Up

Bucyrus, O., July 26.—Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl has granted a moratorium under the Best Act to John Hoover, Cincinnati contractor, covering his indebtedness against the uncompleted theatre building which he began in 1929. The property was sold to the Limo Corp., Ohio Schine subsidiary, at sheriff's sale last week.

The court requires Hoover to pay all back taxes, as well as interest charges to a local building and loan company, and post a $15,000 bond by next Monday. If he fails, the court will confirm the sale to the Schine interests.

New Group to Study British Quota Is Seen

Kinematograph Renters' Society and also chief of Associated British Pictures, says distributors would be quite willing to discuss action with exhibitors.

"The Act is working well except for the 'quickie' business," he declared.

Any committee which came into being would be faced with the task of reconciling the exhibitors' demand for a smaller quota with the British producers' wish for increased protection.

Application for provisional approval of the Paramount Theatre, on part of the site of the grammar school, has been successful at Birmingham. The scheme has been vigorously opposed by local exhibitors, on the ground of redundancy. The theatre will be one of the circuit of Paramount supers in British provincial towns. There are others in Glasgow, Leeds, Manchester, Liverpool and Cardiff.

Zanuck Will Make 'Ramona' in Big Way

Hollywood, July 26.—Darryl Zanuck today moved the John Stone production, "Ramona," into the special category at 20th Century-Fox. The film was originally planned as a programmer. He ordered a larger budget for the picture to make possible its production on a more elaborate scale.

It is reported all previous casting commitments have been written off. Zanuck cabled Loretta Young, who is abroad, an offer to play the starring role and set back the starting date to after Labor Day to give the actress time to get here should she accept. Rita Cansino, formerly slated for the lead, is being transferred to another film, as Zanuck and Sol Wurtzel view her as a potential star.

Picket Coast Theatre

Los Angeles, July 26.—The Criterion, subsequent run, was being picketed today by Local 150, I. A. T. S. E., which charges T. I. Tally, who operates the house, with using non-union help and cutting his staff and payroll in half. Tally's refusal to negotiate was said to have caused the union to start picketing late this afternoon with announced intentions to keep pickets on duty until the theatreman gives in or goes broke. The union claims Tally's payroll at present is only one-fourth what it was at one time.

More Coast Arrivals

Ben Goetz and his wife are in town from Hollywood.

Clarence Brown, M-G-M director, is also here.

Revival of Film Boards Of Trade Due in the Fall

Will Be Agency Through Which Clearance May Be Evolved

Revival of the Film Boards of Trade on an active, full strength basis in 33 exchange centers will be undertaken this fall, it was learned on Saturday.

The collapse of the industry's NRA code, which had subjugated the Film Boards to a minor position in the distribution branch of the industry, leaving only skeleton organizations in approximately 15 exchange centers, left many important trade functions without an agency to handle or direct them. It is to fill the gap thus created that the boards are being re-established, it was stated in several distribution quarters.

Indications are that the field organization will be developed along somewhat different lines than in the past and will undoubtedly relinquish

Theatre Deals At Para. Next For Otterson

Partnership Pacts Up for Consideration

Either working agreements or new long-term contracts for Paramount theatre operators and partners will be negotiated during late August and September under the direction of John E. Otterson, Paramount president, on his return here from the coast about Aug. 15.

Despite the fact that no move has been made yet to replace the 90-day agreements under which the Paramount theatre operators are now working, and which expire Sept. 28, there is no prospect of an abandonment of the company's policy of decentralized theatre operation for a revival of home office or centralized operation, it was said. The failure of the company to initiate action thus far on renewals of the operating pacts

Hearing on Katz's Claim Up Wednesday

Arguments on the legality of the $281,000 claim of Sam Katz against Paramount, based on a personal service contract, will be set for hearing Wednesday when the report of Special Master John E. Joyce holding the claim to be without legal basis goes to the U. S. District court. The report will be referred to Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe for hearing of arguments and decision.

Joyce held that under the stock corporation laws Paramount was entitled to terminate Katz' services without incurring liability under the unexpired portion of his contract. It is assumed that the ruling may also have a bearing on the $320,000 claim against Paramount of Jesse L. Lasky and the $72,500 claim of Sidney R. Kent.

Seek Friendly End To Loew-Para. Suit

A proposal for authority to settle the $5,000,000 anti-trust claim against Paramount arising from a suit for triple damages filed in Boston several years ago by E. M. Loew, independent theatre operator, will be placed before the Paramount board in the near future.

Trustees of the company had settlement negotiations well under way at the time Paramount emerged from

Grosses Drop To a New Hot Weather Low

Grosses continued their mid-summer decline in 125 key city theatres during the week ending July 11-12. The total take was $1,023,457. The number of theatres open also continued to fall, the latest count being 125. The previous week 127 were in operation.

The falling off has been steady since the start of June, with the exception of the week ending June 13-14 when there was a slight rally.

The surprising thing about the latest decline is the fact that 11, or exactly half the total number of cities reporting, showed gains, some of them quite sizable. The cities registering

Production Running Along in High Gear

Hollywood, July 28.—Production continued a record pace here last week despite midsummer weather and vacations of studio personnel. The seven-day check of schedules showed 45 features and three short subjects in active work as compared to 46 features and five shorts for the preceding week.

M-G-M retained its lead in the feature category with 10 pictures shooting, one in preparation and slated for the sound stages within two weeks and 12 in the cutting room for editing. Universal hit its peak for the last five years with seven shooting, two preparing and one cutting. Fox had six,

Rivalry Marks Deals For Republic Lineup

British film companies' rivalry for the distribution rights abroad to the new season lineup of Republic's approximately 60 features and westerns, culled from some of the industry's leading independent producers, is enlivening negotiations which have been under way here for almost a month and has placed Republic in a favorable trading spot.

Both British International Pictures and British Lion are vying for Re-

Cleveland, July 28.—Signatures to the new local exhibitor agreement providing for double features of any feature product not playing a downtown first run, are coming in slowly. To date, the agreement has been signed by approximately 60 theatres. 82 signatures are necessary to make it binding.

No Giveaways In Providence; Lean on Duals

Providence, July 28.—This city is singularly immune from the epidemic of gold mine, screeno, bingo games and other lures used in other parts of the country to ensnare the wary summer guest in search of entertainment. None of the major houses in the downtown belt has succumbed as yet, trusting to straight double features for the pull.

The nearest approach to a departure was the staging of the Summerfield amateur radio shows at Loew's during the spring. Exhibitors are of the opinion that strong features only will get them business and this is borne out by the earnings for the past six months.

No Complaints in Omaha

Omaha, July 28.—Thus far no complaints have arisen from exhibitors in this territory over the use of bank nights, china nights, gold mine nights, jackpot, money nights, pay-off-nights,

William B. Jaffe and Sol A. Rosenblatt take up the practice of law in partnership today at offices in the International Building in Radio City. Both were formerly associated with the Nathan Burkan law firm.

Rosenblatt recently was division administrator under the NRA. Jaffe has been in charge of Columbia Pictures legal work for the past six years.

New Sound System Is Offered by Hammond

Boston, July 28.—Eighteen patent licenses for a new sound system have been allowed John Hays Hammond, Jr. The invention is known as "the dynamic multiplier system" and was developed in the inventor's Gloucester laboratory. The purpose of the device is to do away with the undesirable characteristics of present sound apparatus, it is said.

The invention is said by film men to whom it has been demonstrated to give a more life-like quality to pictures.

Ellison Purington is the engineer who has been in charge of the project, which, it is claimed, may revolutionize the industry.

"U"-Sullavan Dicker For Longer Contract

Hollywood, July 28. — Universal and Margaret Sullavan are getting together on an extension of her contract. She has three to make for "U" before Dec. 1 with only one property, "Next Time We Love," lined up. Paramount has held her longer than anticipated on "So Red the Rose." That time will be part of the extension, since she negotiated for the part independently.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

DAVID SARNOFF, president of the Radio Corporation, set forth on Friday on his annual business trip abroad; he will be gone two months. Which leads to some speculation regarding RKO and the if and when about its emergence from the bankruptcy regime. Bouncing around gently and heard, so far as is known, by only a handful has been the rumor a plan of reorganization was already under way for presentation to the Federal court very shortly now. Yet a check of sources which should know disconcertingly reveals nothing, despite the existence of the report and the understanding Sarnoff originally uttered it. . . .

You can figure the Sarnoff junket overseas in two ways and both of them are rather obvious. One immediately suggests that no plan is ready, despite what is regarded as the continued willingness of Floyd B. Odlum and the Atlas Investment group to take over RCA's interest in RKO—on the books at approximately $16,000,000—for $5,000,000 in cash, which is a considerable number of dollars. The other way of ruminating about the matter indicates a plan is in work and is so far along that Sarnoff's presence in the next few weeks is not necessary to its progress. This does not appear to make very much sense, although it might be a mistaken idea to arbitrarily rule it out of the running. . . .

The reputed difficulty about a deal between Sarnoff and Odlum is the usual difficulty which these matters entail. The former is striking for as much on RCA's sixteen millions in RKO that it can get. It is said to be in the Sarnoff mind that he is holding out for a dollar-for-dollar deal. It is also said for those who, by experience at least, are familiar with finance at large that Sarnoff, if he is holding on to such an idea, will find himself holding on for some time to come. The understanding is, however, that RCA is of far more interest to him than RKO and that, because this is so, Sarnoff is adamant about a full return on the communication company's investments in the film company. . . .

In the meantime and of interest in that it reveals how RKO is going these days are these figures: The distributing company is running at the rate of $434,000 a week and the theatre organization at the rate of $397,000 every seven days. These statistics are in averages, do not take into account seasonal decline or gain and are drawn from the first report of the trustees recently submitted to the United States district court in New York. For the twenty-one weeks to May 21, bulk rentals were $9,115,442; theatre grosses, $8,344,044. . . .

The constant query: Is theatre business better? The government supplies an answer, fortified by figures which are always considerably more satisfactory than speculation. For the fiscal year ending with June, admission taxes increased almost $765,000 to a total of $15,379,397 as compared with $14,613,414 for the previous period. June and the hot weather it ushered in left its toll, an anticipated toll, it might be added, although year - in - and - year - out familiarity with it makes theatre operators none the readier to accept it. The returns for that month shriveled more than $120,000 as compared with last May and $386,000 as compared with the May of 1934. While government figures make no differentiation between types of amusements, common acceptance always has been that picture theatres furnish somewhere between sixty and perhaps as high as eighty per cent of the aggregate. . . .

Efforts to collect on the $297,000 judgment to which William Fox confessed to some ten days ago in connection with alleged defaults on a guaranteed lease on the Fox, San Francisco, were met, the story goes, with one of the saddest tales of woe encountered in the industry since 1931. Bill Fox examined the judgment entered against him, according to the story, brushed a tear from his eye with a tattered sleeve and turned to the plaintiff's lawyer. "I haven't a dollar," he is quoted as saying. "I haven't even a home any more. Through the generosity of a friend I've been living in a four-room servants' apartment over his boat house on the Sound." The lawyer blotted a few errant tears from the judgment papers and departed.

About "Diamond Jim." In the background, the colorful era when America was extending its steel rails into the four corners of the land; in the foreground, highlights in the colorful life story of one of Broadway's most interesting characters. Edwin Arnold plays Diamond Jim and plays him rough-house and well. Production values are high and the interest is constantly sustained. It also happens to be the best of the Edmund Grainger-supervised pictures to date. . . .

Exhibitors who have been approached by Columbia on deals for the new season are arching their eyebrows, to say the least. It has to do, of course, with selling terms which run as follows:

Six at thirty-five per cent.

Six at thirty per cent.

Twelve at the highest allocation in flat rentals.

The remainder at as high an average as prevailed last season. . . .

August Campaign for Astaire Film Is Set

National exploitation for Radio's new Fred Astaire picture, "Top Hat," which is to have pre-release showings in key cities around Labor Day, will be augmented throughout August by a radio and advertising campaign tie-up with Lucky Strike cigarettes, according to S. Barret McCormick, advertising and publicity head. Astaire will feature on the cigarette company's radio broadcasts on four Saturdays in August with tunes from "Top Hat." The picture will also be plugged during the month in the cigarette company's newspaper and special advertising.

Special Ads Ready For "Irish in Us"

Warners' newspaper ad campaign on "The Irish in Us" is being aimed at all types of newspaper readers by the placement of copy in three separate sections of newspapers in addition to the amusement section. Specially prepared copy will be placed on the sports pages, the home or woman's page and fiction or feature pages to attain thorough reader coverage, according to S. Charles Einfeld, advertising and publicity director.

Massachusetts for Longer Racing Meet

BOSTON, July 28.—The Senate has concurred with the House in authorizing an increase from 70 to 90 in the number of horse racing days under the new pari-mutuel law. An important amendment to the horse and dog racing law in this state was added, taking away from the State Racing Commission power to grant a license for a dog track unless the locale has once been approved by the mayor and aldermen or the selectmen. This lends a certain degree of hope to theatremen, inasmuch as Bay State citizens seem unwilling to have dog tracks near their homes.

Omaha Bookies Freed

OMAHA, July 28.—Much amusement money that has been pouring into race horse bookies' pockets will continue to go the same route, as a result of a ruling handed down by Municipal Judge Lester Palmer. After the legislature made horse racing legal last spring, bookies opened all over the city. Last week police raided all bookie shops, and charged the proprietors with vagrancy. Judge Palmer dismissed the 57 defendants on the grounds the legislature had legalized all forms of horse racing, which included bookie shops.

Warners Realigning Coast Stock Company

Hollywood, July 28. — Warners seem to be intent upon realigning their stock company, replacing present contractees with new material with greater promise for stardom. Options are not being taken up on Phillip Reed, Maxine Doyle, Mary Russell, June Martell and Helen Lowell. The later is being dropped because there are not enough character parts to keep her busy.

"U" Drops O'Connell

Hollywood, July 28.—Hugh O'Connell's option is not being taken up by Universal, in spite of the fact that a series of ZaSu Pitts-O'Connell features have been announced. The reason is that Miss Pitts, signed for only two films, is not re-signing and O'Connell's high salary prevents his being carried until another comedy partner is found.

Theatre Deals At Para. Next For Otterson

has been due entirely to the pressure of production and management activities which have commanded Otterson's attention to the exclusion of everything else during his first month as the new head of Paramount.

Paramount theatre partners from all over the country are currently negotiating new season film buys here with the counsel of Y. Frank Freeman, the company's theatre head. Many of the deals were concluded or gotten well under way during the past week and others will be advanced this week.

Otterson is due back from the studio in from two to three weeks, and among the first order of business for him, it is said, will be the opening of conferences on the extension of the temporary theatre operating pacts under which Paramount's theatre empire of 1,000 houses are administered. It is assumed that the new pacts will vary in only minor details from those under which the theatres have been operated for the past two years. This is regarded as the explanation of why the renewal of the pacts is being left to the last 30 or 40 days prior to the expiration of the temporary agreements.

Otterson is also expected to decide the future position in Paramount of S. A. Lynch, former head of Southern Enterprises and advisor to the Paramount trustees on theatre reorganizations, on his return. Lynch, who is now ending a brief European trip on personal business, is due back here late this week. He has considerable work yet to do in connection with the reorganizations of Olympia and other Paramount New England theatre units, and on the conclusion of this his future status in Paramount will probably be definitely decided.

reorganization. The negotiations were then terminated to await directions from the new board.

A special master at Boston who heard testimony in the Loew anti-trust action two years ago, recommended triple damages of $120,000 in favor of Loew in his report to the Federal court at Boston. A settlement figure mentioned during the Paramount trustees' negotiations with Loew was $50,000.

Quebec, July 28.—A vigorous campaign against billboards is being pressed by the Quebec Provincial Government under recently-enacted legislation which gives the Minister of Highways the right to remove or prohibit signs "whose presence masks or mars a countryside or panorama."

Film Board Revival Due Coming Fall

the Film Board name for some new designation. Exactly what shape the new organization will take could not be learned over the weekend, although indications are that its composition and functions are already fairly well defined in distribution minds.

That the new local organizations will take a leading part in initiating the drafting of clearance and zoning schedules and in formulating acceptable procedure for voluntary arbitration of contract disputes, appears certain. Numerous other routine functions will be inherited from the original Film Boards, such as local and state legislation work, providing an industry point of contact for public relations work, including cooperation with civic organizations and censorship bodies, furnishing advice on charity requests, and supervision of fire inspections at exchange centers.

Staffs for the new local organizations will probably be recruited from former Film Board personnel, it is reported. Many Film Board secretaries were retained throughout the code period to head skeleton organizations. Others were maintained on a part time basis as a contact source when needed. The new organizations are expected to be in readiness on or about Oct. 1.

Acquire Ohio House; Schines After More

Norwalk, O., July 28.—Schine Enterprises of Gloversville, N. Y., takes over the Forum, new 600-seat house built last year, in a deal closed late last week. William Selman, president of the Norwalk Theatre Corp., which built the theatre, remains as manager.

Louis Lazare, zone manager in charge of Schine houses in Ohio, confirms the report that his organization is entering into a large expansion program in the state, the object being to acquire either by lease, purchase or construction, as many good houses as are available.

Washington's Heat Leaves Mark on B.O.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—With a gross, which in itself was not remarkable, "College Scandal" at the Earle topped the Capital with a take of $18,600, a paltry $200 over the average. They have heat here.

Fox Wants Devine

HOLLYWOOD, July 28.—Andy Devine is back in football pictures with his part in "Offside" at Universal. He is making $400 a week, in spite of the fact that his loanout figure is higher, and is said to have a Fox contract waiting if he can settle with Universal.

"Farmer" in Philadelphia $5,000 Above

PHILADELPHIA, July 28. — "The Farmer Takes a Wife" was the only picture last week to defeat an almost incessant rain and a Turkish-bath temperature. It ran to $17,000 at the Fox and will be held for four more days.

Everything else hit the toboggan. The Arcadia revived "Naughty Marietta" at the last minute when "Murder in the Fleet" flopped and didn't get a chance to give it a buildup. The picture only lasted three days, but the revival idea hasn't been killed at the theatre. The house figures a better weather break and a little advance notice will bring some money for the repeaters.

"Shanghai" proved no world beater at the Boyd, with a $9,300 take and "Love Me Forever" finished a second week at the Stanley with a fair $9,500. Total first run business was $58,400. The average is $63,900.

screeno, or any of the box-office stimulators.

However, exhibitors who have been holding a co-operative giveaway in Sioux City, Ia., worked a good stunt to death by giving away an auto once a week. Now, to win back their patronage, theatre men have decided to give autos away every fortnight. Patrons became too accustomed to the weekly giveaway.

In Omaha, the auto giveaway is being restricted to once monthly, with 22 theatres in the city participating.

A cash giveaway plan, recently tried in the tri-cities in eastern Iowa, Davenport and Rock Island and Moline, Ill., is being studied by exhibitors in Iowa, Nebraska and other western states. The cash giveaway replaces the car giveaway there with all the rules of the car giveaway in force.

Little Used in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, July 28.—Giveaways are not being used extensively in this territory and almost not at all in metropolitan areas. In outlying theatres, however, trading stamps, china nights and other come-ons are used in addition to bank nights. Screeno and gold mine are unknown.

The influence of Fox West Coast is believed an important factor in the situation, as it is said that if F. W. C. once started the practice of using giveaways, independents would be forced to follow suit. F. W. C. policy, however, has been to lay off giveaways except where competitors have resorted to them.

Preparing N. H. Test Case

Boston, July 28.—A bank night test suit is being prepared against the New Hampshire attorney general for a decision on the legality of the practice, it is revealed here. Bank night was recently ordered stopped in New Hampshire on the grounds it was a lottery.

George Ryan, bank night attorney here, has satisfied the officials bank night is legal, but rather than reverse himself without due cause the attorney general of New Hampshire suggested a friendly test case.

Sparks Uses Bank Night

Tampa, July 28.—Sparks is using bank night here and in a number of other places in the state. Its developments have been varied.

First it was tried at the Tampa. The house couldn't hold the crowds, so it was extended to the Victory with the same picture the same night. At first the winner had to be in the theatre, but after a warning from the attorney general on lotteries this was changed.

Two houses in Ybor City use it, and it has spread to the negro houses. Fights at the 116th Artillery Arena couldn't stand the competition and introduced cash night.

Pickwick Likes Bank Night

Greenwich, July 28.—The Pickwick finds bank night a good draw and incidentally gets plenty of free advertising. The local daily runs a news story on page one each week, announcing the winners and giving various details of the stunt's reception by the audience.

Not Used in Portland

Portland, July 28.—Box-office stimulants other than straight exploitation are not used here and the opinion is definite that they will not be introduced, provided the quality of product is maintained.

Bank Night in Virginia

Richmond, July 28.—Bank night is being tried in Roanoke and Hopewell and automobile giveaways have arrived in Charlottesville. Opposition is still general, however.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Little Big Shot"

(Warner)

Hollywood, July 28. — Aside from being top-notch entertainment slated for fancy grosses at the box-office, this one introduces a new child actress who should give other youngsters plenty of competition for an audience following. The story, tailored on the "Little Miss Marker" formula, unfolds swiftly and smoothly, containing a pleasing blend of comedy and pathos.

Intelligent showmanship should build for excellent results. The story, although not entirely new, is handled deftly. Sybil Jason, a talented newcomer, is thrown in with two petty racketeers, Robert Armstrong and Edward Everett Horton, who sell fake watches. The child becomes the ward of the team when her father is put on the spot in a gangster mixup. The dramatic and comedy situations built on a series of incidents bring the story towards its climax with Glenda Farrell, Armstrong's romantic interest, contributing a reforming influence. Miss Jason suddenly reveals a singing and dancing talent and the boys start a sideshow ballyhoo with Miss Farrell intervening for the child's welfare. Armstrong's yen for big dough finally gets him in trouble with gangsters and Miss Jason goes to an orphanage. The dramatic climax revolves around Armstrong's love for the youngster and his efforts to regain custody. The film has the usual serene ending.

Michael Curtiz directed with a sensitive feeling for emotional values. All the cast performances are of a high calibre. The screen play by Jerry Wald, Julius Epstein and Robert Andrews is good. Harrison Jacobs did the original.

No production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Hopalong Cassidy"

(Sherman-Paramount)

Hollywood, July 28.—Smart casting and a showmanlike production give this an edge as an unusual action type of picture. Bill Boyd, reflecting long trouping experience, makes the title character thoroughly likable and exactly as readers of the Clarence Mulford stories have probably pictured him. The story for the first of the series moves rapidly and ends on a note which leaves the audience anticipating adventures to be produced later.

The plot concerns cattle rustlers who stir up trouble between Robert Warwick and Charles Middleton, rival ranch owners, to cover up their own operations. Kenneth Thomson, the heavy, who is Warwick's foreman, keeps things stirred up until he is exposed by George Hayes. Hard riding and gunplay follow, with Boyd finally rounding up the gang. The romantic interest is carried meanwhile by Jimmie Ellinson, Boyd's assistant, and Paula Stone, Warwick's daughter.

The photography is of major calibre and credit is due Doris Schroeder for a fine adaptation job. The direction of Howard Bretherton shows a nice sense of timing.

If the other films in the series equal this, a large audience following can be built up.

Production Code Seal No. 1,110. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

May Raze Hollis Street

Boston, July 28.—The Hollis Street, which was originally erected in 1811 as a church for which the paternal grandfather of the first J. Pierpont Morgan was once pastor, will be torn down shortly, it is indicated. Judge Prest in Suffolk Probate Court has granted a petition of the trustees of the Robert Breck Brigham estate, which controls the property, to raze the building subject to 20 days' notice from possible remonstrants.

The old brick walls of the church remained practically intact when the theatre was constructed a half century ago. It is reported that the land will be used for a parking space, mainly for the Metropolitan.

Short Subjects

"The Perfect Tribute"

(M-G-M)

The story of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address is told here in such a poignant manner that it will probably be impossible for any audience to sit through it dry-eyed and unmoved. It has more drama and entertainment value packed into its two short reels than a vast majority of features released this past year.

Charles ("Chic") Sales portrays the famous president with a characterization extremely true and finely drawn, particularly during the last few feet of the film.

The picture tells how Lincoln came to write the famous speech and his reaction to its reception. His disappointment at the silence of the audience when he delivered it and the final realization of how deeply moved the people were are highlights. Many of Lincoln's well-known characteristics are woven into the story, especially during the last reel when he visits a wounded southern soldier in a prison hospital.

It is a safe wager that in practically every theatre this short plays it will take the play away from the feature unless the latter is of exceptional quality. Production Code Seal, No. 941. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Alibi Racket"

(M-G-M)

This, the latest of the "Crime Doesn't Pay" series, shows how police break down alibis of crooks and racketeers when they feel certain of their guilt. With a cast acting out various parts of a well-written story, the reel starts building audience interest at its inception and mounts to a strong climax. The story takes a racketeer suspected of murdering a gang leader and proceeds to break down his alibi. Police work on all angles of the case and how they finally break down the criminal is shown. This short subject should be a worthy addition to any program. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Thicker Than Water"

(Roach-M-G-M)

Laurel and Hardy return here with most of their old tricks, but they do have several new ones that should have audiences holding their sides. During the last few feet of the film they reach new comedy heights. With Hardy the hen-pecked husband of Daphne Pollard and Laurel their boarder, the way is opened for the two comics to do their stuff and they take every advantage of the opportunities offered. Miss Pollard and James Finlayson are capable foils for the two comedians and hold their own for the most part when competing with them for laughs. One of the funniest shorts Laurel and Hardy have turned out in some time and one to be recommended anywhere. Production Code Seal, No. 1061. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

Hollywood and Apollo May Be Taken by Loew

Move Aimed to End Long M. & S.-RKO Row

Loew's is expected to close with M. & S. either today or tomorrow for the purchase of the Apollo and Hollywood, two lower east side theatres, which have been the subject of legal controversy between M. & S. and RKO for the last year.

The surprise move is said to have been brought about by a product situation facing Loew's Ave. B, Commodore, Delancy and Canal. The four houses are reported to have been affected by the Apollo's elevation into the first run category under RKO

Detroit, July 29.—A petition asking re-hearing in his suit against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan will be filed this week in Federal court here, Jacob Schreiber said Saturday. Master in Chancery William Sayres last week made a recommendation that the complaint be dismissed because it did not involve interstate commerce and, therefore, the United States court was without jurisdiction.

In the suit, which was filed a year ago and which required several weeks for hearing, Schreiber charged that

Kansas Perks Up Following Dust, Drought

Recovery Is Real, Tax Figures Reveal

Kansas City, July 29. — Visitors from the east are amazed at the recovery of Kansas from the effects of the widely publicized drought and dust storms this spring and last summer.

That this recovery is actual and not the product of optimism is indicated by tax figures made public by the state tax commission which show that values suffered little decrease during the year ended March 1.

Total assessed valuation, both tangible and intangible property, as returned by the county clerks of 105 counties for the present year's taxes, amounted to $2,714,165,022. This compares with $2,716,104,723 a year ago. It had been feared that total assessed

Begin a Move To Probe Fox, 20th Century

Committee to Seek Aid Of Attorney General

Moves to enlist the aid of the New York Attorney General in a probe of stock transfer angles involved in the 20th Century - Fox merger are to be discussed today at a meeting in the office of Henry L. Sperling, attorney for a stockholders' committee.

L. T. Pidwell is chairman of the committee and Cromwell Gibbons is secretary. They are not generally known in the industry, although it was learned that Pidwell has been connected with banking institutions.

Sperling said yesterday he had asked for information from Fox Film Corp., 20th Century Pictures and United Artists on details of the plan. He says there is no hope in a proxy plan of opposition to the merger.

"A majority of the Fox stock has always been voted as a unit," he says. "Some of the members of the present committee surveyed the situation at operation. The Hollywood is a second run, but while not materially affecting Loew's, will go along in the deal.

Acquisition of the two independent units by Loew's will forestall future litigation between M. & S. and RKO, it is said. Last Tuesday RKO appealed from the recent state court order affirming an arbitration award in favor of M. & S. for $40,000 damages and specific performance of the long term contract. A settlement of the award will be made when RKO gives up the leases, it is said.

During the lengthy arbitration hearings in the M. & S. case, David Loew, vice-president of Loew's in charge of buying and booking, was on the stand for five consecutive days.

An announcement of the Loew-M. & S. deal is expected the latter part of the week.

the time of the reorganization in which five-sixths of the equity of the stockholders was transferred to holders of the obligations of the company. Prior to that time the ownership of the control was generally known, but this identity has now been lost.

"However, it is apparent that the control is still functioning as a single unit. According to newspaper reports the merger has already been effected without awaiting the formality of its approval at the meeting of stockholders called for Aug. 15. Zanuck and Schenck are already in their jobs at Fox.

Committee Is Pleased

"The committee is satisfied, however, that the certificate for the reclassification of the Fox stock when the merger is consummated opens a door for the minority. This certificate, according to the printed announcements sent to stockholders of record, states in Section (a) of the fourth paragraph: 'The said Class A common stock and the said Class B common stock shall share equally in any distribution to stockholders whether by way of dividends or otherwise." In the eighth paragraph the same proposed certificate states, regarding the exchange of stock: 'On the basis of half of a share of said preferred stock and a quarter of a share of said common stock for each share of said Class A common stock issued or unissued, and on the basis of one share of said preferred stock and half of a share of said common stock for each share of said Class B common stock.'

"The committee is interested in a legal interpretation of the 'equally' and 'otherwise' in this proposed certificate."

will devote all of her time to pictures with a flyer in radio perhaps added.

Hollywood, July 29.—Jesse L. Lasky was hesitant in answering reports on his probable affiliation with Mary Pickford, indicating a deal is "very hot."

However, he stated no deal has been signed and that he was seriously considering several proposals. He added he would most likely talk to Miss Pickford on her return to the coast. Lasky acknowledged receipt of a lucrative proposal from an English company, headed by independently financed sources, which he was giving serious consideration. He expressed a desire to remain in California, if possible.

Current pictures in work will keep Lasky on the Fox lot until Aug. 10. He then plans to take a vacation, probably going to London, after which he will announce his new affiliation.

of all pictures made at our studios. In addition to that, he will personally supervise the 20th Century pictures which are to be released by Fox Film Corp. just as he has personally supervised previously-made 20th Century product.

"In the production of the Fox pictures, Zanuck, of course, will have the assistance of several other associate producers, including Sol Wurtzel."

Zanuck Cuts Payrolls

Hollywood, July 29.—With a view toward engaging music department talent on a picture-to-picture basis, Darryl Zanuck slashed the 20th Century-Fox music department personnel to four over the week-end. The staff formerly totaled 11.

In the publicity department Harry Brand has also cut his staff by dropping Dick Mitchell, Bill Speyers and Eddie Mills. There is a possibility that Mills and Speyers will get new studio positions.

Changes also have been made in the story department. Scenario writers are to be left out of story conferences. Associate producers will have complete charge of their units. Once a story has been assigned to a producer he will be in control, although assignment of writers will be done by the story department headed by Julian Johnson.

Col. Jason Joy, who has been in charge of the scenario department, will handle censorship problems. He is now in Washington on a mission of this kind.

Selling Separately

Indianapolis, July 29.—The Fox office here, according to a bulletin issued by Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, has declared the 20th Century deal is separate and apart from original Fox contracts; that Fox salesmen will approach accounts on sales of 12 from 20th Century, but that failure to buy will have no bearing on delivery of the Will Rogers' and Shirley Temples. The A. T. O. I. says it has received complaints that exhibitors who bought Fox prior to the consolidation "were being approached by salesmen who gave you the impression that you would have to buy Twentieth Century in order to get the Rogers' and Temples previously bought by you."

Philadelphia IEPA Talking Zone Buys

South Philadelphia and Southwest Philadelphia.

A committee was appointed for each zone to line up exhibitors for zone meetings to be held in about 10 days. These meets will be followed by a general meeting at which plans for a buying corporation will be formulated.

The plan behind the corporation is to have the members as stockholders who will pay a percentage of film rentals for servicing charges.

Buying in the territory is well advanced now, possibly to the extent of 60 per cent, but Morris Wax, president of the I.E.P.A. and a prime mover in the combine, stated the movement was aimed for the next buying season, although the purchases remaining this year by members of the group would be conducted on a combine basis.

It was also stated that it would take approximately three weeks before the corporation could be launched.

group from Atlanta and Jacksonville exchange areas, equipment dealers and others will be present.

Robert Wilby, Oscar Lam and Sam Norisky, in charge of the program, say the business session will start Monday morning and will last as long as any member has anything he wants to say, with an open forum for airing grievances. Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, will be one of the speakers. Headquarters will be at the Carling Hotel.

After that there will be deep sea fishing, a banquet, golf, bathing, fish frys, a banquet and a dance. All the routine business will be left for the winter convention in Atlanta.

Our Gang in Musical

Hollywood, July 29.—For the first time since the Our Gang comedies were started 15 years ago Hal Roach will use the juvenile talent for a musical. It will be called "Our Gang Follies of 1935." The two-reeler will be placed in production when the Roach studio reopens Aug. 28.

Out Hollywood Way

Hollywood, July 29. — Oliver Hardy to fish in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia during shutdown of Hal Roach Studios. . . . Stan Laurel taking his parents, Arthur Jefferson and Mrs. Jefferson, on motor trip through California. . . . Sam Cohn, Roach publicity chief, going to Portland.

Eddie Cantor held three extra days for personal appearances at the Fox, San Francisco. . . . Margaret Lindsay joined Janet Gaynor and her mother on that Honolulu trip. . . . Gus Kahn opens new pool with party for 50.

Edwin Justus Mayer signed to a new 60-week contract by Paramount. . . . Phillip MacDonald also given new one-year pact. . . . Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon going to New York to play in "Hollywood Holiday" when they finish in "Beauty's Daughter," Fox.

Double congratulations being handed out on all sides: To Lewis Milestone, director, and Kendall Lee Glaenzer of New York, who were married in Tucson over the weekend; to Ernst Lubitsch and Vivian Gaye, who tied the knot in Phoenix.

Lucas & Jenkins Get Fox, Atlanta, Lease

Atlanta, July 29.—Lucas & Jenkins, Paramount partners, today closed a deal to take over the Fox here for five years on a straight annual rental of $30,000. Jesse Draper, local realtor, handled the negotiations.

The lease, effective Sept. 1, was secured from Mosque, Inc., the corporation which underwrote the payments by which the city of Atlanta recently acquired the theatre building. Under terms of the lease, a method of notification is provided whereby the city may obtain use of the auditorium as and when desired for any length of time for as short a period as one day, except Saturday. The lessor may cancel at the end of three years, but the new operators are bound for five years.

Lucas & Jenkins plan to reopen the house, dark for some time, early in the fall. The exact date has not been set. Stage attractions may be booked along with films.

Schreiber to Seek Rehearing of Case

the booking combine conspired with various local exchanges to prevent him from buying film for his Colonial.

Should the U. S. District Court here deny his request for a re-hearing, Schreiber said that he would appeal to a higher Federal court and, that should that court sustain the decision given, he would file a suit in state court charging violation of the Michigan laws.

He contends that the court misunderstood the method of supplying film to theatres and also overlooked the fact that contracts were sent to New York for final approval, which, he maintains, places the matter in interstate commerce and, therefore, under the jurisdiction of the Federal court.

Coast ITO Rescinds Zoning Notification

Los Angeles, July 29.—The I. T. O. at a general meeting today rescinded a letter sent to all exchanges last week declaring adherence to the Los Angeles clearance and zoning schedule. About 75 per cent of the membership attended. Action on the schedule was tabled until 48 hours pending further discussions.

Harry Vinnicoff, C. A. Ferry, Jack Berman, Max Sinker, Lou Bard and Earle Johnson were elected directors. Harry Popkin was named honorary director. The new board will meet later in the week.

Wanger Signing Fonda

Hollywood, July 29.—Henry Fonda will be a Walter Wanger star for the next five years at least. A contract stipulating this has been drawn up between the player and the producer.

Paramount has closed term contracts with two writers, Vincent Lawrence and Harold Lamb. Lawrence will prepare the script for "Invitation to Happiness," which Lewis Milestone will direct. Lamb, who collaborated on "The Crusades" will work with that director on "Samson and Delilah."

Ernest Cossart has had his option for a third picture taken up by Paramount.

Italy Talking Rental Tax to Aid Its Films

tax would be established amounting to 10 per cent of rental receipts on imported films, this tax, however, not to be less than 15,000 lire (about $1,200) per film; (4) an additional provision reported to be under consideration, would allow Italian producers to import for each Italian produced three foreign films free from the rental tax.

It is understood that the proposal to tax film rentals would have the double objective of reducing the amount of money sent out of Italy and of providing funds for promoting growth of a national film industry.

Estimates of what the rental tax would produce vary considerably, the report states. An official states that rentals on imported films amount to approximately 80,000,000 lire (about $6,400,000) a year, while an unofficial estimate places the total at 120,000,000 lire (about $9,600,000) a year.

It is impossible to state accurately to what extent the proposed tax would exceed the present "dubbing" tax, the report states, but several informed persons estimate that the distributors in general would have to pay at least twice what they have to pay under the present tax.

Swiss Seek Home Industry

WASHINGTON, July 29. — Efforts are being made in Switzerland to establish a domestic film industry, according to a report from the American Consulate-General in Zurich to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The chief factor in this movement has been the Swiss Tourist Office, which recently promoted a gathering of 60 interested groups to discuss the matter. At this meeting several points were brought out, chief among which was that roughly six or seven million Swiss francs are paid annually to foreign producers because Swiss production is negligible. Approximately 400 foreign features are imported.

The need of creating a film credit bank, financed by the government, similar to that in Germany, was emphasized.

The first practical result of this gathering was the formation of an organization a few days later to promote cooperation.

Record Warner Deed

SALEM, Mass., July 29.—A mortgage for $400,000 from the Mass. Amusement Corp. for two years at four and one-half per cent to Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., was recorded here today. Among the properties covered by the mortgage are the Ara, Waldorf, Comique and Warner theatres in Lynn and several houses in Lawrence.

Rob New Haven House

NEW HAVEN, July 29.—Thieves, using acetylene torches, cut through the safe of the Howard Theatre here last night and made off with over $1,000 in receipts. The manager's office, in which the safe was located, was also badly damaged.

St. Louis Shies Off Most Theatre Prizes

like, bank nights, screeno and similar arrangements have not caught on the St. Louis metropolitan area as in other parts of the country.

A checkup of the situation indicates but one small outlying local house operating a bank night and two other suburban theatres using a similar arrangement to catch extra cash customers.

Reports, however, are that a number of theatres in the smaller towns of eastern Missouri and southern Illinois either have started or are considering such plans for stimulating business.

Locally it is known that the more prominent exhibitors do not look with favor on bank nights, etc., feeling that if they should adopt these systems their competitors would quickly follow and in a few days any momentary advantage would be lost and the entire industry would plunge into the cut-throat competition tactics that prevail in Denver, Chicago and Kansas City.

Various giveaways are being used. A check of the 83 theatres in the metropolitan district, not including those in East St. Louis or other Illinois communities, revealed that no less than 33 houses are giving away premiums of some kind, ranging from hot ovenware, cups and saucers to dinner sets and silverware. A favorite system is for a house to start by giving one piece of china or glassware from a set. This requires the recipient to attend the theatre once a week for a number of weeks in order to complete the set.

It has been estimated that these giveaways approximate $1,750 each week.

Kalmus Deals Before Directors Tomorrow

would finance the newly formed Technicolor, Ltd., Kalmus said that the deal would not be set until the board ratified it. Korda's first color film will probably be "Elizabeth, the Queen" with Natalie Kalmus as color director, according to the story emanating from London on the day the Technicolor head sailed for New York.

"The various deals depends on the votes cast Wednesday by the Technicolor board," Kalmus asserted. He added he would issue a statement following the meeting.

On the same liner was Louis F. Blumenthal, who operates the French Casino here with Jack Shapiro. He was optimistic over the new show which will replace the Folies Bergere on Sept. 5. He said he had signed Enrico Bartaloso, an Italian tenor, for 10 years. He added he also had lined up Venita Kramer, who has appeared at the Palladium, London, for the past seven months, in addition to a number of new novelties and acts. The new company will sail from Havre on the Ile de France on July 21. Blumenthal said he spent most of his time in Paris and visited the exposition in Brussels.

Cut 6 Months' Loss

Heywood-Wakefield Co. reports a loss of $53,129 for the six months to June 30 as compared with a loss of $59,099 for the same period in 1934.

First Division to Take 18 from B.I.P.

Division had solved its problems and that the deal would start a new policy for the company.

"All of these films cost $300,000 or more," he said, "and were intended for first run release in Alliance theatres abroad. They are the forerunner of similar deals which we hope to close for American product to round out our program. We all realized that the days of the independent distributor were numbered on the old basis," he went on. "We have canceled some of our existing production contracts and intend to gear our organization accordingly."

John A. Curtis, one of those who brought March of Time and First Division together some months back, said the company was now on its feet with plenty of capital behind it and predicted it would "go places."

Louis Nizer, Dent and Anna May Wong also spoke. Miss Wong's quiet humor drew a laugh when she said British International made her first picture and also her first talking film.

"I have always been impressed by the modesty of the company," she said, "and now I hope you Americans will overcome that."

'Lady Tubbs' Big at Roxy

"Lady Tubbs" at the Roxy last week garnered $25,900. This week "The Arizonian" will approximate around $28,000. The Palace with "Men Without Names" last week was off with a gross of less than $7,000.

values would be $25,000,000 under last year's because of poor crops.

It is even likely, according to Clarence Smith, secretary of the commission, that after that body clears up controversial and unsettled assessments, valuations may reach last year's total or be even greater.

The value of intangibles increased by more than $2,000,000. They were $161,986,236 in 1935, and only $159,641,273 in the 1934 tax year. In other words, Kansans have $2,000,000 more in money, securities and similar wealth than in the preceding year.

One thing that has helped during the past year is the increased activity in oil leases in Western Kansas, according to Smith.

Simmons, member, is in California and returns next week, but the board will go ahead anyway, either with only two members—Cassil and Tom Edwards—or an alternate may be appointed.

Russians Say They May Buy From the U.S.

Declare Soviet May Take Raw Stock, Equipment

A Soviet market for American raw stock, studio and laboratory equipment and for an increasing number of American made films was suggested yesterday by Boris Z. Shumiatsky, president and general manager of the Soviet film industry, on the eve of his departure for London after more than two months in this country.

Shumiatsky, with Friedrich Ermler, president of [illegible] [illegible] M. P. Directors' [illegible] [illegible] Ass'n, and Vladimir [illegible], president of the faculty of Cinema Technique, State M. P. Institute, have just returned here from a six weeks' study of Hollywood production methods.

The party stated it had been most impressed by America's film laboratories and the high technical development of production. It was stated that the impression had been gained by the Soviet visitors that "art" was

Academy's Council Favors Use of 2,000-Foot Reels

Hollywood, July 30.—Adoption of 2,000-foot reels for use on all pictures released after Jan. 1 was recommended tonight by the Research Council of the Academy. The recommendation was the result of months of study and is intended to save the industry approximately $250,000 a year.

The research work on the problem was conducted by the council's reel length sub-committee consisting of J. M. Nickolous, superintendent of the M-G-M laboratory, chairman; A. J. Guerin, J. J. Milstein, Sidney J. Twining and Gordon S. Mitchell, manager of the council.

At present film is shipped to theatres from exchanges on 1,000-foot reels and is rewound onto 2,000-foot reels by theatres. In the splicing the tail end leader from reel No. 1 is cut and the head end leader from reel No. 2 is also clipped. This applies also to reels four, five and six and two frames are cut from each reel in the process. In the course of several of these operations considerable damage is done.

Under the recommended plan laboratory processing will be the same.

Kent Declares Fox Is 'Proud' Of Its Merger

Declaring that Fox Film Corp. is "very proud" of the arrangements for the proposed merger of the company with Twentieth Century Pictures, Sidney R. Kent, president of Fox, said yesterday that the company was "prepared to meet any stockholders' committee of any kind that wants to talk to us."

"We have nothing to hide in this deal," Kent said. "We are very proud of it and we are prepared to battle it through on its merits."

Referring to the stockholders' committee organized by L. T. If it had gone into bankruptcy there would not be any common stockholders. We are proud of what we have to defend. We have nothing to apologize for."

Meanwhile, Pidwell's committee met last night to discuss possible courses

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

FORMER Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher, who is now a member of the law firm of Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett, which is fighting for handsome reductions in the $3,221,328 fees and expenses sought by fifty-three petitioners, is probably the most unpopular figure among all and sundry tied into Paramount's affairs these days. In dignified language which makes his contention not one trifle less understandable, Thacher, by brief submitted to Federal Judge Coxe, asserts the petitioners did not do nearly so much for the late bankrupt as they would convey. . . .

Thacher, from this point on:

"In presenting their petitions for allowances the petitioners lay great stress upon the profitable operations of the debtor corporation during the pendency of proceedings in equity, bankruptcy and reorganization. Counsel for the trustees, in their petition, claim credit in behalf of the trustees for an increase of $15,557,000 in cash of Paramount and its subsidiaries during these proceedings up to June 22, 1935. They emphasize a loss shown in 1932 of $19,945,569 as compared with profits exceeding $5,000,000 in 1933 and 1934 and $2,400,000 during the first quarter of 1935. These figures are estimates. . . . The increased market value of Paramount debentures and common stock during the administration of the estate is also emphasized." . . .

The trustees, then, claim their administration increased the company's cash by $15,557,000. Thacher asserts they failed to explain that cash settlements, in accordance with the reorganization plan, including expenses of administration and the reorganization itself, totaled $8,202,000 and, therefore, properly should be deducted from the $15,557,000 to a more true total of $7,355,000. He draws the conclusion with which you may or may not agree that the "company's cash position has not been improved by administration and reorganization except for cash retained as a result of non-payment of accruing obligations during administration (which is largely offset by the issuance of new securities) and from the proceeds of the sale of the new second preferred stock." . . .

Economic forces beyond the control of trustees and their counsel resulted in the enhancement of values in Paramount securities, Thacher continues. Therefore, he concludes: "It is quite out of the question" to credit the trustees for that rise in the values. Proceeding further along this tack is another excerpt from the brief:

"We have had prepared and will submit upon the hearing a comparative tabulation from reliable sources showing the values of securities of leading motion picture companies at the dates upon which the trustees in their petition have compared the value of the securities of Paramount to show the increase in such value during the period of administration. The following results are significantly relevant to the contention that the various counsel in this proceeding were responsible for the present financial condition of Paramount:

"The security values of Loew's, Inc., during the same period increased $46,000,000; Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corp., a subsidiary of Loew's, increased $1,447,000; Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, a small chain of theatres, increased $5,800,000; Radio-Keith-Orpheum, one of the larger companies still in bankruptcy, increased $4,380,000; Columbia Pictures Corp., a very small producing company, increased $9,800,000; Warner Brothers Pictures increased $27,400,000.

"The increased value of Paramount's securities was $31,378,000."

Thacher's job, naturally, is to see reorganized Paramount pay out as little as it can, just as it is the ambition of the fifty-three petitioners to get as much of what they have asked for as they can wangle. Who is correct is something this department not only does not know, but does not care about especially. It found the latter day picture in the Paramount muddle of interest. That's why you get it this morning. . . .

Luise Rainer, about to demonstrate again the Cinderella-like aspects of this business by threatening to advance herself into stardom on the strength of one picture, "Escapade," is being tested for the role of Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld." Metro would produce. This Viennese girl, whose name the American public cannot even pronounce correctly, got a break when Leo and Myrna Loy developed salary trouble. Rainer substituted for Loy and Metro got a new shining light. Bergner-like in her histrionic tricks and demeanor and Colbert-like in her physical appearance, Miss Rainer is utterly charming and refreshing in "Escapade," a second look the other night convinced anew. Among other condents of delight, she does a lady-like drunk, champagne-induced, that is one of the most appealing and amusing bits of play-acting to flash across this spectator's horizon in some time. . . .

"Practically the entire Paramount publicity department revolted last week and threatened to quit their jobs, being dissatisfied with the way the department is being conducted. They are not alone, for many of the big Paramount stars have voiced their dissatisfaction and refuse to cooperate with the publicity department."

This appeared in the Hollywood column of one of the New York tabloids and becomes proper material for the X-ray. Emanating from the typewriter of the scrivener who has been explaining to the public whose business it is not how production tricks are worked, the comment runs from Hollywood to New York to Detroit. Because a Paramount theatre partner there insisted and succeeded in having the column pulled from the Free Press in the Motor City, the evidence seems to point to a campaign of retaliation leveled at the studio publicity head and his boss in New York. . . .

What the columnist may not know is that the studio publicist he is trying to castigate made effort through New York to persuade Detroit to lay off on the theory, which we think correct, that this business, or any integral part of it, has no right to attempt to foist a censorship on newspapers when it fights a censorship of its own screens. There are ways of talking out a problem such as this around a table or across a couple of drinks, using persuasion rather than threat. At any rate, the chatter writer is holding the publicity man responsible in Hollywood for what took place in Detroit and that mixes him up sadly and unfairly on his geography and his tactics. Aside from that, who among the public care whether the Paramount or any other publicity department is pinpricked by the urgings of revolt. Their interest, obviously, is in stars and their peccadilloes, not in press agents.

Kent Declares Fox Is 'Proud' Of Its Merger

of action open to the stockholders. A spokesman for the committee said that there was a possibility that an application might be made by the group for an injunction to restrain officers and directors of Fox from carrying out the merger, or of petitioning the Attorney General of New York State to apply for the injunction. Other courses of litigation were also discussed, it was said. The committee, in addition, is considering the employment of accountants to study the terms of the proposed merger and its effects on stockholders. The latter step suggests the possibility of an action to recover for alleged damages.

Little could be learned of Pidwell other than that he is a former officer of one of the large trust companies located here. Denial was made, however, that he was acting on behalf of his former employers. His interests were said to be "merely those of a Fox stockholder and others similarly situated."

Para. Fees Again Cited in Congress in real estate reorganizations, Congressman Sabath of Illinois today introduced a bill providing for the designation by the President of a Federal conservator.

Under the bill, any plan of reorganization of a real estate corporation could not be confirmed by the court until it had been approved by the conservator.

Reporting to the House on his investigation, Sabath called attention to the Paramount reorganization resulting in claims for some $3,200,000 for expenses of attorneys, committees, etc., and read a list of the claims.

"This is a sample of what these committees, depositaries, attorneys and banks are doing to these unfortunate bondholders and property holders," he said. "These charges usually run from five to eight and ten per cent of the par amount of bonds, notwithstanding that many of these bonds have only brought five to six cents on the dollar."

Krueger Goes to Coast

St. Louis, July 30.—Carl Krueger, for the past nine months connected with the F. & M. publicity department, has left for the coast. Before joining F. & M. he was special representative on Max Reinhardt's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and also handled Olsen & Johnson.

Academy's Council Favors Use of 2,000-Foot Reels

Raw stock will be delivered to cameras in 1,000-foot rolls. Sound recording will not be disturbed and editing will be facilitated, it is claimed, by eliminating the need of finding suitable changeover points. It is figured this will save producers approximately $138,000 a year.

The Research Council conducted a survey of theatre equipment throughout the world with the aid of the M.P.P.D.A. and found that 2,000-foot reels can be used practically everywhere, except in Spain, Argentina and Puerto Rico. Some projectors in Argentina cannot handle the larger reels and postal laws prevent shipment of the 2,000-foot size in Spain and Puerto Rico.

Present reels are approximately 10 inches in diameter. The new standard reel suggested will be 15½ inches in diameter, and equipment dealers have indicated that the cost of manufacture will not be double the present size.

Some changes will be necessary in exchanges. Film will be shipped to exchanges in rolls of 1,000 feet and will be spliced there for shipment on reels to theatres. Vault spaces will have to be enlarged and gear ratios on winding machines will have to be changed from 4 to 1 to 2¾ to 1, in order to prevent fatigue among employes. Shipping cases will have to be larger.

Shorts and newsreels will continue on the present 1,000-foot reels.

appear before the New York arbitration board for a hearing of the case.

United Artists refuses to cancel the picture and is demanding $60 as the rental fee. Geller states that because of the Polish and Italian element it would be impossible for him to show the picture.

Geller claims that under an announcement made some months ago by the Hays office, an exhibitor does not have to play a picture if a particular community takes offense.

FitzPatrick to Add Film Made in Peru

Increasing his program to three features, James A. FitzPatrick plans to produce a special film in Peru this winter. He has completed the exteriors for "David Livingstone," his first, and is trying to sign Clive Brook for the name part. He is also cutting, editing and recording the tentatively titled "Oriental Paradise," an all Technicolor picture, which was made in Japan under supervision of Mrs. FitzPatrick.

The story for the Peru picture has already been completed. Nat Shilkret, who has prepared several compositions, including a jungle symphony for "David Livingstone," arrives from the coast around Aug. 10. Cameron Rogers is writing the dialogue. Release is expected some time in December.

British Exhibitors Will Vote on Quota

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, July 20.—Richard Dooner, president of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n., disclosed at a meeting of the Manchester branch that the general council planned to take a referendum of exhibitor opinion in regard to amendment of the quota provisions of the Films Act.

Individual opinions thus obtained, plus the official resolutions of branch meetings, would be used, he said, in shaping a policy for suggestion to the Board of Trade.

The last exhibitors' referendum in this country, in 1926, resulted in a large majority against the introduction of the quota principle, which nevertheless shortly afterwards became the law of the land.

Boston, July 30.—Another premium scheme has made its debut in the film district. It is Movie Sweepstakes, Inc. The New England franchise is being handled by George Jeffery, formerly associated with First Division on the March of Time.

Heins Issues Denial

The following wire was received yesterday from Elmore D. Heins of the National Theatre Corp., Roanoke, Va.:

"Your article of July 26 relative to bank nights is incorrect. We have had bank night eight consecutive Wednesdays, giving $100 away in four theatres, and it is without doubt the biggest box-office we have ever experienced. Nothing like it. At least 15 other exhibitors have signed for bank night in this territory and many others are ready to follow suit. It's a real business-getter and besides we give a Ford away every two weeks. Mr. Brient (Elmer H. Brient, secretary of the Virginia M. P. T. O.) may be correct about many showmen regarding bank night and Ford Nights as demoralizing, but those who have tried it find that it is like a sinner who has gotten religion, a box-office revival."

Under a Richmond date line, Motion Picture Daily said last Friday giveaways were practically non-existent in Virginia.

frequently sacrificed to production speed in Hollywood. However, Shumiatsky, through an interpreter, said that American technical equipment and technicians would probably be introduced to the Russian film industry in an effort to cut down the present average working schedule of eight months, required for the production of a feature there. Walt Disney's cartoons also came in for unstinted praise from the party.

Shumiatsky said that he had opened negotiations for exhibition in the Soviet Union of a number of American features and also hoped to close arrangements whereby American production companies would go to the Soviet for locales and that production units from that country would come here for the same purpose. He said that in addition to the technical equipment and raw stock which had interested the party while here, color processes now in use in Hollywood had also held its attention. Soviet inventors are endeavoring to develop a color process of their own, Shumiatsky said, but indicated that a patent interchange would probably be involved before it is placed in use.

The Soviet party departs today on the Normandie and will spend two weeks each at British and French studios before returning to Moscow.

Quip of the Day

Editor, Motion Picture Daily:

"Mox Shabbus' Brays Are Balmy" (paraphrasing that Scottish air which all Irish tenors sing but never breathe).

Mox's recent ranting sound like the gibberish of a pushover exhibtor who has just bought the product of five companies and has given each of them 18 Sunday dates.

A significant commentary on Mr. Shabbus' mental processes is the report of his former roommate in a California asylum that Mox pickets his own theatre with a sign which reads:

"Nix on Sharing Agreements—Does General Motors Sell Percentage?"
"Metramount's Pictures Are Unfair to My Theatre"
"Hollywood Declared Unconstitutional by the Supreme Court"
"Supreme Court Declared Unconstitutional by Hollywood"

The decision is up to Laemmle.

Expect K. C. Group Insurance to Start

Kansas City, July 26.—The group insurance plan under which K.M.T.A. members will be able to save from 25 to 35 per cent, is expected to be put in operation in the next three or four weeks.

Being worked out by Finton Jones of Travelers, the plan was discussed at the recent K.M.T.A. convention and approved, providing enough distributors indicated their interest.

To date approximately 30 exhibitors have indicated this interest.

If as many as 50 indicate they would like to participate, exhibitors will be able at the outset to save from 25 per cent up on their insurance.

In some cases exhibitors at present are unable to get certain lines of insurance coverage—in some burglary; in others liability, etc. They will be able to secure the coverage under the plan proposed here. Exhibitors need not place all lines through the pool. Policies will be individual, but inspection service will be uniform.

Latino Americano will use the studio for its own productions and rent it to other producers. Much equipment is to be obtained in the United States.

Lincoln Appeals in Augusta Paper Suit

LINCOLN, July 30.—In the case of Augusta Paper against Lincoln Theatre Corp., in which Mrs. Paper was given a judgment of $11,754, the defendants have filed a motion in District Court here for a new trial. Mrs. Paper sued on an assignment of a claim from Nick Paper. The suit grew out of a contract made between Paper and the theatre corporation. The court held that the Lincoln Theatre Corp. had not fulfilled the contract.

In the motion for a new trial attorneys for the defendant say that the contract sued upon is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable. The defendants also claim that the plaintiff was not the assignee of the claim sought and not the owner of any equitable interest in it.

Le Roy Suit Settled

CINCINNATI, July 30.—The suit of Hal Le Roy against his father, in progress in Common Pleas Court here last week, was settled out of court, immediately following which the dancer and his wife, the former Ruth Dodd, returned to New York.

Looking 'Em Over

"Dante's Inferno"

(Wurtzel-Fox)

Sol Wurtzel set out to produce an eye-filling spectacle and he succeeded. He also set out to pack an extraordinary number of thrills into one picture. In this, he also succeeded. Whether, in doing this, he crowded out some of the human elements of his drama, or interrupted his story, is an academic point that only critics argue about. The box-office will decide between pictorial and story values.

Using the menace of earthly destruction or future damnation for the building of dramatic effects is a favorite device of moralists. How many people are willing to pay to see it presented in striking pictorial form is a question time will answer.

The title refers to an amusement park concession run by Henry B. Walthall. It's a modern story, except for a sequence devoted to the inferno described by Dante. These are like a series of magnificent paintings done in tints. The camera work and the settings are extraordinary, but they add nothing to the story.

Basically, the story is of Spencer Tracy's ruthless struggle for power, once he has been befriended by Walthall, a kindly soul to whom a good deed gives more pleasure than the pursuit of wealth. Tracy takes Walthall's concession in hand, marries his niece (Claire Trevor), and, as the years pass, concentrates his ambition on making a place for his son.

He builds a new "Inferno." A man whom he has pushed aside commits suicide in its fantastic depths. Eventually the structure collapses, engulfing Walthall. It's a magnificent camera job. Walthall is reading a copy of "Dante's Inferno" to Tracy when the hell sequence is introduced. Miss Trevor saves Tracy from conviction for bribing a building inspector, but leaves him.

His pride is jolted, but he goes to sea in a gambling and night club ship with a drunken crew. Alan Dinehart smuggles the son aboard, thinking it will please Tracy. The ship catches fire.

Alone, in the steam-filled, flame-swept boiler room, deserted by its crew, Tracy keeps the engines in reverse until the ship grounds. This is the big punch of the picture. All the symbolism of the preceding sequences becomes manifest. Tracy's soul is transformed, his romance renewed.

Harry Lachman directed. Rudolph Mate did a splendid camera job. The story was by Philip Klein and Robert Yost.

Production Code Seal No. 683. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"Dante's Inferno" reopens the Rivoli this morning.

"Smoky Smith"

(Supreme Pictures)

Western fans and action lovers will revel in the herculean tasks performed by Bob Steele in this western. His accuracy with a six gun—he fired 26 shots in the picture by actual count and hit his target every time—his horsemanship and, above all, his ability with his fists will amaze.

Steele is traveling with his mother and father in search of a new home when attacked by marauding outlaws. His parents are killed and robbed and he is left to wander and die in the desert. Among the things stolen was a ring of his father's, and when he is rescued he sets out to find the killers. After being deputized by the sheriff he stumbles on the hide-out of the killers and meets Mary Kornman. Romance blossoms, but Steele sticks to his task and after clever sleuthing he uncovers his father's killer and gets his revenge. In the meantime he discovers a large band of outlaws are preparing to wipe out the town he lives in. Organizing the townspeople, Steele meets the bandits in a pitched battle and captures those that aren't killed. The way is then open for the culmination of his romance with Miss Kornman.

Others in the cast who perform well are George Hayes, Earl Richman, Don Dwyre and Horace Carpenter. Robert N. Bradbury directed for speed and action. The photography by Will Nobles is good.

Where westerns are liked this should more than satisfy. Production Code Seal No. 933. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Captured in Chinatown"

(Stage & Screen)

This independent effort gets off to a very slow start and picks up little momentum as it works its way to a climax. Several sequences are interesting and full of action but on the whole the film is quite dull. More than half of the characters are Chinese and speak their native tongue, and, as a consequence, the action in the first reel or so is meaningless except to those understanding the jargon.

Drop Theatre Signs From Bay State Bill

BOSTON, July 30.—The so-called billboard bill, heavily opposed by exhibitors and distributors since its introduction into the legislature, has been reframed so that it will not affect theatres unless a house rents or leases a sign to outside interests for advertising purposes. In this case, a state license fee of $100 would be required. The bill is still being hotly debated in the legislature which called another public hearing Monday.

Scranton Asks for Open Sunday Ballot

SCRANTON, July 30.—The City Council, by unanimous vote, has requested the Lackawanna County Commissioners to place the open Sunday question on the ballot for the coming November election.

EASTMAN Super X Film was originally designed for rephotographing projected backgrounds. Yet because of its great speed it also won fame as the negative extraordinary for tough newsreel shots. And now it is being widely used for regular feature production, as well. PANCHROMATIC NEGATIVE

St. Louis Negroes Row Over Operators

St. Louis, July 30.—A new kind of labor controversy has developed here. Led by the Urban League, a negro organization, negroes are boycotting three theatres patronized by them and also have picketed en masse because white projectionists are employed.

The theatres are the Star, Strand and Criterion. The Central Trades and Labor Union is studying the problem.

In the meantime the theatres have notified their white operators that they are no longer needed.

Copyright Publicity Sought in Wisconsin

Madison, July 30.—The Graass bill to place operation of music copyright agencies under a statewide system, has been introduced in the state legislature. The measure would have the Secretary of State collect from any organization which charges a fee for the use of its copyrighted music an annual license equal to five per cent of its gross receipts in Wisconsin.

The bill would require licensed organizations to file a schedule of charges and the basis for them, salaries and names of officers, a copy of agreements with original composers, a list of copyrighted music pieces and other information.

It was drafted at the request of the American Society for the Advancement of Public Music, a Milwaukee civic, non-profit organization, and is aimed at ASCAP.

Indianans Urged to Seek Theatre Limit

Indianapolis, July 30.—Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana is recommending to its members that they seek passage of ordinances in their towns limiting the number of theatres to certain percentages of population.

The action is the result of an item appearing in Motion Picture Daily which told that Sturgeon Bay, Wis., had adopted an ordinance limiting theatres to one for each 5,000 of population.

Rosenblatt Resigns From Buying Job

Leon Rosenblatt, New Jersey and Staten Island circuit operator, has resigned as chairman of the New Jersey Cooperative Buying Committee which was formed some time ago for the pooling of independent houses across the Hudson. He will continue on the committee, but without title. No successor has been appointed.

Bogus Bills Hit N. H.

New Haven, July 30.—Counterfeit one dollar bills have made four appearances in the past week at the Paramount. All were recognized by Marie Hagener, cashier, and turned over to Secret Service men.

George Reising, assistant manager, has had trouble with women presenting them for admittance. Counterfeit or no, the customers have protested violently against losing their bills, and want either Reising personally or the government to reimburse them.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Without Regret"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, July 30.—A sophisticated drama of tangled romance, this, when properly edited, should result in satisfactory entertainment for specialized audiences. Basically it is serious in character with comedy contrast filling a meager function. Yet certain situations, the intent of which are evidently to heighten dramatic tenseness, were so obvious that they moved a preview audience to levity rather than impressing it with the desired objective.

In content the story concerns the marital experiences of Elissa Landi. To escape the threatened ravages of Chinese banditry she marries Soldier of Fortune Kent Taylor. He is reported dead and years later Miss Landi is the wife of Paul Cavanagh, an eminent British surgeon. As resultant publicity makes Miss Landi a public figure it is discovered that Taylor is still alive. Simultaneously, Frances Drake, Taylor's erstwhile paramour, starts to blackmail Miss Landi. As the situation is complicated, Kent gets wind of what is going on and kills Miss Drake, making it appear that either Cavanagh or Miss Landi is guilty. In the climax, as the pair is about to be arrested, Taylor, knowing that he has but a few months to live, confesses.

The story content, which makes available wide showmanship latitude, seems to be the best selling medium.

Miss Landi, Cavanagh, Taylor and Miss Drake are convincing in their roles. Harold Young's direction from the stage play "Interference," with the screen play by Doris Anderson and Charles Brackett, strives to retain the full, emotion-stirring sock. A drive to interest adult feminine patronage should keynote the publicity campaign. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "A."

"Pursuit"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, July 30.—This is just one hilarious, breath-taking chase from start to finish through unexpected situations with no letdowns except for plenty of laughs.

Sally Eilers, private girl detective, hires down-and-out Chester Morris to fly child Scotty Beckett across the Mexican border to his mother, Dorothy Peterson, who stands to lose the child through no fault of her own to her dead husband's family. Morris suspects a kidnapping and, while he and Miss Eilers argue, little Beckett pushes the throttle and the plane careens over the field with Morris clinging on the fuselage. The ship is wrecked as the cops arrive and chases follow with some of the wildest driving seen on any screen. There is plenty of distrust between Morris and Miss Eilers with double-crossing on all sides for the huge reward and lots of threatened death and disaster.

Young Beckett ranks among the best child actors with this performance and Henry Travers gets howls of delight as a dim-wit hick who steals the child. Miss Eilers and Morris give good accounts, as do C. Henry Gordon, Granville Bates, Minor Watson, Harold Huber, Dewey Robinson and Erville Alderson. Edwin Marin directed for speed and thrills. Lucien Hubbard and Ned Marin produced from an excellent screen play by Wells Root from the story by Lawrence Blochman.

Bill this one for tense chases and clever comedy. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

RKO Set in West Indies

RKO has closed a deal for distribution of its entire 1935-36 lineup, including shorts, by the British Colonial Film Exchange, Ltd., for distribution in Trinidad, Barbados, Demerara and surrounding islands in the British West Indies.

W. P. Humphreys of British Colonial came to New York to agree on terms at the home office.

Hold Show at Capitol

For the first time in the history of the Capitol a stage show will be held over Friday without continuing the film attraction. Lou Holtz and Sophie Tucker head the stage bill, while "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" will replace "The Murder Man."

Delay March of Time

March of Time is to be delayed to the middle of the month by RKO. The first issue under RKO distribution will be Aug. 16, instead of on the 2nd of the month, as in the past, according to Jules Levy. This will maintain a balance in the short subject schedule, Levy says.

Walter Green Gaining

Walter Green, Ross Federal Service executive, is recuperating from an emergency appendicitis operation at the Park West Hospital. His condition yesterday was reported as fine and he is expected to be discharged in about 10 days.

Short Subjects

"Basketball Technique"

(M-G-M)

This one-reeler shows the basketball stars of Fordham, Iowa State and U. C. L. A. in their trick plays and uses these stars to illustrate the fine points of the game. This short should have particular appeal in the mid-west where the game is so popular, but it will please anywhere. Pete Smith does the off-screen dialogue in his usual competent—and at times humorous—manner. Recommended. Production Code Seal. No. 1011. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Historic Mexico City"

(FitzPatrick-M-G-M)

This Traveltalk covers ground that has been gone over many times before, but this time it makes use of Technicolor and the results in many cases are breathtaking. The native music, played by the Mexico City Police Orchestra, accompanies the pictorial scenes and is a great asset to the film. Where this type picture is liked this one should do very well. Production Code Seal, No. 0420. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

'Wings Over Mt. Everest'

(Educational)

This two-reel short is a pictorial record of flight over Mt. Everest by a group of British aviators and explorers. It is packed with scenes of panoramic beauty, shots of the Himalayan mountains taken from a height of 30,000 feet. The forbidden range is seen probably as never before and its austerity is caught by the camera in all its snowy emptiness.

The reel opens with brief views of the preparations, then switches to the flight itself and closes with the return. Lowell Thomas does the narration.

Where reels of this type are liked this one should more than click. It should please anywhere, however, because of the scientific nature of the contents. Highly recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"The Foxy Fox"

(Educational)

This Terry-Toon is a burlesque of fox hunting and the general hub-bub that accompanies this sport. In the cartoon manner the preparations and hunting are done with comic relief and, as cartoons go, should be well received. The plot concerns a race between a fox that prepares for the hunt like a boxer and the hunt which ends up with the fox beating the hounds across the finish line, after which he retires to prepare for another race. Production Code Seal No. 0530. Running time, 6 mins. "G."

"Dog Days"

(Educational)

This short should appeal to the great and varied audience who are dog lovers. Wire-haired and fox terriers are shown going through their paces and the accompanying dialogue speaks of their history and breeding. their uses and accomplishments. Many fine specimens including international champions are shown. Production Code Seal No. 0557. Running time, 6½ min. "G."

New Hammond Sound Device Nearly Ready

Automatic Variation of Tone Is Objective

By M. B. ANGIER

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 31.—Automatic variation of sound to make it nearer perfection than anything yet achieved is the aim of a device upon which John Hays Hammond, Jr., is working at his estate here. He calls it a "Dynamic Multiplier System."

When it has reached its ultimate development, he hopes, it will be a small device that can be attached to a reproducer. For exhibitors using small sized units the price may not be more than $15.

First units to be put out, however, will be for the more expensive machines.

Hammond has been working on the device for about seven years. He has 18 patents and expects the total to reach 30. He aims to apply the improvement to both recording and re-

Detroit First Runs To Increase Scales

DETROIT, July 31.—Local first runs are expected to boost their admission prices approximately 50 per cent on or about Sept. 15. Definite announcement of the raise has not been made, but MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned today that plans are under way to put the increase into effect as soon as the warm weather is over.

This would mean that the Michigan, Fox, United Artists, now charging 55 cents, would go to 75 cents, while the State, Adams and Fisher would raise from 40 cents top to 55 cents.

A move is on foot among subsequent runs to hike their prices when the big houses boost theirs.

Say Bank Is Asking $80,000 House Rent

City Bank Farmers Trust Co. is understood asking an annual rental of $80,000 for the new theatre which will replace the Criterion and Loew's New York. Both Loew's and RKO have turned down offers for the new house. A syndicate headed by Sherman Krellberg, Joseph Plunkett and Myron Robinson is negotiating for the house. This group recently leased the Astor from the receivers and will reopen the house with "The Crusades" on a two-a-day policy on Aug. 21.

Independents Join Here To Fight Major Circuits

Form 72-Theatre Circuit; 60 Other Operators Study Project

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Initial moves by independents to buck Loew's, RKO and Warners in Greater New York took place yesterday at a meeting of the I.T.O.A. at the Astor when Milton C. Weisman, attorney for the unit, announced the formation of Independent Theatre Circuit, Inc.

Approximately 72 theatres signed up at the session and operators of more than 60 houses asked for additional time to consider the plan. Weisman estimated that exhibitors signing have pledged $100,000, in return for which stock in the new company will be given.

Under the pooling plan each theatre will receive an income for the next three years equal to the average year's earnings for the past two years. With the turning over of the properties are options by the newly formed company to take over the houses for an additional four years with a guaranteed income of four times the average earnings.

Where theatres have been losing money, the circuit will operate on a

Laemmle Again Denies Any Move To Sell His Control of Universal

Hollywood, July 31.—Revived reports that Carl Laemmle was about to sell control of Universal to "another major film company" today were again scotched when Laemmle declared he had turned down the most recent of five offers. Local reports credit the latter day bid to Warners acting through Charles R. Rogers, who vehemently denies his alleged role as "go-between" and insists he knows nothing about any such transaction.

On the other hand, Laemmle admits he had been approached again with "an offer of tempting millions," but that he rejected it emphatically. "I have been active in this business longer than any of my competitors and I admit being sentimental about it," he declared. It is understood Rogers was slated for an important production post if the deal was closed. Currently, he is a producer for Paramount.

Senators to Probe Into Bankruptcy of Paramount

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Paramount reorganization, yesterday discussed by Representative Sabath of Illinois in a speech in the House, today was spotlighted in the Senate with announcement by Senator McAdoo of California that the special committee investigating bankruptcies, of which he is chairman, will make a study of the matter in New York in December. While it has been generally expected that both House and Senate special committees would dig into the Paramount reorganization, definite plans had not heretofore been divulged.

Senator McAdoo will take his committee to Los Angeles in November for a continuance of studies of oil

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Revealing that approximately 40 applications for trade practice agreements are now pending, the Federal Trade Commission today made public an explanation of the manner in which it will classify the rules to be incorporated in voluntary codes. As in the past, the commission will classify such rules in two groups.

"The unfair trade practices which are embraced in Group 1 rules are considered to be unfair methods of competition within the decisions of the Federal Trade Commission and the courts, and appropriate proceedings in the public interest will be taken by the commission to prevent the use of such unlawful practices in or directly affecting interstate commerce," it was stated.

The Second Group

"The trade practices embraced in Group 2 rules do not, per se, constitute violations of law. They are considered by the industry either to be unethical, uneconomical or otherwise objectionable; or to be conducive to sound business methods which the industry desires to encourage and promote. Such rules, when they conform to the above specifications and are not violative of law, will be received by the commission, but the observance of said rules must depend upon and be accomplished through the cooperation of the members of the industry concerned, exercised in accordance with existing law. Where, however, such practices are used in such manner as to become unfair methods of competition in commerce or a violation of any law over which the commission has jurisdiction, appropriate proceedings will be instituted by the commission as in the case of violation of Group 1 rules."

three months' trial, during which time a special arbitration committee, which is to be set up, will decide whether to retain or drop the houses. Transfer of the properties is scheduled to take place within the next three weeks.

Officers and directors of Independent Theatre Circuit will be elected today, Weisman stated. Officers will be located in the same building where Weisman is situated.

Payments to exhibitors joining will be made on a monthly basis. The present management of individual theatres will remain intact, subject to removal by the board of directors, which will have the right to change operators.

Year End Goal 200 Houses

Weisman yesterday was offered the presidency of the new circuit at $1,000 a week, but turned it down. He stated he was a lawyer and could not devote the time required.

Sponsors of the plan hope to have 200 theatres signed up by the end of the year with an annual buying power of $3,500,000. Exhibitors lining up with the circuit must continue as members of the I.T.O.A., it was stated. The unit will act as guardian because of its manpower, Weisman said.

Among those who have already signed are Maurice Fleischman, John Benas, Maurice Brown, Bernard Barr, David Davis, Bernard Pear, Rudolph Sanders, Edmund Mantell and Louis Schiffman. Exhibitors studying the plan and who are expected to sign within the next few days include Harry Brandt, the Leff & Meyers circuit, Nelson & Renner, Jack Hattem and M. Strassberg.

Independent Theatre Circuit will not limit its operations to New York. Activities also will be extended to New Jersey.

Schiffman, Fleischman, Davis, Al Cooper and M. Travers were appointed as a special committee to begin work on details for taking over theatres.

Brandt Expansion Continues

Meanwhile Brandt is continuing expansion moves. He is building three 600-seat theatres in the Bronx and expects to open them for the 1936-37 season. The trio are being constructed at 170th St. and the Concourse, 167th St. and Sheridan Ave., and Burnside Ave., west of the Concourse. He has just taken over the Inwood, Inwood, L. I., from Morris Kutinsky, but will not assume operation until Sept. 1. Fox Metropolitan has turned back to him the Stratford, Brooklyn, which was closed a few days ago by Randforce. Brandt will reopen the Brooklyn house on Aug. 15. He will reopen the Clifton, Brooklyn, formerly the Pastime, today; the Park, formerly the Cosmopolitan, in Columbus Circle, next Tuesday, and the Colony, Jackson Heights, on Aug. 8.

Brandt is dickering for a number of other units to add to his circuit of 42 and expects to close several deals within the next week or so.

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—Twenty independents have formed Allied Exhibitors, Inc., as a buying combine to oppose United Theatres.

K. C. Men to Build 1,500-Seat Theatre

KANSAS CITY, July 31.—A new theatre at 63rd and Wyandotte Sts., rumored as long as six months ago, has been announced as a definite project.

Harry Jacobs and associates, under the name Jacobs Realty Co., have purchased the site. Plans call for a 1,500-seat house to cost $100,000.

Rumors several months ago were that Fox Midwest would operate. Harold S. Bradley, who arranged the sale to Jacobs, said that the owners had been approached by two or three operators regarding a lease, but no definite arrangements have been made.

The first suburban run Fox Plaza, the Fox Waldo and Washington, and W. D. Fulton's Southtown are the three houses closest to the new project.

John G. Robinson Dead

CINCINNATI, July 31.—John G. Robinson, 3rd, age 62, died here as a result of a chronic throat ailment. He was a onetime circus operator, but retired in 1916 to train animals for motion pictures. He was the second associate member of local Variety Club to die in the last week, the other having been George F. Schotte, who passed away last Friday.

Robinson is survived by his widow, a son and two daughters.

New German Concern To Aid Film Exports

WASHINGTON, July 31. — The Deutsche Filmexport G. m. b. H. has been established in Berlin in cooperation with the German Film Credit Bank, according to a report from Assistant Trade Commissioner Rolland Welch, in Berlin, to the U. S. Department of Commerce. The object of the new company is to increase exports of German films.

The company intends to expand business relations between German film producers and foreign distributors and to help by granting of credits the German producers, especially the smaller ones. The company's capital amounts to 100,000 marks.

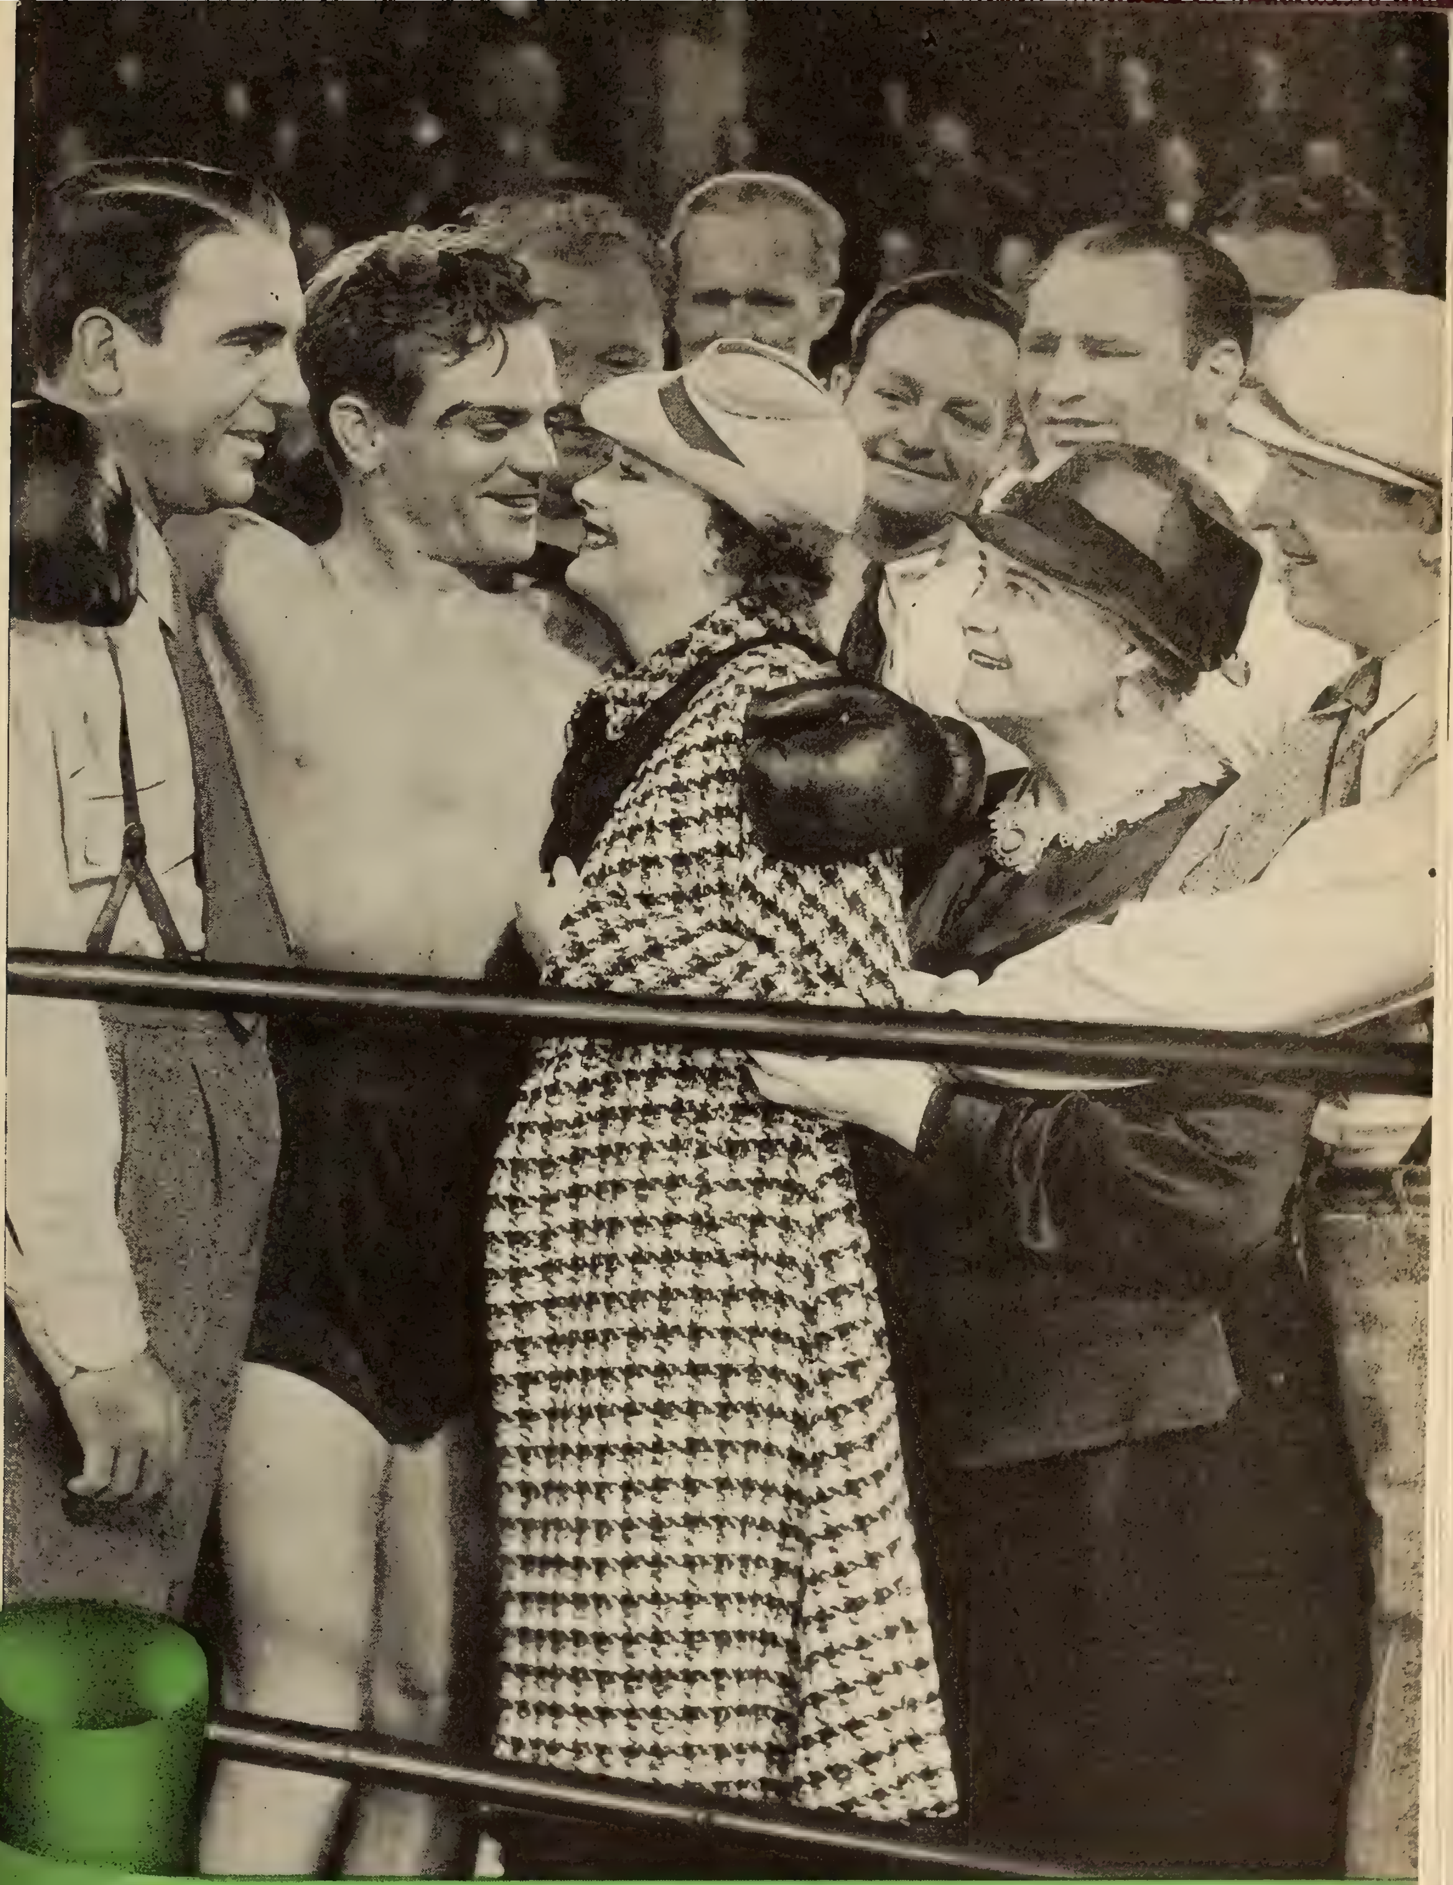
Founders and partners of the new company are the General Ass'n of Film Producers and Distributors and the National A'ssn of Film Institutions and Producers of Cultural Films.

The Federal Film Chamber, the Ministry of Propaganda and leading private banks are members of the board of Deutsche Filmexport.

According to recent reports, between 20 and 30 German films have been made available.

Cukor-Thalberg Deal

HOLLYWOOD, July 31.—Irving Thalberg today signed a contract whereby George Cukor will direct one picture a year for M-G-M, the arrangement having been made by agreement with David O. Selznick who recently signed the director on a long-term contract. Cukor's first will be "Romeo and Juliet."



THE PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Because it gives Jimmy "G Man" Cagney another chance to swap punches with his "Navy" pal Pat O'Brien . . . because it boasts those two hilarious fun-makers, Allen Jenkins and Frank McHugh . . . because it carries that lovely new-comer, Olivia de Havilland, further toward stardom's heights . . . and because it introduces the "grandest of all screen mothers," Mary Gordon . . . Warner Bros.' "THE IRISH IN US," directed by Lloyd Bacon, wins this week's screen honors by a knockout. A First National Picture. Released August 3rd.

French Start Move for New Films' Setup

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, July 15.—First steps toward the reorganization of the French industry have been taken with the formation of the Union des Distributors and the subsequent creation of the Comite du Film, the latter made up of producers, distributors and exhibitors. The only ones not in the new group are Pathe-Natan and Gaumont (GFFA).

Producers group themselves into an association with an organization committee which includes: Felix Gandera, Marcel Pagnol, Frogerais, P. J. de Venloo and Jean Corret. They will lay out a plan for the Union Syndicale des Producteurs de Films, and the committee will confer with the committees of the Union des Distributeurs and the Union des Chambres Syndicales Francaise des Theatres Cinematographiques (exhibitors' association), so that, if it is necessary, they may, together with other organizations, be a part of an official body to deal with the government.

It was agreed at a meeting of these groups that the Comite du Film board should include: Alexis Fougeret, Felix Gandera, Henri Klarsfeld, manager of the Paramount French branch; Georges Louran, manager of Films Sonores Tobis; Raymond Lussiez, president of the French Exhibitors' Ass'n.; Edmond Ratisbonne, P. J. de Venloo, producers and distributors.

All of the French branches of American companies are a part of the distributors' association. The old Chambre Syndicale Francaise de la Cinematographie has been left out of the new movement.

The first action of the Comite was to publish a standard contract, elaborated by the distributors' and exhibitors' associations, although the work had been started by the Chambre Syndicale.

A move was also made to limit low admission prices. Except in the summer, seats will no longer be less than three frances (20 cents) in first runs in the districts and provincial theatres, and two francs (about 16 cents) in subsequent runs. Film rentals also are to be studied.

The group has also started a fight against the Omnium des Spectacles, subsidiary of Pathe-Natan, which books full programs for 152 houses, among them 60 owned by Pathe-Natan and 91 owned by independents.

Looking toward the formation of an International Film Chamber, representatives of film organizations in 20 European countries have held a meeting in Munich and another is scheduled for Venice Aug. 21. The organization will be confined to Europe and will concern itself principally with quota problems.

Tax problems are still a live topic throughout France. In three months two or three French governments have promised reductions, but nothing has come of it. The latest agreement which, it is hoped, will be put into effect by edict during the Parliamentary recess, calls for a 20 or 25 per cent reduction in the state tax, and may take 25 per cent of the net receipts. Taxes on music halls, variety halls and other forms of entertainment may be cut 50 per cent.

Legitimate theatres pay only two per cent in state taxes.

Town councils will be permitted to reduce pauper taxes to five per cent. At present 10 per cent is paid. It is expected that the Municipal Council in Paris will grant this reduction.

Publication of the decree has been delayed by an amendment from Deputy Lafont, now Minister of Public Health, which provides that theatres showing certain quotas of French pictures should receive special reductions in taxes. This amendment is being opposed.

Looking 'Em Over

"After the Dance"

(Columbia)

Someone probably reminded Columbia that George Murphy was discovered in a Broadway smash musical and that he could really sing and dance. The result of that reminder appears to be this picture, but someone got sidetracked and the result is a mediocre, unpretentious effort whose only redeeming feature seems to be Murphy.

There are several scenes where he demonstrates the dance steps that elevated him to Broadway stardom and these are almost compensation enough for sitting through the entire film. Audiences will undoubtedly comment on his performance and particularly his dancing exhibition and so it would be well to play up this angle of the picture.

The story has Murphy arrested for manslaughter at the height of his career as a Broadway performer. Thelma Todd is implicated in the crime, but refuses to help Murphy so he is sent to the penitentiary. After a short time he escapes, however, and finally teams up with Nancy Carroll in another night club. Love blossoms between the two, but Miss Todd again enters to spoil everything. The end has Murphy going back to jail with Miss Carroll promising to wait for his release.

This should fill the bill on dual programs, but it might have trouble standing alone. Production Code Seal No. 1043. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"The Student's Romance"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, July 19.—From the operetta, "I Lost My Heart in Heidelberg," a costume musical in which the background is the German student life of legend. Musical numbers are bright and the story values are very fair. Production is not too highly finished in costume and other details. It is a program effort of medium quality.

Max Brandt, musician-student at Heidelberg in 1725, falls in love with a pretty girl without knowing that she is a princess. Veronika, landlord of Max's inn, pays his debts without his knowledge. Helene, the princess, believes that Max is living on the inn-keeper, and in a revulsion of feeling consents to a marriage of convenience. When she learns the truth she breaks away from the court and joins Max in a procession of singing students.

Grete Natzler and Patric Knowles are the leads and Carol Goodner puts up an excellent performance as Veronika. Running time, 78 minutes. "G." ALLAN

Mass. Senate Kills Tax

BOSTON, July 31.—A proposal for a 10 per cent surtax on corporate and individual taxes in Massachusetts has been killed in the Senate by 20 to 12 after a brief debate. The measure had previously passed the House. Governor Curley stated that unless the bill is reconsidered, he will send a demand message and keep the Legislature in session.

Short Subjects

"Armies of the World"

(Fox)

This latest member of the Adventures of the News Cameraman series is far below the average set by preceding members in the series. It lacks the thrills and entertainment packed in the other reels of this group. The basic idea is good, particularly at this time, but the reel unfolds and discloses merely a series of shots of soldiers of practically every country of the world parading. It appears that most of these scenes were clipped from old newsreels and are old stuff to audiences. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Radio Rascals"

(Educational)

Evidently aimed at cashing in on the present popularity of amateur hours in theatres and on the air, this short suffers from comparison with others of the type. Austin Fairman, Elmira Sessions, the Mountain Melodeers and Ruth Denning contribute bits toward the film's entertainment but those five colored youngsters, the Cabin Kids, carry the film. Production Code Seal, No. 0475. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Dame Shy"

(Educational)

Sailors on shore leave make up the humdrum plot. Tom Patricola and Buster West starting from the brig of a battleship go through an assortment of slapstick situations and entanglements with superior officers, taking their girls and windup after much of the Patricola type of dancing by being ejected from a cafe and so back to the brig. Fairly entertaining. No code seal. Running time, 15 mins. "G."

New Hammond Sound Device Nearly Ready

producing. In his experiments Hammond has been aided by RCA and RKO engineers. Ellison Purington has been the engineer in charge. Because of his close affiliation with RCA and RKO Hammond indicated that he does not intend to form a new company to market the system. It has already proved itself, he says, in the Bell Laboratories, in Madison Square Garden, in film theatres, and has been demonstrated to musical celebrities.

Two elements are contained in his invention, Hammond revealed. The first automatically changes the amplifier so that it varies according to the intensity of the recording. The second changes the filtration, so that when high frequencies occur in the recording, the system automatically allows these to pass through. When there are no high frequencies, the system stops of its own accord all parasitical noises from being heard.

"The first element gives life," Hammond pointed out. "The second gives variety to tone color."

Chapel Is Testing Ground

He demonstrated the system in the stone chapel of his place on the North Shore, using records. Instead of performing like the usual amplifier system that amplifies at the same maximum, no matter what the subject matter, this system dropped to pianissimo when the music softened and blasted forth, crystal clear, when the music arose to fortissimo. Then Hammond switched out his device. The usual scratching and static background was evident. The device had not only automatically adjusted the amplification to the sound itself, but it had eliminated most of the surface noise.

"As you know, I have always hated canned music and canned voice," wrote Ethel Barrymore to Hammond after a similar demonstration. "Since hearing your 'Dynamic Amplifier,' I am forced to entirely readjust myself. And do let me tell what a marvelous thing you have—what it will mean to the speaking film seems to me incalculable."

"All that I can say now is this," wrote Ramon Novarro. "You not only have reproduced nature — you have improved it."

Claims It Is Different

The main point of his invention, Hammond explains, is that it gets away from present systems in which amplification is linear—at a constant degree, that is. Instead of being held within certain limits, the "Dynamic Multiplier" contracts and expands to automatically give actual ranges of sound that occur in life.

The new sound system will be of particular value in recording, also, its originator states. For one thing, it may be used so that the sound apparatus will pick up only noises on the immediate set. If an aeroplane should happen to pass by at a distance, this would not affect the film. Furthermore, the device would discriminate among sounds of certain low intensities. The value of these possibilities is self evident.

It could also be used in editing film and in renovating old film. As the film is being screened a new sound track may be made. The original track may be modified or increased at any point. Any mistakes in the original may be corrected in the second print. By this method, re-editing is simple. Films will be insured of longer life, in addition.

Musical films will be especially benefited by the "Dynamic Multiplier," Hammond believes. It will also aid the phonograph industry, he is convinced. Because it would emphasize such phenomena as fading, he is skeptical of its value to radio, however.

"The system incorporates a listening circuit that listens to the record as the men in an orchestra watch the leader," Hammond summed up. "When the signal comes, it automatically energizes or softens, as the case may be, whereas present systems remain at a constant degree. The 'Dynamic Multiplier' gives discriminating amplification."

Hearing for Katz's Claim Set Sept. 18

A hearing on exceptions to Special Master John E. Joyce's report recommending disallowance of Sam Katz's $281,000 claim against Paramount was tentatively set for Sept. 18 after being referred to Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe by the U. S. District Court here yesterday.

In his report Joyce held that Paramount could not be held liable for the unexpired portion of its contract with Katz. The outcome of this ruling is believed to have a bearing on similar claims filed against Paramount bv Jesse L. Lasky and Sidney R. Kent.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"She Gets Her Man"

(Universal)

Hollywood, July 31.—Burlesquing crime crushing, this broad comedy takes Zasu Pitts, a dumb waitress, whose foiling of a bank robbery accidentally elevates her as a front page celebrity via Hugh O'Connell's high pressured press agenting and follows Miss Pitts, barnstorming the nation, making speeches to women's clubs to stamp out crime.

A mob of roughnecks led by Edward Brophy, realizing that Miss Pitts is their greatest menace, kidnap her, but her evangelistic crime orations convert Brophy's heathens to a better life and off they go to jail, singing merrily.

Produced at a reasonable cost from Fred Meyer's idea as the first production of his regime, the film blends satire, slapstick and hokum for laughing purposes only and as such it achieves its objective. Its original title was "Gee, Woman."

Besides the new comedy team, Miss Pitts and O'Connell, with Brophy, Helen Twelvetrees, Lucien Littlefield, Warren Hymer, Ward Bond and Bert Gordon add competent support. Particularly amusing is Brophy's love scene with Miss Pitts, a highlight howl.

William Nigh directed from an original by Aben Kandel and David Diamond, with Diamond producing. As a topical, pleasing, laugh show it should team well with a serious offering.

Production Code Seal 1071. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Senate Votes Early Action On Copyrights

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, July 31.—Overriding protests of Senators Copeland and Wagner of New York, the Senate today made the Copyright Bill its unfinished business and listened to an explanation of the measure by members of the Senate Patents Committee. It is expected the bill will be passed early next week.

Declaring the measure to deal with a "trivial" subject on which there is no national demand for legislation, Senator Copeland protested that for five years there has been pending a bill for treating with safety of life at sea, on which it has been impossible to get any action, "and now suddenly we find that the most important matter that can engage the attention of the Senate is a copyright bill.'

"I feel we are losing our sense of proportion when we spend our time considering trivial things," he said. "Here is a bill that is so controversial that I hold in my hand a brief covering 50 pages pointing out weaknesses and defects in this bill. This is not a time to bring up controversial matters of so little general consequence as this."

Admitting it was controversial, proponents of the legislation declared it had been on the calendar for some time. The committee, it was said by Senator McAdoo of California, chairman, had found it almost impossible to reconcile the divergent interests, but had attempted to secure as good a measure as was possible.

Screen Television Is Shown in Phila.

Philadelphia, July 31.—Reproduction of films on a television screen produced what observers believed to be by far the most satisfactory results attained in a demonstration here today of the latest television equipment of P. T. Farnsworth, young inventor who heads the technical staff of Television Laboratories, Inc.

The demonstration was made with the use of the cathode ray tube and reproduced on a nine-inch screen of a combination vision and sound broadcast console receiver condensed in size for home use. A Mickey Mouse cartoon and a song and dance film were used in the demonstration and produced uniformly clearer and more constant images than other subjects of transmission employed in the demonstration.

Farnsworth said he had licensed the Philco Radio Co. to manufacture receiving equipment under his patent, and predicted that commercial television would be established "within a year." David Sarnoff, RCA head, recently estimated that it would take about 10 years to develop television for practical commercial use. The greatest obstacle to this development is said to be the erection of transmitting stations. Farnsworth declared that this problem was nearing solution with the erection of transmitting stations planned for New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco for experimental broadcasts.

"A salesman has the 'Kootzba' to tell me his company breaks even on the first film they book me, and each succeeding picture I play they lose more and more money.

"I never heard of such mathematics," boiled Mox Shabbus, soaring aloft mentally, in the California sunshine.

Not wanting to see the company go bankrupt, Mox asked the salesman how he figured he was losing money on pictures his theatre played.

"First, the excess cost of shipping," said the salesman, "because you're on the outskirts of Hollywood, then my salesmen's expenses, then the distribution overhead, and the production overhead, which all added together leaves us losing money when you book our pictures."

"If that's the case," said Mox to the salesman, "I'll cancel your films and you'll make a profit."

The years since 1915 have seen the motion picture industry develop from swaddling clothes to full maturity. They have given character and stability to the most modern of the art forms and have seen it universally adopted as one of the indispensable features of modern living. This swift progress has been made in the short span of two decades—an extraordinary achievement even in this age of miracles.

Beginning then, alongside of men of aggressiveness and responsibility, Mr. Martin Quigley, with a vision of business journalism new to the motion picture, has carried on in continuous service as editor and publisher contributing uninterruptedly to the screen's welfare, the Quigley publications accurately and interestingly reflecting the progress of individuals and institutions, a definite constructive force that keeps pace with and links the best efforts in film trade activity all over the world.

Beginning then and on through twenty years, beside ambitious men driving their individual projects to world success, Mr. Martin Quigley has been privileged to see and share in the crystalization of the art and industry into a state of eminence; has been privileged to weave his own ideals and ideas into the fabric of the industry; has been privileged to interpret the best efforts of the industry to the external forces that were attracted to and impinged upon it.

Through these years that are now historic the industry had great need for a balanced judgment of activities, for a constructive voice to the outside and for a continuously operating yardstick of achievement. Under Mr. Quigley's guidance Motion Picture Herald and its antecedent publications have fulfilled these functions to a degree that has ever been contributary to the industry's growth and well being.

'Documentary' Film Release Set in Britain

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, July 19.—Associated British Film Distributors will release a series of the "documentary" films made by John Grierson for the Post Office Film Unit. Grierson, who made a reputation with "Drifters," a film of the fishing fleet, for the Empire Marketing Board, is regarded as one of the leading technicians in the British field, but has resisted all temptations to join the entertainment field. His subjects are made for propaganda purposes but frequently have great audience value, as in the case of "Weather Report," in which sound was used in a very original way.

For the preference shareholders who are opposing the General Theatres reconstruction scheme, it was urged in the Chancery Court that the profit earning capacity of the theatres could be doubled by efficient management. The falling off of receipts was due, it was asserted, to exhibition of inferior pictures supplied by G. B. These pictures were profitable to G. B. as renters, but not to the theatres, said counsel.

For the company, it was claimed that the loss followed the introduction of sound and the necessity of remodeling theatres bought in the first instance at excessive prices. Under the proposed reduction of capital by £1,500,000 G. B. is undertaking to put up £300,000 of new money as part of the management contract, and is actually surrendering control to the preference shareholders, it was asserted.

The wages and hours schedule applicable to film theatre employes in the London area has been signed by representatives of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n., the London Trades Council, the National Ass'n. of Theatrical Employes, and the musicians' union. It is the first agreement between film interests and trades unions, and follows on three years of negotiation, interrupted by several breakdowns. Going into operation on Sept. 2, the agreement will run for a trial period of one year and it is hoped that it will provide a model for other parts of the country. Sir Henry Davenport is chairman of the joint conciliation board set up.

Ontario Now Taxing Kids' Free Tickets

Toronto, July 31.—The new amusements tax in Ontario has reached the 100 per cent class. An owner in Windsor had been admitting underprivileged children free of charge, but was warned by a provincial inspector that a five-cent tax ticket must be sold to every such child on a complimentary basis. It was decided to sell a one-cent admission ticket to the poor children, whereupon the government ordered the addition of one cent for the tax. Then it was found that the needy juveniles could not raise the necessary two cents for admission and once more they are just roaming the streets.

Award Crowd Blocks Streets in Chicago

Chicago, July 31.—Twelve thousand persons jammed the streets outside the Tivoli, B. & K. de luxe neighborhood house, the other night. Three special squads of police were called to handle the mob, which halted traffic at times. Regular award is $150, but the amount had been unclaimed for six weeks.

Fox Quarterly Net Is Up to $1,355,781

on 2,436,409 shares of Class A and B stock outstanding. For the same period in 1934 the net was 49 cents per share.

The consolidated earned surplus at Dec. 29, 1934, was $3,006,812. After adding the net profit and profits on foreign exchange amounting to $20,940, the consolidated earned surplus on June 29, 1935, was $4,383,533, all of which has accumulated since the reorganization April 1, 1933, the company states.

Fox owns 52 per cent of the stock of National Theatres Corp., but no dividends were declared during the period, so no statement of earnings was included in the Fox report.

Gross income from sales and rentals of film and literature was $20,369,421.03. Dividends, profits from subsidiaries and other income brought the total gross income to $21,043,004.50. Expenses—operating, amortization, participation in films rentals and losses on controlled subsidiaries—reduced this by $19,161,276.27, leaving the net before interest and depreciation at $1,881,728.23.

the committee, that the report is expected to determine the course of action in regard to the merger which the committee will take.

The accountants' report has been delayed, it was said, due to the fact that a statement of Twentieth Century's gross receipts was "missing."

The committee reiterated that it was not soliciting and did not want either Fox stock deposits or proxies for voting at the scheduled meeting of stockholders on Aug. 15.

IATSE in Topeka Deal

Topeka, July 31.—Three independent houses, which have been non-union for several years—J. E. Penington's Cozy and Crystal, and McKinney's Best—have realigned with the I.A.T.S.E., according to Felix Snow, international representative in this district.

Local management of Fox's four active houses—Grand, Jayhawk, Orpheum and Gem—has accepted an agreement with I.A.T.S.E. which includes a slight increase in wages. This agreement is now awaiting ratification by the divisional office at Kansas City.

This gives I.A.T.S.E. a majority of Topeka houses. McKinney's Apex (colored) and Simon Galitzki's Princess in North Topeka are still operating non-union.

Form New Texas Co.

Dallas, July 31.—Tab Amusement Co. has been incorporated by James G. Tomlin, Aaron Kann and Dave Bernbaum. The first house is the Tab at Granger. The plan is to acquire a circuit of small town houses, but maintaining headquarters in this city.

Philadelphian Finds a Shorts Program Beats Shirley Temple

Philadelphia, July 31.—Faced with shortage of product, Joseph Conway, manager of the Egyptian, a suburban independent, last week arranged a two-day program of short subjects, after first polling his customers for the titles of good shorts.

Launched as a gamble, Conway reports that the two days did more than 30 per cent better business than the Shirley Temple film, "Our Little Girl," which played the preceding two days. The Temple film played Monday and Tuesday, not so good a spot as the Wednesday and Thursday which the shorts had, but even at that the business of the shorts programs showed up much better than expected.

Only drawback, according to Conway, is that the stunt cannot be repeated very often, not more than once or twice a year, according to his reckoning.

N. E. Improvements Take Marked Stride

Boston, July 31. — A survey of supply houses here indicates that New England theatres are spending more money for new equipment and replacements than has been the case for the past few years. Comi's Theatre Service & Supply Co. has recently remodeled its quarters, while the Capitol Supply, also in the film district, has greatly enlarged its offices. The National Theatre Supply is doing its heaviest business in a number of years, according to an executive there.

Especial interest is being shown in cooling apparatus, although sales remain light in this department. Business everywhere reveals that replacements and improvements put off during depression years are being made on an increasing scale.

Take Trenton, Mo., House

Kansas City, July 31.—The Royal, Trenton, Mo., dark for five years, has been taken over by Commonwealth Theatre Enterprises, Inc., and is being remodeled with new sound, seats, etc., for September opening.

Commonwealth now operates the Plaza at Trenton.

New Theatres Getting Under Way on Coast

Los Angeles, July 31.—Two new houses, an opening and a pool are the latest moves on the California theatre map.

Bob Witson, operator of the Vista and Huntley, and Herman Lewis, operator of the Los Feliz, all in Hollywood, have formed an operating pool.

Transfer Monson House

Boston, July 31.—Latest New England transfer is the Capitol, Monson, from Peter Schwack to H. Stanton and R. Dorack. This house has changed hands a number of times during the last few months. George Sawyer has darkened the Town Hall in Wilton, N. H. The Strand, a Vuono house in Stamford, Conn., is operating only four days weekly.

Senators to Probe Into Bankruptcy of Paramount

cases started some time ago and will then proceed to New York, where Paramount will be made a subject of special investigation. At about the same time, or possibly earlier, the House committee also expects to be in New York for the same purpose.

Meanwhile, the Securities and Exchange Commission will continue its study of the Paramount reorganization, made the subject of extensive hearings last month, and reports of the two committees and the exchange, to be submitted early next session, will probably go deeply into the receivership. A subject of special interest will be the fees of more than $3,000,000 which are being sought by counsel and others who worked on the reorganization.

Already the subject of much criticism in Congressional circles, it is anticipated that the Paramount case will be made the basis for legislation next winter, designed to put an end to a number of abuses which are said to have been disclosed, among them the service of protective committees of men who hold no securities of the company, trading in company securities by members of such committees, formation of committees by bankers who sold the securities, duplication of committees and fees.

Two More Ready

Pittsburgh, July 31.—John H. Harris, chief barker of Variety Club, goes to Des Moines and Omaha in about a week to induct local officers of Variety Club tents in those cities and to formally add both chapters to the national organization.

Pathe Trades Big Block of Du Pont Stock

it was stated by Pathe in briefs filed recently with the state supreme court here in opposition to applications by Pat Casey and E. B. Derr, Pathe stockholders, for injunctions to prevent the sale of the Du Pont stock. The Casey and Derr applications were denied by the court on the grounds that there was nothing to show that the proposed sale price was not a "fair and adequate" one, or that any other reason for interference with the sale had been given. It was stated in that action, however, that the sale price of the stock would be $1,200 per share or a difference of approximately $84,000 in the total.

Casey and Derr have an application for reargument of their move to block the sale before Supreme Court Justice Lauer now, and if this is denied an appeal will be taken to the appellate division, according to Martin King, attorney for Casey.

In a statement issued yesterday, Pathe declared that the sale of the stock and the application of the proceeds to reduction of the Bankers Trust Co. loan places Pathe in a good financial position and permits the company, on the completion of its reorganization, to apply earnings to the payment of dividends, rather than to the "extinguishment of debt."

Find Half of India Films Are American

Washington, July 31.—For the year ending March 31, the Bengal (India) Board of Censors certified 981 films, representing 2,861,625 feet, states a report from Trade Commissioner George C. Howard in Calcutta to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Of the total, approximately eight per cent were of Indian, 42.3 per cent of British, 49.1 per cent of American, and 0.6 per cent of other origin.

They are: Kernan Theatres, Inc., Syracuse, by Mamie Orenstein, Samuel Siegler and Sol Macklowitz; Bayview Amusement Corp., Brooklyn, by Richard Saunders, Leo Karp and Marvine A. Greene; Shore Amusement Corp., Brooklyn, Richard Saunders, Leo Karp and Marvine A. Greene; Channel Amusement Corp., by the same incorporators.

Would Check Quality

London, July 19. — The Bristol C.E.A. suggests the appointment of an expert committee to pass on the entertainment quality of all British films before they are registered for quota. Such committee would report to the Board of Trade, is the plan. Elimination of the "quickie" is aimed at.

Film Profits Foreseen in Wall Street

Security Gains Pointed Out by a Writer

In an article discussing the general realignment of major companies during the past year of reorganizations the Wall Street Journal takes a hopeful attitude on the prospect for security holders' profits.

Warner Brothers convertible 6s advanced four points yesterday (Wednesday), closing at 80, compared with the 1935 low of 48½. Disney Plans Color Feature Every 18 Mos.

Shorts Reduced to Make Room for New Idea

Production of an all-Technicolor animated feature every 18 months is planned by Walt Disney in addition to 18 shorts annually, the producer stated yesterday upon his arrival on the Rex from a nine weeks' vacation abroad. Disney added the reason he has reduced the number of shorts was to make way for the feature. It will be titled "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." The seven-reel picture is now in work and will be completed in 15 months, he said.

Accompanied by Mrs. Disney, and Roy Disney and his wife, Disney visited England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, Germany and Italy. He left for the coast yesterday following a lucheon tendered by United Artists at the Waldorf. He said he wanted

Musicals Get Big Boost in Japan Houses

All Have Extended Runs; Native Producing Up

By H. TOMINAGA

TOKYO, June 28.—Musicals have developed remarkable popularity here in the past 10 months with the result that a succession of them, both from America and Europe, have been shown. This is true also in Osaka and other leading cities.

Until a few years ago little interest was shown in musicals in Japan, but, beginning with "Kongress Tantz," a taste for this type of film began to develop in towns.

As a result, "Bolero," "Flying

Asks That Fox B Shares Get Same as the A

Committee Seeks Change In Merger Terms

A request that the provisions of the Twentieth Century-Fox merger plan giving an exchange value to the Class B shares that is double that given the Class A shares be eliminated from the plan was forwarded to Fox last night by the stockholders' committee of which L. T. Pidwell is chairman.

The committee stated that it "was not satisfied" that the release of voting rights by the Class B shares under the merger plan was sufficient justification for the difference in exchange value accorded that class of stock. The Class A shares, the committee contends, are given a value equal to that of the Class B shares in the charter of the Fox corporation.

Following a meeting of the stockholders' committee yesterday, Henry L. Sperling, attorney for the group, was instructed to request the elimination of the preferential treatment for

Wide Range at Capitol

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

ALL is not easy sailing in the projected plan to revive the Film Boards of Trade this fall, whether under the old label or a new one. Distributors, who would have to carry the load, fail to view the proposal in completely harmonious light. Warners, the story goes, are not enthused about the idea; they feel they can carry on without the boards. Universal, the story continues, is opposed on the grounds of additional overhead.

Aside to the distributor who wondered where Motion Picture Daily nabbed the story of the plan, published Monday last: You're wrong. It did not develop from the source you suspect. Where, then, do we hear you inquire? Naughty question. Besides, after all these years, you really ought to know better than to ask. . . .

The first concrete results of the fruits of much laboring at the Waldorf a few weeks ago are on display at the Rivoli, where Wednesday's box-office returns indicate the decision reached was the proper one. With modern story and spectacle substantially mixed and six substantial figures at stake by way of negative cost, Sid Kent hit on the idea of bringing a bunch of well known theatre operators and their advertising men into New York to figure what to do and how with "Dante's Inferno." The two-day confabs which ensued terminated with a decision to exploit the modern aspects of the picture in like proportion with its spectacular content. The Rivoli is the opening testing ground. Facts in the incident: Attendance up to one o'clock on Wednesday, the opening day, established a five-year record and ran considerably ahead of "Les Miserables." Gross on the day: $4,000. . . .

Curious runs the course of show business. Here's the Capitol, for instance, which drops its stage shows next Thursday night and swings to all-sound with "China Seas." Trying for weeks to combine on the one bill a trio, such as the one composed of Lou Holtz, Belle Baker, and Block and Sully, the booking finally jelled. And with what a result! For the first stanza, which terminated a couple of hours before this comment went to press as you did your sleeping early this A. M., the gross was forecast at $55,000. It would seem silly to drop a policy which can do this kind of business. Reasons why it is not are (1) a high-calibred aggregation like the one above is not available weekly and (2) even if it were, the novelty element would soon wear itself thin and then out. It's a dangerously fickle public. . . .

Shot in the dark: Will National Theatres Corp., recently formed holding company for various Fox theatre subsidiaries, ultimately assume control of the United Artists circuit? Threads in the skein: Joe Schenck is a substantial stockholder in the latter company. He is chairman of the board of Fox. Under the Twentieth Century-Fox merger—proposed now, but inevitably headed for consummation by August 15—he will have a huge finger in the combined companies' stock holdings. Under the Fox Met rearrangement, he is dominant there. In other words, Schenck is so irrevocably linked with Fox, the assumption becomes natural that all of his activities will end up under the same corporate banner. . . .

Dave Loew, Charlie Moskowitz and Joe Vogel combined the other day in a newspaper statement wherein they declared product buys for the Loew circuit have been completed. Programs listed were Paramount, M-G-M, United Artists, Universal and Columbia. If they mean to the letter what they have said, a logical guess becomes the guess that the Warner lineup of sixty will go to the RKO circuit next season. Loew's had half for 1934-35. . . .

This is the time of the year when new film buys in the greater city area always slow down. Yearly, the story is about the same. It is considered strategy in some theatre circles to play hard to get on the theory, well worn and deceiving nobody by this time, that the distributor will weaken and, therefore, his terms. The trouble about this old-fashioned school of diplomacy is that the seller knows the trick as well as the buyer. . . .

North Carolina Hit By Wide Epidemic

nearly 400 cases have been reported and the epidemic shows no signs of a let-up.

Repeated warnings by state health officials against children gathering in crowds, attending theatres and other amusement places is having a serious effect on grosses. In many towns theatres are refusing to admit children less than 15 years of age.

In the east central portion of the state, including Raleigh, Wilson, New Bern, Kinston and others where the outbreak has centered, theatres are hardest hit.

Although the warnings to keep out of crowds issued by state officers is principally to children, parents who have small children are staying away. No signs of improvement in the situation are in prospect, health officials claim, until the latter part of September. Schools, in many counties, which normally open in July for six weeks, remained closed this summer, and indications are that the regular school opening date of Sept. 1 will be set back a few weeks.

Musicals Get Big Boost in Japan Houses

Down to Rio," "Wonder Bar," "One Night of Love," "Leise Flehen Meine Lieder," "Das Lied Einer Nacht," "The Gay Divorcee," "Dames," "Flirtation Walk," "Rumba" and others have been presented. Some of them have been striking box-office successes and all have had extended runs.

After studying this tendency Japanese producers, such as Shochiku, Shinko, Nikkatsu and P. C. L. (Photo Chemical Laboratory) are producing musicals with the hope they will have general appeal. "Chorus of a Million People" and "Symphony in an Alley" have been two of these, and both have been hits.

Foreign talent and capital is being sought for the development of Japanese production. First importation is Julien Duvivier, French director, here under contract to the Shinko Cinema Corp. The aim is to produce Japanese films with universal appeal, so that they can be exported.

Most observers here agree that if pictures are to be produced for the export market foreign directors, players and technicians will be needed.

Imported films have fallen off to 136 during the past six months compared with 140 for the same period last year. This is due to extended runs on some of the successes. Releases by companies were: Paramount, 21; M-G-M, 18; Towa Shoji (distributor of European films, but not a producer), 17; Columbia, 15; Fox, 14; Universal, 12; Warner-First National, 11; RKO-Radio, eight; Sanyei-Sha (distributor), four; Daido-Shoji, three; Naigai-Shoji, two; Chidori-Kogyo, two.

Some of the films which had extended runs were: "Cleopatra," "Now and Forever," "Little Miss Marker," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Treasure Island," "Manhattan Melodrama," "The Merry Widow," "The Cat's Paw," "Baby, Take a Bow," "Caravan," "Son of Kong," "Ich und die Kaiserin, "Leise Flehen Meine Lieder," "Der Schwarze Wilfisch," "Le Grand Jeu."

to be in Hollywood Monday for the reopening of the studios which have been dark during July. "Mickey's Grand Opera" will be the first subject to be started. Disney said he had made a deal in Italy with Ricordi for some Italian music to be used in connection with the short.

Discussing cartoon production abroad, Disney asserted that animators in England, France and Germany are gradually getting on to our ideas, but cannot grasp our sense of humor. He added that the cartoons made in these countries are localized to meet native requirements. He said all his subjects are dubbed for the foreign market.

Roy Disney is staying in New York for a while before going west. He arrived on the same boat.

I'm sure glad we've got two more of those Technicolor babies comin' along . . . THE MARCH OF TIME? Say, Jules, the way THE MARCH OF TIME is going is immense! This week they've signed 197 new contracts already in this one territory and they know where they can get plenty more . . . Do you know that people have been around to the exhibitors and written 'em letters asking why they weren't showing it? That's where that MARCH OF TIME radio program went to work, I guess . . . More than that, the customers seem to have heard a lot of chatter about THE MARCH OF TIME from their friends. They heard about the stew the Huey Long sequence stirred up in No. 3. And about those scoop sequences on the munition makers and the transpacific passenger flight. The inside story of the Navy's war games got a lot of talk, too. Now they want to lamp No. 5 when we release it August 16th . . . My boys tell me it's the fastest, easiest-selling subject they've ever had anything to do with . . . Now about this . . .

GRATIFIED and pleased, THE MARCH OF TIME views the enthusiasm of RKO'S sales force with mounting satisfaction.

In a short time there will be almost as many theatres showing THE MARCH OF TIME as Time and Fortune friends have asked for in their flood of letters. Results speak for themselves.

Asks That Fox B Shares Get Same as the A

Class B shares from the merger plan and to report to the committee on means of possible legal redress if the request is refused. The committee also reported that it is studying reasons why Twentieth Century is receiving "more than 16 per cent" of the authorized capital stock of the merged companies when, according to the issued statement of Fox, Twentieth is contributing "approximately eight per cent of the combined assets of the two companies."

The committee stated that it regarded "the earning value" of the Twentieth Century assets as a better basis for computation of their worth than their valuation at cost which, the committee says, was the valuation given the assets in Twentieth's statement. Efforts will be made, the committee says, to obtain authorization from Joseph M. Schenck to determine the earning value of Twentieth's assets in order to compute their exchange value in the merger accordingly.

The committee declared that the preferential treatment being accorded the Class B shares was "without merit at this time."

"While it is true," the committee's statement reads, "that the Class B shares have the controlling voting power of the corporation under certain conditions, it would be necessary that $9,745,636 be distributed in the form of dividends in the course of one year before these shares could reacquire that voting control. The course of the corporation since the present invisible government of it assumed control of its management has been such to convince the committee that such dividends are a very remote possibility. Therefore, the justification advanced by the company for the discrimination in favor of the Class B stock is regarded as being without merit at this time."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Crusades"

(DeMille-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—Cecil B. DeMille, master showman in creating this, his greatest picture, gives exhibitors super de luxe entertainment, intriguing the eye with spectacle, thrill; assailing the heart with tender romance and exalting the moral senses with religious passion.

Fired with inspiration, the production humanizes the primitive virtues to stir and elevate, with each moment enriched by taste and beauty.

Aside from pomp and majesty, glitter and gallop, a love clash between Henry Wilcoxon, as Richard, the Lion Hearted, and Loretta Young, as Princess of Navarre, shines with warmth and fervor. Set against this alliance, C. Henry Gordon, as Philip of France, insists Richard marry his sister, Katherine DeMille, per his royal pledge. Ian Keith, Saracen chief, with Loretta his captive, gallantly relinquishes to Richard.

Knowingly, DeMille has propelled this romance with complete priority. History, armor, costumes, primitive battles, while important, seem secondary as entertainment. Heart, laughs, action, tears, prime audience factors, move violently yet tenderly in rhythmic cadence, sweeping to climax after climax.

Shrewdly, DeMille also has kept his moral values in realms of pure faith. It might be abstract faith battling for right, so universal is its impact.

Beauteous and lovely Loretta Young and two-fisted tempestuous Henry Wilcoxon make of love a poet's dream in flesh and blood. Ian Keith, astute Oriental potentate; C. Aubrey Smith, religious hermit, instigator of the Crusades; Joseph Schildkraut, double dealer against Richard; Alan Hale, jester and troubadour; George Barbier, King of Navarre; Montague Love, Richard's blacksmith; Lumsden Hare, Earl of Leicester; William Farnum, Hobart Bosworth, Mischa Auer and others portray roles conceived in the screen play by Harold Lamb, Waldemar Young and Dudley Nichols. Lifelike portraits with finished acting in each. Rare, too, the writing.

The production is technically perfect. Authentic settings, costuming, music, battle implements and breath-taking photography all hold an inspired quality for audiences.

Colossal as was DeMille's concept in script, just as colossal is the screen masterpiece. Its spellbinding warmth, its strength of muscle and steel, its zeal of minds and men hold one enthralled as one of the world's most glorious pageants relives in ageless romance.

Unquestionably DeMille has created one of the biggest box-office grossers, creating, too, a monument to himself in the entertainment world. Production Code Seal 134. Running time, 89 minutes. "G."

Wisconsin Playdate Ban Bill Is Signed

MADISON, WIS., Aug. 1.—Gov. Phil LaFollette has signed a bill prohibiting film distributors from requiring exhibitors to show pictures on specified days of the week.

The I.T.P.A. of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan fought for the legislation on the ground that they were penalized by contractual conditions which required them to exhibit pictures on week-ends and guarantee percentages.

The bill provides a penalty of $25 to $300 fine for the first offense and $300 to $500 for each subsequent offense. The secretary of state is given power to revoke a violator's certificate to do business in Wisconsin.

Transfer Detroit Houses

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—Among new theatre changes are listed transfer of the Hippodrome, Detroit, to Mrs. Anna Fischer, who formerly operated the Plaza, by Gene Becker, and sale of the Bohm, Albion, by George Bohm, to Alex Schreiber and William A. London, owners of several houses here, who recently acquired out-state theatres at Flint and Three Rivers.

Buy Two Denver Houses

DENVER, Aug. 1.—The Gothic and Englewood, neighborhood houses, have been purchased by A. P. Archer and Joe Dekker, to be added to their Civic Theatres. Already in the group are the Egyptian, Granada and Oriental. Archer and Decker took charge today. Both houses were purchased from Thomas Sullivan, Englewood, banker. The Englewood, which has been dark for some time, will be remodeled.

Film Profits Foreseen in Wall Street

100 yesterday (Wednesday), against a low of 58¾ earlier in the year, while the Paramount Famous Lasky 6s are currently selling at 98⅜, against a 1935 low of 59. The latter two isssues are being exchanged for Paramount Pictures 6% debentures, and 6% preferred."

It was the collapse in security values that enabled new financial interests to enter the business in a big way, the article points out.

"Now the domination of three out of the five big companies has passed out of the hands of their original owners into the control of people who a decade ago had no financial interest in this field," the financial writer continues.

"The new managements are hard at work on the job of rebuilding earning power and are paying most attention to making pictures, which is recognized to be the basic division of the industry."

"A record array of productions for next fall and spring is expected to spur theatre attendance. Already talk is being heard in the industry of a moderate advance in box-office prices when and where it seems feasible. Film profits have been good right along, but theatres, in which the bulk of amusement capital is invested, have been lagging and a recovery here would be of primary importance.

"Part of the case of poor theatre earnings has been perhaps the need for securing a reduction in real estate rentals and reorganizing theatre holding subsidiaries. While this process was going on there was little incentive to push for large box-office returns. Now that it has been completed, profits from this division of the business may turn upward again."

Try Chicago Revivals

New South Wales Indies Raise Fighting Fund

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Australia, July 9.—(By Airmail via London.)—Independents in New South Wales are making a bold bid for the introduction of licensing laws similar to those in force in New Zealand, where the wholesale building of theatres in overseated areas is politically controlled. The executive committee of the association has gone surety for a preliminary contribution to a fighting fund of £1,000 and the trustees of the fund will undertake a tour of the state in an endeavor to swell the association's fighting forces into a formidable figure.

New Local 306 Wage Scale To Be Completed Next Week

Promulgation of a new wage scale for 600 theatres in the metropolitan area by Local 306 is expected to be completed in a week. An executive committee of 13 is now busy classifying theatres and drawing up the new price and hour schedule. Following completion of the scale, a special committee will be named to meet exhibitor groups.

Indicating he is in favor of a fair scale and that no arbitrary provisions will be imposed on exhibitors, Joseph Basson, newly elected president of Local 306, stated: "We do not intend to draw blood from a stone, nor do we intend to put any exhibitor out of business.

"Every operator is entitled to a living wage. We do not want to be unfair. We want exhibitors to make money. If they do, we can make money."

"Czarism in the union is out," Basson asserted. "Members of Local 306 will run the union themselves. We believe in doing this. There will be

Independents Set Election For Next Week

Election of officers and directors of the Independent Theatre Circuit, Inc., will be held some time next week, it was stated yesterday. The committee in charge of the circuit has decided to wait until a minimum of 75 theatres are signed up before going ahead. Already in the pooling combine are 72 houses and it is expected that three additional units will be lined up in a few days.

Louis Schiffman, Maurice Fleischman, Dave Davis and Al Cooper comprise the committee. The group wants to give every exhibitor joining an opportunity to have his say in the election and formation of the circuit. Exhibitors representing 60 theatres are studying the plan.

Milton C. Weisman, who drafted the plan, has turned down the presidency, which will offer $1,000 a week. Harry Brandt may be named head, but as yet his group of 42 houses has not joined.

Jobs in Wisconsin Gain, Report Shows

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 2.—Improved conditions in Wisconsin are reflected in the report by the State Industrial Commission showing that total Wisconsin factory employment from May 15 to June 15 exceeded that of every other month back to July, 1930. Factory workers' per capita weekly earnings were slightly above $20 for the first time during June of any year since 1931.

Employment in manufacturing industries increased 1.8 per cent and corresponding payrolls increased 3.2 per cent from May 15 to June 15, the commission's survey revealed.

Circuit Heads For 2,000 Ft. Reel Adoption

Now Used Generally in Theatre Booths

Headquarters of national circuits here view with favor the recommendation of the research division of the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences for the adoption of a standard 2,000-foot reel for the industry.

Many circuit heads reported that their theatres are now and have been for some time using a 2,000-foot reel and doubling their prints by splicing together two 1,000-foot reels. These are cut apart and remounted on 1,000-foot reels before being returned to the exchange. It was stated that practically every theatre is now equipped to use 2,000-foot reels without making any change of projection equipment.

The adoption of the new reel is regarded by circuit heads as holding an improvement in projection methods and making new economies possible. They see no vital obstacles to its use as far as theatres are concerned.

The Academy's recommendation calls for adoption of the 2,000-foot reel on next Jan. 1 for all feature releases.

Exceptions on RKO Claims Are Studied

Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday took under advisement the exceptions filed by the RKO trustee to Special Master Thomas D. Thacher's report recommending the allowance of three creditors' claims against RKO in large amounts.

The largest of the claims allowed, to which exceptions were filed, was that of Walter Reade's Broadway & 47th St. Corp., whose original claim of more than $2,000,000 as a result of a disaffirmed lease on the Mayfair, was allowed at $337,500 by Judge Thacher. Australians Seek Limits On Building against the machinations of the go-getters who, it is alleged, are threatening to find backing for new theatre ventures in opposition to established exhibitors unless the exhibitors singled out for the allegedly intimidatory tactics are prepared to sign contracts at the go-getters' terms. Unfair selling methods of this description were exposed at the film inquiry last year and several exhibitors alleged that they have been renewed in recent months.

Crystallizing their arguments for theatre licensing laws, exhibitors show by statistics that Australia is already one of the most heavily seated countries in the world and that immediately an established suburban or country exhibitor is faced with opposition the value of his theatre is automatically reduced by half. In other words, the goodwill he has built up over a number of years is practically wrecked, it is asserted.

Officials of the association declare that it is not their intention to set up monopolies or crowd out opposition; that they merely seek to prevent the erection of new theatres in territories where a new house would make the profitable trading of either business an impossibility.

As a preliminary towards a renewal of active production in the near future, Cinesound Prod., producers of Australia's greatest success, "On Our Selection," has offered Reginald Denny £3,000 to star in two pictures to be made in Sydney. Denny asks £4,000 and alternative negotiations are now proceeding.

Cinesound's forces will be augmented by an increased capital of approximately £100,000. The latest studio equipment is being imported and to strengthen the writing staff a Hollywood scenarist, Edmund Seeward, has reached Sydney under contract to this company. The offer to Denny is based on a contract of 20 weeks' duration. It is stated that, besides this offer, Cinesound is dickering for other Hollywood personalities who have a box-office following in the Commonwealth.

A significant statement in connection with Cinesound's activities is Stuart F. Doyle's statement that, if necessary, Cinesound can supply the 20 pictures for the 1935-36 quota.

Frank Neil, legitimate stage producer who will present Polly Moran here in a revue early in September, is said to have clinched a deal with Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels to play Australia under his management. Should these players come, there is little doubt that local producers will compete for their services. Anita Page is another Hollywood player said to be anxious to make a trip to these parts.

Variety Club Chatter

Kansas City

Kansas City, Aug. 2.—Everyone had a good time at the fourth annual Variety Club M. P. Relief Fund picnic at Ivanhoe Country Club July 29. Variety Club held no luncheon, and exchanges and allied business firms closed at noon. Between 300 and 400 film and theatre executives and employes ate picnic lunches, swam, ran races, played baseball, drew for prizes, drank beer, golfed and watched fights.

E. M. Block, Universal salesman, won the $5 bank night donated by R. W. McEwan, bank night distributor. More than 250 registered.

Distributors won the ball game, 10 to 9, against exhibitors. Those who appeared in various parts of the field at various times—and it was uncertain when and where—were Edward Shanberg and Charlie Jones of Fox Midwest; George Baker, chief barker of Variety and manager of the Newman; Louis Sutter, exhibitor, "Shack" Shackleford of Midwest Republic exchange.

A 43-piece glassware dinner set, offered by McEwan, was won by Mrs. William Warner, wife of the Warner exchange manager.

Leon Abrams, M-G-M salesman, won first prize in the golf tournament.

The big boxing bout between Stanley Schwan, manager of the Commonwealth Branada at Lawrence, Kan., and Cecil Parkhurst, Republic Midwest salesman, highlighted the fights in the evening.

There was plenty of booing, however, when the fact that the fight was fixed became apparent to everyone by Schwan's lying down to take the count with Parkhurst clear across the ring.

W. P. "Bernie" Bernfield, U. A. exploiteer, was referee. It was difficult to determine—as no one ever did—at whom the shouts "Kill him! Kill him!" were directed—Schwan, Parkhurst or Bernfield. In his introduction of the two men, Bernfield slightly haywire and had both in the "Lowealth theatres."

In the wrestling match that followed, Bernfield, hot and worn out from strenuous exercise of refereeing, could hardly make his messages to the principals understood and as a consequence got thrown for three or four falls before he could tell the palookas what to do. Nevertheless it was an excellent show.

Harry Taylor did most of the announcing of events.

Thanks were expressed by the general committee to A. W. Zibelin, Midwest Sound Service, for a loud speaker system installed on the grounds the day of the picnic; to Max Barewin, Price Premium Co., for his 46-piece dinner set which was won by William Truog, United Artists exchange manager, and to McEwan.

Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Aug. 2.—Al Kvool, general manager, Saxe Amusement Management, Inc., copped the low gross golf prize at the first annual Variety club outing held July 29 at Lake Geneva, Wis. Other low gross winners were Ben Miller, Charles Trampe, Howard Herzog, Jack Lenihan, Jack Worden, Al Hoppe and William Silcock were first, second and third low gross winners in the guest bracket.

E. C. Krofta, booker, Mid West Film Co., took the "booby" prize with a high score of 132.

Music for the dinner-dance in the evening was furnished by Bob McElroy's orchestra with entertainment including a revue from the Brownee Brown dancing school.

a closer relationship between exhibitor and operator and we will get further this way than before. If the exhibitor is satisfied, we are," he added.

Meetings under the new regime will be held twice a month. On the first Wednesday, a session will be held in Brooklyn and on the third Wednesday the conclave will take place in Manhattan. Every Tuesday the executive committee of 13 will meet to hear individual complaints. The first general membership meeting under Basson's administration is set for Wednesday.

Basson has been with the operators' group for 28 years, his affiliation dating back to 1907, when he was one of the organizers of an auxiliary to Local 35, an I.A.T.S.E. unit with jurisdiction over spotlights. In 1911, Dept. 2 of Local 35 was formed. This unit was given control over film projectors. Two years later, Local 306 was started under a charter from the International.

Recent election of Basson to the presidency marks the third time he has held the post. He was the first head in 1912, holding the job for a one-year term. In 1925, Basson again was elected president and 10 years later he finds himself top man.

Presently, there are approximately 1,900 members in the union, of which 200 are unemployed.

Meanwhile, Loew's and RKO are understood to have demanded reductions in scales, effective in 10 days. Local 306 is threatening a walkout. The union has called a press conference for this morning to explain its stand.

judgment is obtained against the motor carrier.

Judge Hungate sustained a demurrer in a damage suit brought by Joseph H. Greaser, who was injured in April, 1933, by a truck of the film delivery service in Topeka. The company held a certificate to do business in Kansas and had filed a liability insurance policy with the state, according to law.

So far as the records reveal, the Kansas Supreme Court has never ruled on the point and the opinions of the courts of other states are conflicting.

Greaser should have sued the truck operator, although the insurance company was obligated to pay the adjustment, according to the decision.

Hold Shift Will Be Easy And Not Expensive

Although distributors will be faced with a number of problems if a standard 2,000-foot reel is adopted by the industry as recommended by the research division of the Academy of M. P. Many expressed the belief that the solution of the problems involved would be neither difficult nor costly.

Cuts Ordered, Local 306 to Argue Strike

Vote Due on Wednesday Night in Brooklyn

Faced with wage cuts amounting to 41 per cent by Loew's, RKO and Skouras, members of Local 306 will meet Wednesday night at Odd Fellows' Hall, Brooklyn, to vote on a general strike, Joseph D. Basson, president of the union, stated Saturday. About 700 members in 150 theatres are affected by the circuit notices.

Loew's and RKO last Friday handed all Local 306 men notices that after Aug. 12 an arbitrary reduction from $2.12 an hour to $1.25 will be put into effect. Two stubs accompanied the mimeographed notices, one for acceptance of the reduction and the other a resignation. Employes were asked to sign either one.

Basson considers the slashes as a move to ignore union officials who have not been approached on negotiations for a new wage scale. The

Weekly Film Payment Plan Gaining Here

Several Exchanges Have Adopted the System

Selling of features on a weekly payment plan, similar to that instituted by distributors some time ago for shorts, is gaining headway. In the local territory a number of exchanges have adopted this policy and in one instance a distributor has refused to sell an important circuit because it would not subscribe to it.

Distributors claim that the reason the feature weekly payment plan is being pushed is that a number of exhibitors after signing contracts either close their houses or change corporation names, thereby nullifying the pacts. When the houses are reopened, the exhibitor must be sold again, making it a double sale for a single performance. In some instances theatres have been closed and reopened more than twice a season. This is regarded as a costly selling method which exchanges are trying to end.

Practically all exchanges are insisting on either pay or play every week. Columbia for the last two years has not sold the Springer & Cocalis circuit because of its adherence to the plan. S. & C. has over 40 theatres in Greater New York and will not subscribe to Columbia's demands this season, making it a third consecutive year for the deadlock.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

LOWELL LAWRENCE in the Kansas City Journal-Post:

"For some reason I cannot appreciate, the motion picture industry will not let us see the great pictures of the past—and many great ones there have been. We may re-read great books. The stage revives its finest offerings from time to time. But the outstanding motion pictures rarely return to the screen."

Fox is remaking "Way Down East." Metro long since has refashioned "Smilin' Thru." Goldwyn did "The Masquerader" and has just completed "The Dark Angel." Zanuck did "Les Miserables" and will make "Ramona." Paramount is having a time of it with "Peter Ibbetson" and Universal is counting heavily this new season with "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "The Phantom of the Opera." There are, to pick them quickly on a morning when the weekend beckons, "Ruggles of Red Gap" and on the way "Oliver Twist" again as well as "Tale of Two Cities," "Last Days of Pompeii," "Captain Blood," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Three Musketeers" and "Broken Blossoms."

It always has been a serious question if revivals do not hurt more than they help the general prestige of the business, such progress has production technique registered. "The stage revives its finest offerings from time to time," comments Lawrence. Certainly this industry is not remiss on that score. As a matter of fact, many exhibitors who count have been inclined to go critical on the matter of remakes, their claim being new versions of previously made vehicles are familiar stuff to audiences and new versions under new titles are downright deceptive. . . .

Exhibitors may have to get along without any pictures from Bill Fields for six months and even more. The comedian is suffering from a spinal injury which, to date, appears to have defied medical science. In the tradition of show business, Fields went through with "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," now playing the Capitol, when he should have been at home ministering to his health. Probably the playgoers, public and exhibition, will have no great interest in the reason why Bill's current vehicle is so mediocre. This, however, is the lowdown. . . .

Commenting on a recent action by the Catholic Daughters of America calling on producers to dismiss stars who are "notorious for their many divorces and the scandalous lives they lead," the Roanoke, Va., Times has this to say:

"After all, the primary if not sole motive of producing the pictures is to sell them to the exhibitors, and the exhibitors aren't going to be interested in pictures which the public won't pay to see. If actors who don't behave themselves and keep out of scandal were to be boycotted by the public, there soon wouldn't be any demand for their services in Hollywood."

Well, why doesn't it?

"Hollywood Extra Girl," current release in the Paramount Varieties series of one-reelers, runs ten minutes and seeks to outline the trials, as well as the tribulations, of the extra girl working her way up the Hollywood ladder. Seven minutes of the ten are turned over to Cecil B. De Mille, "The Crusades" and a selling talk for the picture as only De Mille can deliver it, which is something. Looking and sounding like a trailer, super type, it is, nevertheless, sold as a straight short. Our eyebrows are up. . . .

In paid space in Motion Picture Daily says Ralph Rolan who writes "The March of Time" trade copy:

"Exhibitors: If by any chance an RKO salesman has not yet called on you re 'March of Time,' you will receive immediate service by calling this number collect in New York City (and then the number). Ask for either Eddie McEvoy, Cresson Smith or Harry Michalson."

Addis Ababa and New Orleans, too? . . .

Manny Cohen got himself in bad with the Paramount regime for various and sundry reasons and so Ernst Lubitsch replaced him. A handful of months later, Cohen forms Major Productions to produce the one outside film a year which Crosby is allowed under his Paramount contract. Now a deal is near for that same company to distribute. It's cockeyed and it's screwy and only in the picture business could it happen. . . .

Three famous names in this business are huddling over an idea. If that idea crystallizes, a personnel upset as major as any this industry has witnessed in latter years will result. Would this one be a surprise? . . .

Cuts Ordered, Local 306 to Argue Strike

local's president has advised all members to ignore the notices until action is taken by the general membership Wednesday night. In the interim, the Local 306 executive committee will continue its efforts to work out a new scale, following which a committee will be set up to confer with circuit heads.

In the event the operators walk out, stagehands and musicians will strike in sympathy, it was indicated by Basson. The three groups are members of the I. A. T. S. E., which on July 25 returned local autonomy to Local 306.

Loew's and RKO, in the mimeographed letter given operators, state that the new scale makes it possible for their theatres to compete with comparable houses.

"This rate will be paid until a new agreement is reached with your organization," the letter continues, "and any changes in the hourly rate agreed upon in the new contract will be retroactive to Aug. 12.

"We have attempted, over a period of years, to bring about a satisfactory adjustment of operators' scales," it is stated in the letter. "However, each year the situation has become increasingly worse. Our houses have continued to pay the maximum scale while other theatres are being served by your union at prices much lower. We are perfectly willing to pay a fair rate, but refuse to be discriminated against any longer. We insist on paying the same as anybody else pays and no more."

New Studio Union Spreading Swiftly

scouts planted at a recent meeting witnessed applicants forced to take an oath of allegiance to the American flag before becoming members.

One authoritative source says that two or three film companies now have 100 per cent representation in the N. A. A. E. with numerous former I. A. T. S. E. and I. B. E. W. members making up the roster. The same source also says that cameramen are being solicited with several already in the organization. Local opinion, however, is that the new group is overstepping its bounds in bringing cameramen into a jurisdictional dispute with which they have nothing to do.

The amazing growth of the new organization seems to be due to members' dissatisfaction with the former I. A. T. S. E. and I. B. E. W. jurisdictional dispute and a desire to demand a vote as to the proper choice of representatives to bargain with producers under the Wagner bill.

General feeling at the studio labor board offices is that no action will be forthcoming from that outfit until the new organization makes its demands.

Meetings are still being conducted secretly with the organization having no definite headquarters or phone number as yet.

Standard Pact Being Sought In Australia

principles in the document drawn up by the interstate conference of exhibitors. Despite many adverse criticisms, New Zealand showmen as a whole have welcomed the standard contract, which binds the distributor to supply them with product contracted for, whereas the previous system, with its many contradictory clauses, left the distributor with little, if any, legal obligations.

General trade opinion in New Zealand is that proper adherence to the standard contract should do plenty towards harmonizing exhibitor-distributor relationships.

Suburban or country theatre expansian is definitely out insofar as M-G-M is concerned. N. B. Freeman, local Metro head, emphasized this fact strongly in denying a report published in Sydney and Melbourne dailies indicating that his company was building six new suburban theatres in Melbourne. To avoid undue delay in the release of its product, however, M-G-M would erect a new city house if other arrangements cannot be finalized. If the plan of erecting a new theatre is followed, M-G-M's new house in Melbourne will be up by the beginning of 1936.

The M.P.D.A. has appointed Percy Hunter to the post of "goodwill" man. Hunter's duties will embody publicity, contact work and general development of goodwill to further the industry's welfare. He has stepped into the position minus any previous association with the business, but has been a newspaperman and organized many important departments for the N. S. W. Government both in England and Australia. His appointment was officially announced by Sir Victor Wilson, whose presidential contract with M.P.D.A. expires in June.

The Detroit opening will be on Oct. 20 at the Wilson; the Washington opening, Oct. 27 at the National, and the Toronto opening, Oct. 28 at the Royal Alexandra. A uniform two-a-day policy at advanced admissions will prevail at all of the openings during the period of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" restricted release. Every theatre playing the picture on this basis will be given a year's protection against other showings of it in the same territory, according to Albert Warner, vice-president in charge of distribution.

Max Reinhardt, director of the production, James Cagney and other members of the cast are scheduled to be present at the New York world premiere. The admission scale at the Hollywood for the picture's run will be 75 cents to $1.65.

China Houses Gain "U" Manager States to be back at his headquarters in Shanghai before Oct. 1.

Theatre conditions in China have improved greatly during the past year or so, Westwood said, and of the some 200 houses in the country about 150 are wired for sound.

Action pictures are what the Chinese want, he continued, and the more the better. Most of the Chinese productions are leaning toward the American style of production and more sound pictures are being produced at present than ever before, he continued.

The Chinese industry produces a very large number of features every year, Westwood revealed, and last year at least 25 of these were in sound. He also intimated that a larger number will be made next year because of the successful reception of last year's product.

Aylesworth to Go West for Opening

City setup with two theatres, one seating 600 and the second 400.

Aylesworth feels that with completion of the coast studio radio and film forces will be brought to a closer understanding.

The NBC head also holds that television will do for the picture industry what sound and radio have done. He believes television will be a helping instrument for theatres and that this new medium of entertainment will work together with the screen, and not against it.

RCA is spending $1,000,000 for experimental purposes in television during the next year, Aylesworth said.

"I believe television will help the film industry. This entertainment is designed for the home and will not keep people away from the theatre any more than radio.

"As a matter of fact most families stay home about two nights a week. When television comes along they'll continue to stay home two evenings of every seven."

Because a number of directors were away on vacation, Aylesworth did not call a Radio board session last month. The next one will be held Aug. 27. J. R. McDonough is expected to attend.

Distributors For Adoption Of Long Reel

reels. The splicing of two 1,000-foot rolls and the mounting of the new longer roll on a 2,000-foot reel would be done in the exchanges and would necessitate establishment of a new exchange operation. The new reels themselves, it is believed, will not add to exchange costs as, being twice as large as the present 1,000-foot reels, only half as many of the new ones will be required. The cost of the new reels can be kept close to the cost of two 1,000-foot reels, the Academy believes.

Film storage vaults, in most exchanges, would have to be either altered or replaced to accommodate the new reels, but most distributors expressed the opinion that the cost of the required changes would not be prohibitive.

Rewinds, also, would have to be replaced, but the cost of this is also regarded as nominal and not viewed by distributors as an obstacle to the changeover. New shipping cases would be required, but the present cases for 1,000-foot reels could be used for the shipment of old features, shorts and newsreels until the supply was exhausted, it is pointed out.

Restrictions Final Problem

A final problem confronting distributors with the proposed changeover has to do with restrictions in force in some foreign countries prohibiting the shipment of film in larger than 1,000-foot length. Such postal and shipping regulations are known to exist in Spain and Puerto Rico. In addition, projection equipment in use in these countries and the Argentine is not adapted to use of the 2,000-foot reel. The 1,000-foot length, accordingly, would have to be continued in such situations. No such regulations are known to be in existence anywhere in the United States.

The advantages of the changeover to distributors are primarily in facilitating inspection and shipping, with possible economies in both operations, and in eliminating all doubling of the present 1,000-foot film rolls as widely practiced by theatres. The latter practice results in cutting away frames from the film rolls eventually resulting in a considerable jump of the picture on the screen and necessitating replacement of the film by the exchange. Possible economies are also seen in the new reels and shipping cases, half as many of which would be required.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Alice Adams"

(Radio)

Hollywood, Aug. 4.—Katharine Hepburn tops her performance in "Morning Glory" in this picture with a brilliantly understanding, tender portrait of a wistful, eager girl suffering the anguishing embarrassments of being young. The comedy gives the audience almost hysterical laughs without sacrificing complete sympathy for the whole cast.

Miss Hepburn plays a poor girl hanging on the edge of a rich set. Her idea of being a fatal woman by almost frantic animation and bursts of piercingly silvery laughter at a big party intrigues Fred MacMurray, rich cousin of the small town nabobs. Miss Hepburn's naive allurements, innocent blandishments and starry eyed excitement and concern over her first beau and her transparent pretensions to wealth and sophistication make one of the funniest and most engaging portraits ever filmed of young despairs and dreams.

Fred Stone is splendid as her badgered father, Ann Shoemaker telling as her adoring mother, Frank Albertson is fine as her crude brother and Hattie McDaniels as her maid draws howls. Evalyn Venable, Charles Grapewin, Grady Sutton, Hedda Hopper and Jonathan Hale are excellent in support.

George Stevens for direction, Dorothy Yost, Mortimer Offner and Jane Murfin for their screen play take the highest praise for catching the spirit of the Booth Tarkington novel.

Pandro S. Berman produced this one which should be a hit in any locale because being young is universal. Production Code Seal, No. 1101. Running time, 89 minutes. "G."

Title Change—Warners definitely set "Shipmates Forever" as title for Dick Powell-Ruby Keeler musical previously called "Anchors Aweigh."

Short Subjects

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 13"

(Universal)

The latest of this series presenting oddities in the world is equally as interesting as any made previously and the comments of James Wallington are enlightening. The reel contains shots of a ferryboat for schoolchildren, a lion getting a blood transfusion, a trick boat, a girl ball player, wood handkerchiefs, an egg-breaking machine and a zoo managed by a woman. Highly recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 0480. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Hollywood Extra Girl"

(Paramount)

Whether or not this short was meant to be just that or a super-trailer for Paramount's forthcoming "The Crusades" will probably never be told, but it certainly is good entertainment. Taking an extra girl and showing her trials and tribulations, the film uses Cecil B. DeMille's latest picture as a background. DeMille is on the screen more than any of the others in the picture and he gives his usual sales talk on what it takes to make a picture. Audiences should go for this. Production Code Seal No. 1095. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Mickey's Garden"

(Disney-United Artists)

This latest Mickey Mouse in Technicolor had a local audience laughing practically all the while it was on the screen. Mickey and Pluto are up to their old tricks again, with many a new one thrown in for good measure. The story has Mickey trying to rid his garden of bugs when he gets a shot of his own exterminator instead. He passes out and has a wild nightmare in which he wrestles with giant-like bugs in a huge garden. Highly recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 8 mins.

"Fifty Dollar Bill"

(Vitaphone)

Director Roy Mack makes use of a novel twist to present Jack Powell, Carolyn Marsh, Adia Kuznetzoff, Eleanor Whitney and the Twelve Aristocrats, and the result is entertaining. Powell is by far the outstanding performer in the picture, but Miss Whitney runs him a close second for honors.

Where musical shorts are liked, particularly of the variety type, this should adequately fill the bill. Recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 0441. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"His Last Fling"

(Universal)

With Sterling Holloway, Phyllis Fraser, Joey Ray and Beth Laemmle, this is only a fairly entertaining comedy. It starts off in a satisfactory manner, but quickly gets itself bogged down in the story and never gets free again. The plot of the old one of the fiance stepping out and trying to hide his having a last fling from the fiancee. The latter turns out to be the girl on the party and after the usual complications all ends well.

Production Code Seal, No. 951. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

Associated Theatrical Bodies Take Action

House Passes New Federal Tax Jumps

Washington, Aug. 5.—The House today passed the new tax bill aimed at high corporation and individual incomes and inheritances by 282-96. It goes to the Senate with practically no changes, except an exemption of five per cent for corporations' gifts to charity. The amendment was opposed by the President, but was favored by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Incomes over $50,000 get increased tax schedules.

What the Senate Finance Committee will do to the measure is uncertain. It is known that members contend the bill in its present form goes beyond the President's original idea, and Republicans are sniping at many of its provisions.

Stallings Heads Big Fox News Crew Into Ethiopia

Laurence Stallings, ex-soldier, playwright and author, newspaper man and latterly newsreel editor, is on the Rex, bound for Rome to interview Benito Mussolini as the first move in an elaborate plan, Fox Movietone News - conceived, to cover one of the "hottest" news stories since the Great War—the Italo-Ethiopian fracas.

Starting in Rome, then by air to London, where Stallings and his band of newsreel reporters will be covered with war insurance by Lloyd's, the expedition, easily one of the most extensive, as well as expensive, organized in the history of newsreels, will take to the air lanes again and by Fokker 'plane hop to Athens where it will set out for Djibouti, British Somaliland, the scene of further organizing prior to the push into the interior of Ethiopia en route to Addis Ababa.

Four photographers and two sound men will be behind the 10 cameras—sound, silent and still—which will make up that phase of the equipment. Al Waldron, for a number of years on the Washington staff of Fox Movietone News, sails Thursday on the Majestic for London, there to meet Stallings. Louis Granata, formerly stationed in Rome, is now with the Italian troops at Mogadiscoi in Italian Somaliland. Ramond Mejat, transferred from Paris, will be assigned to the Fascisti army with headquarters in Massaua in Eritrea.

K. C. Expects Zoning Setup Next Season

Kansas City, Aug. 5.—Zoning is considered by independent exhibitors to be a definite possibility here for the coming season.

Distributors, who usually start contacting independents about now, have not yet done so.

It is general talk among independents that E. C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest head, is buying zoned protection, and distributors will make no move to sell independents until Fox closes its product deals. Rhoden is expected to go to New York shortly to complete these together with his own contract arrangements with National Theatres. While some exhibitors are a

Better Prints Aim Of Academy Report

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—An improvement in the quality of release prints is foreseen as a result of a report made by the Research Council sub-committee of the Academy, outlining the past year's activities. The Academy issued a 24-page bulletin on the subject.

The future establishment of a set of standard density tablets, to which instruments in all laboratories will be calibrated was announced in the bulletin. The report also goes into technical detail regarding a series of tests which have been made describing the first attempts to standardize the release printing control procedure of all laboratories to control the quality.

Complications of the past have been due to the fact that negatives are usually made in one laboratory and the prints in another laboratory, sometimes in the east and foreign countries.

The method now under consideration specifies that release printing data will be placed on the negative film, in a space provided in the Academy Standard Release Print Leader, where it will be available for information by any laboratory in the world to which the negative might be sent.

and Hammond, will penetrate into Ethiopian territory with the capital their objective. There, by prior arrangement, full immunity, protection and international courtesies have been arranged for them by Emperor Haile Selassie. Six motorcycles with side cars will go along, as well as a special truck now ready for shipment at the newsreel's headquarters in New York.

The anticipation is that the motorcycles will be turned over to white couriers to carry film out of Abyssinia as well as mail dispatches with which Stallings will follow up the wireless stories he will write for the North American Newspaper Alliance.

The entire adventure is to be known as the Fox Movietone News-North American Newspaper Alliance Expedition. The newsreel thereby will get a double play. It will be mentioned regularly in Stallings' dispatches to be served to its 60 important American dailies by N.A.N.A., including The Times in New York, while, obviously, the celluloid transcript of what the crew records will impart its own tale. Stills will carry the same credit line across the nation.

Church and School Films for Carewe

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—Edwin Carewe today announced formation of the Edwin Carewe Pictures Corp. to produce pictures for exclusive church and school exhibition.

A production council of nine members selected from church and educative groups to pass on all stories and casts and to review completed product prior to release is part of the plan. Carewe asserted he proposes making features in sound, color and in four major languages.

As he divulged his plan, the director who has been in the business 22 years, launched an attack on the industry for turning out too many cheap, "sexy" pictures glorifying gangsters and exalting "shady women."

With himself as president and director general, Carewe's running mates will be Martin T. Hughes, vice-president, and Reverend T. M. Buley, secretary-treasurer.

K. C. Expects Zoning Setup Next Season

little warmer than the weather gives reason for at the mention of zoning, they do not appear to be greatly concerned, nor are they discussing it to any extent—yet. One reason is that a number of independents regard Rhoden as reasonable.

The last system of zoning here was about 10 years ago. Under that system theatres that could buy protection got it in their zones.

M. B. Shanberg attempted to set up zones here the year before he left Kansas City theatre operation. At that time local independent exhibitors prepared to take the matter into court on a monopoly charge, it is understood, and Shanberg dropped the effort.

Since that time the procedure has been that representatives of various types of houses get together at the beginning of each season and determine the clearance schedule—so many days after downtown, so many back for each five-cent drop in admission, etc.—and then suggest the plan to distributors. This last season 20-cent houses have been 14 days back of 25-cent houses; 15-cent, 21 to 35 days; 10-cent houses, 44 days.

With automobiles so numerous—even among relief workers—zoning is regarded as anachronistic. People do not go to theatres by zones anymore, many here believe.

Independents, though not in agreement among themselves, generally feel that admission price should be the basis of clearance. This would be all right if there were a true admission price effective in Kansas City. But with all but two or three suburban houses giving away something or other, many of them five and six nights a week, with double billings and drawings, true admission price no longer exists here. When the practice of clearance by admission price was instituted several years ago, true admission prices existed.

It is more or less on a clearance-by-admission basis that they have gone the last few years, with conferences at the beginning of the season on what clearance should be.

"Gondolier" Pittsburgh's Top, $21,000

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5.—Backing up its run of good pictures with attractive stage shows, the Stanley continued to lead the town. "Broadway Gondolier" and Little Jack Little's band produced an excellent $21,000, the best takings here in months.

The Stanley business, however, drained the rest of the town. Only the Warner, of the other houses, managed to make a fair showing and that was with "Love Me Forever," which was moved to the Fifth avenue house after its week at the Stanley. In five days, the Grace Moore picture grossed around $3,500. At the Penn, "Men Without Names" took it on the chin, dropping the house to $4,500, while at the Alvin, "Hard Rock Harrigan" and "The Silk Hat Kid" played only four days, the theatre closing until Labor Day to facilitate installation of a cooling plant.

Philadelphia Tips $18,000 To 'Gondolier'

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—A break in the hot weather which brought in three good days during the week had its reaction in local films.

"Broadway Gondolier" cruised along so well at the Stanley that it got two extra days for a total gross of $18,000. The Earle, also, with "Man on the Flying Trapeze" and Ina Ray Hutton on the stage, upped its average by getting $14,000 on the week.

Playing four days on its second week (all it was scheduled to do), "The Farmer Takes a Wife" got a nice $8,000 at the Fox. "Curly Top" followed it Wednesday and is on its way to a summer record and will probably stay three weeks. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Against the Current"

(R.N.S. Prod.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—Written, produced and directed in Spanish by Ramon Novarro, this picture has merit, but story weakness may make it difficult to sell to an American audience even in a dubbed version. In Latin countries where Novarro has a following, it should give a good account of itself at the box-office.

The story concerns the romance between Jose Caraballo, member of the Argentine Olympic swimming team, and Luana Alcaniz, daughter of a wealthy Los Angeles merchant. The pair meet at the Olympic games and after a short courtship marry. Later, diverse interests separate them and Marina Ortiz and Luis Diaz Flores, as friends of the bride, endeavor to unite the couple. Differences are finally settled, however, with the help of Ramon Guerrero, father of Miss Alcaniz.

Novarro has given the picture an elaborate production and evidently has a fairly large investment in his negative. His direction, while not always strictly modern, is better than his job of writing. The cast plays its roles well and photography and sound are good.

No production code seal. Running time, 89 minutes. "G".

St. Louis Theatres In Advertising Row

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5.—Approximately 70 subsequent runs in St. Louis and St. Louis County have threatened to discontinue all newspaper advertisements unless the city's three daily newspapers recede from their decision to drop the screen ads they have been using in the various theatres.

As the newspapers have paid $4 a week for each of the screen ads, their elimination would mean practically doubling the net cost of the newspaper advertising for the neighborhood and suburban theatres. The exhibitors have decided that they will not stand for this boost and have served notice on the advertising departments of the daily press that if the papers don't advertise in the theatres the theatres will not advertise in the newspapers.

Already some of the theatres have taken their advertising out of the Globe-Democrat, the city's lone daily morning newspaper.

no legal grounds for levying a sales tax against a rented commodity. The protests were made to City Comptroller Frank J. Taylor on behalf of all New York exchanges.

If the city presses its attempts to assess film rentals, counsel for United Artists is prepared to contest the assessment on its legal grounds in supreme court here, it was said. In such an eventuality the United Artists' action would be in the nature of a test case for the entire local film industry. No decisive action from either the city or the local industry is expected until September.

His Looks Marred

London, July 28.—George James, chief steward of the Brown Derby in Hollywood, won $3,250 damages in a suit against an English motorist. In a smash James suffered a facial injury leaving a scar and the court decision was that he might lose his job as a result owing to "the susceptibilities of the Hollywood stars and the nobility and gentry who frequented the restaurant," who objected to waiters with spots, pimples or scars.

Casey Loses in Plea For Pathe Restraint

Applications by Pat Casey for injunctions to restrain Pathe officials from placing the company's reorganization plan in effect and to prohibit a sale by the company of a part of its Du Pont Film Mfg. stock have been denied by Justice Lauer in Supreme Court here after being reargued by Martin King, attorney for Casey. Both applications were denied earlier by the court, but Casey applied for the reargument last week which was granted but resulted in no change in the court's original decisions.

Casey's motion for an order staying Pathe from taking action in either instance pending an application to a higher court for leave to appeal was also denied by Justice Lauer.

There is no such application for an injunction now before the district court, but Assistant District Attorney Irwin Sale declared that Assistant Attorney General Dickinson is preparing such a petition at Washington for filing here in about a week. The new proceedings will be in the equity division of the court.

Vinnicoff Is Named To Head Calif. ITO

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—Harry Vinnicoff today was elected president of the I.T.O. of Southern California following a meeting of the board of directors. Jack Berman was named first vice-president and chairman of the board; Irving Callin, second vice-president and treasurer; Harry Popkin, secretary; and Robert H. Poole, general manager. The latter post is a new title for Poole's former position as business manager.

David Townsend Killed

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—David Townsend, M-G-M's technical art director, was killed instantly today when the automobile in which he was traveling plunged down an embankment near Sonora where the studio had a company on location. He was 50 and had been with Metro six years.

Agnes McMillen, studio hairdresser, and two others were injured.

Warner-RKO Dicker Reaches an Impasse

A. W. Smith, Jr., vice-president in charge of eastern sales for Warners, was authority for the statement yesterday that negotiations with the RKO circuit on next year's program of 60 had failed and that he was prepared to sell to independent circuits in the Greater New York area. At the same time, he made it clear the avenue leading into the RKO deal had not been entirely blocked.

Indicating that current difficulties as to terms and playing time were not insurmountable, however, was the report the interrupted dicker with RKO officials will be resumed today.

New England Deal Set

M. & P.-Publix Theatres, Paramount's New England affiliate, have closed for the entire Warner lineup for 1935-36. The deal affects 84 theatres. Negotiations were handled for Warners by A. W. Smith, Jr. and Thomas B. Spry, the latter the branch manager in Boston.

Burton on "Dream"

Dr. Richard Burton, poet, essayist, educator and an authority on English literature and drama, has joined Warners as a special literary advisor on "A Midsummer Night's Dream." He is now a member of the faculty of Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., and has been associated with Johns Hopkins University, the University of Minnesota, where he was head of the English department from 1906 to 1925, the University of Chicago and Columbia University. He has been editor for the Lothrop Publishing Co. and literary advisor to Longsmans Green & Co., president of the Drama League of America and the New York Drama League and from 1924 to 1929 was chairman of the Pulitzer Committee on Fiction.

business under the plan than when doubles were used every day in the week. This, they claim, is brought about by people coming to the theatre oftener to see single bills than when doubles are shown.

No great saving has been made in expenses, the leading exhibitors say, as they use higher-priced features, plus more shorts, on their single bills, but they have made a small saving in electric light bills and in operators' expenses, as they run shorter hours and have less overtime now.

Single Deals Ended

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—Howard Stubbins, western exchange manager for Republic, declared today single picture deals for his company's product are out from now on. The new policy stipulates exhibitors must buy the entire lineup.

The last individual deal was on "Hoosier Schoolmaster" with Fox West Coast.

Pickford Undetermined

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—Mary Pickford returned from the east yesterday with no word from her as to her co-producer and with the general impression afloat that her decision had been temporarily halted.

Is the Motion Picture Industry prepared for voluntary "Self-regulation?" Should the benefits of the Code be embodied in a new voluntary pact? Should there be an industry tribunal voluntarily organized and representative of the entire industry, to enforce a voluntary Code? ● The answers to these and many other questions of equal importance to the Motion Picture Industry can be found in . . .

NEW COURTS OF INDUSTRY

Louis Nizer's
"NEW COURTS OF INDUSTRY"
With Introduction by Austin C. Keough

Written with great clarity, "New Courts of Industry" is a complete statistical study of the benefits and workings of the Motion Picture Code. It is a book that must be read for an intelligent understanding of these vital questions which are the subject of so much discussion at this time throughout the industry. ● "New Courts of Industry" will be of immeasurable assistance to everyone in this industry who desires to know whether voluntary self-regulation is necessary or advisable.

DO YOU KNOW HOW, under a voluntary Code . . . ?

(1) Reasonable clearance can be effected?
(2) Operating policies can be regulated?
(3) Selective buying can be restricted reasonably?
(4) A shortage of quality product can be remedied?

Mr. Nizer sets forth all the facts concerning these and many other questions.

DANIEL C. ROPER

"Written with a tense clarity and simplicity that render the most intricate problems of the industry intelligible and interesting . . . Mr. Nizer ends on a prophetic note . . . Recommended to motion picture people as an excellent handbook for their use and guidance, and to lawyers and students of arbitration, industrial and sociological development, as an authoritative and well written treatise."

HARRY P. LANDER, New Haven Journal Courier

"For a lawyer, Louis Nizer is surprisingly direct. His literary style in his new book, 'New Courts of Industry,' is swift and lucid. The net result for exhibitors and distributors is that probably for the first time they have a guide to . . . whatever goal they happen to be seeking. The book . . . will appeal to exhibitors with an aversion to the legal phraseology . . . it furnishes more real information . . . than has been available heretofore."

Bronx Police Close Down on All Giveaways

yesterday. Police officials were reluctant to discuss their moves in this connection.

Giveaways Gain in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Aug. 5.—Giveaways in one form or another, with bank nights predominating, are being used in most of the small situations throughout the state. Bank nights also are in vogue at a few of the downtown subsequent runs at Toledo, as well as some of the neighborhoods and suburbans.

Aside from bank nights, many exhibitors are using merchant tieups, distributing gifts donated by stores in return for the advertising.

One man is giving a single piece of chinaware with each paid admission one night a week. He tells of a mother who sends her young daughter to purchase a ticket on gift nights. She does not wait to see the show, but explained that the family is trying to collect a complete dinner set.

Exhibitors are practically unanimous in the opinion that the various stimulants are increasing business.

The Knickerbocker, local downtown subsequent, which also plays vaudeville two or three nights a week, is giving miniature automobiles, while the Paramount, at Hamilton, has resumed the practice of giving an automobile at frequent intervals. Tickets are distributed by merchants, in addition to being given with each paid admission at the Paramount, Palace and Rialto, sister houses in the Southio chain.

Fined on Bank Night

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 5.—Bert Nathan, manager of the Hollywood, has been fined $15.01 in District Court on a charge of operating a lottery. The charge was based on bank night. The court labeled bank night as a mere subterfuge to evade violation of the lottery laws. Nathan will appeal to the circuit court.

The decision was the second verdict against lotteries in theatres, Milton Harmon, manager of Saxe's Garfield theatre, having been fined July 15 for playing screeno. Saxe's have discontinued the policy.

Bank Night Up to 850

DES MOINES, Aug. 5.—Spread of bank night throughout the Middle West is indicated by the report of Ray Coffin, head of Affiliated Distributors, Inc., that the total number of situations now using bank night is 850. He stated every circuit in Chicago is now using bank night. His figures applied to the Iowa, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Chicago and Indiana territories.

A recent addition to the bank night fold is the entire old Publix circuit in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, now operated by the Minneapolis Amusement Corp.

End Norwalk Bank Night

NORWALK, Aug. 5.—Theatres here have abandoned bank night, the first city in the state to try the stunt. Managers say that while bank night attendance was good receipts fell off on the rest of the week. This idea made too many customers confine their theatre visits to once a week.

Cash Boxes Wanted

Jefferson City, Aug. 5.—Missouri theatres, between now and Aug. 27, will be shopping for cash boxes of one to five-bushel capacity.

It's not in anticipation of a flood of colossal fall releases, however. On the August date Missouri's new one per cent sales tax on all purchases becomes effective and the state is issuing aluminum tokens, one size larger than a nickel, in denominations of one-tenth of a cent for the payment of the sales tax on any purchase of 10 cents or fraction thereof. With most houses averaging a 25-cent admission, theatres will have to collect three of the tokens with each admission paid.

Fined for Bank Night

DALLAS, Aug. 5.—H. A. Cole, Bonham, has been fined $100 in county court for use of bank night on the ground that it was a lottery.

Cole is off the stunt as a result. He says it didn't help business, because a textile strike kept most of his patrons outside waiting for announcements of the prizes, instead of buying tickets to get inside.

RKO Trustee Shifts On Hippodrome Fees

The trustee for RKO yesterday withdrew exceptions filed with the Federal court here last Friday objecting to the allowance of the claim filed on behalf of the Hippodrome, Cleveland, at $88,668 for rent claimed to be due on a lease made with an RKO subsidiary. The claim as originally filed was for $888,666. Exceptions filed by attorneys for the Hippodrome, objecting to the allowance as too small, were also withdrawn.

The RKO trustee also objected to the allowance of Walter Reade's Broadway and 47th St. Corp.'s claim of $3,123,450 at $467,500, as recommended by Special Master Thomas D. Thacher recently. Attorneys for Reade filed counter exceptions contending the allowance was too small. The claim is based on RKO's former lease on the Mayfair. Exceptions were filed by both sides to the allowance of the Fort Worth Properties claim of $197,168 at $17,595. The RKO trustee contended the allowance was too much and the attorney for Fort Worth Properties that it was too little. Attorneys for W. Burnett and Mudd & Mooney filed exceptions to the total disallowance of their claims aggregating $400,000.

Federal Judge William Bondy who presided at the hearings is scheduled to leave for a vacation this week, hence no decision is expected before September. On the Sept. 30 hearings of exceptions to the $8,207,000 Rockefeller Center claims and three large Hoblitzelle claims are scheduled.

Fox Applies For Listing Of New Stock

Inc., and/or its stockholders, of whom there are but three in number."

The application shows that as a result of the merger it is planned to increase the authorized number of shares from 2,816,650 to 4,600,000, of which 1,500,000 will be preferred and 3,100,000 common, both no par, but with a stated value of $5, plus such amount as may be transferred thereto by the board of directors. The application, however, seeks the registration only of 1,388,799 shares of preferred and 3,077,407 shares of common.

What Twentieth Century Gets

In connection with the exchange of the new securities for those now outstanding, the application shows that 132,513 shares of preferred and 613,264¾ shares of common are to be issued to Twentieth Century Pictures in exchange for that company's property, assets and business. Holders of 10 per cent or more of Fox stocks are shown in the company's report to the commission May 1, last, and will be filed for the new stock following its issuance. Information as to the remuneration of officials of the company, etc., was filed confidentially with the May 1 application.

Application for the new stock outlines seven-year contracts to be made with Sidney R. Kent as president, Joseph M. Schenck as executive head of production and Darryl F. Zanuck as head of production.

Kent's Salary $2,500 a Week

Kent is to receive a salary of $2,500 per week and on Dec. 31 of each year $50,000 additional, plus $75,000 to be paid him on Nov. 1 next. He is to receive $200 a week for entertainment, etc., and in the event he does not receive $25,000 a year as president of National Theatres Corp. the company is to make up the difference. He is also to have an option annually on 10,000 shares of the new common until a total of 60,000 shares is reached at a price which is the average of sales on exchange during the 90 days following listing, but not less than $10 per share.

Schenck is to receive $2,500 a week and Zanuck $5,000 a week, plus reasonable travel and living expenses while away on business. Zanuck is to have not less than four weeks' vacation annually and the company is to have the right to use his name for advertising and publicity purposes.

Seek More Detail On Merger of Fox

A questionnaire designed to obtain additional information to support the contention that the acquisition of Twentieth Century's assets will result in additional working capital for Fox of approximately $4,000,000 was forwarded yesterday to Sidney R. Kent, president of Fox, by the stockholders' committee of which L. T. Pidwell is chairman.

The questionnaire was based on statements giving the total current assets of Twentieth Century as $3,489,535, as of May 4, and asserted that as against these were current liabilities of $1,497,127 exclusive of $500,000 of notes which, the committee says, have matured since that time. The questionnaire also asserts that current assets of Twentieth Century "have been in the process of rapid amortization" since the date of the balance sheet and asks whether "any action has been taken toward the impoundment of the receipts of this amortization so that they may be available as assets when and if the merger is consummated."

Over the week-end the Fox stockholders' committee petitioned Senator Daniel O. Hastings, receiver of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., which owns eight per cent of the Fox Class A stock and 86 per cent of the Class B to register those shares against the merger with Twentieth Century. Senator Hastings already has asked the Federal court at Wilmington, Del., for instructions to vote the G. T. E. stock in favor of the merger.

The committee also stated that it had requested Kent to furnish it with a report on how far the merger has been advanced up to the present time. Ratification of the merger will be submitted to Fox stockholders at a meeting on Aug. 15.

Report Sunday Bill In Alabama Senate

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 5.—The Temperance Committee of the Senate overrode its chairman, Senator J. Miller Bonner, and gave a favorable report to the Lusk house bill to legalize Sunday amusements and sports in all towns of more than 1,000 population in Alabama.

The bill would repeal present prohibitive statutes and would supplement the Goodwyn act of 1932 legalizing Sunday amusements in Montgomery, Mobile and Birmingham.

City councils, after a referendum, could pass ordinances against Sabbath amusements under provisions of the measure.

Actors Want Doubled Pay For Sundays

Equity Groups Submit One-Year Proposal

Sunday performances for legitimate theatres in New York after Sept. 1 were approved by the councils of Actors' Equity and Chorus Equity at a meeting yesterday on the condition that performers be given double pay for each such performance and receive a calendar day off each week.

The approval with the double pay provision is regarded by the League of New York Theatres, the producers' association, as being equivalent to a veto of Sunday performances here, according to Dr. Henry Moskowitz, executive advisor to the League. Producers, it was stated, could take advantage of the new state law authorizing Sunday shows only in exceptional circumstances as a result of Equity's ruling. Few such performances are to be expected, it was said.

In sanctioning the Sunday perfor-

Awaits Action by Foley In Bronx Theatres

The I.T.O.A. is inviting a test case on chance games and giveaways and will most likely have Milton C. Weisman, the unit's attorney, represent it as soon as District Attorney Foley of the Bronx starts cracking down on exhibitors.

The organization wants to know how it stands on giveaways and chance games so that the air of uncertainty will be cleared. Reports have been current that License Commissioner Paul Moss has advised Foley to act and that exhibitors continuing the various practices after Aug. 12 will be brought to trial for violation of the lottery laws.

Some independents queried yesterday are anxious to have giveaways curtailed. The contention is that on the day articles are distributed the

Key City Grosses Hit Low of $989,500 as July Ends

Key city grosses hit a new low during the last week of July. For the first time since last September the total was below the million mark and was even under the low set during Christmas week.

The total was $989,500 for 126 theatres in 22 key cities. At times there have been 145 first runs operating in these keys. The previous week's low, which was already under anything recorded since last September, was $1,023,457.

Independents May Join in Operator Cuts

Talk Move and Vote to Wait for Circuits

Independent exhibitors may join the major circuits in a move for a downward revision of operators' wage scales in the local area, it was learned yesterday. A number of leading unaffiliated and major circuit heads met at the Astor to discuss the current labor situation. The session was called by Harry Brandt, president of the I. T. O. A. No action was taken, the consensus of opinion being to wait until the circuits act.

Charles C. Moskowitz of Loew's yesterday stated that the circuits are willing to negotiate with Local 306 at all times, but unless something is done by the end of the week notices given operators will stand and new men will replace them in the booths.

Although union officials declared they would not begin negotiations on a new wage scale until the cut in salary order was rescinded, Moskowitz stated the circuits would not comply in that respect. However, the notice given Local 306 men states

By RED KANN

THE Fox stockholders' committee of which L. T. Pidwell is chairman and which for the ten days past has been running a critical eye over the proposed Twentieth Century-Fox merger with due care that what it sees is promptly transmitted to the newspapers, despatched the other day to Sidney R. Kent a wordy questionnaire. It contained questions requiring at least 15 answers, many of which would involve detailed and lengthy study of costs, grosses and net receipts of individual Twentieth Century productions released during the past year. The committee concluded its questionnaire with "a prompt answer would be appreciated" request and the reminder that it had not yet received a reply to an earlier communication to Kent. . . .

Such missives from this same committee literally have been bombarding Kent's office, if copies of the correspondence released by it to the press may be accepted as a measure of what has been mailed to the Fox president. If answers to all of the committee's correspondence were supplied, the company's home office staff might be faced with the necessity of suspending normal business and diverting its time exclusively to hunting up replies for the Pidwell group. Observation of the accumulated letter-writing originated by it and that body's thirst for information displayed therein leads this department to wonder a trifle at the committee's own shyness at questions about itself. . . .

Reporters, including those from this publication, repeatedly have sought of the committee routine information about its motives and about the identity of its sponsors. This sort of questions-and-answers formula ordinarily is regarded as properly falling within the realm of public information whenever a group of this kind seeks attention in the press. Yet little or no data has been forthcoming from the Pidwell interests, whose identity and the identity of those who comprise them, remain as much in the dark as they did on the day of formation. . . .

Aside from the unenlightening and unsatisfactory statement made by the attorney for the committee that Pidwell is a former officer of a trust company, name unknown and not supplied, nothing has been divulged that serves in any way to identify its prime movers, their objectives or their representation. As the state of affairs stands up to this minute, it would seem that whatever questions are to be asked, the committee will do the asking and whatever answers are to be supplied should, apparently in the committee's mind, emanate from Fox and Kent. The childhood story about the goose and the gander apparently has slipped the memory of Henry L. Sperling, counsel for the committee, whose address is usually obligingly included in his frequent press communiques.

In the light of this well-stuffed question box and our always bended knee on the altar of reciprocity, this column is about to try its hand at fashioning a couple of question marks of its own for the committee to reduce to periods. This is neither by way of defense of the Twentieth Century-Fox merger nor is it by way of offensive against it, but, to be very frank about the matter, a curiosity to learn considerably more about the entire situation. We're off:

Who, again, is L. T. Pidwell?

Who is Cromwell Gibbons, the committee's secretary?

How many shares of Fox stock does each own?

How many shares of Fox stock is represented by the committee?

How many Fox stockholders and how many shares of stock have been added to the committee's representation since it was formed?

When did Pidwell and the other members of his committee first become Fox stockholders?

Who are the other members?

What are its objectives and what does it hope to accomplish?

What means does it plan to employ?

"A prompt answer to the above questions will be greatly appreciated," went from Sperling to Kent. It now goes from MOTION PICTURE DAILY to Sperling. . . .

King contends in papers now being drawn for presentation to court in support of his application for an injunction that Pathe's assets have been materially altered by the sale and other developments since the reorganization plan was approved by an extraordinary meeting of Pathe stockholders last March. His earlier application for an injunction was denied by the court.

Denver Giveaways Craze Flourishes

Egyptian and Oriental, hold bank night three nights a week, with the actual drawing in a different house each night. Besides this, the house holding the drawing gives attendance prizes of a suit of clothes or dress, and a watch.

Several others hold bank nights during the week. Two Fox houses, Mayan and Webber, are together on their proposition. Other bank nighters are the Alpine, Jewel, Roxy (in the colored section), Santa Fe and Washington Park.

The biggest crowds are drawn by the automobile giveaways. The Harry Huffman theatres have now given away 64 weekly Fords. When the NRA blue eagle was killed Huffman was giving away his Fords under protection of a temporary injunction issued by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. During the past seven weeks a cash refund of $100 to some lucky patron who has purchased a used Ford car in the week previous to the drawing, has been given also. Huffman has eight theatres, four of which are first run. The Denver, Broadway, Aladdin, Paramount, Rialto, Tabor, Bide-a-Wee and Bluebird are the "Ford Night" houses.

A group of seven theatres recently started giving away Plymouth cars as competition to the Huffman houses. The "Lucky 7" are the Denham (the only first run), Federal, Hiawatha, Mayan, Ogden, Rex and Webber. Both of these groups get around the lottery laws by giving away tickets to everybody. The numbered tickets are given outside the theatres, in drug stores, and along the streets. On drawing nights if the winning number is not in the theatre, the number is called outside.

The Denham, which is also in on the Plymouth night, plays screeno every Saturday night.

Four houses have grocery night or country store. Years ago this was the popular thing in Denver, but it seems the patrons like bigger and better things now. The Webber, Comet, Bide-a-Wee, and Bluebird give the groceries.

The nine houses without givaways are the RKO Orpheum (first run), Colorado, Gem, Isis, Majestic, Rivoli, State, Victory, and Mission.

Hugh Walpole Here En Route to Coast

wood some time ago working on "David Copperfield."

"I find film writing very nice, new and interesting, particularly for a man of my age who has been writing for more than 30 years," Walpole asserted. Asked if he would write a novel about Hollywood, he answered: "God forbid, no."

The English author stated he would leave for the coast by train Saturday. He has a contract with M-G-M for four months. M-G-M and the novelist have an oral arrangement whereby either can take up the pact for an additional two months. Walpole said he doesn't believe he will take up the additional time as he is anxious to go to New Zealand, his birthplace, in January. He added he hadn't been there since he was five years of age.

Albert Lewis, associate producer for Paramount, returned on the French liner after a month's vacation in London, Paris and the continent. He said he would remain in New York for several weeks before heading for Hollywood to start "The New Divorce" with Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard as the first of six he will make on the 1935-36 Paramount lineup.

E. W. Korngold, who arranged the music for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" with Max Reinhardt, was another passenger. He plans to stay in New York for about a week to confer with Oscar Hammerstein on the music for Jan Kiepura's first operetta for Paramount. After this picture, Korngold will join Reinhardt at the Warner studios to assist the latter on his second Warner picture. It is possible the Viennese composer will work on another Warner film.

Actors Want Doubled Pay For Sundays

mances under the conditions laid down, Equity stipulated that its approval was being given only for a trial period of one year. Whether this was in contemplation of revoking the sanction entirely or of revising the double pay provision at the end of the year could not be learned.

The councils' vote was guided, it was said, by the largest number of votes cast for any of the five alternative proposals relating to Sunday performances which were submitted to the memberships of both organizations for balloting during the period from June 21 to Aug. 1. The national balloting on the subject paralleled the voting of those in attendance at Equity's annual membership meeting held May 27 last.

The proposal for sanctioning the performances for a one year trial period with double pay for each Sunday performance and a day off a week received 49.28 per cent of the votes cast. The vote against Sunday performances on any condition received 38.21 per cent of the ballots cast. Unconditional acceptance of Sunday performances received 2.16 per cent of the votes, and acceptance for a trial period of one year without conditions of any kind received 7.33 per cent of the votes. Various other suggestions written in on the ballots by members accounted for another 3.02 per cent of the votes.

Equity's current regulations permit members to participate in eight performances a week, and in additional performances at one-eighth of their weekly salary for each performance. Under yesterday's action, members of Equity must be paid two-eighths of their weekly salary for each Sunday performance.

that in the event a new wage scale is agreed upon, it will be retroactive to Aug. 12.

Meanwhile, members of Local 306 will meet this morning at Odd Fellows' Hall in Brooklyn to discuss a strike move. Affiliated member unions of the I. A. T. S. E. will go out in sympathy, it was stated. It is anticipated that the members will delegate authority to the administration and its executive committee to decide future moves.

While both the circuits and unions are standing pat, it is expected that meetings between the two groups will be held in an effort to avert the threatened strike.

Union officials declare they have been overlooked by the arbitrary cut orders from the circuits, holding that at no time since the new administration was installed have Loew's, RKO or Skouras consulted with them on terms of a new wage scale. At present, it is stated 700 men in 150 theatres are affected. If the independents align with the majors, 1,700 card men in approximately 600 theatres will be included.

Another meeting of unaffiliated exhibitors will be called by a special committee some time next week.

Buy "Rebel" for Temple

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6.—In line with Darryl Zanuck's policy to provide more dramatic stories for Shirley Temple, Twentieth Century-Fox has purchased "The Littlest Rebel," stage play by Edward Peple. The studio also owns "Captain January" and "Poor Little Rich Girl," which will be used as Temple vehicles.

Several months ago, M-G-M, which owned screen rights to "The Littlest Rebel," tried to borrow Shirley from Fox for the role, and at that time declined to sell the property when the loan was refused.

Masquers Set Outing

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6.—The annual Masquers' Mess has been set for Sunday, Aug. 11 at the Uplifter's Ranch, according to President Frank Morgan. Sport events, including the baseball game are now being lined up by the house committee.

Many of Hollywood's players and producers are being tested for spots on the baseball teams.

Openings and New Theatres Gain Widely

Reopenings, new construction and improvements are gaining momentum. In some sections—Wisconsin, the South and in Texas—the larger circles are starting expansion moves.

Installation of cooling systems has spread as a result of the recent heat wave, both in large cities and smaller communities. Renovations are common everywhere.

Connecticut Takes Disappoint

New Haven, Aug. 6.—Summer film business has not come up to expectations in a number of spots in spite of the heavy influx of vacationists, but 21 CCC camps spotted throughout the state are proving a help. Exhibitors are making special concessions to the men in a number of places.

The Community at Kent has been closed. Dave Maglena, manager of the Rialto, Windsor Locks, has leased the house.

Remodeling and installation of sound is under way at the Princess, Rockville, which has been closed for several years.

Warners have renewed their lease on the Strand, Waterbury, with Poli-New England Theatres, owners of the building.

Fox Gets Two in Denver

Denver, Aug. 6.—Rick Ricketson, head of Fox Intermountain Corp., has signed a five-year lease on the Ogden and Hiawatha, in Denver, as part of an expansion policy being carried on by Fox interests. Included in the deal was the Liberty Bell at Leadville, Col.

H. A. Goodridge, who has been manager of the Ogden for eight years, will remain under Fox as will Louis Williams, manager of the Hiawatha. Bob Nelson will manage the Liberty Bell. The Webber, Isis and Mayan are also operated by Fox in Denver.

Set Harris-Alvin Opening

Pittsburgh, Aug. 6.—The Harris-Alvin, which has been closed for several weeks for installation of a cooling plant, will reopen Aug. 23, with "Curly Top." Stage shows, it is expected, will be resumed shortly thereafter.

Also slated to reopen at that time is Mort Shea's Fulton, which shuts down for two months every summer. Although no picture has yet been set, it will more than likely be Will Rogers' "Steamboat Round the Bend."

L. & J. Get Athens Site

Athens, Ga., Aug. 6.—Lucas & Jenkins have added another link in their circuit, with the purchase of the old Y. M. C. A. building here, for remodeling into a theatre. Plans for the new structure are in the hands of Roy A. Benjamin of Jacksonville and call for a seating capacity of 950. The estimated price paid for the Y. M. C. A. building was said to be $26,000.

To Build at Leesburg

Leesburgh, Fla., Aug. 6.—A new theatre will be constructed here soon, according to Earle M. Fain, manager of the Palace. The new playhouse will be built of gray brick and will seat 500.

To Open at St. Louis

St. Louis, Aug. 6.—The Shubert, dark since July 5, will be reopened Aug. 10 with "The Irish in Us."

Negotiations are under way for the opening of the Grand Opera House as a dramatic stock house.

Open at Chipley, Fla.

Chipley, Fla., Aug. 6.—The Manavista has opened here. The theatre is located in the center of the business district, and is easily accessible from all points of the city.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"She Married Her Boss"

(Columbia)

Hollywood, Aug. 6.—Aided by an irritating and likable brat, Edith Fellowes; supported by Melvyn Douglas and using Michael Bartlett for promised romance, Claudette Colbert gives attractive allurement to a familiar story which Gregory LaCava has directed well for laughs and drama.

Miss Colbert, executive secretary to Douglas, department store owner, marries her stoogy boss who continues to treat her as a business associate and housekeeper. When Bartlett lightly intrudes he and Miss Colbert have an innocent fling in the department store window after office hours. Douglas, seeing the Colbert-Bartlett photograph in a tabloid, comes to his senses and together they go window smashing with bricks and racing cops to a steamer.

While Miss Colbert has had more meaty roles, her talent makes the secretary human, gay and intriguing. Douglas looks and acts romantic, but sympathy runs away from him toward the end. Bartlett warbles one song well. Edith Fellowes is a stand-out as a problem child.

Jean Dixon, Raymond Walburn and Katharine Alexander support competently. Clara Kimball Young, in a small part, drew well earned applause.

Sidney Buchman's screen play stresses comedy from Thyra Samter Winslow's story. Production values are all good. After editing, the picture should give a good account of itself with Miss Colbert, laughter and Edith Fellowes highlights for exploitation. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 92 minutes. "G."

New London Studio To Use Technicolor

London, July 24.—Charles Boot of Pinewood Studios, Ltd., says his company is planning its plant with a view to extensive production in Technicolor. Two of the three stages to be erected immediately will be available for hire, he said. The other would be occupied by British National Films, Ltd., which plans color features at an early date.

Boot, with J. Arthur Rank of British National Films, is interested financially in the Technicolor London plant, which will be established at Denham, close to the "London" and Pinewood studios.

Boot is a principal of Henry Boot & Sons, Ltd., one of the biggest building firms in England, and the Pinewood Studios, built in the grounds of the Grant Morden mansion, Iver Hall, will probably be part of a big scheme of real estate development.

London Films Prod. studio at Denham will also be equipped for Technicolor and the first British all-color feature will be made there.

tion of the measure, the Senate adopted an amendment offered by Senator Borah of Idaho under which decision as to the granting of injunctions tying up the distribution of infringing pictures, papers, etc., would rest entirely with the courts. As originally written, the bill provided no injunction could prevent the exhibition of a film already produced, except where the court was satisfied that the infringement was deliberate or the infringer not substantial enough to insure payment of damages.

A strong defense of A. S. C. A. P. by Senator Wagner of New York preluded the presentation of his objections to the bill, which won an agreement that the provisions for the $250 damage minimum would be amended to require the courts to award punitive damages additionally to discourage infringement.

Wagner also complained of the provision giving the buyer the right to produce a picture, the right also to exhibit it, contending that the two rights should be acquired separately, so that, in the case of a play running on Broadway, the holder of the right to produce the film would not be able to show his picture in competition with the original presentation.

Strike Voted By Operators For Saturday

Decide on Move Unless Cuts Are Rescinded

With the circuits standing pat on their demands for a 41 per cent cut in operators' wages, Local 306 members yesterday voted to call a general strike Saturday unless the cut is rescinded. More than 1,500 members of the local voted in person or by proxy at the session, held at Odd Fellows' Hall in Brooklyn, and presided over by Joseph D. Basson, head of the local.

Neither side has made any moves to negotiate a new scale. The circuits declare it is up to the union and a spokesman for Basson said that the Senate Passes Copyright Bill; House May Not Act

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—With only brief discussion, marked by admission by Senator Copeland of New York that he realized protest would be useless, the Senate today passed the Duffy Copyright Bill and sent it to the House for concurrent action. Little hope for House action is seen at this session.

The bill as passed was changed in but few respects by the Senate, the most important amendment being offered by Senator Borah and providing that the courts may issue injunctions against exhibition of infringing films where the plaintiff can show that the defendant is unable to pay adequate damages for infringement or that production was undertaken with actual knowledge of the existence of copyright or defendant's knowledge that he was infringing.

It is not expected that the measure

Wm. Fox Asks $20,958,333 On Sale Deal

Says Companies and Bank Broke Agreements

William Fox has filed suit for $20,958,333.33, with interest and costs, against Fox Film Corp., Fox Theatres Corp., General Theatres Equipment Co., Chase National Bank and Chase Securities Corp., and directors and officers of all of them on the ground that they have failed to carry out agreements with him and have participated in unlawful acts resulting in the decline of security values of Fox Film, Fox Theatres and General Theatres Equipment.

It is a new maneuver in the kaleidoscopic legal tangle in which he has been both plaintiff and defendant since stepping out of control of his film and theatre companies in April, 1930.

Fox is already a defendant in a suit for an accounting brought by stockholders and creditors of Fox Theatres Corp., in which hearings have been held before former Nassau District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, sitting as referee at Mineola. Fox is a resident of Nassau County. He had testified that all of his financial records from 1925 to 1929 have disappeared.

He said, however, that if films sent to Germany have been produced, acted or written by Jews "this must be openly and honorably stated."

next move must be made by the circuits. In voting to support Basson, the membership agreed that no negotiations will be considered by the union until the cut order is withdrawn. The spokesman for the Local 306 head also stated that the unanimous approval of a general strike has brought together the various factions of the union which have been at odds for some time.

It was stated that a war chest of a substantial amount has been pledged for the fight. Twelve affiliated unions are lined up to join Local 306 in the walkout, it was said.

At the Skouras office it was denied that a cut order had been issued to the operators, but at Local 306 headquarters it was stated that this circuit is seeking a 66 per cent reduction in booth scales. The Music Hall is affected by the move, union officials hold, inasmuch as L. E. Thompson, president of RKO, and Gus Eysell, attended the joint conference Monday when the union men walked out.

Several members made speeches at the union meeting yesterday morning and a number of them went on record for picketing if such a move was deemed necessary. The strike vote was in the form of a rising approval.

Move to End Chance Games Is City-Wide who, in turn, passed it along to the police headquarters in that borough for action. Yesterday MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned Commissioner Moss had forwarded to Foley the names of four theatres with another request that action be taken to end games of chances which these houses allegedly had been running. Specific detail as to practices as well as the names of the theatres could not be learned either at Moss's office, Foley's or at police headquarters in the Bronx.

Exactly how diligently city officials will pursue the order is understood to revolve around the outcome of the impending action against the four unnamed houses in the Bronx. In the meantime, I. T. O. A. members and distributors of games of chance and giveaways with a lottery slant declare they would welcome a test case.

will show the top attractions from Paramount, M-G-M and Fox, as at present. The Paramount will draw from United Artists, Warner-First National, Universal and Radio. This will replace the present dual feature policy at the Paramount.

Hamrick's Blue Mouse and Music Box will become "extended run" houses, playing attractions after one week at the other key houses. This policy will be varied, with original first runs in from time to time. The Orpheum, originally scheduled as the vaudeville-film house, will probably remain on its current dual feature policy without stage shows.

Schreiber Is Victor In New Prize Battle house operated by Ben and Lou Cohen.

Judge Merriam, in refusing to hear arguments on the injunction, ordered attorneys to file briefs.

Schreiber resumed cash prizes last week after he received a hearing before Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein on charges of violating the state lottery laws. Judge Stein took the matter under advisement until Sept. 2.

On June 28 Judge Clyde I. Webster denied Schreiber a permanent injunction restraining Prosecutor Duncan McCrea from interferring with the giveaways. His arrest on the state charge followed that action.

Charges of discrimination and political wire-pulling have entered the case, Schreiber alleging that the prosecutor singled out the Colonial and Majestic to attack and told him that other theatres had "put the heat on him" to do so. McCrea denied this, at the same time charging that Schreiber has used every political influence possible to get him to permit use of the prizes.

In the meantime, Schreiber is continuing to use them.

U. S. Films Gaining In the Netherlands

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—American films gained in the Netherlands during the first half of the year, according to a report from Consul W. M. Chase in Amsterdam to the U. S. Department of Commerce. American features accounted for 52 per cent of those exhibited, compared with 43 per cent in 1934.

The popularity of locally-produced pictures in the Dutch language declined. When these pictures were shown in the first part of 1934, throngs of curious people, eager to support a national film industry, patronized theatres. The end of 1934 and the beginning of 1935, however, brought a waning of the curiosity.

Following the United States, the countries which account for films in the Netherlands are, in the order of their importance: Germany, France, Great Britain, Austria, Czechoslovakia.

English Race For Newsreel Theatre Spots

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, July 30.—The race for news theatre sites in London is on, following on the recent statement of the formation of a Trans-Lux chain by Lord Beaverbrook and Will Evans. It was announced yesterday that a 450-seater would be built at the corner of Edgware Road and Oxford Street and a 350 capacity house included in Mount Royal, the residential block favored by American film visitors. This makes three news theatres scheduled for erection within the Marble Arch area.

While details of the affiliations of these new enterprises are not officially released a desire on the part of Capital and Provincial News Theatres, Ltd., to get ahead of Trans-Lux activities is being read into some of the new plans. C. & P. recently made a £40,000 public issue.

Ernest Brown, Minister of Labor, stated in the House of Commons, in a written reply to Sir Ernest Graham Little, that labor permits to "aliens" for the purpose of employment in the British film industry had increased during the last two years. Exact figures were not available, he stated, but careful inquiry was made in each case to insure that a British subject was not available.

This official reply underlines the prevailing policy in England. Permits are obtained without difficulty for artists, directors and technicians. The ban on lower paid routine labor is as strong as ever.

Charles Schlaifer, A. H. Blank advertising manager, delivered an eulogy which caught Abbott by surprise, as it did most of the membership.

Schlaifer, after reading excerpts from the press in which Abbott's long career had been extolled, said:

"In the six years I've been calling on Abbott no less than twice each week as a press agent, I'll say that never once did he give me anything extra in the way of space or advantage. Because of his insistence on fair play and sportsmanship, he has won the deepest respect any showman could give another man."

Wm. Fox Asks $20,958,333 On Sale Deal

A. Jenkins, general counsel of Fox Film, Fox alleges that—

Fox Film and Fox Theatres have failed to carry out an agreement that he be elected and continued as chairman of advisory boards from May 1, 1930, to May 1, 1935.

That the two companies have failed to pay him $500,000 per year in monthly installments from May 1, 1930, for five years in return for assignment of protection on his American Tri-Ergon and Grandeur patents and the assignment of 250 shares of Fox-Hearst Corp.

They failed to supply three-year contracts to 10 employes and to live up to them; to designate the estate of Fox as the beneficiary of $3,500,000 in life insurance policies owned by the companies; to carry out an agreement to repurchase 87,000 shares of Fox Theatres Class A stock from Bankers Securities Corp. and to protect Fox personally from liability in connection with the transaction; refused to protect Fox from liability in connection with any suit or action arising out of any transaction relating to the conduct of the business of Fox Theatres or its subsidiaries.

Hits Chase Control

Fox alleges that, commencing about the time of the transfer of control, Chase National Bank and Chase Securities Corp. assumed control and the film and theatre companies and "connived in the repudiation of these agreements"; cooperated in depleting the assets of the companies, with the result that Fox has been sued in N. Y. Supreme Court by the Chicago Title & Trust Co. and the companies have refused to contribute to the defense. This action presumably grew out of a personal guarantee by Fox for the payment of $1,000,000 to Herbert Lubin in connection with the purchase of securities of Roxy Theatres Corp.

He also charges that the companies have diverted business from the Fox Theatre in San Francisco to the Warfield, and have refused to help defend a suit brought by the Capitol Co. of California in connection with defaults on this theatre.

Cites San Francisco Case

In the San Francisco case Fox says he has been compelled to pay $3,750 as a premium to the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Maryland; $94,652.91 rental on the theatre and additional expenses totaling $40,000, a total of $138,402.91, and is liable for further sums in excess of $2,000,000 on the unexpired portion of the lease.

Fox alleges, too, that the Chase Bank and its securities affiliated financed syndicates to deal in the stocks of Fox Film, Fox Theatres and General Theatres Equipment and loaned Pynchon & Co. 26,600 shares of Fox Class A stock which was never returned, because Pynchon went into bankruptcy.

In detailing his claim for damages Fox says that he has been damaged to the extent of $1,458,333.33, plus interest, as a result of failure to pay him $500,000 annually in monthly installments from June 30, 1932, to May 1, 1935. He also claims that as a result of declines in securities of Fox Film, Fox Theatres and General Theatre Equipment, due to unlawful acts of the defendants, he has been damaged to the extent of $12,000,000, and that because of repudiation of other obligations to him he has been damaged in the further sum of $7,500,000.

Hirsh, Newman, Reass & Becker are Fox's attorneys.

Says Legion Added To Hays' Influence

OMAHA, Aug. 7.—John Boettiger, assistant to Will H. Hays, passing through here en route to Hollywood, said in an interview today that the recent Legion of Decency drive had entrenched Hays in his position stronger than ever.

"The industry, finding itself a target of attack, gave Mr. Hays greater power of action," he declared.

The middle west is more keenly alive and responsive to the amusement business than the east, Boettiger said. He declared that newspapers and their staffs in this section show more willingness to cooperate and give information than in the east, where he had, practically, "to break into" the news rooms. Because the amount of daily information on films is being increased, motion picture editors tell him that the circulation of fan magazines is growing everywhere, Boettiger said.

Eastman's 24-Week Net Hits $7,048,951

The report says the improvement during the first six months of the year has been continued.

Income from operations was $10,708,488. Interest and dividends totaled $558,933. Deductions totaled $6,851,165. Profits on sale of securities were $197,788.

The company today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents on the common for the first time since 1931. The regular $1.25 a share on the common and $1.50 on the six per cent preferred also were declared.

The extra disbursement is due to increased business that began in 1933 when the common was on an annual $3 dividend basis. In the last two years, the common dividend has been lifted twice until it is now at $5, the same as in boom years. In a letter to stockholders, directors state that business showed new impetus for the first six months of the year.

granted by the Exchange yesterday consist of $27,500,000 principal amount of 20-year, six per cent sinking fund debentures, due Jan. 1, 1955; 275,000 shares of first preferred of $100 par value; 644,181 shares of second preferred of $10 par value, and 4,115,214 shares of common of $1 par value.

The company's application notes that, due to seasonal variations in film companies' earnings, an annual earning rate "cannot be inferred from the results for any one quarter." The application adds that further decreases in earnings for the second and third quarters may be expected as a result of "a reorganization of the studio management" which was begun some six months ago "and is still in process."

"This has temporarily slowed down production," the application recites, "which will have an adverese effect upon earnings especially during the low seasonal period. Consequently, it is expected that the company will show reduced earnings for the second quarter and particularly for the third or September quarter."

$370,000 Claims vs. Paramount Allowed

Claims of the Circle and Indiana, Indianapolis, against Paramount were allowed in the amount of $370,000 in a report made yesterday by Special Master John E. Joyce. An additional $35,000 involved in the rent claims is subject to further contesting before the referee. Samuel Spring was attorney for the claimants in the action.

The bonds posted by the Paramount trustees, Charles D. Hilles and Eugene W. Leake, were reduced from $100,000 to $10,000 by Federal Court order yesterday. The reduction is in line with the minor role the trustees will play in Paramount from now on until the time of their final discharge by the court.

which is now up to the board to pass.

Under the terms of the one-year agreement, Hecht and MacArthur will make two features at Astoria, each to cost $250,000, but subject to revision provided additional finances are needed. The budget on the third film has not yet been set.

Production budget of the first two made by the producers on last season's schedule was $200,000. "Once in a Blue Moon," the third feature with Jimmy Savo cost around $300,000. The deal also provides that two scripts must be completed before the first picture is placed in work so that Hecht and MacArthur can immediately start on the second without delay.

Arthur Cole on Vacation

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 7. — Arthur Cole, office manager for Paramount, left Aug. 2, for a lodge near Laramie, Wyo., for a two weeks' vacation to be spent mostly in fishing.

Short Subjects

"Going Places No. 12-13"

(Universal)

The two latest reels of this series maintain the pace set by forerunners of the group. Lowell Thomas does the off-screen explanatory dialogue with his customary personal touch to enhance the entertainment value.

No. 12 takes the audience through Mexico City, the Garden of the Nations at Radio City and then to Brownsville, Tex., where 11-year-old Manuel King shows how he handles a cage of lions.

No. 13 starts off with scenes of the old Spanish missions of Texas, then switches to Dodge City, Kan., with its old Boothill Cemetery and monuments to bad men of the old west. Modern pottery and its manufacture are next seen. The reel closes with shots of the African exhibit in the Museum of Natural History in New York.

Highly recommended. Production Code Seals, Nos. 0494, 0495. Running time, 10 mins. each. "G."

"My Green Fedora"

(Vitaphone)

In telling the story of the little rabbit which disobeyed its mother and failed to watch his little brother so that he was kidnapped by a badger, Leon Schlesinger here presents one of his better and more entertaining Merrie Melody cartoons in color. Children will go for this and adults will appreciate the antics of the characters.

Highly recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 741. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"The Ashton Dog Derby"

(Harold Austin)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 7. — This is a good, fast, one-reeler depicting the annual dog derby in Ashton, Wyo. Plenty of spills and laughs in this one, which also features a race by kids. Dogs and kids run wild and the carnival spirit is certain to catch any audience. Although there is a goodly portion of excitement in the start and finish of the race, laughs are the main audience appeal in this one. Review without production code seal. Running time, 9 minutes. "G."

"Grampy"

(Paramount)

This Betty Boop cartoon has Betty attending a party given by her grandfather. She sings a song in her peculiar style and does several dances. The film is up to the standard of others of the series, and where these cartoons are liked this should go over. Production Code Seal No. 0489. Running time, 4 mins. "G."

"The Bronco Buster"

(Universal)

This cartoon has Oswald, a hair tonic salesman, who turns bronco buster in order to eat. His antics are not much, but those of the horse he rides might get a few laughs from audiences. The musical accompaniment, which tells the story in song as it unfolds on the screen, is good. Production Code Seal, No. 939. Running time, 5 mins. "G."

Court Refuses Quick Hearing In St. Louis

Government Stymied in Injunction Plea

St. Louis, Aug. 8.—The Department of Justice met a setback in court here today in its attempt to secure a temporary injunction to prevent Warners and other major distributors from continuing an alleged agreement not to book first runs for the Missouri, Ambassador and New Grand Central theatres.

U. S. District Judge Charles A. Dewey of Des Moines, summoned here to hear the case, said he could see no emergency involved and refused to set Aug. 19 for a hearing unless specifically ordered to do so by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The temporary injunction was sought on the ground that distributors were persisting in a violation of the anti-trust laws.

Defendants, all but one of whom were named in the anti-trust indictments returned last spring, are: War-

Columbus, Aug. 8.—Floods are raging in central and eastern Ohio, hitting many exhibitors. The entire course of the Muskingum River, approximately 50 miles, is overflowed, and the water is rising in the Ohio, Scioto, Hocking and other rivers. Heavy property damage and some loss of life is reported.

Crop damage is estimated in the millions.

Business streets in Coshocton, Cambridge and Massillon are under four feet of water. Caldwell, New Philadelphia, New Comerstown, Millersburg, Dover and several smaller spots are isolated, with railroad tracks washed out and highways blocked.

Delay Arbitration, Louis Geller Away

Due to the departure last night of Louis Geller, secretary of the New York Film Board of Trade, on the Majestic for a European vacation, all arbitration cases on the calendar have been postponed indefinitely.

Up-State Pool

RKO, now operating Keith's on its own and the Paramount for Paramount and the Strand for Warners in Syracuse, are discussing a pool with the Schine circuit, operators of the Eckel in that city. K.C. Talking Film Setback On Giveaways

Kansas City, Aug. 8.—The question of setting back runs in houses using giveaways may be an issue here soon. The matter probably will come up before exhibitors buy new season product, although up to the present nothing definite has been done.

Two possible policies are being evolved—inclusion in contracts by producers of a rider along the lines suggested by Ed Kuykendall of the M.P.T.O.A., and a voluntary agreement among exhibitors. One barrier to the first is distributors' fear of court action; one to the latter is the problem of securing an agreement among exhibitors. A partial survey indicates a majority of exhibitors

Deadline Near On Operators' Strike Threat

Prediction Made of Last Minute Compromise

With the deadline drawing near for Local 306 men to strike as a result of an unanimous vote last Wednesday, circuits are showing no concern. Several circuit heads contacted yesterday stated they did not care what Local 306 will do tomorrow. The theatre officials emphasized the fact that they would not withdraw the 41 per cent cut notices as demanded by the operators' union before the local would participate in negotiations for a new wage scale.

The RKO and Skouras notice is effective tomorrow, while the Loew order starts Aug. 12. However, sentiment in union headquarters leans to a general walkout tomorrow, regardless of the date in the notices.

While theatre men declare they are prepared to meet any emergency which may arise, the consensus of opinion in the trade is that there will be no walkout and an agreement will be reached between the two factions by tomorrow. Both union and circuit heads declare no meetings are set for a general discussion of differences.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT is a lengthy and largely familiar brief which William Fox's attorneys prepared in connection with their client's suit for $20,958,333.33 against Fox Film, Fox Theatres, Chase National, General Theatres Equipment, Inc., and a long array of officials, past and present, of both Fox corporations. One point which arrested these eyes and impressed as an historic tidbit not hitherto known or, if known, certainly not generally so, discusses the patents listed in the name of the American Tri-Ergon Corp., the stock of which reputedly was ninety per cent owned by Fox, the man. As part of the transaction made on April 5, 1930, between Fox and G.T.E. by which the latter company, then actively in the hands of Harley L. Clarke, bought control was a clause granting American Tri-Ergon patents to the Fox enterprises for twenty-five years on a royalty-free basis. . . .

The summons and complaint, among other documents, reproduces the text of the contract of sale. The interesting patent proviso, heavily laden with legal phraseology, follows:

That, on or before April 30, 1930, he will deliver or cause to be delivered unto [Fox] Film and [Fox] Theatres an agreement between American Tri-Ergon Corp. as licensor and Fox Film Corp., Fox Theatres Corp., and their subsidiary or controlled corporations, as Licensees under the terms of which any and all of said Licensees shall be granted non-exclusive, non-assignable, royalty-free licenses under all patents or patent rights now owned or controlled by American Tri-Ergon Corp., its successors and subsidiaries, and under all patents and patents rights useful in connection with recording or reproducing sound in connection with pictures which at any time within 25 years shall be owned or controlled by said American Tri-Ergon Corp., its successors and subsidiaries, provided, however, and (if it shall be necessary for the purpose of providing for the holders of the remaining 10 per cent of the stock of American Tri-Ergon Corp.) Film and Theatres, their successors and subsidiary or controlled corporations may be required to pay royalties at a rate not exceeding 10 per cent of the lowest rate, from time to time charged by American Tri-Ergon Corp. to any other licensee; and provided, further, in the event that the Vendor shall be unable, on or before the 30th day of April, 1930, to procure the consent of the 10 per cent minority common stock interest in said American Tri-Ergon Corp., or of the director representing said 10 per cent interest, to the execution and delivery by American Tri-Ergon Corp. of the license agreement aforesaid, then, and in such event the Vendor shall, in lieu of the delivery unto the Purchaser of said license agreement, on or before said 30th day of April, 1930, dispose of his 90 per cent common stock interest in American Tri-Ergon Corp. in a similar manner and upon similar terms and conditions as those hereinafter prescribed in respect to the 50 per cent common stock interest of the Vendor in Grandeur, Inc., [the wide screen process of that day] except that wherever 50 per cent is referred to in respect to said Grandeur, Inc., 90 per cent shall be provided in respect to American Tri-Ergon Corp.

Fox, the man, bases his current action, or one phase of it, on the charge he was to receive $500,000 a year for five years as head of an advisory board and that payments were cut off on May 31, 1932. The supposition to the layman's mind, therefore, is the patent litigation which gave this business sensational spinal shivers some months back until the United States Supreme Court sent Fox, the man, down to defeat was predicated on the claim the arrangement did not hold partially because the half million yearly payments which were provided in the original sale were reputedly not met. Legally, what follows may be blown skyhigh, but it seems logical to assume that, since Fox, the corporation, won out over Fox, the man, the twenty-five year protective period on the once hotly disputed patents continues to prevail. . . .

That the Purchaser will procure the name "Fox" to remain on all theatres of Film and Theatres and their respective subsidiaries and controlled corporations now using said name for a period of two (2) years from May 1, 1930, with the right to said corporation respectively to use said name for a further three (3) year period beyond said two-year period.

This clause, too, is from the Fox complaint which credits its genesis to the selfsame, five-year old contract which vested control of the Fox companies in Clarke. It is on the record, of course, that the Fox companies saw fit to exercise the three-year right to the original name beyond the first two-year period and up to, as well as beyond, May 1, 1935. It is interesting as well to remind of next week and August 15 as the day on which Twentieth Century is to take its precedence in billing over Fox and to recall stories, widely circulated by now, that the grafting job is merely the opening step in a process which ultimately will fade Fox Film completely out of the corporate monicker of the organization. . . .

Dates in connection with all of this which may convey something or nothing:

July 2. — The summons and complaint in the William Fox action were drawn and notarized.

August 7.—The summons and complaint were served on Felix A. Jenkins for the Fox companies.

August 15.—Stockholders are to meet to approve the merger of Twentieth Century with Fox Film.

favor setting back pictures played with giveaways as much as 28 days.

Elmer C. Rhoden would like to see premiums set back. He believes the solution lies in the use of the M.P.T.O.A. contract rider. He said he believed producers would use it if first run houses ask for it.

"We want to move up, not back," commented W. D. Fulton, operator of five independent houses. "It is better the way it is."

A number of showmen would like to see less giving away and more showmanship, but are using various kinds of promotions for competitive reasons. These would like to see pictures with which exhibitors use giveaways set back.

At present distributors follow no definite policy in differentiating between houses which use giveaways and those which do not. Even on double bills the policy is not uniform.

RKO Deal Made on Arbitration Award

000 in cash, is a contingent release of RKO from its leases on the Apollo and Hollywood. Both houses are to be taken over by Loew's under new leases now awaiting official approval.

In the breach of lease case RKO was charged with failing to play the same product at the Apollo and Hollywood that was played in other RKO houses, as required under the lease. The arbitration award, in addition to the financial damages, directed RKO to make specific performance of the leases at both houses in the future. This was described as "impossible" by RKO attorneys at the time of the award.

Also involved in the case was the release by Loew's last year of certain product it had contracted for, which it permitted RKO to play in houses not in competition with Loew's. This release aided RKO in avoiding a product shortage in the metropolitan area. The Apollo and Hollywood, however, competed with Loew's Avenue B and Delancey.

The case was heard over a period of several months before a board of three arbitrators, and the litigation costs were estimated at more than $50,000. The award was confirmed by the county court over RKO's objections. Both parties were to bear the cost of the arbitration equally. The reported amount of the settlement suggests that RKO's payment will be sufficient to cover Clinton-Apollo's share of the arbitration costs.

I. E. Lambert of the RKO legal department could not be reached for comment on the settlement.

Sydney Sees General and Fuller Split

By CLIFF HOLT

Sydney, Australia, July 16.—(By Airmail Via London)—General Theatres Corp. will terminate its contract with Fuller's Theatres, Ltd., on Dec. 31, 1936, unless a new agreement is reached before that date. Six months' formal notice has been served. The agreement was originally drawn up for five years, embracing the Hoyt's Greater Union and Fuller's Theatre groups, in an arrangement whereby G. T. C. bought product for all Fuller's houses and split the pooled profits of certain Melbourne and West Australian theatres with Fuller's. A clause in the agreement gave either party leave to cancel the arrangement after three years, with a stipulated six months' notice. Cancellation of the contract does not end business relationship between the corporation and Fuller's. A. Ben Fuller, on behalf of Fuller's, indicates negotiations were pending for renewal of the contract.

"Hoyt's will cut out free gifts if competitive exhibitors will do the same. We want to give a lead. If any exhibitor operating in competition with us in any centre at all wants to discontinue the gift stunt, he only has to say the word and we will stop immediately in that centre."

Charles E. Munro, head of Hoyt's, thus described his company's attitude toward the free-gift racket which is assuming alarming proportions in the Sydney suburbs.

Although a meeting of the N. S. W. Exhibitors' Ass'n was called last week to stem the racket, no agreement was reached and present indications are that no limit will be set by some exhibitors, who believe that gifts build business. The latest on the giveaway list is the Sydney Lyric, a city house operating as a first run. In some cases, suburban theatres have extended the gift nights from mid-week showings to Saturday, their strongest night.

Polish Film Bank to Finance Production

Warsaw, Aug. 8.—Because Polish production is not able to provide the home market with sufficient domestic films, a film bank will be organized.

Producers who have not enough cash at hand will pay a certain percentage of the capital necessary to the bank which will then finance the whole production, receiving rights in the finished film. The bank will equally hand credits at low rates for the construction of new theatres throughout the country. The newly-built theatres will be organized in a trust thereby guaranteeing for the film bank a safe outlet for the productions financed.

A co-operative society of players also will be formed.

Charter Dalton Corp.

Albany, Aug. 6.—Dalton Operating Corp. has been chartered to exhibit films by Harold J. Cleary, Matt J. Madden and Matie Hammerstein.

Variety Club Chatter

Detroit

Detroit, Aug. 8.—About 60 barkers and their guests attended the second monthly Variety Club golf tournament at the Birmingham Country Club.

Chet Bell, who with Otto Bolle composed the committee in charge, emerged the winner, with an 86 gross. Jack Morgan and Harold Sandelman, winner of last month's play at Meadowbrook, were second and third with 88 and 89.

Al Mertz, RKO branch manager, captured low net with 110-40-70, while Jack Saxe, Republic office manager, and Louis Giffels, manager of Olympia, tied for second and third nets of 71. H. M. Richey won the approach and putt contest with Carl Newman and Giffels second and third. The driving contest was won by Alex Schreiber, who beat Joe Lenahan by three inches. Saxe was third in this event. Bell, Newman and Jack Stewart were one, two, three in the low score contest.

Attendance prizes were won by Milton Cohen, Eddie Murphy, Wade Allen, Harry Lush, Jack Schmitzer, Alex Schreiber, I. H. Pollard, Carl Shalit, Adolph Goldberg, Stewart, Bell and Eddie Loye.

It was announced that the final tourney of the season would be held at Franklin Hills August 28 with Max Smitt as chairman.

Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Aug. 8.—Robert Stevens, booker for Paramount, won the Variety Club cup for the best score at the annual golf tournament. It was held at the Hillcrest Country Club.

John Howard, manager for Paramount and chairman of the golf committee, presented the cup. A dinner followed the tournament.

Omaha

Omaha, Aug. 8.—George Givot back in the home town with a tentative engagement with an outdoor night club, was principal speaker at the Monday luncheon. In addition to giving off some jokes and some of his garbled talk, Givot made a few straightforward remarks.

John Gillin, Jr., was king; Bill Foley, Sam Epstein and S. J. Francis were jesters.

Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—The Tent No. 13 social season resumes August 15 when an outing, golf, dinner, etc., will be held at Cranmoor Country Club, Toms River, N. J. Kings for the day will be Iz Hirschblond, Traco Theatre, Toms River, N. J., and Ben Blumberg, National Theatre Supply Co. A pleasant afternoon and evening, with a clambake in addition, head the schedule. It is expected that several hundred will attend.

First Variety Club golf tournament will be held Sept. 20 at a place not yet determined. A committee is soon to be appointed.

The club will keep the Rittenhouse Square quarters open all summer. Sunday night trade shows continue.

Lachman Suffers

Hollywood, Aug. 8.—Harry Lachman says he suffered and suffered and suffered from the heat, the dust, the roads and the food all the way to Yellowstone on his fishing trip. But the thing that sent him back to Hollywood was the suspicion of the natives.

He bought a shirt for 49c, a hat for 25c and a pair of gloves for 10c, and immediately found himself in the Idaho Falls jug. The local cop thought he was buying a disguise for some obscure but unlawfud enterprise. So he came back wishing he hadn't finished the directing of "Dante's Inferno." So many new ideas for the inferno end!

Popularity of the Showmen's Jubilee Week in Atlantic City is attested by the fact that 142 houses throughout the country have tied up.

Pool tournament is nearing its completion.

The club lost a valued member this week when Barker J. A. Kraker was transferred to New York for Ross Federal Service, Inc.

Washington

Washingon, Aug. 8.—Club quietude reigned at the semi-monthly smoker of Tent No. 11. In charge of proceedings were A. E. Lichtman and J. William Cleveland, as kings for a day. At the last minute Lichtman was called to New York, and Cleveland carried on alone, but with Clark M. Davis, Lichtman's aide, on hand to render what assistance His Highness might need.

For entertainment the kings presented Jimmie Mullings, who "preached from the book of numbers," after the fashion of Slim Timblin. The monologist was introduced by J. Louis Rome.

Chief Barker Rudolph Berger has been appointed by National Chief Barker John H. Harris a member of the national publicity committee, of which Jay Emanuel is chairman.

Canvasman Carter T. Barron has been named chairman of the charter committee of the national organization.

In August, Sidney B. Lust and Orangelo J. Ratto will be kings for a day on the 12th, while Nathan A. Steifel and George J. Gill will officiate on the 23rd.

The first luncheon of the new season will be tossed on Sept. 9, when Norman Pyle and Frank Boucher officially inaugurate the fall festivities.

Labor Day will be a day of rest for the local tent, no official function being slated.

The board of governors held a special meeting today.

John Eberson, New York architect, has been elected to non-resident membership.

Short Subjects

"Keystone Hotel"

(Vitaphone)

All of the old Keystone characters of the silent days are reunited again to go through the antics that made them so famous in the early days. Ford Sterling, Ben Turpin, Chester Conklin, Marie Prevost, Hank Mann and Vivian Oakland are included in the cast in roles similar to those they played years ago. Even the old Keystone cops with their patrol wagon have been resurrected. The story isn't much, merely a means of reviving the comic sequences of the silent days. The film winds up with an old fashioned pie-throwing fight that should not only please audiences but start them reminiscing. Exhibitors can't miss by playing this. Highly recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 901. Running time, 20 minutes. "G."

"White Sea Bass"

(Harold Austin)

Hollywood, Aug. 8.—Here's an interesting one-reeler dealing with the angling for a fighting specie of white sea bass off the coast of Lower California. This should be particularly appealing to sportsmen. The short shows the dynamiting of several feet of ocean to get rid of the small fish and bring the hungry bass within range. Any dull spots that might possibly occur during the subsequent landing of the giant fish are remedied by a good line of running comment by Lou Yaconelli. Interesting shots of stingaree catches off the Florida coast are included. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 9 minutes. "G."

"The Vodka Boatmen"

(Vitaphone)

The Yacht Club Boys, aided by Fred Harper, Tommy Mack and Gertrude Mudge, are much more entertaining in this short than in previous efforts. Their songs are particularly good and it is only in their comic antics that they fall slightly flat. Posing as Russian emigrants on Ellis Island, the boys go through a series of situations that finally get them into the country by way of a police patrol wagon. Audiences should like this one, particularly because of the musical numbers. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 20 minutes. "G."

"Music Hall"

(Vitaphone)

This is the latest of the series that is using onetime standard vaudeville acts and presents Ray Huling & Seal, Harry Burns and Co. and the Honey Boys. The seal is by far the most amusing performer and his tricks are numerous and amazing. Burns hands out some rather flat comedy and the Honey Boys harmonize two songs. Fairly amusing. Running time, 10 minutes. "G."

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Application for registration on the New York Stock Exchange of $11,917,500 worth of certificates of deposit of General Theatres Equipment bonds has been asked of the Securities and Exchange Commission by the consolidated committee for six per cent gold debentures of which Arthur W. Special Session on Ohio Taxes Looming

COLUMBUS, Aug. 9. — Governor Davey is considering calling a special session of the Legislature about Sept. 1 to provide funds for old-age pensions, and to take up two or three other matters demanding immediate attention, he told members of the joint school committee.

It is believed the question of reinstatement of the 10 per cent admission tax will come up during the session. This tax was suspended for one year on Jan. 1, when the three per cent sales tax went into effect.

The Governor did not indicate what the "two or three other matters" were.

U. S. Move in Operator Row Reported Here

Step Said Begun to Avert Projection Walkout

Reports were current last night that the U. S. Dep't of Labor had stepped into the local circuit-operators' wage squabble in an effort to avert a general walkout threatened for tonight by Local 306 and affiliated unions.

A mediator was said to have been assigned by the Labor Department in Washington to confer with both sides. In this event, it is likely the circuits may delay the 41 per cent cut until negotiations are resumed on a new basic scale. Efforts to check at the Capital were unavailing last night.

Circuit heads, in the meantime, maintained the pay cut order would not be rescinded. Union officials, likewise, hold to their position that they will not talk business with the theatre executives until the cut order was rescinded.

Although the Loew order is not effective until Monday, union officials said last night that a general walkout in RKO, Loew's and Skouras houses would take place tonight. Local 306 men are sticking by their guns, union officials assert, and are determined to start a mass picketing campaign immediately.

The union contends that it is now up to the circuits to make a move. Circuit heads declare they will not budge from their stand.

with a possibility of stage shows, while the Grand Central will play duals on a second run policy.

Harry C. Arthur has made a deal with the stagehands' union guaranteeing the men a minimum of 12 weeks and a maximum of 20 weeks' work. Arthur has made the musicians' local a similar offer. Unless the union accepts, stage entertainment will be out of the Ambassador. F. & M. have lined up Olsen & Johnson, Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, the Fred Allen amateur show, the Texas Mustangs and several other top line acts. If the musicians agree to the deal, Olsen & Johnson will open at the Ambassador with "Diamond Jim" on Aug. 30. If a deal is not struck, the Universal film will be the lone attraction.

With the reopening of the Ambassador, the Missouri, which has been first run all summer, will revert to a second run policy. The Fox will continue first run, making two first and two second runs for F. & M. The St. Louis will remain closed until Arthur can make another deal assuring the Missouri first run product. Shifts Runs in Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—A realignment of first runs will take place Aug. 16 when the downtown Loew's Orpheum will quit second runs to play day and date with Loew's State in the Back Bay. The Orpheum generally has been playing M-G-M, United Artists and Columbia features after the State. The move also means that the Orpheum will discontinue vaudeville which has featured the house for years. That makes the de luxe Metropolitan the only Boston house still on a film and vaudeville standard.

Special Book for "Seas"

The M-G-M publicity and advertising department under Howard Dietz has compiled a striking press book on "China Seas." The book, 20 in. long by 16 in. wide, has a five color jacket of heavy stock and the first of the 20 pages of material is devoted to a message to exhibitors.

It contains 11 pages of publicity ideas dealing chiefly with the three stars of the picture, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Beery; a page of prepared reviews, a double page illustration of advertisements and five other full pages of additional advertisements.

An additional supplement to the book is a three-color exploitation section devised by W. R. Ferguson, manager of exploitation, and his staff. It contains angles for tieups and various other hints that might prove helpful in exploiting the picture. Among the latter is the suggestion that trade reviews of the film, such as the one that appeared in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, be blown up and set in lobbies.

Buck Admits Ascap Is Facing Trouble

Buck referred to the copyright bill which has just passed the U. S. Senate and is now before the House and also called attention to an injunction issued at Olympia, Wash., preventing the society from entering into any new contracts in that state until the court is satisfied the organization is not violating the monopoly laws.

The talk lasted nearly three hours following a dinner at Victor Hugo's. Buck also reported on wired broadcast experiments now being conducted in Cleveland. He said Ascap was working with an operating company and he hoped further experiments would be made in New York. The system calls for rented receivers and no advertising, he said.

There will be no immediate change in the system of ratings, Buck said. He also declared that no system for copyright protection had been suggested which looked like an improvement over the present one.

S. arrives, a lot more business is expected. There is no change in the theatre situation, the number of closings and openings fluctuating at an even balance.

Admissions Up In Many Areas As West Gains

Tendency Not Strong in Eastern Sections

A national tendency to increase admissions beginning with the new season is reported at distributors' headquarters, with higher scales actually in effect in widespread sections of the west and Pacific Coast.

California, in particular, reports a more or less general upping of prices throughout the state, the prevailing average scale being estimated to be about 20 per cent higher than at the same time last season. Widespread increases throughout the west have also followed upon Fox West Coast's action in boosting admissions throughout its circuit. The success of the policy for this large organization influenced competing houses and subsequent runs in the affected territories to follow suit, it is reported.

The middle west and many sections of the east evidence the tendency to

SEC Silent on Rumors of Probe Of Alleged Columbia Stock Pool

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Aug. 11.—Officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission refuse to affirm or deny rumors that they were investigating alleged pool operations in Columbia Pictures stock.

It was explained that such investigations, of which several hundred have been made, are conducted secretly in order to safeguard the interests of stockholders, it being pointed out that the mere announcement of an inquiry might break the market in a stock.

While the commission has studied a number of complaints of alleged improper relations, formal proceedings have been initiated in only one or two cases. Under the Exchange Act, the commission may secure the indictment of pool operators, who are subject to a jail sentence if convicted.

Fox and RKO May Arbitrate Circuit Product Buys Here

Fox and the RKO circuit are having difficulty over terms under which the distributor's product is to play the chain's theatres during the new season and may determine the point by arbitration which is provided under the franchise agreement between the two companies.

It is understood Al Lichtman, president of United Artists, was asked by John D. Clark, general sales manager of Fox, to represent the latter company, but declined because of pressure of business. Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager of Paramount, probably will be the Fox selection if the impasse continues. David M. Loew, vice-president in charge of film buys for the Loew circuit, is in line to sit as impartial judge for RKO.

The possibility is not remote, however, that the price differential will be worked out without the use of arbitrators.

Resume Booth Scale Confab This Morning

Strike Delayed Week—Truce Temporary

Following temporary withdrawal by the circuits of their 41 per cent cut order early Saturday, negotiations will be resumed this morning between Leslie E. Thompson, chairman of the exhibitors' committee, C. C. Moskowitz and George Skouras, and Joseph D. Basson, president of Local 306. Rescinding of the cut notice marks the first victory for the operators' union in its fight to maintain the current wage schedule under its new administration.

Two conciliators from the Dep't of Labor in Washington arrived Saturday in an effort to straighten out the union matter. Thomas J. Williams and William C. Liller are the government men assigned to the union-circuit conference beginning today. Before the men left the Capital, the Labor Dep't had secured acceptance by both parties that they would sit down and talk over the wage trouble.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

WHEN a buyer and a seller are $190,000 apart on a deal, they're plenty apart. Between the RKO circuit, which is the buyer maybe, and Warners, who are the sellers perhaps, it is this difference, plus the usual variance in ideas about big halves of the week and the like, which has kept pens which affix signatures off the necessary dotted lines. Gripped in a none too friendly deadlock a few days back, Andy Smith, as a consequence, went for a statement that Warners were at once launching negotiations with New York independents. The RKO attitude, officially passed on, was one of indifference embroidered with a yawn. . . .

The situation on both sides reminds of shadow-boxing. Because there is no genuinely profitable escape from a product sale to either Loew's or RKO in this area, a Warner deal with the latter chain seems like an inevitable piece of business particularly when the former has rounded out its buy for the new season. Sales to the independents, circuits and solo operators, largely are "natural business" following in the trail of major circuit transactions anyway. That means Warners would get its slice of revenue from subsequents under any circumstances. A sleuthing foray into the mathematical intricacies of the territory, on the other hand, lead to the observation that any major product which does not play Loew or RKO time means a loss to the producer of approximately $6,000 to $8,000 per release. In round figures, mind you. No major, therefore, is apt to like being faced with a circumstance such as that. . . .

Now a glance at the matter from the RKO angle. That circuit needs more product than it now has signed. The only major line of film which continues to be available is Warners. This fortifies the basis of a deal with credibility and considerable mutuality. That, in turn, leads this space to go seer, usually an unsatisfactory procedure, by forecasting that Warners and RKO will get together. On what terms and on what basis is another story and their business. Interesting to note before going on to other things is that more calm has entered the picture already. Negotiations were resumed the other day. . . .

SNAP judgment reporting by a United Press man from Hollywood:

> The [Fox] stockholders are scheduled to meet in New York next week to ratify the [Twentieth Century-Fox] merger and the minority shareholders will base their fight on the fact that control appears to be placed directly in the hands of a rival studio—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, of which Nicholas M. Schenck is president and Louis B. Mayer resident production head. . . .
> As Hollywood executives view it, the interest of M-G-M executives in the rival studio is not only viewed with alarm by some of the shareholders of Loew's, Inc., but by the freelance players, writers and directors who see the possibility of a monopoly and the resultant lowering and stabilization of salaries for all creative talent, once big business has positive control.

What minority stockholders when Chase National owns between 72 and 80 per cent of the Fox stock?

Who are the "Hollywood executives" and who are the Loew shareholders who view the merger "with alarm"?

Suppose salaries are stabilized which they will not? It's not a bad idea.

The worry over "monopoly." Every effort headed that way in the past has ended in failure. This business always refuses to stay put long enough.

The facts, Mr. United Press, where are the facts? . . .

The Essanness circuit, Chicago standout in M-G-M's fight for percentage pictures and designated playing time, is about to sign a product deal on terms described as amicable and acceptable to buyer and seller. The Oak Park theatre, which Metro is committed to build, will be built and equipped but Essanness will operate under a five-year franchise. This, with other deals previously closed, will ring down the curtain on Leo's theatre invasion plans for the Windy City. Thus, a condition which would have festered and angered into costly warfare is sidestepped by conference of the give-and-take calibre. It was a delicate job, but the final rivet is poised for its drive home. . . .

City rooms of eastern newspapers won't enthuse over the statement made by John Boettiger, a Hays assistant, in Omaha late last week that Middle Western dailies are more keenly alive and responsive to the amusement business. In the open spaces, newspapers and staffs show more willingness to cooperate and give information than in the east where Boettiger has had practically "to break into" the news rooms, so he asserted. He may continue to fail to "break in" by talking too much. . . .

Admissions Up In Many Areas As West Gains

increase tariffs at this time, with action on the policy being considered for early fall and simultaneously with the better releases of new season pictures, sales executives report. Detroit has evolved a definite plan for boosting scales this fall. Pre-release houses will take the lead there and subsequent runs have indicated a willingness to cooperate in the move by following suit.

Little or no discussion so far this season has been held on the subject by large New York circuits. Some distributors account for this on the theory that Federal relief has not been appreciable enough in New York to better the spending ability of large sections of the population. It is pointed out that the city still has more than 1,500,000 on relief, and that this mass group, nominally theatre customers, is almost wholly shut off from film entertainment.

Other sections of the country, distribution executives believe, have been more directly benefited by employment on Federal projects instead of being the recipients of a dole. Also, they state, industrial recovery in smaller cities brings immediate and direct benefits to large sections of the local population, whereas the revival of a single factory or even an entire industry in New York may result in no noticeable improvement in the spending power of the city's populace.

Crosby didn't answer.

Ontario Tax Bears Down on Exhibitors

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—Exhibitors of Ontario are taking a terrific trimming in the amusements tax regulations instituted last June by Premier M. F. Hepburn. For July, the second month of operation of the new levy, the revenue was five times greater than for the corresponding month one year ago. That the situation is steadily getting worse is indicated by the fact that the tax returns for June were three times greater than for the same month last year.

The Government collected $265,000 in the amusements tax during the past month, as against only $54,000 for July of 1934. Total tax revenue for June was $239,000, as compared with $80,000 during June, 1934. For the first two months under the new Hepburn impost, the Government has collected $504,000, despite the fact that this is the off-season for theatre patronage. Judging by the trend in business, the drastic levy is providing a permanent off-season for all exhibitors.

The province collected $900,000 all told in the amusements tax for the whole 12 months of 1934 under the previous scale of taxation, so that the Hepburn Government has gained much more than half of last year's total take in the first two months alone under the new act.

Ascap to Keep Present Fees Another Year

nounced which, exhibitors estimated at the time, represented increases of from 300 to 1,000 per cent, being based on the highest adult admission charge of the individual theatre. After vigorous protests from exhibitors and several months of negotiations a compromise schedule was agreed upon and placed in effect. It is this schedule which will be continued for another year.

Ascap's present rates are 10 cents per seat for theatres of less than 800 seats and charging not more than a 15-cent adult evening admission; 15 cents per seat for theatres of 801 to 1,599 seats, and 20 cents per seat for all theatres over 1,600 seats.

Announcement of Ascap's new schedule was followed closely by the filing of an anti-trust suit against the organization by the Attorney General's office. The suit charged Ascap and other organizations licensing copyrighted music for public performance with being monopolies and alleged that their price schedules were arbitrarily fixed. Trial of the suit was begun late last spring and adjourned for the summer. It is scheduled to be resumed Nov. 4.

Uphold Marathons Ban

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 11.. — The Senate has killed the Phillips bill permitting marathon contests under regulations. The bill was introduced after Gov. Phil La Follette had signed the Mulder bill outlawing marathons. It was declared that running of a marathon in the Eagles' Club, Milwaukee, was dependent on passage of the Phillips measure, restrictions of which included requiring presence of the hall manager at all times and physical examinations for the contestants.

N. Y. Lawyers Busy On St. Louis Case

Justice representative, for a temporary injunction.

Denham, in his application, seeks to prevent Warners and other major distributors from continuing alleged agreements not to sell F. & M.'s five theatres in St. Louis. Harry C. Arthur has lined up Twentieth Century-Fox, United Artists and Universal second run. He also is getting Universal first run for the Ambassador and Fox.

Bromley is representing RKO, Phillips, Paramount; and Levinson, Warners. They will fight the injunction moves on the ground that this is a move to get testimony to be used for criminal action, it was stated yesterday.

A meeting of the three attorneys with a number of downtown lawyers was held secretly last week when the St. Louis action was discussed.

U. S. District Judge Charles A. Dewey of Des Moines, who has been summoned to hear the case, has refused to grant a temporary stay.

Among the closed spots are the Cameo, Hartford, the owner of which, Leonard O'Neil has gone on a five-week fishing trip to Maine. Another is John Peters' Old Lyme experiment. Jack Fay has closed the Kent and the Palace at Hartford is dark.

The Fine Arts, Westport, is being redecorated; the Lyric, Waterbury, is being remodeled, as is the Stratford, and new sound is being installed by the Paramount here.

The Sound View Casino is open four days a week, with dancing after the shows.

Hollywood, Aug. 11.—Recently Warners changed Kay Linaker's name to Lynn Aker, after she had been given program credit under her own name for work in "From This Dark Stairway." Short Subjects

"Romance of the West"

(Vitaphone)

Hollywood, Aug. 11. — Word-of-mouth advertising may build this short to feature importance, for it seems certain to be discussed at length as a splendid example of Technicolor in outdoor photography. With Yosemite National Park and the Grand Canyon as a background, the picture serves as a canvas that is always interesting and at times awe-inspiring. Included in the scenes shown are shots of Yosemite water falls, Mirror Lake and the Canyon as it probably has never been shown before. A slight story about a grounded airplane runs through the two reels, but serves mainly as a means for providing comedy by Henry Armetta and Mary Treen and romance between Dorothy Dare and Phil Regan. It also serves to introduce two numbers which Regan sings and a specialty dance by Miss Dare. Bows may be taken by Ralph Staub, the producer; Joe Traub, who wrote the story; Natalie Kalmus, color director; William Skall, photographer, and the entire cast for a first rate job. No production code seal. Running time, 15 mins. "G."

"Inside the Ropes"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

Bill Corum, famous sports columnist, here reviews professional boxing in the first of the series he is making for Van Beuren. Jack Dempsey assists him in going back over the careers of James J. Braddock, Max Baer, Primo Carnera, Benny Leonard, Mickey Walker, Leach Cross and Little Jack Sharkey. Joe Louis is shown knocking out a sparring partner and relaxing in his training camp. The reel is packed with entertainment for sport lovers and with the present interest in boxing it should do very well. Highly recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 0499. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Hunting Season"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

This cartoon in color opens with shots of the woods in spring with the animals and birds enjoying themselves. A cow joins two ducks in swimming and everyone is having a swell time until a hunter comes on the scene and starts firing away. The animals then get together and give the hunter a dose of his own medicine with his own guns. Very amusing. Production Code Seal, No. 0417. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Phil Spitalny"

(Vitaphone)

Phil Spitalny and his girl band are again featured, but this time the rotund leader allows his girls to do more singing. Because of their vocalizing this short surpasses many of his earlier efforts. "Runnin' Wild," "Lullaby of Broadway," "Forty Second Street" and "Sweet Adeline" are played and sung. The final number is "La Paloma," during which Maurine and Norva dance a bolero. Recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 minutes. "G."

Hurford to Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Aug. 11.—Jack Hurford, formerly manager of the Fox in Detroit, supplants Emil Franke as manager of the Orpheum here.

BRING BACK the "FORGOTTEN AUDIENCE"

RCA now announces the RCA Sonotone Hearing Aid for use in theatres*. This enables the hard-of-hearing to enjoy motion pictures, giving them the sound with perfect clarity and purity of tone. These people have been unable to attend motion pictures since they became the "talkies".

About 10% of the population have defective hearing. This is a vast "forgotten audience" that you can now bring back, and with them their families and friends who have been indirectly influenced to stay away—the millions of hard-of-hearing have an even greater influence on the box office than the huge revenue they directly represent.

What this means in money, in goodwill, and publicity, has been definitely shown in numerous theatres. The Sonotone Theatre, Chicago, has every seat wired. Others have 10 or more seats equipped. All show that the original cost is quickly repaid. Original installations are being expanded.

You have a perfect check on results, for these new customers ask at the box office for the RCA Sonotone Oscillator. Many simple, inexpensive and very effective promotion plans are available for your use...Write for information on adding to your attendance by bringing back these lost customers.

The I. T. O. A. is anxious to have a test case made on chance games so that it knows where it stands. Milton C. Weisman, attorney for the unit, will represent member exhibitors when the showdown comes.

Refuses Injunction In Cash Night Case

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Judge DeWitt H. Merriam has dismissed the petition of Ben and Lou Cohen, Roxy theatre, for a permanent injunction restraining Jacob Schreiber from using Cash Nights at the Colonial. Judge Merriam said his action was taken because outcome of the criminal case against Schreiber, now pending before Judge Christopher E. Stein, who will return a verdict on Sept. 2, would properly dispose of the matter. Judge Stein has indicated that his finding will be in favor of Schreiber, who is again using Cash Nights while waiting for the decision.

Chance Games Boom Grosses in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Running unmolested Bank Nights and Screeno are doing big business in more than 250 neighborhood theatres here. Houses having Bank Night awards that have built to a considerable sum are using squads of police to keep traffic moving in front of theatres. Screeno fans are on increase, according to reports from various managers who expected idea to lose interest after first few weeks.

With Gift Nights several times a week exhibitors here show no interest at present time in returning to double bills.

Carewe On Way Here To Arrange Release

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—Edwin Carewe is en route to New York seeking distribution for the church and school pictures he plans to produce. He is sailing for Rome, Paris, Barcelona and London on Aug. 16 on the Conte di Savoia to close deals for European distribution.

Carewe, who claims he has unlimited financial backing, although he refuses to state just who his backers are, plans to produce as features "Daniel Boone" and "LaFitte, the Pirate," besides "Pilgrimage."

His short subject program includes 10 scientific one-reelers, 10 travelogue two-reelers titled "How the Rest of the World Lives," 10 one-reelers titled "See America First" and 10 one-reel humorous cartoons.

The pictures will be produced on 16 mm. and 35 mm. stock.

New Detroit 1st Run

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Definite date selected for the opening of the Lafayette, former "legit" house, as a first run picture house by Lou Wasserman, who operates several Cleveland theatres, is Aug. 29. "My Heart Is Calling" will be the opening feature. The house is now being remodelled and sound equipment installed.

After 303 Years

Lewes, Del., Aug. 11.—This 303-year-old village has reared and kicked over the traces of the old blue laws and legalized Sunday baseball by a referendum among its 268 voters. The vote showed only 61 favored retention of the statute drawn up in 1740.

Writers Call July's Films Year's Worst

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—July releases represented the poorest efforts of the studios for any month this year, it will be pointed out in the Screen Guild's Magazine, out Monday. The reason is blamed on the end of the production year and producers' greater concern with next season's work.

Miriam Hopkins was awarded the honor of giving the best performance of the month for "Becky Sharp." Noel Coward and Julie Hayden were also voted honorable mention for their work in "The Scoundrel" and Luise Rainer rated a second honorable mention for her performance in "Escapade."

Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur were chosen for having written the best screen play in "The Scoundrel" and honorable mention went to Herman Mankiewicz for "Escapade" with second honorable mention to Francis Faragoh for "Becky Sharp."

In the balloting for the best performance only 12 players from six pictures received one or more votes. Almost three times as many players received votes last month uniformly and is, therefore, discriminatory. He cited as exemptions farm products at the source of supply as one instance to fortify his decision and expressed an opinion that the Legislature abused its privileges in enacting the statute originally.

The judge had sustained a demurrer filed on behalf of an Akron restaurant owner who had been arrested on a tax violation charge and had ruled the method of obtaining the evidence was an "entrapment" method.

Carlton Dargusch, chairman of the state tax commission, deprecates the decision and states he will refer it to the attorney general to determine the state's future course with the Supreme Court test heading up on the horizon. Exhibitors have been collecting the sales tax in lieu of the 10 per cent admission tax previously in effect, but which was suspended for one year when the sales levy swung into operation.

The Castle Passes On

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The Castle, which for more than 20 years has been prominent among the Loop houses, has closed and is being converted into a women's ready-to-wear store. Clarence Beck, owner-manager of the house, will take over the Casino on Madison St., opening this house about Sept. 1. The Casino was operated by Universal for many years.

Resume Booth Scale Confab This Morning

at 1 A. M. Saturday. When the meeting broke up, operators had gained a point they had fought for since last Monday when union representatives walked out of a meeting with circuit heads. The circuits had refused to rescind the cut order, and unless such a move was made Local 306 declined to enter into negotiations and a strike, therefore, had loomed as a possibility by Saturday midnight.

The withdrawal notice by circuits is for one week. Unless a compromise is reached, the unions will walk out again, it was stated. It is understood certain modifications in the present wage scale will be made.

Union officials and members have been riled at the circuits for instituting arbitrary reductions. They declare the theatre heads went about the matter in "a childish way." The new union administration is backed 100 per cent by the members who were ready to picket Loew's, RKO and Skouras houses yesterday in the event the strike was not called off.

Circuits Wanted Union to Budge

For the past week circuit heads maintained they would not budge from their stand and that the union would have to make the first move. It was stated Saturday at union headquarters that Thompson called Basson late Friday night for an immediate conference which resulted in the week's truce.

Provided both sides get together in the negotiations, a new contract will be drawn for a number of years effective Sept. 1. None of the three formulas drafted by Local 306, Charles L. O'Reilly and Harry Brandt during the NRA fact-finding committee negotiations will be considered during present confabs. The circuits are aware of the fact that the union has made considerable concessions to independents and are demanding relief in a number of theatres. According to Local 306, plans are under way to increase wages in a number of unaffiliated theatres. A number of exhibitors who were given concessions during the NRA fact-finding conferences will have them revoked, it was stated.

Thompson on Saturday afternoon issued a statement in which he verified the entrance of state and federal labor men into the situation. He said he looked for a favorable outcome on the scale.

Cincinnati Houses Will Escape Flood

CINCINNATI, Aug. 11.—Although one or two subsequent run houses are located contiguous to the Ohio River and have suffered more or less damage from previous floods, no trouble of this kind is anticipated in the immediate future by reason of the upper tributaries pouring their excess waters into the Ohio.

According to prediction of W. B. Schlomer, acting U. S. Meteorologist, the river will reach a crest of 40 or 42 feet within a few days.

Kansas May Tax Admissions To Share in Social Security

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 12.—With approval by Congress of the social security bill, the Kansas legislature is expected to go into a special session to provide for state participation in the program.

The legislative council has been considering ways and means of raising money to participate in the program off and on since the legislature adjourned this spring. One plan it has suggested for raising funds is a 10 per cent amusement tax. Whether this will appear in its final recommendations to the governor and the legislature is not known.

The session has been planned since the adjournments of the regular meeting late this spring, but Governor Landon has been waiting upon this action by Congress before calling it. The governor has indicated he would summon the legislature probably late in September.

Union Renews Picketing As Talks Resume

Circuits Make Charge Of Discrimination

With resumption of negotiations between Local 306 and major circuits on a new wage scale, the operators' union yesterday renewed its picketing campaign on independent houses in Brooklyn and Manhattan.

In Brooklyn, a number of independent exhibitors who have refused to do business with Local 306 are being picketed while several Brandt houses on 42nd St. were the scene of Manhattan activity. By early afternoon 10 had been arrested.

A spokesman for Joseph D. Basson, president of the projectionist's unit, stated yesterday that he believed Harry Brandt was behind the move of the circuits to cut wages. Brandt denied being the instigator. He said, "If Local 306 credits me with being the instigator I can't help it. I've been blamed for a lot of things I know nothing about."

He asserted Local 306 has been trying to get him to make a deal, which "I will never do."

In addition to Basson, Charles C. Moskowitz, Loew's and Leslie E. Thompson, RKO, attending the wage conference are Thomas J. Williams and William C. Liller, from the Dep't. of Labor, Washington, and Col. Ruddick of the N. Y. State Labor Dept. Negotiations are expected to last several days.

The circuits, in seeking a reduction in the present scale, contend that hundred of theatres in New York are paying as low as $1 an hour for the same work which the union is demanding $2.12½ from them.

Loew's, RKO and Skouras also hold that the A.F.L. firmly stands for a definite and uniform scale in each locality, but Local 306 has no such scale and sets up different hourly wages and conditions for various type theatres.

Circuit heads assert they are willing to pay a fair wage, but not more than the union extends to other theatres.

The Prudence Corp., and its subsidiary, Allied Owners Corp., were identified with the financing and construction of a number of theatres for Paramount, some of which in this territory were subsequently taken over by Loew's. Bank Night Owners File More Actions

DALLAS, Aug. 12.—Suits have been filed in Judge William H. Atwell's U. S. district court for the Northern District of Texas by Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., owners and distributors of Bank Night against O. K. Theatres, Inc. (Oscar Korn), and P. Q. Rockett, alleging infringements of copyright.

O. K. Theatres operates in about 12 Texas towns, mainly in the west. It is alleged to have evolved a give-away plan of its own adaptation and for its own use in its theatres with no outside sales involved. The same conditions are claimed to apply for Rockett who operates three small towns in Dallas environs.

The office of C. C. Ezell, national sales manager for Bank Night, advises other cases are in preparation for filing. Names mentioned include only exhibitors who operate in multiple stands.

The cases are being handled for Affiliated by Eldon J. Dick, attorney of Tulsa.

In Cleveland, an injunction to stop Bank Night was refused by Judge Frederick Walther of Common Pleas Court. The case is now before the Court of Appeals and a decision, claimed to be the first issued by one of the higher courts, is expected this month.

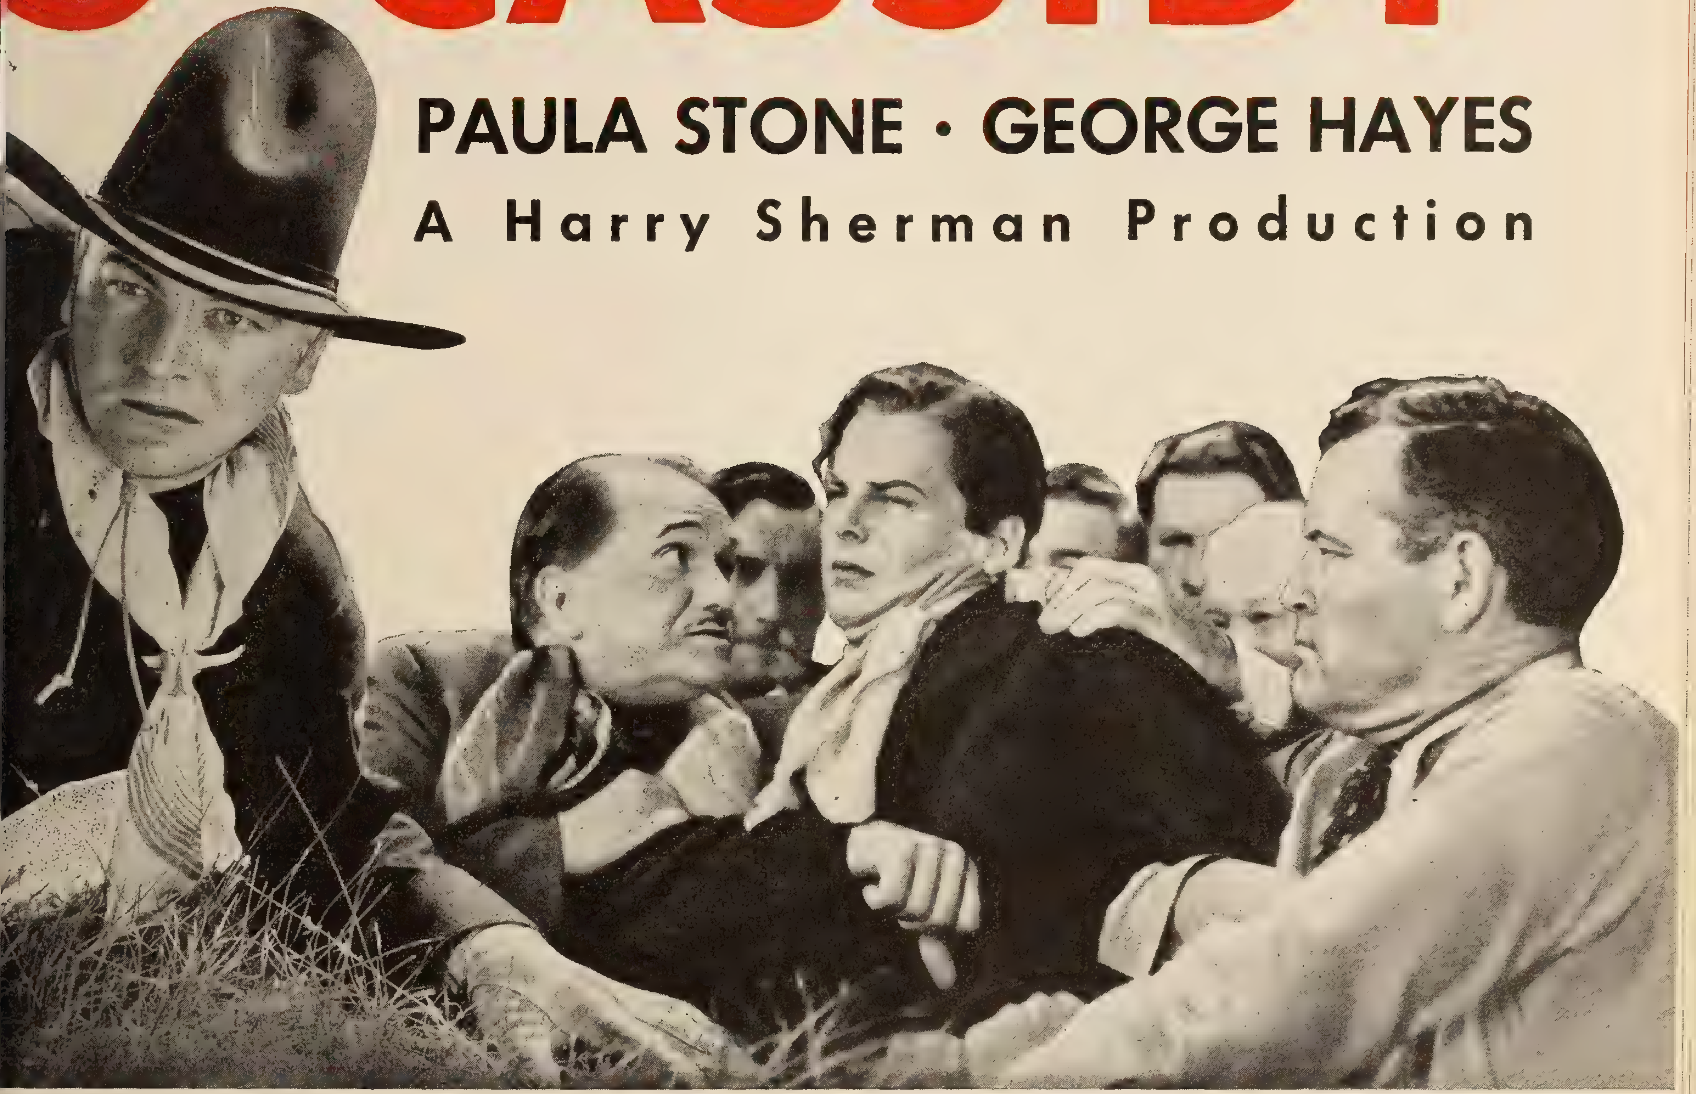
A Harry Sherman Production



Read these rave reviews:

"'Hop-A-Long Cassidy' will hit. Boyd rings the bell as Western star. This is a grand opening number for Paramount's new series of westerns. Everything a western should have has gone into the making of 'Hop-A-Long Cassidy' and has been handled in the shrewdest manner by experienced brains who know their westerns and their showmanship." —Hollywood Reporter

"Smart casting and a showmanlike production give this an edge as an unusual action type of picture. The story for the first of the series moves rapidly and ends on a note which leaves the audience anticipating adventures to be produced later." —Motion Picture Daily

"Ace Entertainment! First of the 'Hop-A-Long Cassidy stories by Clarence E. Mulford to be transferred to the screen by Harry Sherman is a fast-moving, ably enacted action yarn that stacks up as ace entertainment. Particularly in the spots where western pictures have a strong appeal this one will have little trouble standing up nicely." —Hollywood Variety

"Every exhibitor who can possibly run a Western will want to play this. This well-produced, interesting yarn has plenty of action, beautiful scenery that you don't see in every outdoor picture, a nice smattering of comedy, some romance and a cast that handles its work very well." —Film Daily

K. C. Zoning Plan Evolved; Hits Premiums

ized more severely. With single bills, they are set back 28 days; with double bills, 56 days. This is not intended to eliminate giveaways because many exhibitors will continue to use them, but it will tend to establish a brake on them. Independents generally agree that this should be done.

Following is the petition:

"We the undersigned exhibitors, of Kansas City, Mo., feel that the present zoning schedule under which we are operating is very unfair and detrimental to our business. The present clearance and restrictions placed upon the exhibitor in playing pictures have forced the lower admission theatres, which constitute most of the suburban houses in Kansas City, Mo., to resort to so-called stimulants such as Bank Night, Jack Pot, Premiums, Refund Checks, Two-for-One Tickets, Gift Stamps and other practices which tend to lower the standards of the picture business. These practices by the suburban theatres have forced the downtown first run houses to adopt similar measures.

"We feel that if a fair zoning and clearance schedule can be set up, most of these evils could and would be done away with.

"We submit for your consideration the following schedule, which is identical with the schedule under which we operated successfully prior to the NRA, with the exception of some penalties which we feel would help eliminate some of the evils referred to. This schedule was preeminently fair to everyone and also met with everyone's approval.

"The Proposed Schedule:
"First suburban run
28 days after close of first run.
"25 subsequent run
56 days after close of first run.
"20 subsequent run
70 days after close of first run.
"15 subsequent run
84 days after close of first run.
"10 subsequent run
112 days after close of first run.

"All pictures to be made available for single billing with premiums, Bank Nights, Gift Stamps, and other similar stimulants 28 days after the regular single bill spot.

"Any picture playing double with premiums, Bank Nights, Gift Stamps, and other premiums to be made available 56 days after regular single bill spot.

"This proposed schedule is respectfully submitted by the following exhibitors:" (signatures of the exhibitors follow.)

Preparation of the petition followed a meeting of the ITO last week, called by E. Rolsky, vice-president, on request of several members. At the time no announcement was made.

For some time it has been general gossip among independents—and distributors have not denied it—that Fox Midwest would buy in zones the coming season. For this reason, many independents wanted to take some action before zoning became an accomplished fact.

At times in the past it has been the reaction of distributors that independents were not in agreement among themselves or couldn't get together on any sort of clearance basis for the buying season until after Fox Midwest and other circuits had purchased and set their pictures. Under such circumstances, distributors were not in a position to consider any plan.

Getting into the field before distributors have begun to sell—at least to independents—the latter feel that their plan, which has such wide support of themselves, should and will receive consideration. With the present schedule independent exhibitors will present a united front.

E. S. Young, operator of the Roanoke and Central, handled the petition.

10 a Year Is Plan

Twentieth Century-Fox's plans to make 10 pictures a year in London with Robert T. Kane, now an associate producer on the Fox lot in Hollywood, in charge, clears up one of the angles of Joseph M. Schenck's recent trip abroad when the preliminary plans were made with distribution at the time a confused point shuttling back and forth between Fox and United Artists from the latter of which companies Schenck's withdrawal as president had not been ratified at the time.

It is planned to produce the 10 pictures in the British Isles on a scale comparable with the big pictures made by Twentieth Century-Fox in this country and release conditions will be the same for both groups.

Kane's production unit will occupy quarters at the Alexander Korda studio near London. It is planned to exchange actors, writers and directors between the two production centers, while Kane also will search for additional European talent to sign under the Twentieth Century-Fox banner.

Schenck arrived here by plane yesterday from the coast to attend the meeting of the Fox Film stockholders Thursday, at which time it is expected the merger with Twentieth Century will be ratified.

Seeks to Block Merger

An injunction to restrain Fox Film Corp. from holding a meeting of stockholders Thursday for the purpose of voting on the Twentieth Century-Fox merger at that time will be sought of the state court here today or tomorrow, according to Henry L. Sperling, attorney for the Fox stockholders' committee opposing the merger.

Sperling stated the committee had a representative in chancery court, Wilmington, yesterday at a hearing on the petition of Daniel O. Hastings, receiver of General Theatres Equipment Corp. for instructions to vote that company's stock in favor of the merger.

G. T. E. Will Vote Merger

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 12.—An order authorizing former U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, receiver for General Theatres Equipment, Inc., to direct voting trustees of Fox Film stock owned by G. T. E. to vote that stock in favor of the Fox consolidation with Twentieth Century was signed in Chancery Court here today by Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott. The only opposition to the receiver's petition for such authority came from New York counsel representing All Continental Corp., owned by Mrs. William Fox.

Counsel urged that action be deferred, but the court pointed that the meeting is set for Thursday. Opposing counsel charged that "the court can safely assume that what Senator Hastings, as receiver, does is what Chase National Bank wants done." It was also charged the proposed consolidation was evolved by Chase, a large creditor of G. T. E. Several times, Murray Becker, counsel for All Continental, was cautioned by the court to confine his arguments to the merits of the consolidation plan.

G. T. E. owns eight per cent of Fox Class A and 86 per cent of the Class B. process were believed by the company to be the poorest of its theatre investments, having the least likelihood of returning profits to the company. In many cases leases on such houses were disavowed, sold, turned back to their original owners or in other ways disposed of. The 700 houses which were eliminated would comprise of themselves, if gathered together in one organization, a circuit second in size only to Paramount's present theatre interests.

Approximately 900 of Paramount's holdings are located in 39 American states; about 200 are in Canada, and about 35 are in 11 foreign countries. The eliminations were almost entirely confined to the American holdings.

As virtually all of Paramount's theatre holding subsidiaries are now rehabilitated, there is little likelihood of the company's theatre map undergoing further changes of any proportions in the near future. The Olympia circuit, New England, is the only Paramount theatre subsidiary which remains to be reorganized and the process of weeding out "deadwood leases" from this unit is essentially completed now.

Doran on Stage Plays

D. A. Doran, Jr., has closed a deal with Paramount whereby the latter will finance 100 per cent six plays produced by Doran and tried out recently at the Red Barn, Locust Valley. Under the arrangement, Doran will get 50 per cent of the profits.

The six plays are "Mad Morning," "Penny Wise," "Wild Justice," "There's Wisdom in Women," "Return to Polly" and "With All My Heart."

Paramount has formed Locval, Inc., which will be the producing company for the half dozen plays.

security program Kansas must pass an old age pension law, evolve a method for raising funds to match Federal grants for the pensions and set up a body to administrate unemployment insurance in the state.

The legislative council, the research bureau of which is preparing an analysis of the social security program and how it will be applied to Kansas, will meet probably late in August to draw tentative pension bills for the contemplated session. The governor, it is understood, will not name the date of the special session until after the council meets.

The old age pension, it is estimated, will cost Kansas between $1,800,000 and $3,000,000 a year. Other parts of the social security program will cost probably as much if not more.

Shirley Best In a Slough Boston Week

Boston, Aug. 12.—"Curly Top," with an extensive stage show, led the town last week with a $24,000 gross at the Metropolitan. This is $2,000 ahead of average at the 4,332-seat theatre.

Comparatively, the performance was better than it looks. Elsewhere in the first run battery, grosses were off; hot weather was partially responsible. The Fenway, for instance, did its normal $4,500 with "Smart Girl" and "Silk Hat Kid." Loew's State dipped under $2,000 with "Woman Wanted" and "The Black Room" and Keith's Memorial, housing "39 Steps," did $11,000 as compared with its routine $12,000. Average, which is $7,000, prevailed at the Paramount with "Smart Girl" and "Silk Hat Kid," but the RKO Boston took an awful wallop with "Hard Rock Harrigan" and "Rendezvous at Midnight." The house did $5,000, or $6,000 under par.

Martin Johnsons Sail Today on Film Trek

Martin and Mrs. Johnson sail today on the Kota Pinang for Singapore and Borneo on their latest expedition to film out-of-the-way places. They intend to penetrate the heart of Borneo on this trip and are taking their Sikorsky amphibian plane, "The Spirit of Africa," a complete sound equipment and special cameras to obtain shots in districts they claim have never been photographed before.

The Johnsons will travel by boat to Singapore and fly across the China Sea to Sandakan in North Borneo. From here they will go up the Kinabatangan River some 300 miles into the country of the Tengarra blowpipe savages where they will establish their base. From there they will use the plane to photograph distant places.

It is thought that the whole expedition will take two years, 18 months of which will be spent in the jungles. The material collected will be assembled in feature length, as has been done on previous trips, with Fox probably releasing.

Warner Ad Men Here On 'Dream' Campaign

Warner zone ad managers met at the Advertising Club yesterday to discuss exploitation plans for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" with S. Charles Einfeld, head of Warner advertising and publicity, and other ad and exploitation officials of the company. The meeting marked the first time that Warner field men have been called in to aid in working out a complete merchandising campaign for a picture.

Feels Home Product Cut Might Reduce Jobs

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Aug. 4. — The Trades Union Congress which opens at Margate on Sept. 2 will discuss revision of the Films Act with reference to the effect of any new legislation on labor employed in British studios.

Initiation of consideration of this subject by the "parliament of labor" will come from the National Ass'n of Theatrical Employees which is believed to take up the line that opposition should be made to any proposals likely to reduce the number of films made in British studios.

British labor is, therefore, likely officially to rank itself against any pro-

FWC Suddenly Drops Plan on Fight Film

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13. — Acting on orders from Charles Skouras, FWC has canceled its scheduled bookings of the Louis-Levinsky fight pictures which had been already advertised in its first run houses.

Although FWC had not yet concluded negotiations for purchase of the reel, according to Al Hansen, dickerings had been carried on during Skouras' absence in San Francisco. Hansen stated the deal was immediately tabooed by Skouras on his return offering no other reason than that he did not want to play the picture. FWC will pay for the advance ads but will stand no more of the expenses, Hansen said.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

OUTSIDE the business, this: Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, as counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corp., made the successful appeal which resulted in a 60 per cent cut in fees of attorneys and others in the N. Y. Investors and Allied Owners Corp. reorganizations recently by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here. The high court's action, in this instance, established a precedent for the basis and sizes of allowances to be granted those participating in the reorganization processes of embarrassed corporations.

Inside the business, this: As counsel for the Paramount trustees, the same law firm applied for the largest single fee in that reorganization—$700,000, and in the same official capacity pleads for another $400,000 for the receivers and trustees it represents. The applications are now awaiting a decision by the Federal district court. . . .

If the allowances to be made Root, Clark and the trustees and receivers by this court are in a large amount, the matter is almost certain to be appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals, in which case the same lawyers that aided in establishing the low fees precedent may be placed in the position of arguing against its first successful pleadings. If the allowances to be made prove to be in comparatively modest brackets, much of the district court's reasoning in arriving at its decision may be based on the Root, Clark arguments which established the higher court's precedent. An interesting situation in view of the criticism, in and out of Congress, on the scale of the fees sought in the Paramount case. . . .

In such an eventuality, it will be interesting, also, to observe whether the Root, Clark firm would be constrained to appeal a low fee decision to the Circuit Court and place itself in the position of repudiating its previous stand by asking the court to reverse itself by declaring for large allowances for bankruptcy services on behalf of Paramount. It is likewise curious to note that Paramount retained former Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher and paid him a reported $25,000 fee to oppose applications for excessive allowances while the Root, Clark firm, with the largest application against the company, was busy aiding in establishing the precedent against such allowances. . . .

CONTROVERSIAL and editorially pungent, the fifth release of "The March of Time" and the first to go through the RKO sales machine, is excellent and another indication of the increasingly high standard which this two-reeler is so rapidly reaching despite the tenderness of its age. As a reproduction job, highlighted like some of its predecessors with trip-hammer effects in editing, this latest subject probably is the best to date. This is no review—that will come later—but passing comment to acquaint the men who have bought the series and those who may that, at its outset, the "The March of Time"-RKO hookup is off to an auspicious debut. . . .

Quietly and with no fuss, aside from the usual announcement of its consummation, Republic has cinched a deal which sends it blithely on its way. It is the four year contract signed a handful of days ago with Sam Smith under which British Lion will handle the distributor's lineup, complete, in the United Kingdom for the next four seasons beginning with this one. Emerging into the light now is the fact that one million dollars passed from British Lion to Republic with the affixing of signatures. What would any producer do with one million dollars? That's exactly what W. Ray Johnston is doing. He's plowing them back into production. . . .

The sort of thing that makes the average chatter writer a minor menace:

> Don't be surprised to see a Fox-Twentieth Century-Loew movie merger. . . . Joe Schenck is the Fox boss. . . . Brother Nick (a sick man) is the Loew-Metro boss. . . And the stock deal of a few years back gave Fox control of Loew's. . . . Sidney Kent, present Fox chief, may head Loew's, Nick resigning.

Mexico City Strike Ends; Houses Reopen

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 13.—The strike that closed six large neighborhood houses for nearly a month and threatened the closure of four more as well as a large first run, was settled with the signing of new collective labor contracts between the exhibitors and the Federation of Cinematographic Industry Workers of the Federal District which includes Mexico City, with the approval of the federal board of conciliation and arbitration. As in the case of the settlement of a strike that closed four other houses, the employees backed down considerably in their demands for higher pay. They won a slight wage increase. The end of these strikes was sooner than was expected. It had not been looked for until September.

It is estimated that the strike cost the exhibitors from $30,000 to $35,000 from lost patronage during the shutdown.

Boot is chairman of the Pinewood Studios, Inc. He said that, aside from himself, the only party interested is Arthur Rank, son of Joseph Rank, whom Boot asserted is the "flour king" of England.

The Pinewood studios, when completed next August, will have four large and four small stages. Several, however, will be ready by next June, Boot said. In addition to American offers, the chairman of Pinewood Studios declared he is seriously considering 14 other bids. He added there is a decided lack of sufficient space in England at present, a condition which made him decide to build.

Boot leaves today for Hollywood on a five-day technical survey. He plans to secure what he described as "ancillary equipment" and then leave for British Columbia. From there he will go to Vancouver, then visit Quebec from which port he will sail for home.

Sees 3rd Dimension Effect in New Lens

The results achieved by a new camera lens developed by Jack Sussman, a newspaper photographer, and which gives a third-dimensional effect were demonstrated yesterday.

The secret of the invention, termed the "Eye-Lens," is said to be that both speed and definition can be obtained at the same time. The new lens system gives a wide, sharp field, virtually eliminating distortion. In the color as well as the black-and-white clips shown at yesterday's demonstration background details were almost as sharp and distinct as those in the foreground. The flatness associated with pictures as at present photographed seemed noticeably absent. In the color shots the new device showed up to particular advantage. Colors stood out sharply and distinctly without blur of any kind, giving a most natural effect.

Sussman leaves soon for the coast to interest studios in the adoption of his lens system, which will be made available to producers on a leasing basis.

Young Smith Killed In a Motor Crackup

Malcolm Muir, Jr., of Short Hills, N. J., and Stuart Rhodes of here.

State police said the youths went off the highway at a cross road. The car was careening across the field when it hit an object and left the ground for 25 feet. It then resumed its wild course, striking the house and knocking it off its foundations.

Smith was 17 years old and a student at Groton. His body will probably be brought to New York for burial.

Bury Mrs. Skirball Today

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Skirball, mother of Joseph, Jack, Harry R. and William N. Skirball, all of whom are well known in the industry here and in New York, will be held Wednesday at the Deutsch Funeral Parlors. Mrs. Skirball, who was 80, died in an auto crash at Sewickley, Pa. on Sunday while en route home from a vacation at Lake Placid, N. Y.

Reports reaching here declare Joseph, who was in the car, is suffering from a broken jaw and ribs; Grace, a daughter, from a broken nose, and Mildred, a second daughter, from injuries undetermined.

Sewickley, Pa., Aug. 13.—Joseph Skirball, injured in the car crash Sunday which resulted in the death of his mother, Mrs. Sarah Skirball, underwent an operation at the Valley Hospital today to reduce a jaw fracture. Condition of Mildred Skirball, a sister, was reported as only fair, it developing now she is suffering from a concussion as well as face lacerations. Grace, a second sister and the third victim, is improving, but all three will be at the hospital indefinitely.

W. L. Whitehead Dies

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 13.—Fueral rites have been held here for William L. Whitehead, executive head of the public relations department of the E. J. Sparks Enterprises, who died following a long illness. Whitehead, who was 59 years of age, had been a resident of this city for the last 25 years and, although he had been in failing health for a considerable time, his death came as a shock to his family, and his business associates.

Interment was in Oaklawn Memorial Cemetery, with the Rev.. John Hayes officiating. Pallbearers were chosen from Mr. Whitehead's close friends and business associates in the industry.

Surviving besides his widow, are a brother, John H. Whitehead, this city, and four sisters, all residing in Tennessee.

Coker Dies from Shot

St. Petersburg, Fla., Aug. 13.—Charles R. Coker, 27, doorman, shot himself on the mezzanine floor of the local theatre in which he worked. Taken to a hospital, Coker told investigating officers who questioned him before he died that his motive for his act was "none of their damned business." They called it suicide.

Mrs. Perry Dies

Kansas City, Aug. 13.—Mrs. J. C. Perry, wife of the operator of the Columbia Theatre, Coffeyville, Kan., is dead.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Top Hat"

(Radio)

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, with Edward Everett Horton, Helen Broderick, Erik Rhodes and Eric Blore, each of whose talents shine brilliantly, are here presented in a completely satisfying musical show including top-rung dancing, top light comedy and top tunes by Irving Berlin, plus eye values and a big production number to place this entertainment in the top money class.

As the screen's leading dance team, Astaire and Miss Rogers run an emotional rainbow on nimble feet complementing the spoken and singing romance with pedal gyrations which, for intricacy, grace and meaning, are a joy to behold.

Astaire's sharply chiseled taps and his poetries of motion with Miss Rogers elevate dancing to an American art completely Yankee in design and tradition.

Berlin's lyrics and melodies, particularly "Cheek to Cheek," linger in the memory. "Top Hat, White Tie and Tails," "Isn't This a Lovely Day" and "Piccolino," an extravaganza, evidence Berlin's master hand.

Fine taste is displayed throughout the sets, costumes, musical interludes, photographic effects and ensemble numbers. Pandro S. Berman produced well from a lively screen play by Dwight Taylor and Allan Scott.

The story is the mistaken identity theme. Astaire, having a yen for Miss Rogers, is mistaken for the married Horton propelling her into a spite marriage with Rhodes, a dressmaker. Laughable and subtle are the ensuing complications. All in the cast are topnotch with each spotted for specialty attention.

Mark Sandrich's direction sparkles as a genuine contribution to the screen's musical comedy accomplishments. As a topper for "Gay Divorcee" and "Roberta" this should line and fill theatres and line and fill showmen's toppers with do-re-mi.

Production Code Seal No. 1099. Running time, 107 minutes. "G."

"Harmony Lane"

(Mascot)

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—Lavishly produced with taste and feeling, this film of the life of Stephen Collins Foster, who composed "Swanee River," "Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe" should appeal to and satisfy the immense audience who know and love his songs, which are cleverly introduced here.

Douglass Montgomery, as Foster, compelled by his unsympathetic family to give up music, is a failure in commercial life. His engagement to Evelyn Venable is broken by Adrienne Ames' lies. Miss Venable marries Lloyd Hughes and Miss Ames gets Foster, whom she nags into drink, despair and finally suicide.

The whole cast is splendid. William Frawley deserves special praise as a comedy minstrel man, Joseph Cawthorn as the music master and Clarence Muse as Old Black Joe. Gilbert Emery, James Bush, David Torrence, Cora Sue Collins, Florence Roberts and Ferdinand Minier are excellent in support.

Joseph Santley's direction and his screen play co-authored with Elizabeth Meehan is smooth and logical. The Shaw choir of 75 voices and the musical direction by Arthur Kay are praiseworthy. Colbert Clark supervised for Nat Levine. This unusually ambitious independent film has numerous selling possibilities.

Production Code Seal No. 1136. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Tumbling Tumbleweeds"

(Republic)

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—Gene Autry's first "musical western" in the proposed series is acceptable for those who like ballads, bullets and broncos mixed in almost equal proportions. Autry, known on the radio for wranglers' rondelays, has a likeable personality. He also rides well.

The story deals with the conflict between cattle barons and nesters in the early days of the west. Autry quarrels with his father, Joseph Girard, over an attempt to run squatters out of the range. Five years later Autry returns with a medicine show to find his best friend, Cornelius Keefe, hunted as the murderer of his father. Autry then gets the villains and the girl.

Lucille Brown and Norma Taylor take care of the romance angle. Edward Hearn is the chief heavy. George Hayes as a medicine fakir

"Nitwits" on Combo Bill, Omaha's Best

Omaha, Aug. 13.—Combination of "The Nitwits" and "The Black Room" at the Brandeis captured the best performance in town with a $4,200 gross which was $700 ahead of the norm and considered very good considering the heat. "The Nitwits" was held chiefly responsible, however.

and Smiley Burnette furnish the comedy. Tension is defeated in the basically sound story by the introduction of songs, and time lapses. Joseph Kane directed for Nat Levine under the supervision of Armand Schaefer.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Riding Wild"

(Columbia)

Tim McCoy fans will be slightly disappointed in this, the latest of the series their hero is making, because it is practically devoid of action and thrills as compared with forerunners of this group.

The story, however, is good and plausible and the direction of David Selman keeps things moving right along. The photography of Benjamin Kline is good.

McCoy is his virile self, veering more slightly toward the strong, silent type in this picture than usually. He still outthinks the other members of the cast, however, and quick draw of a six-gun and deadly aim are still with him.

The story has McCoy fired by Edward LeSaint after the former had successfully conducted a roundup and prevented a fight between rival ranchers. McCoy then joins forces with the small owners as a ranch war breaks out. Stevens brings in hired gunmen and McCoy's double to increase the trouble, but the hero wins out in the end and winds up a partner of LeSaint and the husband of his daughter, Billie Seward, with whom he has been romancing.

Where westerns are liked this should go over. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

1790 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

"Gondolier" In K. C. Does Nice $11,000

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13.—Backed by special promotion at the Newman, "Broadway Gondolier" made the best comparative showing in a week which saw all but one house do better than average. "Gondolier" went to $11,000, a nice week for the house whose average is $7,000.

"Going Highbrow" made a surprisingly good showing at the Tower, reaping $8,250 when $7,000 is average. With the only regular stage attraction in town from week to week, the Tower does a consistently fair business even with poor pictures and, when a film proves entertaining, it frequently builds a surprisingly good gross.

Stanley Chambers at the Fox Uptown did a good job with "Curly Top," grossing $3,900 in the last seven of a 16-day run, when $3,500 is average. The picture would have been held another week, but "Dante's Inferno" was set nationally and had to go in. "Curly Top" went to the Fox Apollo, class house operating on an irregular first run, subsequent run policy at 40 cents. This is the first time this has ever been done.

"The Irish in Us" did a good job at the Mainstreet, pulling in $8,100, which is $100 over average.

"Murder Man" at the Midland was very disappointing at the Midland, doing only $6,000 in face of a $11,500 average.

It is interesting to note that there were two Warner and one First National getting first runs here during the week.

Total first run business was $37,250. Average is $37,000.

Estimated takings:

Week Ended Aug. 8:

"BROADWAY GONDOLIER" (WB)

Tussle in Lincoln Nears

LINCOLN, Aug. 13.—The competitive battle between L. L. Dent and J. H. Cooper has started again. Hardly had the Varsity (Dent) opened and announced a price policy of 10c-15c-20c for dual features when the Orpheum, which has been going for two bits top, ducked a nickel to meet the opposition. Vaudeville competition between the two houses is forecast in September.

Czechs Censor 82

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Censors' shears snipped into 82 pictures in Czechoslovakia during May, acording to a report received by the Dep't. of Commerce from Acting Commercial Attache Basil D. Dahl in Prague.

"Becky" Tops Pittsburgh at A Big $13,500

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—With two downtown first runs closed for the summer, the remaining three seem to have absorbed the rival business, at least for the time being. Last week was an excellent one, each theatre hitting above par, which is quite unusual here during the warm months.

By far the best thing around was "Becky Sharp," which received a terrific ballyhoo on the strength of its new color process and attracted plenty of attention and plenty of money as well at $13,500, almost double the average Stanley take. Even "The Scoundrel" at the Penn, although directed strictly to a class audience, got its share of trade, doing $8,000 which isn't bad at all.

At the Warner, "Front Page Woman," with a definite marquee draw in the combination of George Brent and Bette Davis, is credited chiefly with the neat $4,400, "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" counting little in the gross.

Total grosses in three first runs were $25,900. Average is $18,300.

Estimated takings for week ending Aug. 8:

"THE SCOUNDREL" (Para.)

PENN—(3,300), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $8,000. (Average, $7,500)

"BECKY SHARP" (RKO)

"FRONT PAGE WOMAN" (Warners)
"HOOSIER SCHOOLMASTER"
(Monogram)

WARNER—(2,000), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $4,400. (Average, $3,800)

Lopez Garners Top In Denver, $6,000

DENVER, Aug. 13.—Combination of "Calm Yourself" on the screen and Vincent Lopez and his orchestra on the stage of the Orpheum gave that theatre a $6,000 gross last week. Above normal by $1,400, this was the only excitement in town. Lopez gets chief credit.

Amusement parks and Elitch summer stock cut a wide swath into business at large. The Aladdin, with "Lady Tubbs" dipped under normal.

"Curly Top," having moved from the Denver to the Broadway for a second week, did $1,200, which is normal business for the latter house, but very good in view of the follow-up run.

Total first run business, $20,700. Average, $19,800.

Estimated takings for week ending Aug. 8:

"LADY TUBBS" (Univ.)

ALADDIN—(1,500), 25c-35c-50c-60c, 7 days. Gross: $1,500. (Average, $2,000)

"CURLY TOP" (Fox)

BROADWAY—(1,500), 25c-40c, 7 days following week at the Denver. Gross: $1,200. (Average, $1,200)

"EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT" (Para.)

DENHAM—(1,500), 25c-35c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $4,000. (Average, $4,000)

Tries, Likes Radio

New Haven, Aug. 13.—The first subsequent run neighborhood house here to avail itself of radio advertising is the Rivoli, West Haven, owned by Massachusetts Theatres. Max Tabackman believes his daily 5:45 broadcast produces results.

"Escapade", $3,200; Lincoln's Ace B. O.

LINCOLN, Aug. 13.—Top honors went to "Escapade" this week at the Lincoln and the locals took new Luise Rainer with as much enthusiasm as Bill Powell, trotting the take up to $3,200, exactly $1,000 over average. Considerable comment on the trailer which follows the regular feature was largely responsible for tremendous word of mouth sendoff. "Becky Sharp" had the miseries from the start and even with a fashion show on the stage staggered along to $2,800, or $300 down.

The Varsity's second week without ads was not so good as the first, although "Awakening of Jim Burke" and "Champagne For Breakfast," a double Columbia program, was not very strong fare.

Total business for the week, $9,300. Average is $8,850. Estimated takings:

Week Ending Aug. 6:

"ARIZONIAN" (Radio)
"TOMORROW'S CHILDREN" (Foy)

COLONIAL—(750), 10c-15c, 7 days. Gross: $1,000. (Average, $850)

Sparks Circuit Buys Paramount, M-G-M

Deals for M-G-M and Paramount product for the 83 Sparks houses in Florida have been closed by E. J. Sparks, head of the circuit, and Frank Rodgers, general manager.

Sparks sails the end of the week on a Mediterranean cruise, returning in the late fall. Rodgers plans to leave in about a week for his southern headquarters. Rupert Kovelgard, who is affiliated with Sparks at Fort Pierce, Fla., is in town on a week's pleasure and business trip.

Two St. Louis Papers Suffer in Ad Fight

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—The full force of the local exhibitors' revolt against the refusal of the daily papers here to continue daily theatre slide advertising became apparent today when the Star-Times appeared with only four subsequent run house ads, compared to 62 last Tuesday. Its rival in the afternoon field, the Post-Dispatch, fared better, holding 56 of the 61 such ads it had last week and gaining two new accounts among the neighborhoods and suburbans.

"Farmer" at $13,000 Is Cincy Leader

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13. — "The Farmer Takes a Wife" was tops at the RKO Albee with an approximate take of $13,000, which is over par by $1,000. "The Arizonian" failed to hold up at the RKO Palace and was pulled after the fifth day in favor of "Curly Top," which finished the week and holds currently.

Total first run business was $35,800. Average is $48,200.

Estimated takings for the week ending Aug. 9:

"FARMER TAKES A WIFE" (Fox)

RKO ALBEE—(3,300), 35c-42c, 7 days. Gross: $13,000. (Average, $12,000.)

Montreal Grosses Bump New Bottom

MONTREAL, Aug. 13.—Undoubtedly an all-time low aggregate for first runs was recorded during the week ending Aug. 10. The bright lights twinkled at only three of the six big houses for one thing and two of the three which operated were offering a carry-over from the previous week, only the Capitol presenting a fresh bill. It led the way with a take of $8,000 on "Murder in the Fleet" and "Calm Yourself" while the repeat of "Becky Sharp" at the Palace was good enough to draw $7,500. "The Call of the Wild" headed the Princess card again and brought $5,000. Within the trade, the lull was merely the calm before the new season's rush as preparations are in hand for smacking re-openings.

Total business was $20,500. Average is $26,500.

Estimated takings for week ending Aug. 10:

Twin Cities Pretty Good; No Standouts

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—Grosses in toto were pretty good in the Twin Cities last week, although spectacular performances at the till were absent.

The closest to any excitement were "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," which went to $4,500 at the Century, Minneapolis, and "Charlie Chan in Egypt," which ended at $2,000 at the Lyric on this side of the river. Each was $500 ahead of average business.

In St. Paul, the Fields film was $500 up to a gross of $4,000 at the Riviera, while "The Girl from Tenth Avenue" ran to $4,500 at the Orpheum. This was a half of a century in front of normal for that house.

Minneapolis' first runs which average $21,000 in bulk, aggregated $22,000. St. Paul's battery, normally doing $14,500, got $15,600.

"Robin Hood" for M-G-M

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13. — M-G-M paid $62,500 for the music rights to "Robin Hood" to the Reginald de Koven estate. Warners are expected to sell the book and lyrics of the operetta for $30,000 within a few days. The deal is being negotiated in New York now. Warners have had the book and lyrics since the days of silent films, but abandoned the idea of making the story when Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. made a film about the same character in 1922.

It is understood that M-G-M will co-star Nelson Eddy as Robin Hood and Jeanette MacDonald as Maid Marion.

Donora Petition Filed

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 13.—Donora has the distinction to be the first municipality to petition the Washington County Commissioners for a referendum on Sunday shows. Washington, Monongahela and other districts are also preparing for a vote on the question.

Shirley Shines in Phila.; Sends Fox Gross to $25,000

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13. — "Curly Top" shone out last week like a good deed in a naughty world, grossing $25,000—or more than double the average—at the Fox and assuring itself of more than two and possibly more than a three-week engagement.

"The Irish in Us" didn't do badly at the Stanley with $11,500 and goes into a second run downtown spot at the Karlton. "She" went dismally at the Boyd for $7,000 and after two days "Welcome Home" was yanked at Keith's and "Love Me Forever" brought back for a third downtown run to help up the gross.

Continuing its revival policy, the Arcadia played "Ruggles of Red Gap" which did $1,800. Not sensational, but better than some of the recent second runs the house has been getting.

Total gross receipts for week, $67,600. Average is $63,900.

Pari-Mutuel Point Won

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Reversing its action by which it killed the measure, the House passed to be enacted, by a vote of 132 to 71, the bill allowing the Dighton pari-mutuel dog track to continue in operation without authorization of local authorities. The move to reconsider was made by Representative Killgoar who declared that the Dighton promoters should be allowed to realize a profit on their investment. It was passed despite the statement of Representative Herter that:

"It is a well-known fact that the principal promoter of the Dighton track is Al Capone's former lawyer."

Rudy on Production

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Although claiming that his future plans include the possible making of pictures, Rudy Vallee, here with his Connecticut Yankees for a single night club engagement, told reporters that, unless stories were provided that will rise above story embellishments, he will not attempt further picture activity. Otherwise, except for passing reference to a musical show engagement and general mention of radio, Vallee was non-committal on specific points.

New Exhibitor Ass'n

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 13.—M. P. Exhibitors of Northern Wisconsin has been organized here with E. F. Daniels of the Daniels at Iron River, chairman. The organization includes exhibitors from a district served out of the Minneapolis exchanges and is expected to become a part of Northwest Allied.

Clevelanders Pay $16,000 To See 'Irish'

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—Heavy rains alternating with excessive heat failed to hurt local business. Grosses, with "The Irish In Us" and "Old Man Rhythm" leading, went $1,750 over average.

"The Scoundrel," with $8,000, or $2,000 under par at Loew's State and "One New York Night" with $3,500 at Loew's Stillman, made fair showings.
